Rezoning for Park Ave. condo not probable

by DAVE KNIGHT

Thirty-three condominium units proposed for a four-acre location on the south end of Park Ave. hang in the balance this Tuesday evening when the Charlevoix Township zoning board meets to rule on a rezoning request crucial to the project.

Prospects for passage of the rezoning appeared poor early this week, however, due to a concerted effort by Park Ave. and Boulder Park residents as well as several other concerned township and city residents to prevent the condominiums from being built on the lakefront site.

Petitions against the condominium have been in circulation over the past week in residential districts of both the south side and north side of Charlevoix Township. Petitions of support for the anti-condo movement have also been circulated among city residents.

As of Monday night, it was uncertain as to how many names had been collected on the petitions though four individuals who had assisted in the circulation effort indicated widespread opposition to the condominium plan.

Jerome Bookstein, a Birmingham realtor who, along with his brother Marvin, proposes to buy the Park Ave. site and build the condominiums if the rezoning passes, said Friday that the project is the most feasible use of the property.

Bookstein, who maintains a Charlevoix residence and has been a seasonal visitor to the area for 35 years, said he and his family plan to occupy the distinctive Edward Young-designed home now on the site. The property is owned by Olive L. Moyer.

The sale to the Booksteins is contingent upon the rezoning of the property from "R-1", single family residential, to "R-4" multiple dwelling. Final action on the rezoning request will be taken by the township board after hearing recommendations by both the zoning board and the Charlevoix County Planning Commission which meets Thursday night.

Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud held out little hope that the rezoning would succeed saying, "I have not heard from one person who is in favor of these condominiums."

Dale Boss, a north side township resident who coordinated oppostion to the project among other north side dwellers, was even more committal.

Said Boss, "The decision is as good as made. The people of the township don't want any condominiums anywhere. Families have moved to the township to get away from high concentrations of people. If they (the developers) want to build a condominium let them do it downtown. I don't think you will see any condominiums built in this township for a long, long time."

Boss added that the benefit to Charlevoix Township in the form of tax revenues would be minimal since the township collects only one mil of assessed value. He contended that the project would benefit only the developers and would leave the township with more problems than advantages.

Bookstein maintains that traffic congestion will not be a factor.

He said, "Our studies of existing condominiums in Charlevoix show that 90 percent of the time, only ten percent of the condominium owners are using their units. There will probably never be a time when all 32 units are being used. Because of their limitedl use, the other large condominiums in Charlevoix have not experienced the types of traffic problems people are worried about in this case."

Mrs. Anna Belle Webb, 707 Park Ave., is a neighbor of the Moyer property and is strongly opposed to the condominium project. She said, "I just can't imagine them okaying this (the rezoning). The people here in Charlevoix feel that they are saturated with condominiums and don't need any more."

Another neighbor, Harry Ladd of 714 Park Ave., agreed with Mrs. Webb saying, "I don't see any advantage to the township to building a condominium here. We have a good zoning ordinance on the books and I think we should follow it."

"The Sower", an Abbott Pattison bronze sculpture donated to the Charlevoix Public Library in 1967, was found broken off its wooden base in front of the library last Wednesday. The sculpture, shown above in an earlier photo, was valued at more than $8500 at the time it was donated. Replacement costs have not yet been determined by insurance adjustors. The damage was considered to be the work of vandals.

Charlevoix's City Council opened its first 1981 session Monday night with a new look. The council has moved down from the previous chambers on the second floor of City Hall to new quarters in the Community Room which has been remodeled to accomodate them. Included in the $5000 remodeling were new, custom made desks in a horseshoe configuration, a stage on which the desks sit, carpeting in the room, drapes and ceiling tiles. The move is designed to make council meetings more open to the audience and to accomodate larger numbers of people wishing to attend meetings. The 1981 City Council includes, from left, Aldermen F. Earl Muma, Raymond Wood, and Robert Timms, Mayor Samuel Supernaw; and Aldermen Jeffrey Porter, Shirley Roloff and newest Alderman James Block.

City faces arbitration in one labor dispute, will hear two more grievances next week

by DAVE KNIGHT

Labor problems continue to plague the City of Charlevoix this week as the City Council was told Monday that an ongoing dispute involving suspended police officer Patrick Martin is not over yet and that two new grievances have been filed by city work crew members.

According to City Manager James Brinker, the policemen's union representing Martin has officially requested binding arbitration in the case that dates back to November when Martin was discharged by Brinker for as yet undisclosed reasons.

Following a closed hearing with the City Council, Martin was suspended by the council for 30 days and ordered to take psychiatric and physical tests before reinstatement. Martin refused to take the tests arranged by the city.

Under the arbitration procedure, the state mediation board will submit to both sides a list of three names of possible arbitrators. Each side will then throw out one name to decide on the final choice. Brinker said that the arbitration process could take months to complete.

At its workshop meeting Monday, January 12, the council will hear from city crew members with grievances regarding overtime pay.

One case deals with an instance in which the crew was called out on emergency assignment during their lunch break. The grievance states that the individuals were not paid for two hours at time and a half, the minimum compensation for emergency call-outs. Brinker maintains that the callout policy applies only when employees are called at times other than their shift and not during their half hour lunch break during which two hours of work are impossible to accrue.

The second grievance states that city crew workers did not get proper break time on December 4 when a house was moved across town requiring several utility lines to be temporarily taken down.

Cost overruns to the tune of $860 on the snowmaking equipment installed this year at the Mt. McSauba municipal ski hill raised concerns by the council that the city might have to foot unauthorized bills for the project.

A ceiling of $3500 was set by the council when volunteers first approached the city for financial help in obtaining the snowmaking equipment. With the total cost now at $3888 and another $472 bill yet outstanding, the council moved Monday to notify the project organizers of its responsibility to pay the $860 overrun.

In other action, the council opened bids for a new water tower and was encouraged by at least two proposals that came in well under the $352,000 estimated cost.

The low bid of $319,800 was submitted by Universal Tank and Iron Works with four other bids ranging from $345,000 to $373,800. No action was taken Monday on approval of a bid pending a specification check by the city engineer.

Throes of winter envelope area, are partly to blame for fatal crash

The most severe blast yet of the winter of 1980-81 whipped Charlevoix County over the weekend raising havoc with local traffic and leaving four dead in a head-on automobile accident near Boyne Falls.

Poor driving conditions late Saturday afternoon are being at least partially blamed for a 5:20 p.m. collision on US 131 between a car from Ohio carrying five people and a pick-up truck from Mancelona with two people.

Pronounced dead at the scene were Peter Tremoulis, 23, Cincinnati, Lance Martin Stefanyk, 24, Madison Heights and Keith Daniel, 25, Hamilton, Ohio. Daniel's wife Karen, 25, was rushed to Little Traverse Hospital but was pronounced dead upon arrival.

The fifth passenger in the car, Lori Tremoulis, 25, Cincinnati, wife of Peter, was hospitalized in stable condition with multiple fractures, bruises and lacerations.

William Kiel, 18, Mancelona, driver of the pick-up, was hospitalized at Little Traverse and later released with minor injuries as was his passenger, Greg Lucas, 18, also of Mancelona.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department reports, the car, a GM Phoenix, was southbound when it went out of control on the ice-slickened highway and over compensated into the path of the northbound pickup.

Blizzard-like conditions created Saturday in Charlevoix by high winds and intermittent snowfall caused substantial drifting in exposed areas.

A stretch of Highway 31 just south of Charlevoix near the airport was actually closed to two-way traffic for a period by sheriff's deputies because of the blinding snow blowing off high drifts.

One line of cars was seen being led gradually into town by a pedestrian walking ahead.

Sub-zero arctic blasts had frozen Lake Michigan solid as far as the eye could see by Sunday morning after the lake had been almost completely clear and choppy as late as Friday.

Round Lake and the Pine River Channel are completely frozen over following the weekend weather.

No pamphlets, no Big Rock says CCC

Failure of the county emergency planning office to distribute pamphlets on emergency procedures to all residents within ten miles of the Consumers Power Big Rock nuclear plant by last Friday, say Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix (CCC), constitutes grounds to keep the plant shut down.

The local anti-nuclear group has filed a petition with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) to prevent Big Rock from coming back into operation following its annual refueling and maintenance shutdown which is tentatively planned to end in two to three weeks.

CCC spokesperson Christa Maria said her interpretation of procedures enacted this past summer was that the planning office had until January 2, 1981 to see that the pamphlets were distributed throughout a ten-mile radius of the plant. County Emergency Services Director F. Earl Muma said that 27,000 pamphlets on emergency planning for the county had been printed and delivered to his office in mid-December. Muma explained that his budget has no funds for mailing the pamphlets and that a distribution method had not been decided on yet.

Muma added that when the pamphlets are distributed, they will be distributed county-wide in both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties with no regard to radius distances from the Big Rock plant. The pamphlets apply to all types of general emergencies, not just those involving radioactive material.

Neither Muma nor Big Rock spokesman Phil Loomis said they were aware of or could find any reference to a January 2 deadline for distribution of the pamphlets in NRC regulations.

Potters are winners in basketball contest

The Potter family of 178 E. Birch Crest Dr. in Charlevoix must be good basketball fans because two Potters are the winners in this week's Courier Basketball Contest.

Both Patrick Potter and Joe Potter had three wrong on their entry blanks but Patrick came a little closer than Joe on the tiebreaker to win the first place prize of a $10 gift certificate. Joe wins a $5 gift certificate for his second place finish.

Jaycee tree pickup this Saturday

Charlevoix residents are reminded that the annual Christmas tree pickup will be conducted Saturday by the Charlevoix Jaycees.

As a project to save the city some money by picking up and disposing of the trees, the Jaycees will make the rounds of the city Saturday to pick up all Christmas trees left on the curb. Residents are urged to have the trees out as early as possible Saturday morning.

Cribbage tourney set

The fifty-first annual Masons-Oddfellows Cribbage Tournament will get underway Thursday, January 8 according to Ronald Geer, tournament secretary.

Play will begin promptly at 8 p.m. at the Masonic Temple which will open at 7:15 p.m. for those who need to play a "warm-up" game said Geer.

When the tournament opens, the Oddfellows will be defending the title they won in 1980. In fact, this group has won the competition 28 times compared to 22 times for the Masons.

John LaRue will captain the Oddfellow team and Gerald Johnson the Masonic team. They were named captains after finishing the 1980 season as the players with the highest scores.

The tournament was an outgrowth of the Depression years when members of the two fraternal organizations met to play cribbage for five cents an evening.

Today, all cribbage players in the community are invited to participate in the tournament which will begin January 8 and continue for 10 Thursdays with the site being alternated each week.

Retired teachers to meet in Fla.

Members of the Great Pines Chapter of the Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel who are spending the winter in Florida will meet Tuesday, January 20 for their annual luncheon meeting.

The event will be held at the Branding Iron in Zephyrhills, Fla., at 12 noon on January 20. The Branding Iron is located east of US 301 on Route 54 East. For more information call (813) 782-4642.

NOW ... YOU CAN WRITE CHECKS AND EARN INTEREST with our Money Mizer Now Accounts.

Now there's no need to have both a savings and a checking account, because Charlevoix County State Bank has the Money Mizer Now Account that pays daily interest. You write checks as usual, but your funds keep earning interest right up to the minute your checks clear the bank.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?
That depends on how much you keep in it. But you'll earn 5.25% annual interest on your daily balance - paid and compounded monthly.

IT'S NOT FOR EVERYONE
It's for people who need something special ... a way to earn interest on all their money ... even the money that used to lie around in a checking account. If you keep a $750.00 minimum balance, there is no service charge. Below this level there's a $5.00 monthly service charge.

IS IT FOR YOU?
Even if your balance is less than the minimum, it may pay to have this special account. But ask for details at any Charlevoix County State Bank office. We'll give you a straight answer and if our Money Mizer Now Account is not the answer for you, we'll show you what is.

Bid for Building Trade Home accepted by school board

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, accepted an offer for the Building Trades house located in Hampton Village, increased the price of milk to ten cents per half pint, accepted a resignation and applied the payment of debt retirement obligations.

The offer of $55,000 for the Building Trades house was made by Henry B. Ippel who is stationed in the area with the Air Force. The house is being sold on a two year land contract. Ippel plans to retire here.

The board found it neccessary to increase the price of milk from eight cents to ten cents a half pint because the state has reduced its reimbursement from eight and a half to five cents per unit as part of its austerity budget. In presenting the proposal to the board, Business Manager Vincent Olach said the price of milk sold to the school has increased from .1195 in September to .1362 in December.

The resignation of Chuck Wright as tennis coach was accepted by the board with regret. He was commended for his work as tennis coach over the past six years. Wright has been the only tennis coach Charlevoix has ever had.

Mrs. Roger (Kathy) Gowell, a Middle School teacher, was granted maternity leave for the remainder of the school year.

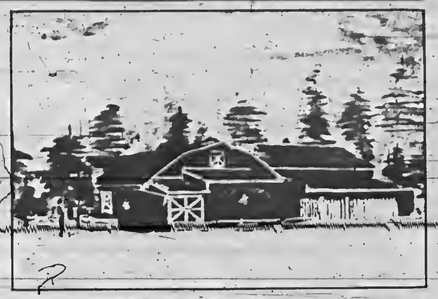
A debt retirement payment of $6581 to the City National Bank on the 1959 high school debt and $20,305 to the National Bank of Detroit on the 1968 elementary school debt were approved.

Two bids received for the 1973 pick-up truck were rejected by the board which will offer it for sale later complete with snowplow.

Olach advised the board that a refund of $974 had been received from the School Employment Trust on insurance payments for school personnel.

Before adjourning, the board went into closed executive session to discuss contract negotiations.

The next school board meeting is scheduled for January 19.



The Brownwood Farm House restaurant in Central Lake, shown above in an artist's sketch, was featured in a recent edition of Ford Times magazine. Ford Times, an 8 million circulation auto travel magazine published by the Ford Motor Company, includes a "Favorite Recipes from Favorite Restaurants" section each month. The Brownwood recipe for Seafood Chowder, served Fridays at the restaurant, was the dish that caught the attention of the magazine and is reprinted in the article. The Brownwood Farm House has developed into a 300-seat restaurant from its beginings in 1945 as a road side honey stand run by Mary Lou and Gary Morse.

Wolf was captain of the Burns Security force at the plant at the time of his death on November 10. He had been with the force for five years.

Jimmy Bowman, who succeeded Wolf as security captain, made the presentation saying it was "to show the heartfelt loss of a friend and to thank the family for sharing his time with us." (Photos courtesy of Jim Mansen).

As Santa busily made his rounds in Charlevoix before Christmas Day, one stop he was sure to make was at the the Library Hour Christmas Party held December 16 at the Charlevoix Public Library. Santa's visit was under the direction of Phyllis Hess and gave all the young library patrons, such as the one above on Santa's knee, a chance to make personal requests.

Knight on the Town

The Joy of Fondue

Now is the time of reckoning.

Now is the time that you find out just how much you really wanted what you got for Christmas.

Remember the experience when when you were a kid?

You'd wake up in the night and run to the room where the ingredients went in and the anticipation grew as mounds of sugar slowly became a pink, gooey glob at the bottom of the machine.

But that's about where it stayed, too. In a pink, gooey glob at the bottom of the machine. We cranked that thing up and it whirled and twirled throwing a whispy strand to the four winds every now and then but I don't think the machine turned out one decent cloud of cotton candy in its entire four-day existence.

Guess that's why you don't see many around these days.

This year my wife and I went to a party before Christmas and enjoyed a delicious fondue supper. Until then we had been stymied as to what we might like to put on our Christmas list. But the fondue was the perfect answer and we lobbied heavily with the folks back home.

Lo and behold, Santa came through on Christmas Day and we brought back a wonderful new fondue set with all those sinister little forks and everything.

We finally got around to trying the thing out a few days ago and what an endeavor that was. My wife wanted everything perfect and started early in the day to bake a round loaf of french bread, chunks of which were to be dipped into a Swiss Cheese sauce according to the recipe.

Naturally there were enough exotic ingredients in the sauce to require two trips to the grocery and one to the hardware store for the burner underneath the pot which we almost forgot.

My job was to stir the whole works and as I stirred and stirred and stirred, nothing seemed to happen. Finally, as we were about to give up and call for a pizza, the mess started coming around and before long looked close to edible.

But it wasn't. It tasted awful. Too much wine, thought my wife. Too much everything, thought I.

There we were with a bowl full of french bread scraps and nothing to do with them. So much for Swiss cheese fondue at our place.

Next time we'll stick to some of the easy recipes.

Like plain oil.

Bookstein mentioned that subdivision of the Park Ave. property into single family home sites was one alternative that would not necessitate rezoning. He said, however, that the extremely poor marketability of new single family homes in the current economic climate make a condominium plan much more sensible.

He noted that the market for condominium units in Charlevoix was healthy as demonstrated by the fact that almost all the units presently available in the area are spoken for. Bookstein also said that construction of the planned 32 units in addition to the present home site would be phased with only one building going up at a time. Completion of all units, he said, would take several years.

Bookstein emphasized that the natural landscape has been considered in the plans drawn by local architect Jack Begrow. According to the proposed layout, as many as 150 trees would remain intact on the property after construction said Bookstein.

The township zoning board will meet at the Township Hall on Norwood Road at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Chimney fires can be prevented

by LAURA GLASS

Snuggling in front of a warm, crackling fire on a cold Northern Michigan day is a favorite for all Charlevoix area residents and moreso now that woodburning stoves are one of the most popular ways of keeping heating bills down.

However, the cozy atmosphere can be quickly broken by a roar and a shaking, red hot stove pipe caused by a chimney fire.

Chimney fires are the result of a buildup inside the chimney of a sooty substance called creosote. Such a buildup can cause fires in both brick chimenye from fireplaces and stove pipes from wood burning stoves.

John Curtis, Charlevoix City Fire Chief, suggests that regular chimney cleaning and proper installation of a wood stove will help minimize the possibility of a fire. He stresses that installation should be done by a qualified person or, for those wishing it do it themselves, the manufacturer's inetructione ehould be followed specifically.

There are products on the market to aid in keeping chimney flues clean and relatively free of creosote buildup. Brushes are available as well as certain chemicals for use directly on the fire.

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Jerry Paul warns that trouble can be caused by letting the stack get too cold which increases the amount of creosote which can then be ignited by a hot fire.

To prevent creosote buildup, Paul says do watch the stack temperature and maintain a moderate fire, hot enough to prevent a cool flue liner but not so hot as to ignite any residue present.

Both Curtis and Paul agreed that there are certain easy care tips that, if followed regularly, will help prevent the possibility of a chimney fire:

1. Burn the stove hot once a day but don't make this the first fire of the day; the sudden heat could crack the stove.

2. Never start a fire with gasoline, kerosene or other flammable liquids. Do not use artificial logs in a stove since they emit gases that could generate an explosion.

3. Burn only well seasoned, dry hardwood. Don't burn Christmas tree boughs, old wrapping paper or straw. Green wood should not be burned since it produces large amounts of creosote.

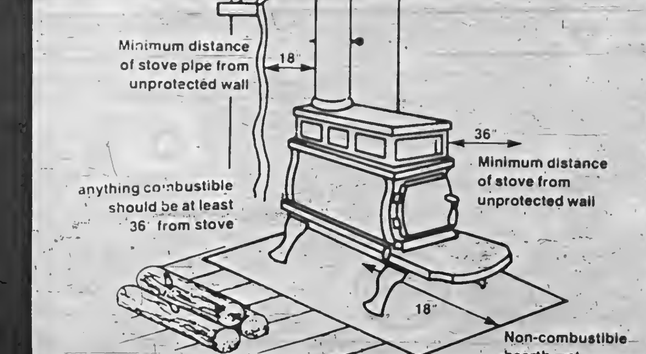
4. Keep chimneys clean and have them inspected regularly for creosote buildup.

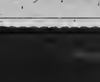
When a chimney fire does ignite, the first thing to do is call the fire department and close all air inlets and dampers.

In the case of a wood stove fire, water should not be thrown on the stove as it might crack it.

Chimney fires, according to Jerry Paul, are not really dangerous in cases where the chimney is sound.

But the possibility of danger is always present thus making chimney care and cleaning a worthwhile way to enjoy the warmth of a fire and the savings of low heating bills in complete safety.





Bob Clock They will learn

My 14-year-old daughter Jennifer sighed deeply and clicked off the television set one night last week after a particularly disgusting episode of M*A*S*H — the long-running TV epic about life at a U.S. Army hospital in Korea during the Korean War.

Every time I see M*A*S*H I have a hollow feeling," Jennifer said. "I feel as though I missed something because I wasn't alive during the Korean War."

Poor Jennifer, I know what she means.

When I was a kid, I used to listen to my father's stories about his World War I tour of duty with American Expeditionary Forces in North Russia. I was sure that my life would never be complete unless I, too, could drive a reindeer sleigh over frozen tundra, wallop a Bolshevik over the head with a rifle butt and dance the mazurka in smoky, store-front cabarets with girls named Svetlana and Tamara.

As dreadful as wars may be while they are being fought, they acquire an aura of something akin to glamor once they are over. The impression is perpetrated not only by the surviving veterans themselves, but also by their compatriots at home who soak up war stories like blotting paper until they become a part of the national experience.

In a way, war stories have played a key role in our survival as a nation. Would doughboye have responded to the call to arms in World War I if their fathers and grandfathers hadn't talked endlessly about their adventures at Gettysburg and San Juan Hill? Would enlistment centers across the country have been mobbed with eager recruits on Dec. 8, 1941, if the young men of the country hadn't been steeped in their fathers' stories of the Maginot Line and Chateau-Thierry?

I doubt it.

However the horror of war — the mud, the dust, the heat, the cold, the hunger, the fatigue, the abject terror, the ignominity of blind militaryobedience — these are somehow lost when swashbuckling heroes recount their war experiences to breathless listeners.

I remember stopping at the NCO club in Yokohama one evening during the summer of 1953 during the height of the Korean War. It had been a hot day and I was surprised to find only one other GI in the dusky second-story taproom. He wore a corporal's stripes on his sleeve and there was blue infantry braid on his overseas cap, which he had smoothed neatly on the white tablecloth next to a frosty can of Budweiser beer.

I ordered a beer from the Japanese barman and sat down at a table near him. Before long, we struck up a conversation. He was completing five days of R&R in Japan and was due to report that evening for his return flight to Korea. His unit was at the front and still later that night he was scheduled to go on patrol.

He talked spiritiedly at first about the marvelous time he had had in Japan and the gifts he had purchased and shipped home to his parents and his girlfriend in the states.

Then suddenly he broke into tears.

"I don't want to go back," he sobbed. "I'm afraid to go back. I know what it's going to be like tonight. The Chinese will come down those mountains screaming like animals. You won't be able to see the, but you can hear them. It makes the hair on the back of your neck stand up. I'm frightened. Can you tell the people back home what it's like? I don't think they know."

I said I would try.

A few minutes later we said goodbye, in front of the NCO club and my new friend hailed a cab to take him to the airport. I never learned whether he survived his mission that night.

The main thrust of M*A*S*H actually is a magnificent indictment of war. So are such books as "All Quiet on the Western Front" and chance encounters at the NCO club in Yokohama.

But somehow their anti-war messages always are overshadowed by glowing acts of raw courage spawned on the battlefield.

Jennifer didn't miss anything worthwhile by having been born after the Korean War, but I'm afraid it's a lesson members of her generation will have to learn for themselves.

ANNUAL TAX SALE

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT
FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX
ORDER (OR HEARING)
NO. 80-17307 PZ

In the Matter of the Complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of Same, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan praying for a judgement in favor of the State of Michigan, against certain parcels of land therein described, for the amounts thereon specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said complaint and be brought on for hearing and judgement at the February term of the Court to be held in Charlevoix in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on the 2nd day of February A. D. 1981 at the opening of the Court on that day and that all persons interested in said lands described in said complaint, shall be, by the said decree, required and charges thereon as ascertained by such judgement to the time of such sale, and in default thereof, appearing to pay the amount of such taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so computed and the cost of publishing and serving the several parcels of land thereon contained and the amounts stated in said complaint thereto as aggregate" shall constitute the amounts adjudged against the said several parcels, as claimed in this complaint.

It That said judgement provide that an order of the payment in ordered of the said several sums computed and prescribed against said lands as said as include the said several parcels of land as such interest thereon as may be necessary to satisfy the amounts adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold to the lowe provides.

It That said court shall have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.
Dated December 10, 1980

Loren I. Morrow
State Treasurer of the State of Michigan
for and on behalf of

GEM WISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

Fascinating Facts About Gold by John Reusch

John Reusch

Did you know that goldsmiths in ancient civilizations like Babylon and Persia invented methods of jewelry making that are still used today? They developed gold leafing, enameling, and filigreeing thousands of years B.C.!

Romans were the first to make coins with ridges. It is interesting to learn that this was not for decoration, but to stop people from slicing gold off the edges. We still have coins with ridges today for the same reason.

Ancient Egyptians prized gold so much that they linked it to Ra, their sun god. Pharaohs ordered goldsmiths to create objects that reflected the sun's rays, and declared all gold their own royal property.

Today, due to an executive order signed by President Gerald Ford, U.S. citizens can own gold. Krugerrands and Credit Suisse are a great way for individuals to invest in gold. Each Krugerrand or Credit Suisse Bar contains one troy ounce of gold. These coins and bars are beautiful to look at, easy to store, and easy to sell when the value of gold goes up. You can buy them at most jewelers.

It is not surprising that goldsmiths were really the first bankers as recorded history. When customers gave them gold to make into jewelry, they issued a receipt. When you think about it, that receipt is based on the same idea as paper money. This can even be considered the beginning of the gold standard!

Fatal canine disease reported in this area

by Laura Glass

In recent years a new virus disease has evolved that affects dogs of all ages and breeds. Several cases have been reported recently in the Charlevoix area.

Canine Parvovirus infection is a contagious disease that primarily attacks the digestive system, intestinal tract, white blood cells and, in small puppies, the heart muscle.

CPV is transmitted through the fecal waste of infected dogs or can be spread by dog to dog contact.

Dr. David Norton, a veterinarian at the Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital, says there have been 18 laboratory confirmed cases in the Charlevoix area already this year.

"The first case we saw was last summer in June," said Norton. "So you can see we are talking about a relatively short time that the disease has been in Michigan."

The disease, which is known to affect only the canine family, is a mutant form of feline distemper. It is not dangerous to humans or any other animals. But if it is not caught in time, the disease can be fatal to dogs.

"CPV usually has a five to eight day incubation period. The early signs after this period are vomiting, diarrhea often streaked with blood and listlessness. It is important to get immediate help for the dog because of the dehydration that occurs with vomiting," said Norton.

Once the symptoms begin, the disease works quickly and death can occur within 48 hours if not treated.

The disease is not always fatal, however, and can be prevented with vaccination. The CPV vaccine is available at most area veterinary clinics including the Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital and Jensen's Animal Hospital in Petoskey.

It consists of two doses given three weeks apart.

"If you can prevent the disease with a vaccine, you can protect against it. It is important to for the public to know what protection they can give their pets," said Norton. "Unlike so many other animal diseases, this one (CPV) can be treated and prevented."

Besides the vaccine, Norton suggests keeping kennels and other areas frequented by dogs properly cleaned and disinfected. Dog owners should not allow their dogs to come into contact with the waste of other dogs.

"This is hard in our area, of course, because this is a resort area and we see so many new dogs," said Norton.

Highway rest stops are especially bad for the spread of CPV because so many dogs congregate in certain areas.

Obituaries

ELVA M. GORMELL

Funeral services for a former resident, Mrs. W. H. (Elva M.) Gormell, 91, who died Dec. 30 at English Hills Nursing Home in Grand Rapids where she had been a patient for four years, were held Wednesday at Zaagman Funeral Home in Grand Rapids. Interment was in Cascade cemetery.

Mrs. Gormell, who has resided in Cascade, came to Charlevoix in 1959 with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Don Anders and family and lived here until 1971 when she returned to Grand Rapids. Among her survivors are a son, Leon Anders of Grand Rapids; four Anders grandsons and two great grandchildren.

R. BRUCE McELROY

Funeral services for R. Bruce McElroy, 74, who died Wednesday at his home in Banks Township, were held Saturday at the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church. Rev. David Willett officiated. Burial was in the Ellsworth Cemetery.

Born in Banks Township on March 26, 1906, Mr. McElroy was a retired farmer and had also raised horses. He had also been in charge of maintenance at the Lodge Motel in Charlevoix. He was a member of the Wesleyan Church, Ellsworth Farm Bureau, Michigan Quarter Horse Association and the Central Lake Golden Oiners.

He is survived by a brother, Walter, of Central Lake. The Hastings Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

NOW OPEN
MONEY MART
New! Exciting! (and pleasantly old-fashioned)

With our new Money Mart at 838 Petoskey Ave. in Charlevoix, Michigan Bank-North has simplified getting a low interest bank loan right here in your area.

We sit down with you ... without the sometimes cold and crisp atmosphere of many banks ... and discuss your loan needs. Together, we fill out the paperwork in comfortable, informal surroundings, then send it to the bank, and that's it. In a short time, your loan money will be available.

Our Money Mart isn't big or imposing.

We don't try to impress or overawe you. But we do provide a very private, confidential service without the usual tension you might have known when applying for loans in the past. You'll talk to one person whose only job is to help you.

Shop for a loan on the basis of terms, not just from the only game in town.

One of the important facts about Money Mart is that the loans you apply for are at low Simple Interest bank rates. And over the life of any loan, lower interest rates can save you important dollars. Best of all, you're no longer forced to feel that you have to deal only with a very few loan sources. Now, thanks to Money Mart, you can shop and compare. We may also surprise you with the amount of the loan we can arrange for you. Try us, and see!

We'll even custom tailor our office hours to fit your schedule.

Need to see us at 7-in the morning? Or maybe 8 at night? Call ahead, and we'll be there to serve you at your convenience. After all, you're our reason for being ... and not the other way around!

Thumbs go down on Park Ave. condos

by DAVE KNIGHT

With a count of two strikes against them going into Monday night's meeting of the Charlevoix Township Board, developers proposing 33 lakefront condominium units on the south end of Park Ave. stepped out of the batter's box by withdrawing their rezoning request.

Charlevoix Attorney Thomas Pointner, representing developers Jerome and Marvin Bookstein, formally requested that a proposal to rezone 3.9 acres at 711 Park Ave. in the township be withdrawn. The rezoning would have been from R-1, single family residential, to R-4 to allow the construction of condominiums.

Monday's action was, in effect, the final blow to the condominium plan that had been rejected by the township zoning board last Tuesday night and again by the County Planning Commission Thursday.

Indications are that the Booksteins will re-evaluate their plans for the property, now owned by Olive L. Moyer, and submit alternative proposals for its development. One option mentioned at both the County Planning Commission last week and the township board meeting was to build nine single family homes on the property in addition to the home already there.

Such a site plan would not require rezoning.

The other proposal calls for two new buildings on the property, one consisting of eight units and the other of six. With the present home, the total development would then provide 15 units and would require a rezoning to R-4.

The original concept proposed by the Booksteins featured 33 condominium units, including two fashioned from the present home, that would have totaled 25,400 square feet of building space.

At last Tuesday's public hearing before the township zoning board, about 50 local residents packed the Charlevoix Township Hall to voice their objections to the condominium plan.

Pointner, who attended the hearing with the Booksteins, said in his opening remarks that the property was not well suited for single family residential zoning and the R-4 classification would be more feasible given the large size and prime location of the site.

"Condominiums, as a whole, have been good for this community," said Pointner, "The infusion of people and money is very important to the local economy."

To the objection that the condominiums would block some neighbors' view of the lake, Pointner said that breaks between the buildings had been planned but that there would be some blockage. "Views", he pointed out, are not a legally protected concept in Michigan law.

Louis J. Hollow, a township resident from the north side, was first to speak against the rezoning and listed several points of objection to the plan.

Hollow refuted Pointner's statement that the property was not suited to single family residential zoning saying that the inability of the property to sell as is reflected current market conditions that have restricted sales of high priced homes in general.

Hollow also expressed doubt that another condominium would be in the best interest of the local economy saying, "Condominiums have not added to the stability of the community. The existing ones have experienced an unusually high turnover rate."

The most frequently mentioned objection to the condominium plan at the hearing, however, concerned an increase in Park Ave. traffic that many felt the proposed development would create.

At least three people associated with the Charlevoix Area Hospital, located directly across the street from the site in question, spoke to this issue.

"Increased traffic could impede emergency traffic to the hospital," said Thomas Carey, president of the hospital board of directors. "And the fact that there are no sidewalks on Park Ave. would make increased traffic dangerous to pedestrians walking to and from the hospital."

Carey's statements were read from a letter of opposition to the condominium plan that had been drafted and approved unanimously by the hospital board at their December 16 meeting.

Property owners neighboring the 711 Park Ave. site were well represented at the hearing with many of them present and some represented by Attorney Frank Hoffman.

"You are talking about changing the use of a stable piece of property that is not vacant or going downhill," said Hoffman. "The only benefit of the project is economic profit for the developers."

Hoffman warned that a rezoning of the site would threaten the residential character of the rest of the neighborhood and would probably lead to other properties in the area being changed from single family residences. He also agreed with the assessment of condominiums being of dubious value to the community saying that, as city attorney, he has had several problems with existing condominiums in the city.

The meeting did not go without at least one word of support for condominiums in general, if not specifically for the Park Ave. plan. Local realtor Dick Georgi pointed out that condominiums play an essential role in Charlevoix which, historically, is a resort community and needs the lodging facilities once provided by hotels.

Placed on file with the zoning board were petitions containing about 90 signatures of City of Charlevoix residents expressing their support for the opposition movement and other petitions containing about 80 signatures of township residents opposed to the rezoning. About 24 letters, all in opposition to the rezoning, were also acknowledged by the board.

A motion to turn down the rezoning request was passed by a 5-0 margin.

The unanimous recommendation was thus forwarded to the County Planning Commission which, as expected, also voted against rezoning on the grounds that the project would not be consistent with the area.

At Monday night's meeting, held again before a full house in the audience, the township board did not get a chance to pass final judgement on the rezoning proposal when Pointner withdrew the request. Pointner did indicate to the board that his clients would submit alternative plans at a later date.

Char-Em tightens belt with sacrifices

by DAVE KNIGHT

Faced with a budget deficit of about $110,000 caused by diminished state funding and increased costs to local districts, the Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate Board of Education took several drastic actions Monday night to cope with the financial crisis.

An agreement hammered out by a joint committee of three Char-Em board members and three members of the association representing Char-Em staff called for the forfeiture of ten days' work by all administration and staff between January 21 and June 6, layoffs of three positions, discontinuance of one position, transfers of three positions and the discontinuance of three upcoming Char-Em board meetings.

The forfeiture of 10 days work in the six month period until June by all salaried personnel is estimated to save the district approximately $42,000 and is the most crucial item in the cost saving package adopted by the board.

According to Char-Em Superintendent James Shepard, the staff opted for taking several days off without pay as a means of avoiding more widespread layoffs.

Said Char-Em staff member Eugene Plummer, whose postion of Vocational Education - Special Education Consultant was discontinued in the proposal, "We (the staff) will bite the bullet for the remaining part of the year but we hope to have a strong advocate in the board when this is over. It is important to realize that we, as individuals taking this action, are actually paying more to support the program than some local school districts."

"It is not a comfortable position," said Plummer.

Laid off, as part of the agreement, will be half-time transportation supervisor Del Swartout and Instructional Matrials Center aide Jan Glass.

Occupational Theraplist aide Jackie Krieg will have her position reduced to half time. East Jordan teacher Tom Terry will be transferred to the Research Project; Melrose teacher John Murphy will be transferred to the program for emotionally impaired at Gaylord and Ironton teacher Sandra Manning will be transferred to the trainable classroom at Melrose.

Plummer's position was completely discontinued but with the advisement that there is a position open at the St. Francis School in Petoskey.

Total savings through layoffs and transfers are estimated to be about $21,300.

The second meetings of the board previously planned for the months of January, April and May will be cancelled to save about $600. The meetings were part of a series the board holds in outlying areas each year as a good will gesture.

Board member James F. O'Brien voiced concern about the ramifications of the budget cuts saying, "We have done what we had to do and we don't like it. What happens next year in terms of compliance will be very important."

O'Brien warned that excessive program cuts could make the district vulnerable to parent complaints and, ultimately, litigation against the district.

"Actually, however, I am most concerned," said O'Brien. "About our ethical committment to the children."

Shepard agreed with O'Brien's gloomy assesement saying, "We could very well have incomes next year of up to $250,000 less than this year. We need to do a great deal of soul searching in the next few weeks."

Char-Em's budget woes stem from the current state financial squeeze that led to a cut of $55,000 in direct state aid to the district in December and forced upon the district another $55,000 in added costs from the elimination of state aid to special education programs run by local districts.

'Local prime' hits 17.75%

For the second time since last summer, the First State Bank of Charlevoix has announced a lowered "local prime rate" of 17.75 percent to be put into effect this week as an effort to spark the Charlevoix economy.

As part of a recent program by the bank to make more financing available to local people for such purposes as buying new cars from Charlevoix dealers, the lowered prime has no set duration and no set amount of funds dedicated to it.

First State Bank President Louis J. Hollow explained that the program continues the "Committment to the Community" campaign began in December. Other features of the program have been cooperative arrangements with local car dealers to provide 15 percent simple interest auto loans to qualified borrowers.

The lowered prime rate was the result of a meeting of the bank's executive and discount committee called last week by bank chairman Thomas A. Duke.

As of this week, the prime rate at the country's trend-setting major banks was still above the 20 percent mark. Hollow predicted that the recent surge upward by the prime rate, after a lowering trend earlier this year, will plateau soon and stabilize.

The intention of the First State Bank in making lower interest rates available to local people, said Hollow, is to help ease the community through an especially bleak economic period. The lowered prime will be available only to local individuals and will be handled on a case-to-case basis.

Cunningham to head County Commission again

Clyde Cunningham

By PEG OHLE

Clyde Cunningham was re-elected chairman and Don Meggison was re-elected vice-chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at the Board's organizational meeting last week.

Cunningham began serving the County in 1961, when he was elected to the Board of Supervisors, forerunner to the Board of Commissioners. He was first elected chairman in 1976, and has been serving in that capacity ever since. Cunningham represents the townships of Marion, Norwood, St. James, and Peaine. He and his wife, Jeanne, live in Marion Township on land that was homesteaded by his late grandfather, Thomas Cunningham.

Meggison joined the Board of Commissioners in 1973, when he was appointed to fill the vacancy created by the death of the late Kit Carson. He was first elected vice-chairman in 1974 and has been vice-chairman since that time.

Meggison is a native of Charlevoix and represents the first ward of the City on the County Board of Commissioners. He lives in the first ward with his wife, Helen.

Other members of the present Board of Commissioners are Delbert Ingalls, representing South Arm Township; Ira L. Davis, representing Bay and Evangeline Townships; Martin Blegnowski, representing Wilson and Eveline Townships; Larry D. Matthew, representing Melrose and Chandler Townships; Ralph E. Harmon, representing Boyne Valley and Hudson Townships; Thomas Breakey, representing District 8, East Jordan; Keith R. Annear, representing District 9, East Jordan; Casimier Toton, representing District 10, Boyne City; Oral E. Sutliff, representing District 11, Boyne City; Marvin Loding, representing District 12, Boyne City; Oscar W. Ward, representing the second ward of Charlevoix; and I. Lee Moerland, representing the third ward of Charlevoix.

Members of the Board of Commissioners were also given their yearly committee assignments last week as follows:

WAYS AND MEANS: Appropriations and Unanticipated Revenue; Oral Sutliff; Salaries, Elected Officials: Casimir Toton; Legal, Judicial, Legislative and Settlement with County Treasurer: John Haggard; Welfare, Child Guidance and Personnel: Delbert Ingalls.

PUBLIC SAFETY AND PROPERTY: Building and Grounds; Don Meggison; Sheriff, Law Enforcement, Claims, Union Contract: Larry Matthew; County Roads, Ironton Ferry and Airports: Ralph Harmon; Insurance, Advertising, Printing, and Emergency Services: Tom Breakey.

HEALTH, WELFARE AND PLANNING: County Planning and Building Code: I. Lee Moerland; District Health and Commission on Aging: Marvin Loding; County Parks, Conservation, Agriculture and Veterans Affairs: Ira Davis.

EQUALIZATION: Equalization and Resolutions: Keith Annear; Apportionment: Oscar Ward; Township, City Clerks' Reports, Rejected and Charged Back Taxes: Martin Blegnowski, CETA: Moerland, Meggison, Breakey.

STATUTORY FINANCE: Sutliff, Ingalls, Cunningham.

MANPOWER CONSORTIUM: Moerland, Delegate; Toton, Alternate.

NORTHERN COUNTIES ASSOCIATION: Toton.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN HEALTH SYSTEMS AGENCY: Annear.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE PLANNING: Matthew, Delegate; Meggison, Alternate.

APPEALS BOARDS: Sanitary Board of Appeals: Loding, Moerland, Davis. Construction Code Board of Appeals: Ray Wood, Walter Sayles, Elmer Hammontree, Ralph Harmon, Larry Matthew.

REPRESENTATIVES TO BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS: Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission: To represent Board of Commissioners: Moerland, Delegate; Toton, Alternate. To represent Planning Commission: Dennis Jason, Delegate; Tom Wieland, Alternate.

Except for two months, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meets on the second Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. and on the fourth Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the County Building Annex. The April and October meetings are set by statute at different times.

The Statutory Finance Committee meets on the second Thursday of each month at 9:30 a.m. in the County Building Annex.

County cancer unit plans spring crusade

The Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society has begun preliminary planning for its annual cancer crusade in the county which, this year, will be held from April 6-20.

Unit board members announced at their monthly meeting January 5 that Joanne Curtis of Charlevoix will be this year's Crusade Chairman. Individual crusade chairmen will be named for East Jordan and Boyne City. Respective crusade captains will be sought to help conduct the drive in Charlevoix and throughout the county.

The Unit - including any volunteers and others interested in participating - will join with 26 northern lower Michigan county cancer units in a regional crusade kickoff April 3 at 10 a.m. at the Traverse City Holiday Inn.

The theme of this year's crusade is "You are the Key to Open Doors."

IRS announces hours for local office

The Internal Revenue Service reminds area taxpayers that that help with federal tax questions is available by phone and at the local office.

The local office staff offers free in-person help with tax returns. The office in Petoskey is located in the Woodland Mall, 212 E. Mitchell. It is open on Mondays beginning January 12 from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Toll-free telephone assistance is available Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Telephone numbers are listed in the tax forms package and in local directories. IRS says quicker service is available for those who call during slow periods. The best time to call is early in the morning or late in the day. Calls on Mondays and Tuesdays should be avoided since they are the busiest days of the week.

IRS monitors a sample of each day's phone calls to promote accuracy of answers to tax questions and courtesy to taxpayers. In addition, all tax returns prepared at IRS offices are given a quality review to ensure all schedules are attached and all line entries are made properly.

Most Michigan taxpayers, about 2.8 million of them, get tax refunds, according to IRS. Refunds can be speeded up, says the agency, if the preaddressed labels are used in mailing back the tax package.

Ski lessons set for Mt. McSauba

Ski lessons will be offered to children using the facility at Mt. McSauba on weekends and to women Thursday afternoons according to City Recreation Director Dwight Boss.

Leo and Gladys Markel, ski instructors in the area for the past ten years who now reside here, will be offering the lessons said Boss.

The Markels will be offering lessons for beginners, advanced beginners and intermediates.

Persons wishing to register for women's classes to be offered at 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Thursdays and children's classes from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and noon to 2 p.m. Sunday may do so by calling the Recreation Department, 547-4272, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or the ski hill.

It is hoped that children's classes may begin this weekend and women's classes on Thursday, January 22. Fees for the two-hour lessons will be $1.50 for children and $3 for women.

The Markels come to Mt. McSauba from ten years with Boyne Country. They were with the children's programs at Boyne Highland and Boyne Mountain and directed Thunder Mountain for the past three years. Prior to that they were associated with the Blizzard Ski Resort where they taught in the women's program for beginners through advanced.

New hours for skiing at Mt. McSauba have also been announced. On Monday, Wednesday and Thursday the hill will be open for skiing from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from noon until 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Final building report for 1980 shows decrease

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection issued 579 permits during 1980 for construction amounting to $10,781,844.

The Department's annual report further indicates that these figures are down somewhat from 1979, when 699 permits were issued for $10,867,335 worth of work.

However, figures for both 1979 and 1980 are considerably less than they were for 1978, when 873 permits were issued for construction amounting to $15,247,635. That was the year the Medusa Cement Company was issued a permit for a new building costing over six million dollars.

The City of Charlevoix led all other political units in the number of permits issued, due largely to residential additions and remodeling work done in the city. Twenty-seven permits were issued for this type of work in Charlevoix, along with five for new residences, six for residential garages, six for decks and porches, seven for new commercial buildings, eight for commercial additions and remodeling, seven for demolitions, one for a relocation, and two for residential outbuildings, for a total of 69.

Boyne City was second in the number of permits issued, with 54, while the County's third city, East Jordan, accounted for 35 permits.

In the outlying areas, Hayes Township led the list, with 47 permits, followed by Eveline Township, 46, Melrose Township, 46; South Arm Township, 43; Marion Township, 34; Bay Township; 28; Wilson Township, 27; Charlevoix Township, 24; Boyne Valley Township, 23; Evangeline Township, 21; Peaine Township, 19, Hudson Township, 18; St. James Township, 18; Norwood Township, 14; and Chandler Township, six.

Hayes Township also led the list in permits for new residences. Eighteen permits were issued for new houses in Hayes Township, while its adjoining neighbor, Bay Township, was second with 15 permits.

Marion Township, south of Charlevoix, was also high in the new residences category, with 14 permits. Others at the top of the list were Melrose Township, 13; South Arm Township, nine; and Peaine Township, eight.

As might be expected, most of the building permits were issued during "good weather" months, although it may seem surprising that the greatest number, 82 were issued during September, and the next greatest number, 80, were issued during October.

June, August, May, July, April, November, March, February, and January followed in that order, with only 14 permits being issued last January.

The Electrical Inspection division of the Department of Building Inspection issued 449 permits during 1980, compared with 538 in 1979, and 303 for the six months of 1978 the division was in operation.

The Soil Erosion division of the Department of Building Inspection issued 174 permits during 1980, compared with 146 in 1979 and 165 in 1978.

The three divisions of the Department of Building Inspection – Construction, Electrical and Soil Erosion – collected fees amounting to $50,165.90. This is slightly less than the $52,447.66 collected last year.

All county stats up except births

Vital statistics for Charlevoix County for 1980 indicate more marriages, more divorces, more deaths, but fewer births than in 1979.

There were 232 marriages, as compared with 202 in 1979; there were 130 divorces granted as compared with 94 in 1979; there were 111 deaths as compared with 100 in 1979; and there were 249 births as compared with 263 in 1979.

Conkle is now Court Administrator

Patricia Conkle, who has been serving the 90th District Court as a Magistrate, has been given the additional duties of Court Administrator. In this position, she succeeds Marilyn Blauman, who has resigned.

Tips for Ice Safety

From the United States Coast Guard

Now that winter and freezing temperatures have officially arrived in the Great Lakes region, lake and river ice is one hundred percent safe, right? Well, maybe.

Many factors dictate the thickness of ice on lakes, rivers and ponds. These factors include: it's appearance, daily temperature, snow cover, depth of water under ice, size of water body, water chemistry, distribution of the load of the ice and local climatic factors. So as you can see, ice thickness on a particular body of water need not be and usually isn't uniform.

Other factors which may weaken ice are water level fluctuations, the schooling action of fish and even the pressure of birds. Carp are notorious for creating thin spots in ice by congregating in one location.

Under ideal conditions, clear, solid ice at least two inches thick is usually needed to hold a person on foot. Five inches of good strong ice is required for snowmobiling and safe ice fishing. Automobiles require from eight to ten inches of clear, solid ice.

If one must venture out on the ice, knowing some basic precautions and self-rescue techniques may make the difference between a memorable experience and a catastrophy. These include:

1. Check with resort owners, local land owners and fishermen for local ice conditions and open areas.

2. If you must drive a vehicle on the ice, be prepared to exit in a hurry. Most experts recommend that your seat belt be unbuckled and the windows down for a quick departure.

3. Be extra cautious at night or during snow, as ice or open holes may be obscured.

4. Should you go into the water through the ice, proper clothing can increase your chances of survival. Contrary to old wives' tales, heavy outer clothing should not be taken off. An ordinary snowmobile suit or down-filled parka will trap air and slow the loss of precious body heat as well as buoyancy. Even life jackets from a boat can be used for added flotation.

5. Carry a couple of large nails and several lengths of light nylon rope in your pocket. The nails can be used to help pull yourself out of the water and onto the ice. The line may be used to rescue someone else.

8. Keep calm and think out a viable solution. It will do or the victim no good should the would-be rescuer end up a victim.

9. Know the symptoms and treatment for hypothermia (exposure).

Take a few minutes to assess the ice conditions and always be prepared for the worst type of situation. Knowledge of existing ice conditions coupled with good common sense go a long way in averting a tragic ice accident.

County receives $68,412 in snow funds

Charlevoix County received the thirteenth largest amount of 1979-80 snow removal funds from the state out of 83 counties that qualified for the funds.

The most snowfall recorded in any Michigan county last winter was in Keweenaw County in the northern-most portion of the Upper Peninsula where 214.3 inches fell. It was the only county to top the 200-inch mark.

The largest payment of $346,201 goes to Houghton County, however, because, even though it received 172.7 inches of snow, it has more miles of county roads than Keweenaw.

Charlevoix County officially recorded 100.49 inches of snow last winter and will receive $68,412 in state funds from the Michigan Department of Transportation. The snow removal funds totaling $2,014,582 come state gas and weight taxes and represent one percent of the Michigan Transportation Fund distributed to the state's 83 counties.

To qualify, a county must have a minimum of 80 inches of accumulated snowfall.

Other counties in the top five for amount of snowfall were Ontonagan, 167.6 inches; Baraga, 159 inches and Alger, 155 inches. The average snowfall for all Michigan counties was 63 inches last year compared to 103 inches in the winter of 1978-79.

Recovery can begin with a plan

WITH LOCAL UNEMPLOYMENT hovering at 15 percent, some downtown store fronts standing vacant and the threat of tourists having to pay $1.50 a gallon for gasoline next summer, the Charlevoix economy enters 1981 trending on thin ice with lead boots.

From retailers to realtors to resort owners of the Charlevoix area the sign of the economic times is a frowning face.

But it doesn't have to be that way according to the City Planning Commission.

In a presentation made to the Charlevoix City Council last week, Planning Commission member Dr. David Strawbridge said, "Even though the economic climate is bad all over the State of Michigan, there is no reason why we cannot try to improve the local outlook. All we need is some direction."

The "direction" to which Strawbridge was specifically referring is a proposal now before the council to commission a new master plan for the city outlining a comprehensive strategy for balanced growth and economic development.

The last master plan done for the city was completed in 1970. That plan, however, "does not adequately and effectively address the specific problems faced by the community today," said Strawbridge.

The new plan, as proposed by the consulting firm of Ronald F. Nino & Associates of Grand Blanc, would deal with "industrial growth, downtown revitalization, housing needs, land use, public services and other important phases of economic development."

It would cost $16,000.

THE NINO FIRM was selected from three municipal planning companies that made proposals to the Planning Commission.

Going on the assumption that creation of more jobs is of most importance to the area, one of the key thrusts of the plan would be to attract more light industry to Charlevoix.

Said Strawbridge, "In our case we have a special selling job to do because Charlevoix as a location for industry has some inherent problems of transportation and shipping and high energy cost due to the cold climate."

Charlevoix does have many assets, however, he added. Such as the beauty of the area, the large available work force and the recreational resources offered here.

How does one sell a city to an industry looking for an expansion site?

One method carried out successfully in the past has been economic enticements in the form of loans provided by the Charlevoix Development Corporation. But before such incentives can be offered, industries must become seriously interested in coming into the area.

One of the problems that has plagued Charlevoix's industrial growth efforts in the past is a pattern of frequent personnel changes in the administrative positions at City Hall. No city manager, since the position was created, has been on the job long enough to mount an effective, sustained program promoting Charlevoix as an industrial base.

Strawbridge thinks that has changed. "(Present City Manager) Jim Brunker is doing a good job of bringing a stability to City Hall that we have not had before. One of the reasons we feel a new plan would be workable is that there will be someone with whom the council and the planners can work to see that it is followed through," said Strawbridge.

IT IS NOT AS IF Charlevoix has not had the opportunities to exploit.

Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, said that in the past year alone, four different industrial firms have made inquries to her office about site availability and other information.

"Although some have asked about financial incentives offered by the city or a development group, most have indicated that such aid was not necessary," said Merta. What they do request, she said, are the facts about the community such as labor force, municipal services and other data pertinent to industry.

What she sends them are various copies of reports, pictures and statistics, all from different sources and many out of date. There is no organized, inclusive, up to date source of information on the advantages of starting a business or industry in Charlevoix.

The proposed master plan, thinks the City Planning Commission, would provide just such a source.

The Nino proposal is broken down into five "task" outlines.

The first is a background and technical support study to assemble data neccessary to make further planning decisions. It would include analyses of resources, demographics, economic characteristics, land use, utilities and streets. This phase would take about six weeks.

Task number two is entitled "Housing Analysis and Goals Formation." A three-week study would evaluate present housing conditions in the city, forecast future housing needs and identify which types of housing are best suited for particular situations. This information would then be used in setting specific housing goals.

A third task, plan development, would use all the data gleaned from the various studies to develop practical plans for residential, commercial, industrial, public and semi-public areas. There would also be consideration for the historic areas and landmarks of the city. This phase of the project would focus "acutely" on providing direction for economic growth decisions including those dealing with industrial and commercial development.

Citizen participation, in the form of a possible ad hoc committee and public forums comprise the fourth task and final publication of the plan is the fifth.

The total time for the master plan to be completed is projected by Nino to be 26 weeks.

OF THE $16,000 COST, Strawbridge said, "I think it is a small investment to make in terms of the potential benefit to the city. Our thinking (the Planning Commission) is that there is no reason for the City of Charlevoix to put up with high unemployment and lack of healthy economic growth without aggressively trying to improve the situation."

"A new master plan would definitely help the cause," said Merta, "They are very important in what we are trying to accomplish."

Planning Commission and all other backers of a new plan aside, getting a $16,000 unbudgeted expenditure through the council is about as difficult this year as getting Bob MacAdoo to play ball. It becomes harder and harder to justify big bucks for another pile of maps and reports.

The alternative may be to save $16,000, stiff out the storm and wait for the county to organize its development corporation in a few years.

But in that time, how many jobs, federal grants and other new opportunities will be lost? And how many more downtown store fronts will go dark?

Letters: Reflection, correction

Enjoyed old football picture

Dear Editor:

In the December 3rd issue of the Courier, an interesting picture of a Charlevoix High School football team was printed. As my memory recollects, the four backfield men are Bill Novak, Joe Arvilla, Res Supernaw, and Oscar Stroud. The center is Bill Foster, I believe, not George LaBlance as printed, but the left end was un-named. Can someone in the reading audience name this player?

I am one of many readers that appreciate Louie Sharrow and his great collection of pictures of Charlevoix from bygone years. Thank you, Louie, for sharing them.

Name was incorrectly used

To the Editor:

Your publication has recently published articles pertaining to a project intended to construct condominiums on Park Avenue in the Boulder Park area. You have used the name Boulder Park Condominiums in context with this endeavor. I would wish to advise you that I own and have properly registered the name Boulder Park Condominiums and have no interest nor involvement in this activity which I consider to be detrimental to the best interest of Charlevoix and its surrounding environs.

It is not my intention to be involved in this project nor any other which would act as a blight to the best interests of Charlevoix. Therefore I would request that in all further publications the usage of the name Boulder Park Condominiums not be used as reflecting the possible construction on Park Avenue along Lake Michigan.

Thank you.

Observations or Manipulations?

When does a market forecaster become a market manipulator? And how can he be stopped without infringing on his civil rights?

These were a couple of the questions I pondered last week after market forecaster Joe Granville of Holly Hill, Fla., jolted the underpinnings of the American economy by notifying his readers on Tuesday evening to "sell everything."

And they did. Billions of dollars evaporated on Wall Street in a matter of hours as the Dow-Jones Industrial Average plunged 31 points in the heaviest trading on record as Granville's disciples "sold everything."

Granville's problem — if you can call it that — is that he has been so accurate in his predictions over the past few years that his utterances have become self-fulling prophecies.

Of course it makes good sense to sell just before the market goes into a tailspin — which it is bound to do if everybody sells.

It's a classic case of the cart pulling the horse.

This is where Granville's problem becomes a national problem. Is is right for one man to hold so much power over the economy — even if it is perfectly legal power?

Many brokers are upset over Granville's latest caper, since an order to "sell everything" is difficult to justify under today's market conditions. They feel a good many of Granville's clients will lose more in brokerage fees when they start to buy back into the market than they could possibly have gained by pulling out en masse.

A blanket order to "sell everything" also contradicts the profound market research and analysis that we have come to associate with Wall Street. Certainly no two investors have identical portfolios; and in every given portfolio there must have been one or two issues which should not have been sold last Wednesday under the prevailing conditions.

Then why the order to "sell everything?" It boggles the mind.

Granville himself doesn't own any stock. I suppose he feels it wouldn't be kosher for him to make money on his predictions — given his vast intelligence, intuition and acquired talent for making the market behave like a trained bear.

But the very fact that he is the guru of 12,000 investors around the country makes him a force to be reckoned with.

It also makes me uneasy to consider that an institution as basic to the nation's economic health as the stock market is subject to whims of a single man.

It goes without saying that Granville's clients were not obligated to follow his instructions relative to their stock holdings.

But the fact that they did in such numbers seems to betray a singular weakness in the system.

I, for one, would like to know the percentage of investors who have cast their lot with American common stocks — come what may — as compared to the number of speculators who "play" the market for quick returns on faddish issues.

If it is any comfort, such stodgy old standbys as Detroit Edison and Consumers Power barely nudged under the Granville sell-off last week.

Weddings

Renick-Hall

At a candlelight service at the United Methodist Church in Eudora, Kansas, Rev. Wilbur Zook united Debra Renick and Lt. Frank Hull in marriage. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. James Renick of Eudora, Kansas. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Clark Hull of North Point, Charlevoix and Trenton, Michigan.

The bride wore a chapel length white organza gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline and a hemline finished in mushroom pleats. The bodice of the gown was accented with Venice lace as were the full bishop sleeves and chapel length veil. The bride carried a bouquet of burgundy and pink silk tea roses, stephanotis and trailing ivy. Matron of honor, Candace Dardis of Eudora, Kansas chose a burgundy floor length organza tunic dress. Bridesmaid Susan Davis of Lawrence, Kansas wore a matching gown of dusty rose. Both attendants made their own gowns. They carried bouquets of cream colored poinsettias, burgundy spider mums, pink silk tea roses and stephanotis.

Lt. Greg J. Dardis of Eudora, Kansas served as best man. Lt. Rick Yost of Shawnee Mission, Kansas served as the groomsman. Groom and groomsmen wore Army dress blues. Also attending the bridal couple were the bride's brothers, William and Marray Renick, who served as ushers.

The mother of the bride chose a flor length gown of Dior blue and wore a white orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a teal-colored floor length gown and a white orchid corsage. The groom's grandmothers, Mrs. Dorothy Hull of Charlevoix and Mrs. Margaret Weinlander of Riverview, Michigan wore corsages of pink silk tea roses fashioned by the bride's mother. During the service both the bride and groom presented each new mother-in-law with a single burgundy silk rose.

Soloist Charlotte Quiroz sang "If" and "May the God of Love". Dennis Mercer played a program of traditional organ music.

A reception for more than 50 family and friends and out-of-state Michigan and Florida guests was hosted by the bride's parents at their home immediately following the service. A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Eldridge Hotel in Lawrence, Kansas.

Following a wedding trip to Kansas City and Gaylord, the couple will be at home at Ft. Stewart, Georgia.

Baker-Hallman

In a quiet ceremony at the Second Reformed Church at Grand Haven on New Year's Day, Vera L. Baker, a former Charlevoix resident now living in Spring Lake, became the bride of Frank R. Hallman of Grand Haven.

Rev. Alvin Hospers officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of their immediate families. Mark Hallman, son of the bridegroom, as soloist, accompanied himself on the guitar.

For her wedding the bride wore a street length gown of sandalwood polyester satin fashioned with a stand up collar joined to a sheath dress with a set in yoke. It was accented with a floral scarf at the neckline, luggage tan accessories and gold and opal jewelry, a gift of the bridegroom.

Their only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Carlisle of Grand Haven.

A brunch at the Shaker Room in Spring Lake preceded the wedding.

After a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will be at home at 1132 Oakes Ave., Grand Haven.

Neilson-Brown

Mary Carol Nielsen of Traverse City and Michael C. Brown, also of Traverse City, were married Saturday, January 3.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Roe at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Nielsen, in Ironton, before family members and close friends.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Barbara Brown of Empire.

The bride's gown was fashioned from ivory cotton polyester in a floor-length peasant style. She wore a wreath of silk flowers in her hair and a corsage of yellow rosebuds and white daisies on her wrist.

Mrs. James Huff assisted her sister as matron of honor. She wore an ivory street-length dress and flowers similar to those of the bride.

Lawrence Bender of Royal Oak was the best man.

A reception at the Nielsen home followed the ceremony. The bride's three sisters – Mrs. Roger Phend, Mrs. Geoffrey Enlund, and Mrs. Huff – assisted their parents with the reception.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nielsen wore a blue polyester street-length dress, while the bridegroom's mother wore a light blue suit. Their corsages were made of pink rosebuds and daisies.

Guests attended the wedding from Winston-Salem, North Carolina, Durand, Detroit, Hemlock, and Traverse City.

The newlyweds are at home at 4060 Wyatt Road, Traverse City. The bride is employed by Winchester Aviation, and the bridegroom is manager of the Good News Guitar Shop there.

Bolt exhibit

The Bolt family of Charlevoix will be exhibiting their art work at the Creative Arts Gallery of Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, January 12 through January 27.

The exhibition will consist of paintings, textiles, graphics, and ceramics by Lori, Susan and Russel Bolt.

PAC to meet

There will be a meeting of the Parents Advisory Council at the Charlevoix Elementary School on Thursday evening, January 15, at 7 p.m.

Teacher Carolyn DeMoor will present a film entitled "Teaching, Learning Communities", about the teaching concept which integrates students with senior citizens.

Tourney kicked off

The 51st annual cribbage tournament co-sponsored by the Masons and the Oddfellows opened Thursday at the Masonic Temple with the defending champions, the Oddfellows, coming away the victors following the first meeting, Ronald Geer, tournament secretary, reports.

The winners tallied a total of 452 points.

Russell Lewis had the high score for the Masons, 941, while Bruce Reinhart had 946 for the Oddfellows.

This week will see action at the American Legion post home.

Participation in the tournament is not limited to membership in the two sponsoring organizations. All cribbage players in the area are invited to take part.

Leland wins Chx Invitational again; Rayder team loses in semis

The Charlevois girls volleyball team advanced to the semi-finals of their own invitational tournament here Saturday before losing to Leland who went on to win the tournament for the fourth time.

Boyne City, who emerged the victors in its division, fell to the championship team in the finals by scores of 15-3 and 15-11.

Charlevois coach and tournament host Mary Gengle explained that each of the eight teams in the tourney played six games in the qualifying rounds. At that point, Boyne City had a 5-1 record, Charlevois, 4-2; Petoskey, 3-3 and Traverse City St. Francis, 0-6 in Division I.

Leland led Division II with a 5-1 record follwed by Rogers City, 3-3; St. Ignace, 3-3 and Gaylord, 1-5. The tie between Rogers City and St. Ignace was broken by compiling total scores.

In the semi-finals, Leland defeated Charlevoix 15-10, 15-5 while Boyne City eliminated Rogers City in two close games, 15-12, 15-13. Playoffs were on a two out of three basis.

Gengle said that Margo Smith was the top server, Doretta Anderson the top spiker and Mel Kerridge and Teresa Noirot top defensive players.

Gengle espressed thaflks to those who helped make the tournament a success including Olsen's Food Store and parents who helped on Saturday.

The Charlevois girls volleyball team launched the 1981 season Wednesday by splitting with Petoskey.

In the first match of the games played here Petoskey won 15-8. Charlevoix came back strongiy, however, to take the second match 15-3 and the third 15-6 with Doretta Anderson, Teresa Noirot and Margo Smith as the top servers and Becky Wiithoeft the outstanding defensive player.

In the second game, the Charlevoix defense fell apart, according to Coach Mary Gengie, as Petoskey took two matches straight, 15-12 and 15-2. Noirot, Wiithoeft and Smith were the top servers in this game.

The Charlevoix team was without one of its veteran players, Mel Kerridge, who was benched with the flu.

Coach Gengle said she was pleased with the JV squad who won 15-11 and 15-13 while dropping the thirg match 1-15. Missy Walker and Laura Henry were the top servers.

Charlevois will be at Gaylord Wednesday.

Frosh beat Boyne City for first win

The Charlevoix freshman basketball team wrapped up its first win of the current season Thursday with a 55-41 victory over the Boyoe City freshmen on the Boyne City floor.

The young Rayders were trailing by two points at half time but caught fire as the second half got underway to outscore the Ramblers 26-6 to go ahead 42-24 going into the final period.

Boyne City outscored Charlevoix 17-15 in the final eight minutes but could not overcome the deficit.

Dane Tollas with 18 points paced the scoring followed by Bill Tillen and Pat Mitchell with 10 points each.

Jeff Gabus had 12 points for Boyne City.

Charlsvois will host Petoskey here Thursday.

Basketball results

In B-League action on January 7, Medussa alammed Alray Cottages 70-45 behind a 24 point performance by Jim Parrish and 14 points from Paul Parrish. For Alray, Steve McClellan and Tom Morrison had 14 and 13 respectively.

Kit Carson ran over the First State Bank 60-28 as Dale Boss scored 20 lor the winners along with 12 points from Mike Crain and 11 from Conrad Klooster. LeRoy Buchanon tallied 12 for the Bank.

Wojan Aluminum canned Carey's Boot Shop 87-26 as Butch Wagner, Dave Moyer and Don Ward led the scoring with 14, 12 and 11 points respectively. Ken Wesley was high scorer for the losers with 10.

In A-League action January 8, the B-League All-Stars mounted a balanced scoring attack to pull out an exciting 79-72 victory over Great Lakes Energy. Five players on both teams cracked the double-figure mark in individual scoring. For the Stars, it was Jim Parrish, 22, Dale Boss, 21, Don Ward, 13, Tim Carey, 12 and Ike Boss, 11. For G.L.E., Al Loose led with 19, Tony Williams had 16, Peewee Belford, 13, Jeff Belford, 10 and Mark Guitare, 10.

IDC nipped VIP 60-53 led by Larry Taylor and Tex Drenth who scored 15 and 14 points respectively. For VIP, Clint Berlage, Randy Holecheck and Vince Left had 12, 11 and 10 points.

Townhouse, behind a 30-point performance by Rick Leslie, beat Kadens 71-67. Steva Dunkleberg had 18 for the Townhouse while Dean Hicks had 21 and Rob Spencer 18 for the losers.

Cagers topple St. Ignace, can't do same at Boyne

by DAVE KNIGHT

Out of four halves of basketball played by the Charlevoix Rayders varsity basketball squad last week, they reached their best potential in only one but that was enough to salvage a split for the week.

A second half surge by the Rayders, with most of the fireworks in the fourth quarter, caught St. Ignace off guard and sparked a 73-65 victory over the Saints Tuesday night.

On Friday, the intra-county rivalry between Charlevoix and Boyne City was renewed in a fast-paced, ragged game in which Boyne steadily pulled away in the final period to prevail, 73-59 at the final buzzer.

Tuesday's game was the first after the long holiday break and it showed in the first half as both teams suffered from lackluster offensive attacks. The Saints led at intermission 30-23.

The Raydera got their runing game going in the second half, however, and gradually chipped away at the St. Ignace lead. They were behind by only two, 43-41, at the end of the third quarter, and tied the score at 53 with five minutes left in the game. Jeff Greene, with a couple picture layups off the fast break, and Mike Loper with some tenacious rebounding, spearheded the fourth quarter rally.

To that quarter alone, Greene had seven points, Loper 11, Craig Klooster seven and Scott Kelly, seven, five of them free throws. Final individual point totals were: Klooster, 18; Loper and Gary Drury, 13; Greene and Kelly, seven; Paul Hoffman, six; Jeff Drury, four; Dave Buday, three and Ross Carey, two.

Jeff St. Louis had a great individual night for the Saints and led all scorers with 22 points.

Statistically, the teams were fairly even with Charlevois shooting 50 percent from the floor and St. Ignace 49 percent. From the line, both teams were on target with St. Ignace shooting 73 percent and Charlevoix 68 percent. The Raydera outrebounded the Saints 37-27.

In junior varsity action, Charlevoix slipped from a 20-point first quarter and a 31-28 lead at halftime to lall by a 51-47 final score to St. Ignace.

Scoring lor the Rayders was led by Chris Putman with 14 and Tim LaBlance with 12.

At Boyne City Friday night, the name of the game was "run and gun" lor both teams as the action was almost constant lor the entire contest.

In the end, it was poor shooting and under-par rebounding that nailed the Rayders' coffin. Charlevoix made only 24 baskets out of 61 attempts from the floor for an anemic 39 percent.

Oo many offensive situations, the Rayders were getting three or four shots under the hoop but couldn't seem to get them thrguh. The Rambler were not all that much better in the field goal category making only 32 of 71 for 45 percent from the floor.

Charlevoix had numerous chances at the free throw line to pull closer but of 27 free throws the Rayders made only 11 lof 41 percent. Boyne made eight of 15 for 53 percent.

The Ramblers took control under the boards outrebounding Charlevoix 46-37.

Even without playing much of the fourth quarter, Klooster led the Rayders' scoring with 15 points. Hoffman had 12 and Jeff Drury 10. Six three" forward Brian Vroman and hot-shooting guard Larry Jaremа were top scorers for Boyne City with 18 apiece.

As against St. ignace, the junior varsity aguad established their dominance over Boyne City in the first half, piling up a 27-15 lead, but in Friday's game they held oh for the second half and came away with a 54-46 win.

Fred Mielke and LaBlance shared scoring honors with 12 points apiece while Putman was right behind with 10.

This week's slate includes a non-conference game here Tuesday night against Onaway and a game in Petoskey Friday night against the league-leading Northmen. Charlevoix will take a 3-3 conference record into this week's action.

OFFICIAL ANNIVERSARY GIFT LIST
Do you remember the magic your wedding rings held for you when you and your life partner made your formal commitment to each other? Undoubtedly, this resulted from a combination of the beauty of that important moment in your life and the beauty of the precious metal and diamonds you used to symbolize it. That magic doesn't have to end.
According to the jewelry industry's official wedding anniversary gift list printed below, you have many opportunities to elevate fine jewelry to rekindle the magic. You might want to keep the list for reference so you can surprise your husband or wife with a traditional anniversary gift at the next opportunity.

Late pins by Golovich, Wojan salvage mat victory

Jeff Landon works for the pin.

The Charlevoix Rayder matmen posted their second win of the season Thursday, a 30-29 thriller over a strong Grayling team.

The team was trailing 29-18 with two matches to go and had to win both matches by pins to win the team victory.

Scott Golovich at 185 and Ken Wojan at 196 came through with the clutch pins and saved the match for the Rayders.

All the Charlevoix team points, in fact, were scored by pins.

Mike Steele (112) pinned Joe Moody in the second period; Tim Bruce (136) pinned Jin Piper in the second period; Jeff Landon (155) pinned George Masella in the second period; Golovich pinned Tom Sorenson in the third period and Wojan pinned Steve Allen in the second period.

The teams had mutual forfeits in the 105 and heavyweight classes.

Grayling won in the remaining six classes, three by pins and three by decisions.

At 98 pounds, Jim Herrimag lost to Dan Meldrum in a third period pin; Chuck Klobster (119) lost by a first period pin to Tim Jensen; Mick Belly (126) lost a 12-9 decision to Dave Petit; Rick Gallant (132) was pinned by Tim Ferrigan in the first period; Gregg Whitley (145) suffered his first defeat of the year, a 4-3 decision, to John Solofmonson and Alan Bergmann (167) lost by a 7-4 decision to Jeff Knight.

Charlevoix will host Rogers City Thursday.

Charlevoix County 4-H Notes by Program Assistant Leah Green

Meet Marsha Beishlag

I'd like you to meet a nice lady named Marsha Beishlag. She is a volunteer 4-H club leader Charlevoix County is lucky to have her.

In October, 1980, the beginning of the current 4-H project year, Marsha took over leadership of the Charlevoix Market Livestock Club from Charles Elzinga. He had been involved with the club as a leader for four years, partly on behalf of his son, David, who has passed through 4-H and gone on to college where he studies Biology.

The Charlevoix Market Livestock Club, one of three such clubs in the county, currently has 16 local young people as members. They range in age from five years old to 17 and are evenly divided by sex with nine boys and seven girls.

The youngest, five year-old Michael Boyer, is raising poultry for his first project.

The oldest is Shari Jones, 17, a Charlevoix High School senior who has raised several steers and is now studying the Veterinary Science project as well.

Many members are working on more than one project. The projects include steers, hogs, chickens, turkeys, geese, rabbits, lambs and heifers. Other projects include baking, market record books and veterinary science. Small animals may be another project area soon.

A second club, to which Garrett Beishlag and Kevin Mouseau belong, is concerned with bicycles and bicycle racing.

Marsha says that her livestock club meets about every six weeks to discuss progress on the animals, learn about animal care and record keeping. An upcoming club program will feature a livestock expert from Michigan State University.

Teaching is accomplished with 4-H project materials, other aids from the county Extension office and from Marsha's own expertise. The members are also learning how to conduct meetings themselves. This is important since development of leadership is a major 4-H function.

Asked Marsha how she got motivated to accept the responsibility of teaching 16 youngsters, many of whom are inexperienced at handling animals. She immediately replied that it was a challenge.

In addition, the Beishlag children, Aaron, Rhonda and Garrett were involved in the club so by working with the club, she gets to work with them. What's more, Marsha loves animals.

Part of her experience in working with animals was obtained on a small farm near Alba where Marsha was raised. She remembers that when she was a young girl, all her friends owned cows and sold milk in Mancelona.

She also remembers working on several 4-H projects as she grew up. Animals are still a part of her life. Today, Marsha lives on a farm on Sequanota Road in Eveline Township with her husband, Eric, who is the Eveline Township clerk, and their children. Eric also helps with the livestock club.

In addition to all her chores as housewife, farmer, club leader and deputy clerk, Marsha also finds time to work each Wednesday at the Gaylord Livestock Auction as a weighmaster.

I asked Marsha why an adult gets involved with 4-H. Some of the reasons she had included the opportunity to work with the children on projects that are important to them, the opportunity to meet other interesting people who work with 4-H in different places and the chance to see club members grow more experienced and responsible.

It's also nice, she said, to see the club members gain recognition when they show their animals in the ring at the Emmett County Fair. Projects are also recognized at the spring and fall 4-H Achievement Days in Charlevoix County.

Maybe it all boils down to the two factors of satisfaction and growth. Satisfaction for the kids and satisfaction for the adults who help them. Growth through experience for children but also growth for the adults involved.

Marsha Beishlag, through 4-H, has experienced them both.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilmen Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Muma, and Block. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the December 15, 1980 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as entered in the Council Minutes Book.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Muma that Councilman Wood be elected Deputy Mayor for 1981.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Muma and Block. Nays: Councilman Wood. Absent: None.

Dave Rohlmeister of Grasper Engineering opened and read the following sealed bids for construction of the new City water tower.

Bidder: Brown Steel Contractors, Inc.; Total Bid Amount: $346,600.00.

Bidder: Caldwell Tanks, Inc. Total Bid Amount: $362,600.00.

Bidder: Chicago Bridge and Iron: Total Bid Amount: $373,880.00.

Bidder: Pittsburgh Des Moines Steel Co.; Total Bid Amount: $383,100.00.

Bidder: Universal Tank and Iron Works, Inc.; $318,800.00.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Timms that all bids submitted for the construction of the new City water tower be referred to the project engineer for study and evaluation.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen, Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Muma, and Block. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed vacancies on the Board of Review, the Parks and Recreation Commission, and the Compensation Commission created by the expiration of terms and resignations on these Boards. It was generally agreed to act on filling these vacancies at the next regular Council meeting.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood that Councilman Porter be appointed as Legislative Coordinator to the Michigan Municipal League for 1981.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Mumu and Block. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Timms to accept the bid by City Planning Commission, Inc. dated December 15, December 22, and December 23, 1980.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Mumu, and Block. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The recommendation by the City Planning Commission, that the City retain the firm of Donald F. Noe and Associates, to prepare a Master Plan for Economic Development for the City, was referred to the Committee of the Whole meeting scheduled for January 21, 1981 for further study.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood to accept and file the City Golf Course Manager's Report for 1980.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen, Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Mumu, and Block. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The City Manager reported that the Teamsters Union has filed for binding arbitration on behalf of Patrolman Patrick Martin. The Manager recommended that the City Attorney represent the City at the arbitration hearing as he had been present at all previous meetings regarding this matter.

The City Manager reported the CWA Union has filed two grievances and has requested a meeting with the Council. Council generally agreed to meet with the Union representatives at 8:00 P.M. on January 12, 1981.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Mumu to renew the taxi cab license for the Arcade Cab Service for a period of one year.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Mumu, and Block. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Dave Ward, a member of the General Public present, requested that the City erect snow fence on the City Airport adjacent to the highway in future years in order to eliminate the safety hazard caused by snow blowing across the highway. A brief discussion followed the request regarding whether the City or the County should be responsible for erecting the fence as the highway is maintained by the County.

At the recommendation of the City Manager, a Resolution to set Airport fees, an Airport Use Agreement with McPhillip's Flying Service, and the Airport Manager's Contract were tabled until the next regular Council meeting to allow the parties involved time to work out the details of the agreements.

Council generally agreed to allow the City Manager to attend an ICMA Conference in Ann Arbor on February 4, 5, and 6, 1981.

The City Manager reported that the cost of installing the snow making equipment at Mt. McSauba had exceeded the $3,500.00 designated by the Council for this purpose. The Council generally agreed to bill the citizen's group who had promoted the installation of the equipment for the $860.00 overage as they had previously stated they would be responsible for all costs exceeding $3,500.00.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood that, $860.00 in uncollectable debts to the City be written-off.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Porter, Timms, Wood, Mumu, and Block. Nays: Councilwoman Roloff. Absent: None.

The Council, having examined bills totaling $468,415.86 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amount.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmen Porter and Timms, Councilwoman Roloff, and Councilmen Wood, Mumu, and Block. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

Names In The News

Three Charlevoix residents have been awarded scholarships from the Michigan Office of Substance Abuse Services to attend the Seventh Annual Winter Midwest Institute of Alcohol Studies on January 11-16 at the Kalamazoo Hilton Inn. SHIRLEY JOHNS is resident house manager of the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan in Petoskey while the other scholarship participants, ROBERT SELL and TERRY SMITH, are counselors at the CHIP Counseling Center in Charlevoix.

One hundred Michigan residents received Midwest Institute scholarships from the State Office of Substance Abuse Services which co-sponsors the training along with other state alcoholism agencies in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. Approximately 325 persons from these four states will attend the Institute. More than 175 of the participants will be from Michigan.

The Midwest Institute of Alcohol Studies is an educational project which provides basic information on alcohol problems for professional people whose work brings them in contact with persons experiencing a drinking problem. Workshops focus on techniques for dealing with alcohol related human problems and methods to promote better understanding of alcoholism. All participants will recieve a Certificate of Achievement upon successful completion of the five-day course.

Avalanche cross country ski races will expand into Winter Festival this year

The Avalanche Ski Classic, an annual winter event at Boyne City, is being expanded this year into a community-wide festival.

The fourth annual Avalanche cross country ski race will be held on Saturday, Jan. 31. Other Winter Festival events such as snowmobile safari, ice fishing contest and an ice skating exhibition will be held throughout the weekend.

As in past years, the ski race is designed to appeal to both serious racers and recreational skiers. There are two separate races, a 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) event for racers and a five kilometer (3.1 miles) race for recreational skiers.

"Many people enter the race just for the fun of it," said this year's race chairman Jim Baumann. "Every participant gets a souvenir race T-shirt and bib and everyone has a great time at the party after the race."

Olympic style medals, 72 in all, will be awarded to the top three finishers in each of the 24 racing divisions. Participants will be divided according to age, sex and skiing proficiency.

A grand prize for the fastest finisher in the 10-kilometer race is a vacation weekend for two in Boyne City including lodging, food and entertainment.

The race is held at Avalanche Mountain Preserve, a 300-acre city park owned by the city of Boyne City. The race course takes a gradual climb up the side of a high hill which was once used as a downhill ski area. At the top of the hill racers can see for miles. The course then follows a ridge overlooking Boyne City and Lake Charlevoix, then goes down a hill through woods and fields back to the starting point.

Entry fee for the race is $6 from now through January 23. From January 24 through race-day, January 31, the fee will be $10.

The race is being sponsored by the City of Boyne City, the Charlevoix County Press, Schafer's, the Ollworth Hotel, Natural Light beer and First National Bank.

For entry forms write the Avalanche Ski Classic, Boyne City Hall, 319 N. Lake St., Boyne City, 49712.

Two grievances with city are settled

by DAVE KNIGHT

Twa grievances filed by the union representing city work crew employees were settled last week at a special Wednesday afternoon meeting of the City Council.

The disputes had progressed to the third step procedure of a hearing before the council at the request of the Communication Workers of America (CWA) which represents the city employees. Union Representative James F. Robbins and Chief Union Steward Norman Empey appeared on behalf of the employees.

The first grievance involved lost break time on December 4 when a cross-town house moving operation required city crews to splice many utility lines across streets. The union requested that the six employees involved be compensated at time-and-a-half for the 30 minute break.

City Manager James Brinker responded that the crew's contract does not call for payment for lost break time and that authorizing such payment in this case would set a precedent for future negotiations.

The six council members present voted unanimously in favor of a motion by Councilwoman Shirley Roloff to compensate the employees for their lost 30 minute break but at their regular hourly rate.

The second grievance dealt with an instance where two city employees were called to back to work during their lunch break to help repair a power outage at the high school. The union demanded that the city pay the two individuals for two hours "callout" time. According to their contract, whenever city crew members are not on duty and are called out in an emergency, they are paid for a minimum of two hours work.

Brinker argued that the employees were technically still on duty during their lunch break and that callout compensation applies only after the men go home for the day. He also pointed out that it is impossible to get two hours work out of the employees during a one hour lunch break.

On a motion by Councilman James Block, the vote was unanimous to pay the two employees the remainder of the call that their contract stipulates. It was also suggested that the employees' lunch hours be staggered to avoid a similar situation in the future.

Empey indicated later that he was pleased with the two settlements and that the union "accomplished what it wanted to accomplish."

He commended the council for its fairness and attributed the successful agreements to the willingness of both sides to compromise.

Basketball contest winners named

It was Boyne City week in the Courier Basketball Contest last week as both prize winners hail from that locale. D. Laurie, Box 2850, Boyne City had only one wrong on the entry blank and will receive a $10 gift certificate for first place. Joe Trojinek, 5600 Deer Lake Rd., Boyne City, had four wrong and won a tie breaker with another contestant to merit the second prize of a $5 certificate.

CETA workers face layoffs soon

by PEG OHLE

This week, 30 persons are working in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) Title VI jobs in Charlevoix County. By the end of January, there will be four.

That's the word from Helen Phillips, assistant CETA coordinator in Charlevoix County, who says simply that funding for the jobs is running out.

The locations and numbers of Title VI jobs which will be in line for abolishment are County Clerk's office, one; Commission on Aging, four; Emergency Services, two; Sheriff's Department, one; County Transit, four; City of Boyne City, two.

Also, Boyne Falls schools, two; Charlevoix schools, two; East Jordan schools, four; Char-Em Intermediate schools, two; Charlevoix Area Hospital, one; Village of Boyne Falls, two; East Jordan Family Health Center, one; Boyne City Chamber of Commerce, one; and Northern Michigan Community Mental Health, one.

While the cut in CETA Title VI jobs will be drastic, 85 other CETA jobs in the county will not be affected at this time.

These include 10 employees of Grandvue Medical Care Facility and one employee of the Boyne City schools working under Title II.

Another Title II program, called Title II B-C, is administered by the Traverse Bay Intermediate School District in Traverse City. Under this program, 42 Charlevoix County residents are receiving on-the-job training and 26 are receiving classroom training. Of the 42 in jobs, 35 of them are young people, according to Charlene Schlueter of the Northwest Michigan Manpower Consortium in Traverse City.

Another, newer, program is called Title VII, administered by the Private Industry Council in Northwest Michigan. This Council is a consortium of 10 northwest Michigan counties, including Charlevoix.

When this program gets into full swing, it will provide-on-the-job and classroom training, upgrading and retraining, small business internship, and cooperative work programs, all within the private industry sector.

Up to this time, most CETA employment, such as Titles II and VI, has been within the public sector — counties, cities, schools, hospitals, social service organizations — but now the emphasis seems to be switching to private industry employment and training.

"I believe that most CETA jobs will be in the private sector in the future," Mrs. Phillips says. To date, six Charlevoix County residents are enrolled in Title VII programs.

A booklet provided by the Private Industry Council states that "The ultimate goal of the Private Industry Council program is to increase private sector employment and training opportunities under all titles of the act, commensurate with reduced emphasis on public and private nonprofit subsidized employment."

Darker halls mean energy savings at Elementary School

by ANNE KELLY

In an attempt to hold the line on school spending by conserving energy, Elementary School Principal Ralph Raymer has taken some special steps lately to curtail unnecessary lighting of the Division St. school.

Raymer reports that he and school district Business Manager Vincent Olach recently toured the Elementary School with a photometer (an instrument used to measure light) to determine which areas of the building were lit sufficiently by natural sources and where electric lighting could be reduced.

As a result of the survey, about 240 hallway lights in the school have been turned off. Criteria for adequate lighting was taken from state Health Department standards.

"There are regulations as to how much lighting is needed for various activities," explained Reymer. "Hallways, for example, require much less than classroom and working areas where the lighting has not been changed."

Raymer speculated that in a month's time, the savings should be very evident, saying, "The steps we have taken can't help but cause improvement."

With the lights curtailed, hallways at the Elementary School are definitely more dim but not radically so. There are no really dark areas.

To accompany the effort to cut back on lighting, school officials are also working hard to reduce heat loss in the building. Children use central hallway doors to enter the building off the playground rather than entering from each individual classroom door as they did previously.

How have the darkened hallways affected the school's routine? One teacher was seen wearing a miner's helmet with a light to school one day, but, to date, there have been no other reports of unusual reactions to the situation.

Hot lunch price going up next month at schools

by FRAN MARTIN

Students at Charlevoix schools will have to pay a dime more for hot lunch as of February 2 following action Monday night by the Charlevoix Board of Education.

The increase of ten cents per meal at each of the district's three school's was made neccessary by a cut in reimbursement from the state, according to Business Manager Vincent Olach.

Prices for hot lunch will be 75 cents at the Elementary School, 85 cents at the Middle School and 95 cents at the high school. Students will still be able to save by purchasing multiple meal tickets rather than individual tickets.

In other action at its regular meeting Monday, the board regretfully accepted the resignation of Physical Education instructor Toni Felter as the high school varsity girls' basketball coach.

The board directed that a congratulatory letter be sent to Felter commending her for a job well done in the post she has held for ten years.

A request for dual enrollment by Don DePuy was approved. He will enroll at North Central Michigan College at the beginning of the second semester while still attending Charlevoix High School.

Changes in the policy relating to the instrumental music program were tabled for the present time.

Prior to the business session, high school Athletic Director Dale Burge advised the board of proposed changes in sports being offered by the Michigan-Huron Shores conference. Doris Pearl also reported on the activities of the Public Library Committee and Elaine Martin spoke on the Professional Study Committee.

The school board will meet next on February 2.

Neighbors help nab B&E suspects

Some sharp observation and willing cooperation on the part of residents of the Wickersham Road-Ferry Road area in Marion Township resulted in the apprehension last Tuesday night of three suspects in the breaking and entering of a vacant home.

Scheduled to appear in District Court this week Tuesday are Thomas J. Lang, 22, Robert C. Sandahl, 23 and Daniel P. White, 17. "A neighbor reportedly noticed activity in the house, called the sheriff and alerted other neighbors. Two of the suspects fled the scene on foot but were found by a local resident on a snowmobile. The third fled in a vehicle and was taken into custody by sheriff's officers.

Lang is charged with two counts of breaking and entering. Sandahl two counts and White one count. Lang was jailed with a $10,000 bail but the other two were released on a $5000 personal recognizance bond.

VFW Auxiliary plans potluck

Plans for the monthly potluck dinner for members of the Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, its Auxiliary, their families and prosepctive members to be held at the post home Saturday, Jan. 31 were made at a recent meeting of the Auxiliary.

The dinner will begin at 6 p.m. Members are asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service. Rolls and beverage will be furnished.

The next District 13 meeting will be held at Cheboygan on February 8. Anyone wishing more information on the district meeting is asked to call the president, Mrs. Clarence Goldstick.

The Auxilliary treasurer, Mrs. Donald White, advised that the majority of dues had been paid and urged that those outstanding be paid as early as possible so the organization could receive credit for 100 percent participation.

Rental of the post home and the serving of dinners for other organizations were discussed at the meeting.

Mrs. White also reported that the per capita dues and National Home-Health and Happiness contributions had been paid. Members were urged to return their contributions for National Home Seals. It was explained that the sale of the seals comprises 50 percent or more of the cost of operating Michigan Cottage at National Home located at Eaton Rapids. The home, it was explained, is under new management and many improvements have been made in recent months.

Mrs. Keith Wagner hosted a social hour and refreshments following the recent meeting. The next auxiliary meeting will be a combined business and social meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Albert Russell at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 5. The social meeting later in the month has been cancelled because of the winter weather.

Russ, Susan and Lori Bolt of Charlevoix are currently exhibiting at Central Michigan University's Creative Arts Gallery. The Bolts, who operate the Grange Hall Pottery and Print Shop in Charlevoix, are showing ceramics, prints, paintings and textiles at the CMU gallery. The show runs through January 23.

Standing are Jim Miller, director, Pete Pace, director, Denny Wojan, director, John Yaroch, director, Jim McGarry, 1st vice president, Richard Pajtas, president, Jack Uhrick, retiring director and Clem Wagner, retiring directors. Other retiring directors not present were Nellie Hjehle and Larry Edwards.

Very few tax sale listings actually change hands

Are your Charlevoix County real estate taxes paid through the year 1978?

If not, your property may be listed in the Annual Tax Sale section of the Courier, which is running this week for the third consecutive time.

Each piece of property on which 1978 and any prior year taxes have not been paid is described by location along with dollar figures indicating the total amounts due, including interest and charges levied against the property.

A preliminary explanation of the Tax Sale listings notes that any landowner whose property is described in the listings but who does not believe he owes the taxes as indicated, may appear in Charlevoix Circuit Court on February 2, 1981 to contest the lien.

If no such contest is forthcoming, and if the taxes are not paid by May 1, 1981, the property will be included in the Tax Sale scheduled for May 5, 1981 at 10 a.m. in the County Building.

County Treasurer Anah Potter conducts this Tax Sale annually, and to learn more about it, the Courier asked her several questions:

If a person is interested in a certain piece of property and wants to buy it at the Tax Sale, how does he go about it?

First he checks with the Treasurer's office about the first of May to determine if the property taxes still have not been paid. If they haven't (as is the case with about 40 percent of the listings), he attends the sale and offers to buy the property.

At the sale, he waits until the Treasurer reads the description of the particular piece of property in which he is interested. When the reading is concluded, he offers the published amount of taxes, interest, and charges due, no more and no less.

If he is successful, the Tax Sale buyer now waits to see if the owner of the property intends to redeem it. The owner may do so any time within the next year by paying one and one-quarter percent interest on top of the sale price.

If the property is not redeemed at the end of a year, the Tax Sale buyer receives a Tax Deed from the State of Michigan. He then files a Re-conveyance which is served by the Sheriff on the owner. The owner has another six months in which to redeem the property at the Tax Sale price plus 50 percent, plus the fees of the Sheriff, plus $5.

If the property is still not redeemed at the end of this additional six months period, the Tax Sale buyer is given the Re-conveyance papers which he files with the Register of Deeds. He now owns the property.

Mrs. Potter notes, however, that it is very rare for Tax Sale property not to be redeemed by its owner before the 18 months time limitation.

"Out of all these listings, there will probably be only about five descriptions that aren't redeemed by their owners," Mrs. Potter said.

Then why do people buy property at Tax Sales?

Some are genuinely interested in acquiring property at what they hope will be a bargain price, but others – perhaps the majority – buy Tax Sale property for an investment. One and one-quarter percent interest on the Tax Sale price amounts to 15 percent a year.

And why don't property owners pay their taxes on time in the first place?

No money, don't care, procrastination, other reasons.

Oral history cassettes now number 29

There are now 29 oral history cassettes in the Charlevoix Historical Society headquarters at the Harsha House.

They contain interviews with long-time area residents and others familiar with the early history of Charlevoix. Most of the interviews were conducted by Robert Morgridge, a pioneer in the oral history technique, who is also vice-president of the Historical Society.

Some of the recordings were made as long ago as 1974, but most of them were taped within the last two years.

The list of those interviewed reads like a "Who's Who" of Charlevoix old-timers:

Ross and Hilda Alexander, Robert Miles, Jay Oliver, Ben Green, Hubert "Cap" Paddock, L. N. "Buck" Dittelsen, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Edwards, Sam King, W. F. Meyer, Raymond Pillsbury, Mrs. Alvin Joslyn, Nellie and John Willis, Robert Burns, George Cook, Frances Durance, Mathilda Ikens, Charles Heise, Mrs. Edward Shanahan, Mike Hamlin, Rachel Veentra, Bernice Wexstaff, Edwin J. Madill, Benona Kohler, Mrs. Doris Hammond Saunders, Mrs. Olive Eckinger Scott, and Marilyn Boss.

The recordings could turn out to be a gold mine of historical information in years to come. The Alexander's personal knowledge of the Ironton Ferry; Robert Miles' wealth of information gathered from his picture collection as well as his own recall; Jay Oliver's, Ben Green's and the Willis' stories about Greensky Hill; World War I recollections by four of Charlevoix' veterans; Mrs. Joselyn's genealogical research into her ancestors, the Medad Thompson family, said to be the first settlers in Charlevoix.

Robert Burns and the early people of Oyster Bay; George Cook telling about Hayes Township and working on the road plows for Charlevoix County; Frances Durance's recital of what went on in the vincity of Waller Road and Mt. McSauba long ago; Mathilda Ikens' recollections of the old county jail; Charles Heise telling about sugar beets, the ice and coal business, and about his years on the city council; Edward Edwards recounting incidents that occurred during his 27

Knight on the Town

One of the best

Charlevoix High School is losing an excellent coach with the resignation of Toni Felter who has been involved with the girls' basketball for the past ten years.

It has only been over the last decade that girls' basketball has come into its own as a major high school interscholastic sport. That is, except in Iowa where the girls' teams have outdrawn the boys ever since the first bottomless bushel basket was nailed above the barn door and the boys were too busy with the milking to use it.

In these formative years of competitive girls' basketball, the tendency at many schools has been to enlist male coaches with, supposedly, more basketball savvy to build a good program. Female coaches in anything other than field hockey and gymnastics were pretty few and far between on the high school scene not so long ago.

When it comes to coaching techniques and tactical knowledge of the game, however, Coach Felter's accomplishments speak for themselves. Her teams in recent years have brought home more than their share of conference pennants, have rarely missed post-season tournament action and have established Charlevoix as a perennial girls' basketball power in Northern Michigan.

One of the wonderful abilities of Felter extends far beyond producing winners, though. When watching her team play, one really watches a TEAM in action. Win or lose, her players are a tightly knit unit who relate to each other more as family than teammates by the end of the season.

This year's squad was anchored by a core of talented players who, under a different coaching philosophy, could have developed more individualistic, attention-getting styles at the expense of the team's success. As it was, their unselfish, team-oriented attitude won them a conference title and nearly a district crown.

This, to me, is the essence of good high school coaching.

Development of individual skills is naturally an important part of building a successful program in any school sport. But in the long run, they fade in importance to the more intangible but valuable qualities of sportsmanship, leadership and responsibility to others that are fostered by a coach who believes in developing team spirit.

Though Felter may argue on the basis of a couple real nail-biters late this past season, girls' sports in general enjoy the advantage of less pressure than do boys'. Ironically, this is due to the sexist nature of college and professional women's sports which provide little incentive, financial or otherwise, for a high school girl to excel athletically. The situation is gradually changing but there are still few opportunities for good female players to develop their talents past high school and virtually none past college.

In this context, a coach like Toni Felter can concentrate on molding a team and making the experience a good one for the players and not have to worry about lining up scholarships or priming future stars.

Would that all scholastic sports could be so simple.

With her departure from the high school girls' basketball program, Felter leaves behind a record of success that any coach of either sex has to admire. More importantly, she leaves behind several young women who know the game of basketball expertly, who know the satisfaction of working together toward a common goal and who will remember how much fun it all was for years to come.

Bob Clock Some 'what if's' come now

The unpending release of the American hostages by Iran brings up a couple of "chicken-or-the-egg" type questions.

Would the hostages have been taken in the first place if anyone but Jimmy Carter — who is something of a mama's boy — had been president? That's a toughie, but I can't imagine anyone taking Americans hostage under a Harry Truman or a Jack Kennedy.

Here's another: Would the hostage crisis be moving toward a successful conclusion during inauguration week if Carter had been re-elected? Probably not. Ronald Reagan has refused to tip his hand on the hostage issue and Iran doesn't know what to expect after he moves into the Oval Office. As a result, they aren't taking any chances.

Oval office? Sometimes I think it should be called the "Ofal Office."

In any event, the Carter administration is winding down on the up-beat, and the Reagan administration is starting on the up-beat, thanks to resolution of the hostage crisis. It is one less millstone for Reagan to wear. Goodness knows, he has enough already, what with inflation and the death throes of the auto industry.

IF THE HOSTAGES are released, look for a barrage of books on the crisis by the hostages themselves in the next few months. The first few to hit the market will make their authors rich. I am anxious to know what the prisoners were told — if anything — of Carter's aborted rescue mission last spring.

The full story of the Canadian Embassy's role in spiriting home some of the Americans also should make good reading. Books by the Americans who fled to the Canadian Embassy at the time of the take-over should be among the first in print, since they have had longer to prepare them. Of course, the federal government has sealed their lips until their brethren are safe at home.

IF WE HAVE learned anything from the hostage crisis, I hope it is the fact that insurgent governments do not deserve American recognition until they have earned it. When host nations begin to totter, we should quietly padlock our embassies and move out until stability returns.

In light of the fat monetary rewards being raked in by Iran in exchange for the hostages, American diplomats around the world are sitting ducks.

I LIKE TO walk past the lighted color transparencies in the windows of Ski and Shore on Bridge Street and Park Avenue. True, they're only pictures of homes and vacant property for sale, but most of the photographs were taken before winter set in. They abound with vistas of blue water, cool green woodlands and sun-bleached beaches.

A stroll past Ski and Shore on a bitterly cold, wind-blown winter evening is a pleasant reminder of what Charlevoix is like in more agreeable seasons.

SPEAKING OF Bridge Street, I'd like to rattle the teeth of that clown who scrawled "Rock an Roll" with black spray paint on the southwest bridge abutment.

Spray paint on concrete is well-nigh impossible to remove without sand blasting.

Such graffiti is a blight on the town and the perpetrators of such mischief should get more than a slap on the wrist if they are ever apprehended. At the very least they should be made to pay for cleaning up their dirty work.

"Rock an Roll" indeed!

I wonder if I'd feel so strongly if the culprit had scribbled "Fox Trot?"

An economic outlook for 1981

from the Data Research Center of Traverse City

As we enter the new year, much discussion centers on how long the bad economic news will prevail. Unfortunately, the outlook for 1981 calls for continued economic turbulence and the best that we can offer is restrained optimism. The economy appears to be at a precarious point ready to fall either into double-digit recession or begin a recovery ending a short-lived recession. There is an element of truth to both forecasts. Certain sectors of the economy will continue to hold onto their strengths and growth trends while others will remain depressed awaiting renewal of activity.

Monetary economic policy is currently in the forefront of determining the state of economic affairs. The prime lending rate and the consumer price index (inflation) have emerged as the leading economic indicators to monitor. Both rates are at historic peaks and the current prediction is that neither are apt to fall significantly.

The new Federal Reserve Bank's policy will prevent a sudden decline in interest rates so, therefore, do not look for an average prime rate below 15 percent in 1981. Inflation during 1981 will remain rapid at a 10 percent annual rate. Not until fundamental changes are initiated and worked through the economy will either monetary indicator resemble its historical nature.

Fiscal policy by the new Reagan administration holds the keys to the economy of 1981. Immediate attention is due to the first 100 days in office. The corrective measures undertaken during this period will set the mood for the year. If a positive economic climate is instilled, the restrained optimism may be released, fueling an expansionary period.

The anticipated economic strategy in 1981 will result in some sectors of the economy remaining depressed. Forecasts of auto production and housing starts remain weak for 1981, directly affecting our local economic sectors of manufacturing and construction. The depression of activity in these sectors combined with relatively no growth in the remainder of the economy, has resulted in a 12 percent unemployment rate for Northwest Michigan.

Data from the third quarter of 1980 indicates that our projection of 12.3 percent unemployment, which was thought to be pessimistic, understates our local economic hardship. Only the stability of employment in the non-manufacturing sectors of service, trades and finance has prevented a repetition of 15 percent unemployment that occurred in 1975.

Unemployment in our region is not only influenced by seasonal fluctuations but is also quick to increase and slow to decline. Therefore, anticipate high unemployment rates at least until late summer, 1981. This setback in our local employment growth trend will result in a downward adjustment to our 1985 projections of labor force and unemployment levels.

years as manager of the Belvedere Club; Mrs. Edwards telling about the Charlevoix County Normal School; Mrs. Shanahan recalling pioneer "doctoring"; Mike Hamlin's store-by-store recitation of Bridge Street businesses long ago.

Rachel Veentra and her stories about shipping and fishing vessels that came to Charlevoix; Bermice Wenstaff talking about Charlevoix street names and old hotels, diplomat Edwin Madill reminiscing about his early childhood and people who influenced him; Benona Kohler recounting her days in the Bartlett Hotel, which was run by her parents; Doris Hammond Saunders telling about her father helping to build the road to Boyne City and the road on Beaver Island; and Marilyn Bole' tales about her grandmother serving as matron in the old Charlevoix County jail.

When the Historical Society Museum in the Harsha House is completed, probably this summer, it is planned that the cassettes, along with listening devices, will be available to the public on a regular basis.

In the meantime, the interviews are an on-going project. Those knowing of anyone having special knowledge of early Charlevoix and vicinity is asked to contact either Morgridge or W. W. Price, president of the Historical Society. They will make arrangements for the interviews.

Davis to get seat on Armed Services Committee

Eleventh District Congressman Bob Davis will be seated on the House Armed Services Committee when the House of Representatives reconvenes in Washington later this month.

The recommendation for his appointment to the influential committee was announced last week and will receive final confirmation by the House Republican Caucus after the presidential inauguration.

"I've got a solid record favoring a stronger national defense, and the majority of residents of Northern Michigan also favor a stronger defense system," said Davis who is currently starting his second term in the House of Representatives following his re-election in November.

"Armed service has been my first choice for a committee assignment since I was elected to Congress," he said. Davis also mentioned that the appointment would have an especially beneficial effect on the district since two Air Force bases are located in the district, K.I. Sawyer near Marquette and Wurtsmith near Oscoda.

Both are Strategic Air Command bases and Wurtsmith was recently chosen as one of four sites in the country for an Air Launch Cruise Missile base. Davis will remain on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

ANNUAL TAX SALE

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT
FOR THE
ORDER FOR HEARING
NO. 80 17201 FZ

In the Matter of the Complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon

On Reading and Filing the complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan praying for a judgement in favor of the State of Michigan, against certain parcels of land therein described, for the amounts which they have severally claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land and that such lands be sold for the payment of the same by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said complaint will be brought on for hearing and judgement at the Peninsular term of the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan on the 2nd day of February A.D. 1981 at the opening of the Court on that date and that all persons interested in said lands may appear and defend, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such duties, interest and charges or any part thereof shall appear in said Court and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the time and day of the term of the Court above mentioned and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a judgement will be taken and entered as prayed for in said complaint. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said judgement the lands described therein and severally charged with taxes as aforesaid shall be sold and be sold for the sense at auction, at the Courthouse in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, being the 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every part thereof, by the officer of the County Treasurer as at such tax sale and be delivered by him at the office of the county of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and that the sale then and there made shall be a public sale and that the lands described in the judgement shall be separately exposed for sale for the total amount of taxes, charges and the sale shall be made to the person paying the said amount, charged against each parcel and subscribing a receipt therefor. The smallest undivided interest for which any part of said lands will be sold is 5 percent and the description of less than the entire interest shall be the whole or that be offered and sold for any parts of land cannot be sold for taxes assessed thereon in 1981 for such parcel shall be over for the time being and shall be the next sale day. If before the close of the sale to be reoffered and if no bids secured offer or having been the same is going to the total amount charged the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. MARTIN S. BRUGNER Circuit Judge and the seal of the Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 15th day of December A.D. 1980.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT
FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE

JOHN S. MUNROE, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the duly elected, qualified and acting Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and has the complaint under the written authority granted to the complainant by Act No. 143, Public Acts of 1941, as amended, and Act No. 260 of P.A. 1960, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the sworn statement of the Auditor General which contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county on which taxes have been assessed for the years hereinafter named, have been returned delinquent, the description of which lands are returned as described in the description of which said lands have been returned as delinquent, the description of the name of the State and must heed and upon which taxes and charges remain unpaid at the time of the tax sale which such lands were sold to the State have remained unredeemed for the space of more than two years after the same were returned as delinquent.

3. That in addition to the said list of delinquent lands, each description of said lands therein mentioned is in the total amount of taxes, interest, levies, special assessment, collection fees and charges as set forth and contained in the several columns of said list, opposite each parcel of land, there is set forth the total amount of taxes, interest and charges as said amount on each parcel of land, that such lands are subject to sale and that the same are liable to be sold for the payment of such amount.

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are said delinquent and unpaid and that the complainant has not received sufficient money to authorize and request an abatement to the foregoing acts, that the said aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are assessed as appears by the record, amount less than the total taxes, interest, levies and special assessments, collection fees and expenses as extended in said certain tax roll and that said parcels of land as described constitute a unit and compromise of the said several parcels of land, which it would be inadvisable to sell on and against which extended in favor of the State of Michigan for the total of the payment of which each of them may be sold as a unit and in the manner such units may be sold thereof.

Wherefore complainant prays:

1. That within the time prescribed by law the Court may be determined and adjudged the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fees and charges as set forth and contained in the several columns of said list, opposite each parcel of land, there is set forth the total amount of taxes, interest and charges as said amount on each parcel of land, that such lands are subject to sale and that the same are liable to be sold for the payment of such amount.

2. That the said parcels of land be sold at public auction, at Church music workshop set

The third annual Church Music Workshop, sponsored by the Northern Association of the United Church of Christ, will be held on Saturday, March 21 from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. The workshop is open to musicians of all denominations with a special invitation to all interested U.C.C. members.

The day's event will include registration from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. during which coffee will be available and the music will be on display. From 10:30 to 12:30 there will be two concurrent sessions; at one, guest clinician Maynard Klein will present adult choral music for the church service and at the alternate session, Fran Tollas will feature music for small, beginning or new choirs and singing congregations.

The two groups will finish their sessions together, sharing music and preparing for the spring Association Massed Choir. Lunch will be served and there will be time to see music displays.

At 1:30 p.m. each registrant will choose one of the three following sessions; 1. Church service music for the organist, sponsored and directed by the American Guild of Organists; 2. Creative movement to be used with children by Bobby Bates of Petoskey; and, 3. Hymns, their theology and how to choose and use them by Rev. Iva May Foster.

At 2:45 everyone will meet for a wrap-up and hymn singing session to be led by Ellen Addington, choir director from Charlevoix.

The pre-registration deadline is February 1 although late registration requests will be accepted as long as music is available. Those wishing pre-registration forms or more information should contact Fran Tollas, First Congregational Church, Park Avenue, Charlevoix. She can be reached at home at 547-9479.

Klein is guest clinician

Klein received his undergraduate training at Eastern Michigan University, his master of music degree from University of Michigan and an honorary degree from E.M.U. He is presently on the faculty of Grand Valley State College.

Guest clinician at the Northern Association of the United Church of Christ Church Music Workshop on March 21 will be Maynard Klein (right). Klein was on the faculty of the University of Michigan School of Music for 28 years. For over 30 years he was director of the vocal music program at the National Music Camp at Interlochen and has been recognized as one of the country's leading choral directors. Klein has received numerous state and national awards and has conducted choral clinics in almost all of the 50 states. He has also been active as an editor and arranger of choral music with over 200 editions in print and has written a number of translations, concentrating on 16th and 19th century music.

New band director has arrived

by Peg Ohle

Last week, Terry Isenbarger became Director of School Bands in Charlevoix. This week, the Courier talks with him about his previous jobs, his musical background, and what he hopes to accomplish with his students in Charlevoix.

Terry K. Isenbarger

COURIER: Where were you before coming to Charlevoix?

ISENBARGER: I was Band Director at the Bellaire High School for six and a half years. Before that I taught in the Mancelona school system.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

ISENBARGER: In Troy, Ohio. I graduated from high school there.

COURIER: Where did you go to college?

ISENBARGER: I did my undergraduate work at Ohio University and graduate work at Ball State University. I majored in music at both places.

COURIER: When did you become interested in music?

ISENBARGER: At about age 10. I started to study the piano and trumpet.

COURIER: Did you play in school bands?

ISENBARGER: Yes, all the way through school.

COURIER: What is the band setup in Charlevoix?

ISENBARGER: There are two High School bands, the Symphonic and Concert, as well as an Eighth Grade band and a Seventh Grade band.

COURIER: How many students are there in each band?

ISENBARGER: There are 60 in the Symphonic band, 125 in the Concert band, 42 in the Eighth Grade band, and 37 in the Seventh Grade band.

COURIER: How often do the bands meet?

Meet Charlevoix

ISENBARGER: Each band meets each school day for one period. The High School bands occasionally have other practice periods as well.

COURIER: When do the bands perform?

ISENBARGER: They give two or three concerts each year. The High School band plays for football and basketball games. There are Band Festivals, and the bands are often invited to play in parades such as the Venetian Festival Parade.

COURIER: Do students receive academic credit for band work?

ISENBARGER: The High School students do, yes.

COURIER: Do you have as many students in the bands as you would like?

ISENBARGER: Almost as many. We could use a few more.

COURIER: Do you give private lessons?

ISENBARGER: No, not really. I don't have time for them – except occasionally during the summer.

COURIER: Are the High School bands now wearing the new uniforms they recently received?

ISENBARGER: Yes. They started wearing them during the football season.

COURIER: What do you hope to accomplish with the band students?

ISENBARGER: I try to get students to appreciate music and to expand their musical horizons, their tastes. I try to teach enough fundamentals so they can succeed in whatever performing area they would like to enter. I want to give them all the experience of playing in a good performing group.

COURIER: What are the next events coming up for the bands?

ISENBARGER: There will be a Solo Ensemble Festival at either Cheboygan or Traverse City St. Francis on February 7th and the District Band Festival at Petoskey on February 28th.

COURIER: Do you play in any kind of a performing group?

ISENBARGER: Yes. I play the French horn in a brass quintet made up of five instrumentalists from the northern Michigan area. We play for church services and have given recitals in Gaylord, Petoskey, Midland, and Traverse City. The group is called "Sinemonine".

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies other than music.

ISENBARGER: I like to play tennis and to sail.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

ISENBARGER: My wife, Beverly, and I have two children. Eric is 11 and Jill is eight. We live in Bellaire.

COURIER: Fran Martin told us to ask about your Siamese cat.

ISENBARGER: Pyewacket is 16 years old. The name was taken from the cat that plays the part of the medium in "Bell, Book, and Candle".

Humane Society elects new board members at annual meeting

Members of the Charlevoix County Humane Society elected some new board members and conducted other business at the Society's annual meeting last week.

Martha Annear of East Jordan, Donna Wojan of Charlevoix, Bill Matthews of East Jordan, Toni Jeffrey of East Jordan, and Linda Snyder of East Jordan were all elected to the Board for three years.

Jan Ballard of East Jordan was elected for a two-year term, and Essie Ross of East Jordan and Deanna Hurwitz of East Jordan were elected for one-year terms.

Members of the board whose terms did not expire this year are Bill Miller of Charlevoix, Deanna Rothernberg of Charlevoix, Martha Matthews of East Jordan, Dick Wheeler of East Jordan, and Millie Mack of Charlevoix.

Vernice Smith is manager of the Humane Society shelter.

Officers of the Society will be elected at its next meeting, to be held February 11 at 7:30 at the East Jordan library.

Of particular concern to the Society at this time, according to Mrs. Snyder, is the drop in membership, which has gone from over 200 to 187 last year. Membership fees are $5 a year and may be sent to the Society at 1004 Grant Street, Charlevoix.

E. Darrell Dinwiddie, C.P.A., right, has announced the admission of James L. McGarry, C.P.A., left, as a director and shareholder in the accounting firm now to be known as Dinwiddie & McGarry, P.C., Certified Public Accountants. The firm's offices will remain at 301 Michigan Avenue. The transition took effect January 1.

JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS & FICTION

RING AROUND THE FINGER (Part I)
From the time we first wear an jewelry as children we learn that metal can discolor the skin. Even ours, we learn that inexpensive metals tarnish readily but more precious metals do not.
Silver jewelry is typically coated with a rhodium finish that prevents tarnish but of that coating wears off the jewelry needs to be cleaned occasionally like silver flatware more so if a rarely worn. Gold though, usually does not tarnish.
So what happens when you see a dark ring left around your finger by husband Tom's Christmas gift? Don't accuse Tom of being a cheapskate (at least not without checking into the situation a little further). That could be gold smudge which occasionally occurs when the precious metal due to abrasion or tarnishing of the alloys mixed with gold in jewelry.
Sometimes gold chain links will rub against each other, depositing microscopic particles on the skin or clothing. Cosmetics can be at fault if they contain abrasives or if they attract dust to the skin or jewelry.
Although pure 24Kt gold does not tarnish, gold of a lower karatage may do so because it contains other metals such as silver, copper or zinc. 24Kt gold is rarely used for jewelry because it's so soft. Tarnish may be caused by sulphur in the air or by perspiration. Some people's body chemistry reacts with the metal.
Gold smudge is relatively easy to deal with, and usually establishing a few rules for yourself will eliminate the problem. In my next article, I'll give you some helpful tips.

Onaway falls but Petoskey doesn't despite last minute Rayder chances

It was another .500 week for the Charlevoix Rayder varsity cagers but only by a free throw did they miss a chance to knock off Petoskey in last week's only conference test for the Rayders.

Tuesday night's game brought Onaway tu the Charlevoix gym for a non-conference game in which the Rayders triumphed 69-62 but on Friday, last minute foul shots wouldn't drop for Charlevoix spelling defeat at Petoskey by a 56-55 score.

Against Onaway, the Rayders led the entire contest with about a ten-point lead, though Onaway pulled within seven at the end. At the first quarter mark it was 24-14 and Charlevoix led by eight, 36-28 at the half. By the end of the third quarter, the Rayder lead was increased to 55-41 which was necessary to withstand a 21-point quarter by Onaway that lessened the margin but was not enough to win the game.

Onaway had two big gunsan McDonald with 18 and Mike Decker with 17 who led all individual scoring. Charlevoix's was a more balanced attack led by Jeff Drury with 13, Craig Klooster with 11 and Garry Drury with 10. Ross Carey and Mike Loper both had 8 for the Rayders. Jeff Greene and Paul Hoffman had six apiece, Dave Buday had five and Mark Beaudoin two.

The Rayders outrebounded Onaway 43-33 for the most telling statistic; other stats were fairly even such as field goal percentage which Onanway had the edge on, 45 percent to 41 percent. In free throw shooting, Onaway again was superior shooting 10 out of 16 for 62 percent versus 13 of 29 for Charlevoix and 45 percent.

Charlevoix's junior varsity five really outclassed their counterparts from Onaway 61-39 as a tenacious defense held Onaway to single figure scores in three of four quarters.

George Smith had an outstanding game for Charlevoix-scoring 23 points, 11 in second quarter, Jeff Trimper had 10 for the Rayders.

Friday night's thriller went down to the last seconds before the one-point Petoskey victory was sealed at the free throw lines of both teams.

The tension started at the Northman charity stripe with under a minute to play when Bill Keiser made the first of a one and one to boost Petoskey to a 56-54 lead. The clock ran down to five seconds, then, before Charlevoix super-sophomore Craig Klooster was fouled and went to the line with a one and one opportunity to tie the game.

Charlevoix fans were delighted to see Klooster drop the first through the hoop but wipced when the tying point bounced out.

The fireworks weren't over, though, as the Rayders swarmed immediately on the ball and fouled Northman Jim Wareck who went to the line with two shots and a chance to ice the contest with three seconds on the game clock. Wareck missed both tries and Charlevoix got one last chance to launch a "Hail Mary" shot from mid-court which narrowly missed as the buzzer sounded.

Momentum shifted back and forth during the game as Petoskey came out smoking at first to take an 18-13 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Rayders came on strong just before halftime, however, and managed to take a two-point advantage, 31-29, into the locker room for the intermission.

Charlevoix continued to capitalize on strong rebounding and some nice offensive plays to maintain a 43-38 lead going into the fourth quarter. Gary Drury came alive in the third period scoring ten of his team-leading 15 points in that period alone.

It was with about four and a half minutes to play that the Northmen finally caught up and tied the game at 45 apiece. A quick steal and basket by Steve Hewitt put the Northmen on top 55-51 with 1:47 left but the Rayders answered right back with a Jeff Drury free throw and a basket by Klooster to set the stage for the last minute thrills.

Statistically the teams were about as even as the score indicates as Charlevoix shot slightly less accurately from the floor than Petoskey but held the edge on rebounding. The Rayders made 22 of 51 field goal attempts for 43 percent while the Northmen hit 47 percent on 22 of 47 shots.

On the free throw line, Charlevoix hit 11 of 18 for 61 percent versus 12 of 20 and 60 percent for Petoskey. Turnovers were down for the Rayders as the slower pace of the game prompted them to be more deliberate than their usual style. They coughed the ball up 19 times as opposed to 16 for Petoskey. In the rebounding category, Charlevoix totaled 29 to Petoskey's 27.

Besides Drury, the only other Rayders to hit double figures in individual scoring were Jeff Drury and Klooster with 11 apiece. Dave Buday had seven, Hoffman four, Carey three and Jeff Greene and Loper, two each. Northman Dave Poquette led all scoring with 19 points.

The win was good for a 5-1 record for Petoskey which ties them with Cheboygan for the league lead. Charlevoix now sports a 2-4 record in Michigan-Huron Shores action.

Charlevoix's junior varsity cagers were ice cold at Petoskey and dropped a 45-26 decision to the Northmen understudies. Charlevoix was held to one lone basket in the entire second quarter after leading 10-8 at the close of the first. The Rayders went into halftime behind 16-12 and never got back in the game as the Petoskey outscored them 29-14 in the second half enroute to the win.

Charlevoix's high scorer was Chris Putman with ten points. Petoskey's Tim Fought led all scorers with 12.

There is no Tuesday night game this week so the next time the Rayders will be in action is Friday when they play host to Gaylord. Preceding the game, the Sports Boosters will be serving an all-you-can-eat chili supper in the high school cafeteria.

Craig Klooster studies a jump shot.

Rogers City takes no Chx prisoners

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team suffered an overwhelming defeat last week at the hands of a strong Rogers City team. The final score was a lopsided 61-5.

The Rayders only points were scored by Gregg Whitley who won a 17-1 decision over Dennis Paull at 145 pounds.

"Though we lost, we only gave up three matches on pins so the meet was much closer than the score indicates," said Charlevoix Coach Greg Bryan.

Twenty-four of the Hurons points were the result of forfeits, three due to illness and one as the result of an injury. Scott Golovich at 185 was benched with a leg injury. Other Rayder forfeits came in 98, 105, and 119 pound weight classes.

The meet results are as follow:

Mike Steele (112) lost by a second period pin to Robert Centala; Mick Belfy (126) lost by a pin in the second period to Tom Leow; Rich Gallant (132) lost by a pin in 38 seconds of the first period to Dennis Fleming; Tim Bruce (138) lost an 11-10 decision to Dean Snow; Whitley won at 185 over Paull; Jeff Landon (155) dropped an 18-10 decision to Eric Thompson; Alan Bergmann (167) lost a 10-3 decision to John Przybyla; and Ken Wojan lost to his nemesis, Joe Getsinger, by a 20-13 decision.

St. Ignace will be at Charlevoix Thursday, January 22.

VB girls split at Gaylord

The Charlevoix girls volleyball team split with Gaylord in a meet held last Wednesday at Gaylord.

The Charlevoix girls took two out of three games in the first match by scores of 15-8, 9-15 and 15-11 and lost by the same margin, 15-3, 15-12 and 14-16 in the second match.

Coach Mary Gengle said Margo Smith was the top server, Doretta Anderson the top spiker and Mel Kerridge and Brenda Buchanan the outstanding defensive players in the first match. Teresa Noirot and Kerridge were best servers in the second match, Noirot and Buchanan best spikers and Kerridge and Noirot best defensive players.

The JV squad, playing only three games, won only one of the three. The scores were 9-15, 14-16 and 17-16. Top servers were Treasure Drost and Laura Henry, Mary Ellen Clak was top spiker and Chris Mitchell top defensive player.

Charlevoix will host Traverse City St. Francis at 6:30 p.m. this week Wednesday.

Two champs at Kalkaska

The Rayder wrestlers won two first places and one second place medal at the Kalkaska Invitational tournament held Saturday.

Two other Charlevoix wrestlers placed fourth in the meet.

Grayling captured first place with Kalkaska coming in second among nine schools entered.

Ken Wojan, wrestling heavyweight, had three pins to his credit on the way to winning the championship.

Mike Steele (112) came through with two decisions enroute to the finals in which he pinned Joe Moody of Grayling for first place.

Gregg Whitley (145) came in second in his class after losing to John Solomonson of Grayling for the second time in a week. He lost to the Viking wrestler at a dual meet here last week.

Joe Herriman (98) and Alan Bergmann (167) placed fourth in their respective classes. Charlevoix made the trip without Scott Golovich who is sidelined with a leg injury and others who were ill.

Charlevoix will host St. Ignace here at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Sports Boosters plan chili supper

The Charlevoix Sports Boosters will host another of their popular all-you-can-eat chili dinners at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria Friday, January 23, prior to the Charlevoix-Gaylord basketball game. Dr. Donald Trimper, president of the boosters, made the announcement.

Serving will begin at 5 p.m. and will continue until 7:30 p.m. The meal will include chili, rolls, salad, dessert and a choice of beverage.

Proceeds from the event will be used for the purchase of sports-related equipment for the high school athletic program according to Trimper.

Frosh win two in a row

The Charlevoix freshman basketball team made it two in a row last Monday with a 53-44 victory over St. Ignace.

Coach Chuck Wright said the team played well and are showing much improvement as the season progresses.

The young Rayders had to overcome a 34-29 deficit at the three-quarter mark to rack up the win. A hot final period during which they outscored the Saints 24-10 gave them the win.

Charlevoix had trailed 20-18 at halftime after losing a 12-7 first period lead.

Bill Tillen, with 12 points, and Alec Sheets, with 11, paced the scoring for Charlevoix. Tomlyn, of St. Ignace, led all individual scoring with 17 points.

After games here with Petoskey and Central Lake this week, Charlevoix freshmen will be at Gaylord January 26.

Honor Society revived at CHS

by FRAN MARTIN

In a formal candlelight ceremony held at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria last week, nine new members were initiated into the Charlevoix Chapter of the National Honor Society.

At the same time, nine members who were instrumental in re-instating the society after an absence of 11 years were installed as members. Parents and fellow students witnessed the ceremony during which they repeated the pledge and then were presented with a white carnation, their pins and a candle which they lighted from a candelabra which held four lighted candles signifying the ideals of the society; character, service, leadership and scholarship. The presentations were made by Glen Taylor, faculty advisor.

Prior to the installation, the officers of the society had spoken briefly on the cornerstones of the society emphasizing the meaning of character, service to one's fellow men, leadship in today's society and scholarship. As each officer spoke she lighted a candle from which the individual candles were later lighted.

The National Honor Society was started to promote academic excellence. It's members are recognized as students who have excelled in academics and represent the four qualities mentioned.

Mrs. Betty Henne, a faculty member, addressed the group briefly on their responsibilities as members of the society. Mrs. Yvonne Wendt, also on the faculty, told the students what being a member of the society had meant to her as a student.

Oddfellows continue to lead cribbage tourny

In the second week of the 51st annual Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament, the Oddfellows increased their lead to 587 points according to Ronald Geer, tournament secretary.

Robert Zeller was high man for the Masons with 946 points; Ted Bergmann had 908 for the Oddfellows.

This week, the Oddfellows won by a slim 139 points. On Thursday, play will shift to the Masonic Temple where all cribbage players are invited to join the tournament. Play starts at 8 p.m.

Nine tables, the largest group in recent years, gathered for the tournament last week.

CITY CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

January 14, 1981
4:30 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time in a Special Council Session for the purpose of discussing two third step grievances as filed by employees of the Communication Workers of America (CWA) Union against the City. Deputy Mayor Wood presided over the meeting.

Present: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Mums, Block, and Porter. Absent: Mayor Supernaw.

Prior to the discussion, James F. Robbins, Union Representative, asked that this meeting not be tape recorded by the City Clerk. Deputy Mayor Wood polled the Council on this request with the majority of the Council indicating they were in favor of taping the proceedings. Norman Empey, Chief Union Steward, then asked that the Union be allowed to have a copy of the tape. Council offered no objection to this request.

All parties agreed to discuss and settle the grievances one at a time with the first being the Union's charge that the City had violated Article IX, Section 2 of the Union Contract with gross violation of the general purpose of the agreement. In retribution of the violation, the Union demanded that the City pay employees for a lost rest break as was authorized by the employees' Supervisor and that the City honor the Witnesam Section of the contract. The City Manager responded that the contract does not state that employees will be compensated for lost break time and that the Supervisor has no right to determine what employees will be paid. He further stated that rest periods are paid at straight time, not time-and-a-half as requested by the Union and to meet the Union demands would be setting a precedent for future negotiations. The Supervisor, during the incident in question, stated that he had directed the men to add the lost break time to their time cards, which was denied payment by the City Manager, but that his intent was not for the men to be paid time-and-a-half.

Moved by Councilwoman Roloff and supported by Councilman Timms that ex City employees be compensated at their regular hourly rate for missing their 30 minute rest period on Dec. 4, 1980.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Mums, Block, and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: None.

At the request of the Union Representatives, Deputy Mayor Wood recessed the meeting for a brief period to allow the Union time to consider the Council's proposal in private.

The meeting reconvened at 5:50 p.m.

Union Representative Robbins stated that the City's offer was accepted and asked that the matter be clarified in the next contract. He also asked that this provision be typed onto the grievance settlement. Council generally agreed that this would not be necessary as either side could bring the matter up during contract negotiations.

In the second grievance, the Union charged the City with violation of the contract under Article X, Section 7, and gross violation of the general purpose of the agreement. The Union demanded that the City pay callout time as per the contract and as has been past practice and that the City honor the Witnesseth Section of the contract. Union Representatives explained that two men had been called back to work during their lunch break on an emergency and contended that they should be paid for two hours callout time as the incident had occurred during non scheduled working hours. The City Manager stated that he had denied paying the man for a two hour callout as it is impossible to work them for two hours during a one hour lunch break and he also contended that their scheduled shift was from 7:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. and callout time is not paid unless the man are called out after they have gone home for the day. He further stated that the men were paid time and a-half for the extra time. The Job Steward, Mike Reinhert, stated that it had been past practice to pay the two hour callout. Councilwoman Roloff suggested that the men be paid double for the time involved to compensate for losing a portion of their lunch hour. Councilman Porter suggested that employees lunch hours be staggered in order to alleviate the problem in the future.

Moved by Councilman Block that the City pay the two employees who were called out the remainder of the call that their contract calls for with the understanding that, through Mr. Brinker and Mr. Whitley, either lunch hours are staggered so the situation does not arise again or that it is agreed between Mr. Brinker and Mr. Whitley and the Union that the hour in between constitutes part of a daily shift for the balance of the present contract.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Mums, Block and Porter. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Union Representative Robbins stated the Union could not accept the Council's decision. The City Attorney then pointed out that Council had met the Union's demand for the two hour callout time and that the remainder of the motion is just an indication of how the City plans to act in the future. Mr. Robbins stated that he would not agree to changing lunch hours as part of the settlement. The City Manager advised him that it was only necessary to indicate in the terms of the settlement that Council had agreed to pay what was requested for the callout but that Council's ideas on the matter would be part of the record for future referrals.

Council adjourned.

Obituaries

WALTER F. HARVEY

Funeral services for Walter F. Harvey, 78, who died unexpectedly on January 12, were held Thursday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Rev. Walter Hastings of the Community Church of God officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Harvey died of an apparent heart attack while driving a short distance from his home on Greensky Hill on Old US 31 in Hayes Township. A passerby saw him slumped over the wheel of his vehicle and notified the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department. Medical examiner Dr. John Lignell said death was caused by natural causes.

Born at Cedar Run, Michigan March 21, 1903, Walter Franklin Harvey came to Charlevoix County as a teenager. On March 21, 1924, he married the former Marion Ecker at Boyne City. They always resided in the Charlevoix area. He was a member of the Michigan Farm Bureau. He was a laborer and, in 1968, retired from his last employment at the C.M. Harris Lumber Company. He was well known in the area and his garden at his home was a showplace in the area.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Alice I. of Grand Rapids; three sons, Tracy L. of Round Lake, Ill., Otto L. of Petoskey and James C. of Charlevoix.; several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

FLORINE S. FOSTER

Mrs. Florice Stelter Foster, a former resident of Charlevoix, died on Christmas Day at the Riverside Convalescent Hospital in Sacramento, California at the age of 89.

Mrs. Stelter came to Charlevoix in 1924 with her husband, Albert, and they started the Charlevoix Pickle and Produce Company. The company was sold to the H. J. Heinz Pickle Company in 1944.

Albert Stelter died in 1942, and in 1957, Mrs. Stelter married Harry Foster. He preceded her in death in 1971.

Mr. and Mrs. Stelter had two daughters, Jean and Jane, who were born and raised in Charlevoix. Jean died in 1968, but Mrs. Jane Preston Wollerman of Sacramento survives her monther. A step-son, James E. Foster of Conway, Arkansas, also survives, along with three grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mrs. Foster was a graduate of Ripon College in Wisconsin. She taught music and was organist and choir director of the Charlevoix Congregational Church for many years. Burial will be in the Charlevoix cemetery.

JOHN N. MAKEL

John N. Makel, 80, Charlevoix County Probate and Juvenile Judge from 1959 until his retirement in 1970, died December 27 at his home at Grange Acres, Haslett, where he had lived in recent years.

Makel was a high school coach and principal at Gaylord from 1931-40; superintendent of schools at Crystal, Michigan from 1940 to 1941; at Battle Creek Springfield Place 1941-43; at Linden 1943-46 and was Otsego County's first superintendent of schools. He was an interpreter of several languages throughout Europe during World War II.

He was a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and the University of Michigan and attended Columbia University Graduate School.

He was an honorary life member of the Michigan Probate Judges Association; life member and past master of the Gaylord Lodge, F. & A.M.; life member and past patron of Gaylord Chapter 14, O.E.S. and a charter member of the Gaylord Kiwanis Club.

He is survived by his wife, Marguerite; a daughter, Marianne Hruska of Okemos; a grand-daughter, Sandra Lynn Hruska, also of Okemos and two sisters, Lydia Berry and Emma Dyer of Florida.

His wish was to donate his body to Michigan State University for anatomical research. Thos wishing to honor his memory may contribute in his name to a charity of their choice.

Names In The News

Three Charlevoix students have been named to the Dean's List at Hope College in Holland. They are freshman JOHN A. GROOTERS, sophomore SUSAN M. MILLER, and junior NANCY MACARTHUR. To be named to the Dean's List at Hope College, a student must have a minimum of a 3.5 grade average on a 4.0 scale.

DENNIS BATDORFF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Batdorff, Rt. 2, Charlevoix, has been accepted for enrollment at Huntington College, Huntington, Indiana. Batdorff will enroll as a freshman for the 1981-82 academic year.

Private EDGAR A. JACOBS, JR., (right), son of Marguerite Blacsing of 816 Prospect, East Jordan, recently completed One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia. OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training. The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualifies the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar.

The Charlevoix Courier inadvertently published a typographical error, in the City of Charlevoix Council Minutes published December 24, 1980.
Following is the amended section with the correction.

Amend Section 5.144 (1) (m) to read as follows:

(1) (m) For all new construction, off-street parking and loading requirements shall be in accordance with Article VI of this Chapter and as follows;

Storage buildings and marine work areas: two (2) plus one (1), for every one (1) employee in the largest working shift, plus one (1) for every fifteen hundred (1500) square feet of storage or work floor space. Parking credit as stated in 5.143 (3) shall provide parking at the rate of one (1) space for each three hundred (300) square feet of storage space. Ship's store retailing and office use areas parking shall be tabulated according to the requirements for such uses shown elsewhere in this Article. One off-street loading and unloading space shall be provided on the premises of each building or structure that exceeds two thousand (2,000) square feet in gross floor area and which is occupied for manufacturing, storage, warehouse, wholesale, or retail purposes or for other uses which involve the receipt or distribution of merchandise; provided that the number of off-street loading and unloading spaces provided shall be sufficient to insure that loading and unloading vehicles shall not unduly interfere with the public use of street and alleys.

Plans reach final stages for Winter Cup - Mardi Gras festivals

Two consecutive weekends of fun are planned next month in Charlevoix as the local tradition of the Winter Cup ski competition and the pre-Lenten gaity of Mardi Gras promise to liven the mid-winter doldrums for both area residents and out of town visitors alike.

The Winter Cup-Mardi Gras festivals are now in final stages of planning and several of the events to be held were announced last week.

Downhill skiing exhibitions and competition will kickoff Winter Cup action on Saturday, February 21. Freestyle skiing shows by the Bahnhof travelling team of experts are planned at Mt. McSauba that day at 1 p.m. with competition following. Further information can be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce.

On Sunday, February 22, cross country skiing races will be held at Windmill Farms on Boyne City Road.

The sanctioned United States Ski Association racing will begin at 11 a.m. with races of five kilometers (for youngsters), ten kilometers and 20 kilometers. At 12 noon will be the Citizens' ten kilometer race with the Citizens' Five kilometer starting at 12:30 p.m.

During the week of February 23-27 the bargains will be plentiful as several area merchants will take part in special promotions tied into the Winter Cup-Mardi Gras Festivals.

Mardi Gras activities begin Friday evening, February 27 when the local king and queen of the Mardi Gras are crowned at the Grey Gables.

On Saturday, February 28, a parade for "Snowflakes", or, those with the zaniest ski outfits, will be held downtown starting at 11:30 a.m. at the Bahnhof and winding up at the Market Mall. Prizes from the Bahnhof and Silent Sports North will be awarded to the flakiest Snowflakes.

Also at the Market Mall that day will be a display of the winning posters of a poster contest entitled "What Mardi Gras Means to Me" sponsored by Charlee's and Wickerville Station.

One of the more unique Mardi Grass events this year will be a Smallest Ice Sculpture contest. People are invited to create the tiniest, most detailed ice scupture they can and bring it to the Wharfside Market at a time to be announced later on Saturday, February 28 for judging. The winners will be displayed later in the freezer cases at Olsens, Glens, Edwards and Wharfside grocery stores.

Downhill skiing will again be held that Saturday afternoon between noon and 4 p.m. for children four through 18 at Mt. McSauba.

Mardi Gras activities will wind up Saturday evening when special entertainment will be featured at the Grey Gables, Duffy's and the Weathervane restaurants.

This week's basketball contest winners named

LeRoy Buchanan, 224 Maple St., Charlevoix, became a two-time prize winner this week in the Courier Basketball Contest as he swept first place honors with only two wrong on his entry. Buchanan wins a $10 gift certificate for his efforts. Pat Smalley, 405 Bridge St., Charlevoix, emerged from a five-way tie for second place with three wrong and a tie breaker guess of 146 points, only three off the correct figure this week. She wins a $5 certificate.

Depths of Round Lake probed in practice dives under ice

"Come on in! The water's great," says Michigan Department of Natural Resources marine officer Vic Patrick, above, from a hole chopped in the ice of Round Lake behind the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Patrick, along with about eight other DNR officers, State Police officers and other area divers took part in a routine beneath-the-ice scuba diving exercise last Tuesday. Sgt. Clifford Ellis, left, of the Lansing State Police office, splashes some cold water on the face of Jane Bogart, Charlevoix, to lessen the shock of the cold on her face when she goes underwater. Bogart participated in the dive as part of an effort to obtain an advanced scuba diving certification. The DNR and State Police personnel get together for a practice diving session about once a month during the winter. The sessions are important, said one of the divers, to keep their bodies acclimated to the extreme cold. When an emergency does occur requiring divers to go beneath the ice, it is sometimes necessary to spend long periods of time in super-cold water and thus helpful to have been diving regularly during the winter. The ice in the Charlevoix Yacht Basin was about ten inches thick when the holes were cut last week and the water temperature for the divers was around 35 degrees.

Inaugural experience left deep impressions on three from city

by PEG OHLE

John and Phyllis Haggard and Carol Stephan of Charlevoix went to Washington last week.

They went to see the changing of the guard at the White House and to participate in the festivities that mark the inauguration of a president of the United States.

They came back impressed with the mood of the American people and enthusiastic about the country's leadership.

As expressed by John, "Going to the Inauguration was an experience that everyone should have, no matter what party he belongs to, at least once in a lifetime. The thing that impressed me most was the ability of the United States to change power in such an orderly manner."

He further believes that Inauguration Day should be made a national holiday so everyone could see the events on television.

Phyllis mentioned the courtesy and kindnesses of everyone in an official capacity, from local police to political bigwigs. And Carol said, "We met people from all over, Democrats as well as Republicans, and Canadians and Mexicans. They wanted to meet us and talk to us. They invited us to visit them."

John had more than just a passing reason for going to Washington. He was a Reagan supporter long before Reagan fever took over the country. On March 14, 1980, he erected a "Reagan for President" sign on the roof of his plumbing shop in Charlevoix, and he served until election time as county chairman for the Reagan-Bush ticket.

John is fairly new in politics, but his interests are obvious. He is beginning his third term as County Commissioner representing Charlevoix and Hayes Townships. He was a delegate to the State Republican convention and a candidate for delegate to the National convention. He was not elected, but now he says, "Next time I'll know how."

Carol was also a part of the 1980 campaign. She worked for Congressman Bob Davis, helping to set up fund-raisers for him in the lower part of the 11th Congressional District in Washington, she was a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

Of course, as the result of their political activities, John and Phyllis and Carol received invitations to the "doings" in Washington. They arrived there with bids to the Michigan Reception hosted by former Congressman David Stockman, now Budget Director; the Governors' Reception; the Distinguished Ladies Tea; the Young Republicans Reception; the Vice-President's Reception; the Michigan Brunch; the Inaugural Gala; Inaugural Ceremonies; and the Inaugural Ball. And they attended most of them!

Carol began the recitation of events: "When we arrived in Washington, we went immediately to the Michigan Reception. It was a lovely party and featured many Michigan products."

Congressman Davis and Congressman Guy Vander Jagt were co-hosts.

"Later that day, we went to the Governor's Reception. It was held at the Sheraton Hotel, and we received a souvenir containing the signatures of the governors of all 50 states. Governor and Mrs. Milliken were there along with many other governors and officials.

"Phyllis and I went to the Ladies Reception at the Kennedy Center Monday noon. We thought this was the highlight of the festivities for us. It was most delightful and elegant. Debbie Reynolds, who has been a friend of Nancy Reagan for many years, was Flu epidemic takes heaviest toll at high school; events cancelled

A vicious strain of flu virus that has recently been sweeping the area hit hardest at the Charlevoix High School last week where sickness caused unusually high absenteeism and resulted in the cancellation of at least two athletic events.

High absentee rates were also reported at other Charlevoix schools but were not as widespread as at the high school.

Principal Vane Smith reported that absenteeism started at 18.5 percent last Monday, peaked at almost 23 percent Wednesday and decreased to 21 percent by Thursday. There was no school Friday because of the end of the semester.

With a student body of 340, the percentages meant that at any one time last week, there were around 120 students absent from classes. Many, said Smith, were sent home during classtime when they became progressively more ill.

A girls' volleyball game with Traverse City St. Francis was cancelled Wednesday night and a home wrestling match with St. Ignace was called off for Thursday because of sickness.

Smith said the faculty and staff were also affected but not to the extent that the students were. He speculated that an epidemic of the proportions felt last week occurs only about every two or three years and that this winter's bout was extraordinarily severe.

Report cards to be late

Because of the high absenteeism last week at Charlevoix High School, students will be given some extra time to make up incomplete work before grades are recorded this week. Normally, report cards would have gone out early this week following last week's exams. Principal Vane Smith has announced, however, that students will be able to make up for incompletes this week and that parents should not expect report cards until about February 8 or 9.

Sorority plans Founders Day

Initial plans for the annual Beta Sigma Phi sorority Founders Day dinner were announced at the recent meeting of the Kappa Sigma chapter held at the home of Kay Beatty.

The event will be held at the Grey Gables Inn on April 27 at 7:30 p.m. following a cocktail hour starting at 6:30 p.m. Jackie Smigiel reported. Suzi Reis volunteered to work with Kay Ball of the Xi Epsilon Gamma chapter in planning the entertainment for the dinner which will be attended by members from other chapters throughout the area.

Plans for a taco party to be held in February were discussed. Mary Lou Smith reported the attendance at the family roller skating and pizza party had been good.

Several fund-raising projects were suggested. After some discussion, it was decided to have a raffle sometime in the next two months and a tour of homes in the area during the spring. The members also accepted an invitation from Xi Epsilon Gamma chapter to join them in a garage sale in the spring.

The chapter has "adopted" patients at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility whom they visit each month. Mrs. Smith told of her recent visit to the facility. Volunteers to visit the patients in March were asked to sign up for the project.

Irene Richardson presented a program on sculpture and illustrated it with slides.

The meeting concluded with refreshments served by Barbara Holmes.

At an earlier meeting in January, Judy Edger was asked to serve as recording secretary for the remainder of the year due to the departure from the community of the elected secretary, Suzi May.

Mrs. Smith explained the problems with financing the flouride program sponsored by the group as a public service and voted not to conduct the program this year.

Kerr Tallberg and Mrs. Smith told of delivering Christmas gifts, robes, to the chapter's adoptees at the Grandvue facility.

Mrs. Tallberg reported that the Santa luncheon had netted $259. Janet Riley was commended for the success of the event.

Cribbage tourney goes on

A rarity in a cribbage tournament was recorded Thursday night when two players on opposing teams concluded play with exact totals, 906, according to Ron Geer, secretary of the Masons-Oddfellows tourney which is in its 31st year.

A.D. Cunningham was playing for the Masons and David Reinhart for the Oddfellows at the time. With nine tables in play, the Masons trimmed the Oddfellows margin to 155 points with a total of 432.

This week Gordon Neff with 946 was high for the Masons; Charles Bergmann was high for the Oddfellows with a score of 937.

Play this Thursday will be at the American Legion post home. All cribbage players in the area are invited to participate.

Women's Club hears about Big Brothers-Sisters

The Charlevoix Women's Club met at the Big Brothers-Big Sisters Charlevoix County headquarters in Charlevoix with Mrs. Clifford Biddick, Sr. presiding due to the absence of the president, Mrs. Robert Murray.

A very brief business meeting was held and a recommendation was made to hold a board of directors meeting in early February. Mrs. Robert Martin volunteered to contact members as to the time and place.

Club members expressed thanks to all those who made the Christmas Mitten Tree in the First State Bank a successful project. Over forty pairs of mittens were donated along with many scarves and caps. Some of the donations have been distributed to needy children in the area and others were taken to Mrs. William Brady, K-5 school nurse, for needs of children there. the club also expressed thanks to First State Bank president Lou Hollow. Mrs. Ray Wood was chairman of the project.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Wood for the program. She told of the Big Brothers-Big Sisters organization, its history and its progress in Charlevoix. She stated that there are many children in need of help because of the recent increase in divorces in Charlevoix County and the present state of the economy.

Budget cuts, she said, will affect many social services agencies such as Friend of the Court, Juvenile Court, Department of Social Services, Char-Em Intermediate School District as well as Big Brothers-Big Sisters which will be losing a caseworker for East Jordan-Boyne City and an office secretary.

The meeting was closed with a light desert served by Mrs. Walter Hufford. The next meeting will be held at the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics, 203 E. Upright, February 17 at 1:30 p.m.

Christ Episcopal is now a parish

By FRAN MARTIN

Christ Episcopal Church will celebrate its elevation to parishhood and installation Eucharist at a special service to be held at the church at 7 p.m. Saturday, January 31.

Rev. Roger Copeland Ames, who has served the congregation since 1977, will officiate at the service which will mark a milestone in the history of the congregation which was organized in 1883. Until now the church has been considered a mission.

Immediately following the service, a reception will be held at the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

According to church records, the first Episcopal services were instituted in the summer of 1883 by General Misson Babcock. Services were held at the schoolhouse in 1884 and continued to be held there and at local homes. In 1894, the cornerstone of the present church located at the corner of State and Clinton streets was laid. By the summer of 1895, the first services were conducted in the church by Rev. E.W. Jewell of Petoskey. By 1903 the church was ready for winter services. For many years priests from other area churches and those visiting here during the summer serviced the church.

Since the mid-1950s, the church has had a resident vicar-pastor.

Rev. Ames came here in June of 1977 and was ordained by Rt. Rev. Charles E. Bennison, Bishop of the Western Michigan Diocese in December, 1977. It has been under his leadership that the church has grown to become a parish.

Freedman files suit to clear deed

By PEG OHLE

If Arbutus Rassat is living today, she will be surprised to learn that she is a defendent in a law suit filed by the Freedman Artcraft Company.

She will probably also wonder what it is all about, especially since the City of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Development Company are defendents in the same case.

If Mrs. Rassat read last week's Courier, she may have learned about the suit and what it concerns. A notice about the suit states that it is "a complaint and action to quiet title".

It seems that in 1961, the Freedman Artcraft Company bought property on US-31 South from the Charlevoix Development Company, which had acquired the property from the City of Charlevoix. Earlier, the City had been deeded the property by Arbutus Rassat.

Something happened to the abstract on the property, however. According to City Manager James Brinker, there was a break in the abstract so the City could not furnish Freedman a Warranty Deed.

That's why Freedman is taking the present action.

The notice was printed in the Courier because it had been determined that Arbutus Rassat could not be served notice of the suit by "normal methods of Service of Process". Papers filed in the suit state that Arbutus Rassat was a "widow who lived in Charlevoix and was employed by the Health Department in the late 1930's or early 1940's and was not known to be residing in the Charlevoix area in 25 to 30 years. She would now be over 100 years old."

As notified in the Courier, Mrs. Rassat is being ordered to "answer or take such other action as has been permitted by law, on or before the 26th day of February, 1981."

Thus it is that the Law followed Mrs. Rassat long after her whereabouts were unknown, and most likely after her death. Yes, she would be surprised to learn about the suit, but what would the Court think if she did "answer or take such other action" to help Freedman Artcraft get little to its property?

Lake home wins design award

This new vacation home on Lake Charlevoix, the interior of which is shown above and the exterior and deck to the right, is the winner of a 1980 Design Honor Award from the Saginaw Valley Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. The architect of the home is Jackson B. Hallett of Midland who designed the home for Mr. and Mrs. John E. Ruecker of Midland. The award program was organized this year to honor projects by local member firms. The winners were chosen by a panel of professional architects. Eligibility was open to all types of projects with emphasis on quality of design, not on size, type or cost of the projects. Project types were, in general, new construction, interiors, renovations or historic preservations. The jury selected five honor award winners from a field of 23 entrants representing eight Saginaw Valley firms. At a banquet held on December 9, the winning architects and their clients were awarded plaques.

Date set for East Jordan vote on recall of school board members

Four members of the East Jordan Board of Education will be the subjects of a recall vote on March 3.

Petitions signed by school district residents have been verified by the Charlevoix County Clerk and the Township and City Clerks of the East Jordan School District. They ask that Mary Jason, Bob Sherman, Tom Galmore, and Herb Griffin be removed from office.

The basis of the petitions is a complaint that the East Jordan Board of Education did not agree to binding arbitration as requested by the teacher's union in their contract negotiations. The contract still has not been negotiated.

Knight on the Town

Winter's secrets revealed

As the snow melted over the past few days, some pretty bizarre things have turned up around town.

The perfectly preserved body of one downtown merchant who has been missing since December was found in a snow bank on Bridge St. in front of his store.

His face was frozen with a painfully anguished expression. In one hand was a tangled string of little white Christmas lights and in the other a tiny spare bulb for the string. Further investigation revealed the string of lights to be wired in series.

In a roadside ditch south of town, covered with snow since October, were recently found over 2,500 Carter-Mondale posters. The cache was turned over to the Charlevoix Historical Society which, at last report, was not quite sure what they would do with the artifacts.

Under a huge drift on the beach was discovered a tent with four people, 354 beer cans and four unused tickets to the Bob Seger concert at Castle Farms.

As the cakes of ice and snowdrifts disappeared from the Ferry Ave. boat landing, the outline of a small sailboat partially winched onto a boat trailer took shape. It had almost made it out in time.

Strings of cedar garland are turning up all over town after being blown off the light poles downtown by some vicious December winds. One was found in Horton Bay.

At the request of St. Ignace High School, Charlevoix high school officials made a close search of Kipke Field and found the entire St. Ignace defensive team encrusted in ice and snow. The players were promptly returned to St. Ignace as exams are coming up there soon.

A vehicle in the parking lot of a local night spot was observed late last week stuck up an area that had been covered with snow for some time. As the weekend temperatures rose, the vehicle reportedly made attempts to free itself from the snowbank and finally made it out of the parking lot Sunday. The driver was seen wearing a New Year's Eve party hat and blowing a small, metal horn.

The drawbridge downtown was raised one day last week for an extremely large ice fishing shanty on an ice floe that had been freed by the thaw and was heading out the channel at about two and a half knots. The individual manning a jigging pole inside the shanty refused rescue efforts from the Coast Guard but did request that a fresh bottle of Yukon Jack be thrown to him before he got past the pier.

He was later taken into custody by a DNR patrol boat for invalid registration.

mistress of ceremonies. There were only women at this party, but we loved it.

"Then came the Reception for Young Republicans. If was held at the Hyatt Regency, and Howard Baker and the New Majority were honored."

Phyllis began with the Gala on Monday night. "We were seated very high, and could see everything. It was held at the Captiol Centre in Landsdowne, Maryland, where the professional hockey players play. There were too many celebrities and performers to mention, but we saw them all. The show went off like clockwork – everyone had to be seated by 7:45, the doors were closed at 7:50, and the entertainment started at 8:00. Of course, it was televised."

Tuesday, of course, was the big day. John and Phyllis and Carol had received good seating for the Inauguration ceremonies, but decided, along with several other northern Michigan faithful, to watch them from the Longworth Office Building, where Congressman Davis has headquarters. "Afterward, the Congressman had a party in his office. It was nice," Phyllis said.

It was about this time that definite word of the hostages' release reached Washington. "We heard about it while we were in the Congressman's office," John said. "We all kind of had the attitude that the Iranians should pay for this."

So, everyone went dancing Tuesday evening. The Michigan delegation was assigned to the Inaugural Ball at the Smithsonian's Museum of American History. This was one of nine balls held throughout the city at the same time. Others were held at the Capitol Hilton, the Pension Building, the Museum of Natural History, the Washington Hilton, the Sheraton Washington, the Kennedy Center, the Air and Space Museum, and the Shoreham Hotel.

"We were lucky to be at the Smithsonian," Phyllis says. "There were four floors of dancing, entertainment wherever we turned, and lots of room for mingling." Pat Boone was the top entertainer at this ball. After the ball was over, the group joined others from northern Michigan for dinner in Alexandria. It was after 2 a.m.

And what did the ladies and gentleman from Charlevoix wear to the Inaugural Ball?

Carol: "I wore a full-length, two-tone metallic silver knit which I took from my closet."

Phyllis: "I wore a full-length beige dress made of heavy cotton blend, trimmed with lace, puckers, and a dark brown design. It had a white top with matching lace. It came out of my closet, too. John wore a dark brown tuxedo.

To the other really dress-up occasion, the Gala, Carol wore a long black velvet skirt with a gold metallic top. This, too, was from her closet.

Phyllis' Gala dress was full-length white, styled with tan suede, also not new.

Washington fashions were impressive, according to Carol: "I never saw so many full-length mink coats in my life. There was a general feeling of elegance."

Phyllis added: "There were some short dresses at the ball, but they were lovely ones. Also, no matter where we went, we didn't see any blue jeans, not even designer jeans. In fact, we saw very few women wearing pants of any kind. But, even so, there didn't seem to be any classification of people. Everyone mingled with everyone else."

John rented a car to drive around Washington, and at other times the group used the subway. "I felt good about driving," he says. "It's an easy town to get around."

Speaking of cars, that one you may see around town with the red, white and blue Inaugural license plate belongs to the Haggards.

The stories about the crowds in Washington during the Inauguration are true, according to Carol, who says that one escalator had so many people on it that instead of going up, it started downward!

Seeing and meeting all the political and entertainment stars was a real thrill for everyone, but the fervor of the slogan of the Inauguration, "America – a Great New Beginning", was contagious, Phyllis emphasizes.

"The slogan was on everything – on all the tickets and programs. It's on the box of brass buttons everyone received as a souvenir of the ball. There are seven engraved buttons in each box, bearing a picture of the Capitol building and the words, "Inauguration of the President and Vice-President".

And what does the "Great New Beginning" mean to the average person? John, speaking as a devoted Reagan man, has a few thoughts:

"As we were boarding the plane, one person said, 'We're going to Washington not only to paint the town red, but also to get it out of the red.' That's one thing. Reagan has already frozen federal employment hiring. I anticipate the Roth-Kemp bill for a tax cut will pass, probably in the first six months. You see, this last election sent a message not only to the White House, but to Congress – if they don't take action, they will be in trouble in 1982. It was a landslide not only for Reagan, but for him ideas.

"The proposed cuts will filter down to the county level. We may have to revise the county budget and reduce staff positions. Also, I'm in favor of re-organizing the County Board of Commissioners by re-districting to nine members by 1982."

Fourth Wednesday Forum

The Fourth Wednesday Forum is a monthly feature of the Courier opinion page that provides our readers with an opportunity to voice their thoughts on the impact of nuclear power generation on the Charlevoix area. This week's subject is the evacuation plan in case of a nuclear accident. The deadline for the next Fourth Wednesday Forum is Friday, February 20.

Next nuclear drill: What if...

The fire alarm has just sounded in a Charlevoix school and the teacher says, "Students, that was the fire alarm you just heard. Sit quietly in your seats and I'll explain to you what you should do in case there really was a fire!"

Sounds ridiculous? Well isn't that the kind of "fire drill" folks are being given in regard to a possible nuclear accident at Big Rock?

I have not seen the new booklet on the "evacuation plan" so I'm writing from what I've read in the area news media heard in an interview by a lady from radio station KHQ and Mr. (Earl) Muma (Charlevoix County Emergency Services Director). I was more concerned with what HE DID NOT say than what he did. The reporter asked concerning a hypothetical situation – though perfectly logical - "What if the alarm sounds and we are told to head somewhere south and I am on the south side but my family lives on the north side, my children are in school and my first impulse is to head for the north side to pick up my children? Mr. Muma did not give a single word in explanation to that question. You'd think it was a six-foot rattle snake to be avoided at all costs! I've only seen one mention of children in all the media reports the past year. And that was a couple of months ago when there was mention that if school was insession, school buses would transport the children to shelters in East Jordan and Boyne City. Is someone trying to kid someone? I would think that one third to one half of the pupils in Charlevoix walk to school. Did you ever see a school bus arrive at school in the morning that wasn't pretty well loaded? Just how in heck do they propose to get them all out in time? Special buses would be used to gather up those who are handicapped or do not have transportation of their own. What special buses?

Can you imagine a man working at any of the plants or garages from Freedmans south who lives on the north side of town heading south and leaving his family to get out any way they can? Yet Mr. Muma supposes that the sheriff would institute one-way traffic over the bridge. Now there is an invitation to disaster.

They tell us farmers that we should get our cattle out of the pasture and afterwards civil defense workers would see to it that they are fed from "emergency supplies"! What emergency supplies? And what civil defense worker is going to have time - or is going to be foolish enough - to risk his health to feed someone else's cattle? Anyway, few beef cow men have barn room enough to get his animals inside.

So now they are going to have another drill with hypothetical accidents! I'd like to propose some right in their own dooryard. How about folks on the south side heading for the DeVision St. school to get their kindergarten children and too many people heading south across the bridge and an accident occurs on the bridge tying up traffic. And believe me, if parents head out of town without their children, then American parenthood has reached an unbelievable low!

Or let's hypothetically transport my farm to up near the old Loeb farm and it still straddles M66. I try to bring my cattle across the road to get them into shelter. By the time I get them to the gate, traffic has really built up. If I ever tried to get them across, they'd have an accident and it wouldn't be hypothetical!

So, yes, let's have another "drill". Only this time let's have it without warning and let's see what would really happen. After all, that is the way we teach fire drills in school. A year ago I lamented that I lived only about 25 miles downwind from Big Rock. Yes, my attitude has changed. Now I'm darn glad that I do live 25 miles downwind, and that's too close!

Emergency Services office replies

After reading the article entitled "Next nuclear drill: What If...", I couldn't help but ask the question why doesn't Mr. Hartung of East Jordan come to the Emergency Services office and at least make an effort to satisfy his curiosity?

The Emergency Services office is here to help and serve the public. I do not understand how someone can comment on a booklet that they have not even seen. How can you decided your car isn't going to start if you don't turn the key?

There is no doubt in my mind that people's first reaction when the horn blows would be to save their children. However, if you were to read the plan you would know that your children would be taken care of and be out of town perhaps before you would be.

I don't know where Mr. Hartung got the information that one-third to one-half of Charlevoix's pupils walk to school so I went to Mr. Vince Olach, business manager of Charlevoix public schools and obtained some pretty interesting figures.

Out of 1524 pupils in the school system 1085 DO ride the bus; this leaves less than 500 to walk. He also stated that on the average approximately 120 students are absent from school each day for various reasons. The buses have a capacity of 1149 plus an emergency allocation to safely overload these buses by ten percent or more depending on the extent of the emergency.

The facts are here, all we have to do is trust them. It has worked in other countries that have had real disasters. The most important thing to do is keep your head and do as you are told. You trust those buses to transport your children to and from school, why not trust them to transport them to safety? The last thing the school system needs is a bunch of hysterical parents arriving at the school a half hour after their children have already left for safety.

This is only one issue to be talked about, there are many others we know. The Emergency Services office is open for you, trying to make it safer for you and your children to live in Charlevoix. There is a lot of work that has to be done, but at least we are trying. We do have a good start on being prepared, we can only hope that the public will help by suggesting things to us.

The nuclear plant will not be gone tommorrow so let's try to make it safer and more orderly should we ever have to evacuate our area. We do plan to have another drill that will involve the public more because that is what the public wants so let's have some constructive input without just throwing rocks at each other.'

What happens next time?

I wish I could have shared fully in the general jubilation over the release of the American hostages by Iran last week. But nagging questions about possible alternatives that would have salvaged the nation's honor kept cropping up.

Of course, I was welded to the TV set for seemingly day's on end. I saw the hostages rudely shoved aboard the plane at Tehran; I watched their arrival in Algiers; and I monitored most of their flight to Frankfurt, Germany.

I also peered through a window of the Air Force's Rhein-Main hospital while Jimmy Carter shook hands and patted backs.

Sunday afternoon I sat on a hillside at Newburgh, N.Y., and watched from a discrete distance as the hostages embraced the wives, kiddies and parents they hadn't seen in 14 months – sometimes much longer.

It was heart-warming at times.

But I also have this awful feeling that the hostage crisis is not over. This time we survived with our citizens intact – physically if not mentally. But very soon some other crackpot nation is going to want to put the United States to the test again, just as Iran did 14 months ago.

There is no telling where it will happen. Perhaps another embassy will be seized. Maybe a busload of American sight-seers or students will be commandeered. A Yankee aircraft could crash-land on unfriendly soil and the passengers could be held for ransom on trumped up charges.

Then the United States will have to respond militarily – perhaps with a lot less justification than it had in Iran.

Although many observers around the world have lauded ex-President Carter on his restraint in handling the Iranian crisis, I for one believe he botched the job very badly. As a result, American prestige – both at home and overseas – has never been lower.

As for the agreement which ended the impasse, I think President Reagan would have a perfect right to renege in any area that runs counter to his philosophy of international relations. After all, there is nothing sacred about contracts drawn up with cutthroats and kidnappers.

Certainly, any portion of the agreement that calls for the United States to supply weapons – or even spare parts for weapons – should be scrapped forthwith.

We – among all the people of the world – know the depravity of the Iranian militants. To equip them with instruments of destruction to be used against the innocent people of the world would be an unconscionable act on the part of the United States.

Of course, the nation should also move with extreme caution on the re-establishment of any sort of commercial or diplomatic ties with Iran, despite the fact that many American businesses are interested in renewing relations as early as possible.

The very least we could hope (or would be a long cooling-off period, during which – hopefully – control of the Iranian government will fall into safer and saner hands.

New assessor joins Chx equalization department

by PEG OHLE

Judy Hamill has joined the Charlevoix County Equalization Department's new Assessing Division. This week the Courier talks with her about the work she will be doing, and about herself.

COURIER: What kind of work will you be doing?

HAMILL: I'll be assessing property for those units of government that have asked the County to do their assessing.

COURIER: Which ones are they?

HAMILL: So far, I understand East Jordan and Boyne City, Boyne Valley Township, St. James Township, and Pealse Township have asked for help.

COURIER: What is your experience in this field?

HAMILL: I worked for the Emmet County Equalization Department for nine years. I had on-the-job training, and along the way took courses at North Central Michigan College that would help me. Some of them were University of Michigan Extension courses.

COURIER: What special qualities do you think an assessor should have?

HAMILL: It helps to be good at figures, to be patient, to know field directions, and to have a sense of humor.

Meet Charlevoix

COURIER: Have you had any interesting experiences in the course of your work?

HAMILL: Oh, I've been bitten by dogs, threatened by guns, and once, in Mackinaw City, I fell into a 30-gallon drum that someone was using for a septic tank. The job is interesting.

COURIER: Exactly what will you be doing here?

HAMILL: I've already started to work in the field, in Boyne City. When the field data is gathered, we extend it with other useful information so we can come up with true cash values. All this information is placed on assessment rolls. Every change from last year has to be accounted for, too, and a notice of change sent to the taxpayer. All assessor's rolls have to be completed and ready to go to the Board of Review by the first Monday in March.

COURIER: And that ends your work for the year?

HAMILL: Well, we start right in again re-appraising some units so we can make a current property record card on each parcel. They become out-dated in 4 year.

COURIER: Will you have much contact with the public?

HAMILL: Yes, we knock on people's doors and do business with local officials.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

HAMILL: In Petoskey. I went to high school there and lived there all my life except when my husband was in the service and we lived in Tacoma, Washington.

COURIER: What was your maiden name?

HAMILL: Judy Kilmer. I have five brothers and two sisters.

COURIER: What's your husband's name?

HAMILL: Herb – he's self-employed with the Carpet Clinic.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

HAMILL: We have two children. Melissa is 16 and Todd is seven.

COURIER: What do you do when you're not working?

HAMILL: I like to knit and cross-country ski and raise rabbits. I'm also a consultant for Mary Kay Cosmetics.

Workshop to explain food co-ops

As part of a statewide informational drive on food cooperatives, the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service is planning a workshop on how to organize a food cooperative in Boyne City on Tuesday, February 3. The workshop will be held at 7 p.m. at the City Hall Auditorium in Boyne City.

The workshop will be directed by Elizabeth Scott, MSU food cooperative project coordinator and will show participants how to establish and organize their own food cooperative. Included in the program will be guidelines for membership recruitment, food co-op purchasing and distribution methods and how and where to obtain outside assistance. Training followup will be provided by county extension staff members and Scott.

For more information, those interested are asked to call Marlene Cassatt, Extension Home Economist, at 582-6232.

In 1962, a 16mm color film was made by Consumers Power Company concerning the building and future operation of the Big Rock nuclear power plant at Charlevoix, the nation's fifth commercial nuclear power plant. Narrator of the film was none other than Ronald Reagan, then an actor and now President of the United States. Reagan is shown above discussing the script with Donald J. McGowan, left, director of public relations for Consumers Power at the time who is now retired and living near St. Petersburg, Florida, and Dayton R. Richert, supervisor of photographic and audio-visual activities for the company who died in 1972. Both men flew to California to meet with Reagan at the time the film was made. The Consumers Power logo shown in the background was used until 1965 when it was replaced by the present logo.

Genealogy group organizes in this area

Have you climbed your family tree?

If you have had a desire to do so but hesitated because you didn't know where to start, the recently organized A.C.E. Genealogical Society is prepared to put you on the right path.

The society, whose name comes from Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties is the outgrowth of a meeting of people with a mutual intertest in tracing their roots. In October they decided to organize and affiliate with the Michigan Genealogical Council and the National Geneslogical Society, both of which offer information on activities to members.

The local group meets at 7 p.m. on the first Tuesday of every month at the Boyne City Public Library.

Officers of the organization are Mrs. Lloyd ARnold of Charlevoix, chairman; Mrs. Michael Fulkerson of Boyne City, vice chairman; Mrs. Murray Follette, Jr., Boyne City, secretary; Mrs. Donald Fleshman of Petoskey, recording secretary and Mrs. Keith Eagling of Boyne City, treasurer.

An invitation is extended to anyone wishing to trace his or her family roots. "There are members in all stages of researching family lines so no one need feal like an amateur," said Mrs. Arnold in extending an invitation for local people to join.

Those attending their first meeting are recommended to bring a loose leaf notebook and 4 pen or pencil for taking notes. File holders or large envelopes to hold data and eventually a storage box to storew material are also suggested.

A strong desire to know more about one's family beginnings, a willingness to ask questions and to dig for facts also help, said Mrs. Arnold.

Those wishing more information are asked to call Mrs. Arnold or any of the officers.

Elementary students are learning to read better

by ANNE KELLY

Are students in the "Learning to Read Better" program at the Charlevoix Elementary School really learning to read better?

The answer, according to Principal Ralph Raymer and Title I coordinator Mrs. Chris Bentley, is an enthusiastic "Yes!"

At the mid-way point of the school year, an unofficial evaluation confirms that remedial students who have been participating in the intensive one-hour-a-day, four days a week special reading sessions are, in fact, improving their reading skills. The sessions are in addition to the students' regular classroom reading.

Though no official testing will be done before the Standard Reading Tests are admioistered this spring, the improvement has been obvious, reports Mrs. Bentley. Classroom teachers report that children who have previously had defeatist attitudes toward learning due to poor reading skills now have more confidence.

"They are at least willing to try when it comes to sounding out new words in their classroom reading," said Mrs. Bentley.

In the "Learning to Read Better" program, children work in small groups at their own level. These small groups of no more than 18 are divided in half into two even smaller groups of eight, one directed by the teacher and the other by an aide. On a rotating basis, the teacher works with one group on visual training and comprehension while the aide assists children in decoding skills (decoding involves the anatomy of a word: how it is pronounced, what it means).

Originated by Louise Anes, Project Director of Brandywine Public Schools in Niles, Mich., "Learning to Read Better" was initiated into the elementary school circulum by Mr. Raymer, Mrs. Bentley, four remedial reading teachers, and two aides, who had seen a demonstration of the program and its results and sensed its value for their remedial students.

Ms. Anes is scheduled to observe Charlevoix's version of her program sometime later in January. She will no doubt notice the same encouraging results as the elementary staff involved in teaching reading: the main one being improved attitude of children as regards their often difficult task of learning to read better.

Tod Warner demonstrates the creation of one of his unique sculptures for 34 children at the first of a series of Saturday sessions at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Saturday series featured at library

Currently offered at the Charlevoix Public Library on Saturday mornings from 11 a.m. to noon are a series of programs designed for elementary school children.

Sponsored by the library and arranged by Sue Dixon, eight weekly activity sessions were put on the schedule which started January 10. The sessions are designed to provide area youngsters with a variety of informative and "hands-on" experiences.

Some of the people involved and their programs include Todd Warner on sculpture, Beth Strawbridge on creative dramatics for children, Bob Burns on the pioneer days, Betty Potter on the identification of birds and their habitats, Carol Louselle on how to grow and care for houseplants and Jean Giffin on China and Chinese artifacts.

EJ fiddlers cook up a storm

Near capacity crowds of old-time music lovers filled the East Jordan Civic Center auditorium on Saturday, January 17 for the Original Michigan Fiddlers' Association jamboree and square dance.

About two dozen fiddlers of all ages and styles paraded up to the microphone Saturday afternoon to play individually for the audience. The entire group then got together, as shown above, for a mass jam session with the back-up band.

Jamboree officials estimated that about 700 people attended the afternoon sessions at one time or another and that another 300 took part in the square dancing that evening.

Wrestlers drop one to Mancelona

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers, in a return meet with Mancelona, lost by a 42-21 margin at Mancelona last Tuesday.

In losing, the Rayders won three matches by pins and one by decision while the ironmen won three events by pins and picked up the winning points by defaults. There were mutual forfeits in the 126 and 145 pound weight classes.

Mike Steele (112) pinned Tom Tipton 37 seconds into the match; Tim Bruce (138) won by a pin at 1:52 of the first period over Eric Molby; Allan Bergmann (155) won by a 7-3 decision over Dave Derrer and heavyweight Ken Wojan pinned Mark Morris in 39 seconds to account for Charlevoix's points.

Greg Andrick (119) was pinned by Bart Dalton in 32 seconds; Rick Gallant (132) was pinned by Neil Mills in 30 seconds, and Brian Yats (167) lost by a second period pin to Mike Hamblin.

The forfeits were in the 98, 105, 185 and 198 pound weight classes. They were due to illness and injuries.

Charlevoix is scheduled to host Glen Lake here at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and entertain Boyne City at the same time Thursday.

Frosh win at home

The Charlevoix freshman basketball team posted its first home victory Monday, a 43-41 win over Central Lake.

It marked the first loss for the visitors this season.

With the score tied at 41-all with 24 seconds on the clock, the young Rayder squad put on a full-court press with Dan Buday stealing the ball and scoring on a shot from the area of the free throw line for the victory.

The two teams had played to a 13-13 first period tie before Central Lake edged to a 25-23 halftime lead which was increased to 34-29 going into the final period. The young Rayders outscored the visitors 14-7 in the final eight minutes to come away with the win.

Charlevoix is now 3-4 for the season according to Coach Chuck Wright. Central Lake is 7-1.

In Monday's game, Bill Tillen scored 12 points. Wayne Bergmann came off the bench to add a like number of points, 12.

Jamie Spencely, Karl Erber and Mark LaBlance each had six for the Celtics.

GEMWISE
RING AROUND THE FINGER (Part II)
In my last article I talked about gold smudge, a discoloration that occasionally occurs on skin or clothing from tarnishing of one of the alloys mixed with pure gold in making jewelry.
Colleen Titsworth
Manager
As I mentioned before 24K is pure gold, but this is rarely used to make jewelry because of its softness. It shows the jewelers of time more readily than gold strengthened with alloys. The lowest karat marking allowed in the United States is 40%. This means that 10 24 or 41.6% of the metal is pure gold. With a karat content any lower than this jewelry tarnishes very easily.
Gold filled and gold plated items deserve some mention, because they too may cause problems. A gold filled item is usually 12 karat gold bonded to a base metal. The surface will act like gold-12k gold, but if the shell should ever wear through (which may occur with years of contact with the skin), you'll have the base metal to contend with. Gold plate is generally of higher karat content than gold filled, but the layer is much thinner and wears off quicker.
Here are some tips to help you avoid gold smudge.
Remove jewelry when applying make up, perfume or hair sprays.
Wash hands before putting on jewelry.
Keep jewelry in a dry place.
Clean your jewelry regularly. Most jewelry can be cleaned with a manufactured jewelry cleaner or a mild dishwashing liquid, but one might find a softer brush to avoid damaging a delicate gemstone.

Rayders regain winning form against Gaylord

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity basketball squad bounced back quickly from a heartbreaking loss to Petoskey the week before with a convincing 88-71 victory Friday night over Gaylord on the Charlevoix home floor.

In one of their best offensive displays of the season, the Rayders exploded for 30 points in the second quarter to erase a first quarter deficit of 21-13 and take command by the half, 43-35.

They never trailed in the ballgame again.

By the end of the third quarter, the Rayders lead 62-51 and went on another scoring binge in the fourth quarter with 26 points to build the final margin of victory to 88-71.

It was good shooting from the field that spelled the difference as Charlevoix tossed in 35 two-pointers to Gaylord's 26 from the floor. Rayder free throw accuracy was not as impressive as they made only 18 of 41 attempts from the line for under 44 percent. Gaylord had 24 chances and made 19 free throws for a respectable 79 percent.

Dave Buday drives the lane.

Again, individual scoring for Charlevoix was well balanced with Gary Drury leading the pack with 16 points; other individual totals for Charlevoix were Paul Hoffman, 12; Mike Loper, 11; Dave Buday, nine; Jeff Drury and Craig Klooster eight; Ross Carey, seven; Scott Kelly and Jeff Greene six; Mike Schmidt and Jim Buchanan, two and Jeff Lemerand, one.

Gaylord's Ron Sides led all individual scorers with 19 points while Bob Benser and Kurt Kakaviska each had 12 for the Blue Devils.

In junior varsity action, the Rayders won handily 52-44. The only threat to the Charlevoix victory came in the third quarter when Gaylord held the Rayders to only four points on two field goals by Steve Schmidt. After leading 17-12 at the end of the first quarter and 31-20 at halftime, the young Rayders found themselves behind 36-35 when the disasterous third quarter was over.

They rallied, however, in the final period with 17 points, enough for the comfortable eight point victory margin of 52-44.

Scoring for Charlevoix included 11 points from George Smith, ten apeice from Jon Superaw and Schmidt, nine from Fred Mielke, six by Jeff Trimper, four by Chris Putman and two by Tim LaBlance.

The Rayder cagers will be in action this Friday against a tough Cheboygan squad at Cheboygan. They will then host Kalkaska in a non-conference game Tuesday. Charlevoix now stands at 4-4 in conference play, good for fifth place in the standings. Gaylord dropped to 2-6 following Friday night's game.

LEGAL
FAMILY FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

The Board of Directors of Family Federal Savings and Loan Association, Saginaw, Michigan, has voted unanimously to approve a plan for the conversion of the Association from a federally chartered mutual savings and loan association to a federally chartered stock savings and loan association.

Pursuant to the terms of the Plan of Conversion (the "Plan") eligible account holders (i.e., persons with deposits in the Association on September 30, 1980) other savings and borrowing members and the employees, officers, and directors of Family Federal Savings and Loan Association will, through the issuance to them of non-transferable subscription rights, be given the opportunity to purchase all of the shares of stock of the Association to be issued and sold in connection with the Conversion, (the "Conversion Stock") in accordance with Federal regulations and as outlined in the Plan. Shares not subscribed for will be offered for sale by underwriters in a public offering. In accordance with Federal regulations, no person or group of persons acting in concert will be permitted to purchase more than 5% of the Conversion Stock, and management purchases, in the aggregate, will be limited to no more than 25% of such stock.

The Plan must be approved by at least a majority of the votes eligible to be cast by the Association members, either in person or by proxy, at a special meeting at which the Plan will be submitted for approval. A proxy statement setting forth detailed information with respect to the Plan will be sent to all members prior to the special meeting. The Plan is subject to the approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and receipt of a favorable tax ruling from the Internal Revenue Service or a favorable legal opinion as to its tax consequences.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS WILL NOT BE AFFECTED BY THE CONVERSION. Savings account holders will continue to hold accounts in the converted Association identical as to dollar amount, rate of return and general terms. SAVINGS ACCOUNTS WILL CONTINUE TO BE INSURED BY THE FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN INSURANCE CORPORATION, AN INSTRUMENTALITY OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

After conversion, the Association will operate as a federally chartered stock savings and loan association and will maintain its membership in the Federal Home Loan Bank System. Borrowers' loan will be unaffected by the conversion and will remain contractually fixed as they exist prior to conversion. Normal business of the Association in accepting savings and making loans will continue without interruption in its existing offices.

The Plan may be amended by the Board of Directors of the Association as a result of the comments from the regulatory authorities or otherwise prior to the special meeting to vote on the Plan. If the Plan is approved, MEMBERS WILL NOT BE REQUIRED TO PURCHASE CONVERSION STOCK BUT WILL HAVE THE FIRST OPTION TO DO SO.

A copy of the Plan is available for review at the home office or at any branch office of the Association. Any questions should be directed to the home office of the Association either by telephone or mail. The address of the home office is P.O. Box 2169, Saginaw, Michigan 48605. The telephone number is (517) 793-9600.

Charlevoix County hosts 4-H leaders' banquet

More than 60 4-H leaders and spouses representing Charlevoix, Emmet, Cheboygan and Presque Isle Counties met at the 4-H Center in Petoskey Wednesday evening, January 14 for a meal and program sponsored by the Charlevoix County 4-H Council.

The dinner is held annually as a means of promoting fellowship among area 4-H leaders. Some 4-H events are sponsored by more than one county thus making inter-county meetings valuable.

The highlight of the program was a talk by Leah Hoopler, State 4-H Program Leader in the areas of health education, communications, older youth and career education. Mrs. Hoopler, a popular speaker, authors materials on these subjects used by local clubs. Her remarks were on the theme, "You are neat because..."

Charlevoix County council members ran the program. Debby Peck of East Jordan began with an ice-breaker and welcomed guests. Treasurer Lucy Stolt of Boyne City led the pledges to the 4-H and American flags. The evening's activites were closed by Claudia Grutsch of East Jordan, past council president following the building of a yarn web woven from comments about 4H made by those attending, which was led by Sue Stolt of Boyne City, council teen member. Earlier, a report from the State 4-H Council was heard from Delores Merchant of Rogers City, area representative to that body. The program was coordinated by Leah Green, Charlevoix County 4-H program assistant.

RULES

1. Anyone can enter, except the employees of the paper and their families. Use the entry blank from the paper or make your own, following the same plan. A copy of the Charlevoix Courier will be available at the Courier office to anyone wishing to copy the list of names.

2. Weekly gift certificates will be awarded to the persons naming the most winners. All tie games are considered incorrect unless picked as ties on your entry blank. In case of a tie, persons guessing nearest correct score in the tiebreaker box will win. Insert what you think total score will be of the game in the tie breaker box.

3. Gift certificates are redeemable at any of the participating sponsors on this page only.

Entries should be addressed to: Contest Editor, Charlevoix Courier and postmarked by not later than 5 p.m. Friday night. Winners will be announced the following weeks.

4. On the entry form simply draw a circle around the number of the team you predict will win each of the games listed in each of the ads. Then, predict the total on the points "tie breaker" at the bottom of the entry form.

Official Notice

PUBLIC NOTICE
ORDINANCE No. 5

An ordinance to create and establish an annuity or pension plan for the officers and employees of Marion Township and to authorize the township supervisor and the township clerk to contract, in the name of the township, for such plan, to define those classes of officers and employees who shall be covered by such annuity or pension plan, to set forth the respective percentum shares which Marion township and the officers and employees shall contribute to the premium or charges arising under such annuity or pension contract and to further provide for the deduction of contributions from officers or employees compensation, to establish the time at which existing and further employees shall become eligible for such plan and to further establish the normal retirement date for all employees, to provide a method for non-coverage of an officer or employee to the annuity or pension plan, to set forth a date wherein each person covered under the annuity or pension plan shall have a vested right or interest in such plan, to ratify and confirm the validity of any annuity or pension plan in existence on the effective date of this ordinance, and to repeal all ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith.

THE TOWNSHIP OF MARION CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN
ORDAINS

SECTION I

This ordinance shall be known and cited as the "MARION TOWNSHIP PENSION PLAN ORDINANCE."

SECTION II.

Pursuant to act No. 27 of the Public Acts of 1960, as amended, the township of Marion hereby creates and establishes an annuity or pension plan and program for the pensioning of its officers and employees, and, for such purposes, also hereby authorizes the township supervisor and the township clerk to contract, in the name of the township subject to the approval of the township board, with any company authorized to transact such business within the State of Michigan for annuities or pensions.

SECTION III

The annuity or pension plans created, established and contracted for under this ordinance shall cover each person within the following classes of officers and employees:

1.a) All members of the township board.

SECTION IV

A. The township of Marion shall annually contribute 100% per centum of that portion of the premium or charges arising under such annuity or pension contract for each person within the class of officers and employees enumerated in Section III hereof. Such contributions shall be secured from the general fund of the township. Each person within such class of officers and employees shall be responsible for the remainder of the premium of charges and the township treasurer is hereby authorized to deduct the same from each person's pay, salary or compensation and to apply the same to each person's respective annuity.

B. Each employee who is employed on the effective date of the annuity or pension plan shall be eligible for coverage on that day provided he or she then meets the following requirements, otherwise to be eligible on the first policy anniversary on which he or she meets them.

1. He or she has completed at least 0 years of continuous employment.

2. He or her age (nearest birthday) is at least 18 years and not more than 75 years.

Every employee who becomes subsequently employed shall be eligible on the first policy anniversary on which he or she meets the following requirements:

1. He or she has completed at least 0 years of continuous employment.

2. His or her age (nearest birthday) is at least 18 years and not more than 75 years.

An employee's normal retirement date shall be the policy anniversary of the annuity or pension plan nearest his or her 65th birthday.

C. Any person desiring not to be so covered shall give written notice to the township clerk that he desires not to be covered under the contract, he shall not be covered thereunder. If the notice is received after the individual has become covered, his coverage under the contract shall cease as provided for in the contract.

SECTION V

Each person so covered under the annuity or pension plan shall have a vested right or interest in such plan 0 months from the date the plan becomes effective for such person.

SECTION VI.

The township of Marion hereby ratifies and confirms the validity of any annuity or pension plan in existence on the effective date of this ordinance.

SECTION VII.

This ordinance shall take effect on the date of its publication. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

I, Tracy Curtis, Clerk of Marion Township, hereby certify that this ordinance, was adopted by the Marion Township Board at a Regular Meeting held January 20, 1981

Obituaries

KATHRYN CHELLIS

Funeral services for Mrs. Walter (Kathryn) Chellis, 86, who died Jan. 19 at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility, were held Thursday at the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church. Rev. David Hott of Traverse City officiated at his aunt's service. Interment was in the Ellsworth Cemetery.

Born in Detroit on May 12, 1894, the former Kathryn C. Wieland was married to Mr. Chellis in Detroit on March 8, 1918 and resided there until moving to Banks Township in Antrim County in 1934. Mr. Chellis preceded her in death in 1958. She was a member of the American Legion Auxiliary and the Farm Bureau.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gordon (Jean) Ranney of Zephyrhills, Fla.; two sons, Walter of Ellsworth and Vardon of Horton Bay; seven grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. Harry (Suzanne) Young and Mrs. Dorothy Flott of Traverse City and Mrs. Polly Eggert of Westland.

The family suggests memorials to Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility.

DAVID E. ENGSTROM

Funeral services for David E. Engstrom, 31, of Farmington who died unexpectedly Tuesday, were held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home with Father R. Dale Magoon officiating. The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Friday evening. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Lansin on November 2, 1949, Mr. Engstrom graduated from Portland High School. He served in the U.S. Air Force from 1967 until 1971. He then entered Ferris State College graduating in 1976. He resided in Farmington. He was employed by an electronics firm, G.S.E., headquartered in the Detroit area. He was member of the Catholic Church.

Surviving are his step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Essenburg of Charlevoix; a sister, Laurie Engstrom of Fort Lauderdale, Florida; two brothers, Daniel and Edward Engstrom of Charlevoix and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. C.P. Steinmaus of Fort Dodge, Iowa.

VERONICA KING

Funeral services for Mrs. Veronica King, 80, who died Jan. 19 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Thursday, Rev. Austin Regier of the United Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in the Greensky Cemetery in Hayes Township.

The former Veronica Walker was born in Hayes Township on March 16, 1900 and spent most of her life in this area. In 1970 she was married to Jesse King at Elk Rapids.

Surviving are a grandson; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph (Irene) Compo of East Jordan and Mrs. Clara Walker of Charlevoix and three brothers, William J. of Muskegon, John of East Jordan and Jerry of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the Greensky Methodist Church.

JAMES VANDER HEIDE

Funeral services for James Vander Heide, 85, who died January 20 at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility where he had been a patient since August, 1979, were held Friday at the Atwood Christian Reformed Church. Rev. Warren Lammers of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church officiated. Interment was in the Atwood Cemetery.

Born in the Netherlands Oct. 4, 1895, Mr. Vander Heide came to Banks township in 1907. He operated a farm in Banks township until he retired. He never married. He was a member of the Atwood Christian Reformed Church.

He is survived by his brother-in-law, Jacob Veenstra, Sr., of Ellsworth and numerous nephews and nieces.

The family suggests memorials to the Atwood Christian Reformed Church or the Ebenezer Christian School in Ellsworth. The Hastings Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

EUGENE J. WESTON

Eugene J. Weston, a regular summer visitor to Charlevoix for many years, died January 17 in Cincinnati where he lived. Services were held Sunday, January 18 at the Spring Grove Mausoleum Chapel in Cincinnati. He was preceded in death by his wife, Mrs. Rose Weston, who died six weeks ago. Mr. Weston is survived by three sons, Alan E. of Los Angeles, Donald E. and Paul J. Weston; and nine grandchildren. Memorial contributions to the charity of one's choice would be appreciated.

Names In The News

Russ Geek, above, pronounced Geek, recently assumed the job of Electrical Inspector of Charlevoix County.

In this capacity, Geek is responsible for inspecting the installation of new electrical wiring in all residential and commercial buildings in the County. Such inspections must be made before the power company will hook up its service, Geek says.

"The Electrical Inspector works in the offices of the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection," located in the County Building Annex.

Geek is a licensed journeyman electrician and has been working as an electrician ever since he was in the Navy, where he learned the trade.

Before coming to Charlevoix, he was employed in Traverse City, and prior to that, he worked at several downstate jobs.

Geek and his wife, Ruth Ann, live in Charlevoix with their two children, Rusty, 12, and Rikki, 10. He says he "loves the whole outdoors", and likes to fish, snowmobile, and hunt small game.

Of his job, Geek says "We're here to serve the public, to help make it easier for people to get their work done."

MARK A. REISING of Charlevoix, a junior majoring in history, was one of 501 students at Michigan State University in East Lansing who received a straight "A", or 4.0, grade average during the fall term.

Four Charlevoix County students have been named to the honors list for the fall semester at Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant. They are PAMELA S. BOSS, a junior, from Charlevoix, GRETCHEN GOEBEL, a junior, and KIMBERLY BARNETT, a sophomore, from East Jordan and RAYMOND K. GREEN, a sophomore, from Boyne City. Honors students were chosen from the top ten percent of each academic class and were required to have a grade point no lower than 3.50 of a possible 4.0.

MARY L. MURPHY, daughter of Betty L. Murphy of 310 Second St., East Jordan, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of senior airman. Murphy is an administration specialist at Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Michigan.

The Kendall Schol of Design in Grand Rapids has announced that JAMIE A. DELAMATER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Delamater of St. James, Beaver Island, has been admitted to the interior design program beginning in January, 1981. She is a 1980 graduate of the Beaver Island Community School in St. James. In the interior design program, Ms. Delamater will learn to plan and specify the interior package for both residential and commercial spaces. This will incorporate furniture, lighting, color, and materials based on human behavior patterns and needs.

Council balks at $16,000 price tag for new city master plan

by DAVE KNIGHT

Skeptical about spending $16,000 for a project they on which they had received little constituent input, the Charlevoix City Council tabled action Monday night on a comprehensive master plan for the city, proposed by the City Planning Commission to pull Charlevoix out of its economic doldrums.

With an emphasis on attracting industry and creating the jobs, the plan proposal was authored by Ronald F. Nino & Associates of Grand Blanc.

The plan would include analyses of industrial sites, land use, demographics, economic characteristics, housing and other aspects of the city in formulating suggestions for growth decisions.

Some council members expressed concern that a master plan for the city would not include Charlevoix Township.

Mayor Sam Supernaw responded that he was sure the Nino firm would take the township into consideration in city planning but that actual planning recommendations would not be made to township officials.

"They (Nino & Associates) will consider the township," said Supernaw, "But they will plan only the city."

Despite City Manager James Brinker's report that both the Chamber of Commerce executive committee and retail committee supported the plan proposal, Councilman James Block contended that not one of his constituents had mentioned the plan, either for or against.

Councilman Robert Timms opposed a new city plan saying that it would amount to only a promotional effort not worth a $16,000 expense. He suggested that if a new plan is needed so desperately, the city plan completed in 1978 should be reworked.

Councilman Jeffrey Porter pointed out that the Nino proposal was "not a total master plan for the city telling us

Basketball winners

Blane Lagerman, Rt. 2, Boyne City had only two wrong on his entry blank when the dust settled this week and thus takes home the $10 first prize, in the Courier Basketball Contest. Harry W. Ladd, 714 Park Ave., Charlevoix, was one of several entrants with three wrong but Harry came closest on the tie breaker point total to snag the second prize of a $5 gift certificate.

Winter Homecoming royalty candidates named

Initial plans for the annual Winter Homecoming Festivities next week have been announced by Beth Carey, president of the Charlevoix High School Student Council which sponsors the event.

Highlight of the festivities will be the selection of a Homecoming King and Queen by the student body. The reigning royalty will be crowned at halftime of the Charlevoix-Rogers City game on Feb. 13. Candidates for the honor have been nominated by the senior class. See above photo.

The student body will vote on their choice of royalty on Feb. 9. The week of Feb. 10-13 will be Spirit Week at the high school with each of the four classes having an opportunity to decorate the main hall in a nursery rhyme motif. Prizes will be offered for the best decoration.

A homecoming dance on Friday evening following the game will conclude the festivities. Details of the dance will be announced later.

School budget still up in the air

by FRAN MARTIN

"Because of the uncertain financial situation in the state there is no point in discussing budget cuts at this time," Superintendent Gordon W. VanWieren told the Charlevoix Board of Education at its regular meeting Monday.

VanWieren was on the agenda to bring the board up to date on the subject of the school system budget but found there were no guidelines to follow.

"Everyone is waiting for the legislature to make some decisions regarding the number of school days, school hours and related information," said VanWieren. "Until we know what we are going to have to work with, we cannot start work on a budget."

VanWieren also gave a short report on the Beaver Island Lighthouse project.

High School Principal Vane Smith noted to the board that next month, Charlevoix will host the Class C District high school basketball tournament.

Bids for the 1973 International pickup truck offered for sale by the school were opened and the successful bidder was Harold DeYoung who will buy the truck for $600.

Also discussed was a proposed policy for the use of the meeting rooms at the Charlevoix Public Library. Action on the policy was tabled until the board's March 2 meeting.

Ardeth Wieland, treasurer of the board, was named to represent the board at the Feb. 24 budget meeting of the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

Vincent Olach, business manager, reported that he was working with the representatives of the Charlevoix County Transit System regarding its conversion to propane gas for use in its buses.

Olach also reported that the school district would save an estimated $30,000 during the current school year by converting the school bus fleet to propane gas.

The board adjourned to executive session to discuss negotiations.

County nearing formation of EDC

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County may soon have an Economic Development Corporation (EDC).

An application for such an entity, along with proposed Articles of Incorporation, was presented to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week by three county residents.

Lee Moerland of Charlevoix, Dennis Jason of East Jordan, and John Kujawski of Boyne City comprised the committee which spent several months working on the project.

The Board of Commissioners accepted the application and turned it over to the County Planning Commission for study and review. The law requires that public hearings be held on setting up Economic Development Corporations, and that the county also advertise for any competing EDC's.

Present plans call for the public meetings to be held during the meeting of the Board of Commissioners on Wednesday, March 11.

County Planner John Hess explains the advantages of an Economic Development Corporation in terms of a company wanting to locate in Charlevoix county.

Interest rates are very high today. However, if a manufacturing company wanted to come to the county, the county could offer them revenue bonds which would be tax free and therefore available at lower interest rates. That's because the buyer of the bonds would not have to pay income taxes on them. It's a good deal."

There are other financial advantages of an EDC, Hess says, which he will learn more about when he attends a University of Michigan seminar on the subject this week. They all have to do with encouraging the movement of business enterprises into the community or the upgrading of businesses already here.

One informal application for EDC revenue bonds has already been made to the county. Richard Deerd and Arch Wright of the Weathervane Terrace Motel are using help in obtaining funds for a 36-room expansion of the motel.

Vacant homes being victimized at alarming rate

by DAVE KNIGHT

Easy to rob and easy to fence what is robbed. That's the problem with summer homes around here when the snow flies and the shutters go up.

Charlevoix County has experienced approximately 25 percent more breaking and entering cases involving unoccupied homes this winter than last. Over 50 have been logged by the Sheriff's Department in the past three months.

Actually the growth curve is not peculiar to the current winter; last year, 25 percent more summer homes were broken into than the year before. The situation has, according to law enforcement agencies and property owners, steadily grown into one of this area's most serious crime problems.

How seriously the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is taking the matter was demonstrated last week when Sheriff George Lasater flew to Texas to extradite a suspect in a breaking and entering case. How seriously local residents are taking it was shown three weeks ago when a large group of them descended upon a breaking and entering in process near Ironton and actually apprehended two of three suspects. (See Knight on the Town, page 4.)

New factors involved

As a vacation home location, the Lake Charlevoix area has few equals in the state. Secluded lots with lakeshore frontage provide sites for spectacularly beautiful, fully equipped, seasonal homes. They have always been here.

New factors, though, to which many attribute the dramatic increase in breaking and entering in recent years, are the itinerant gold and silver buyers who set up shop in this area regularly and the "poor shape of the local economy."

Traveling gold and silver merchants are a recent phenomena created by surging markets in those precious metals over the past few years. Their typical routine is to advertise a specific day on which they will be at a local motel. People then bring items for them to appraise and pay cash for. Their advertisements normally list many valuable household items in which they are particularly interested.

Quick cash available

Says Sheriff Lasater, "These advertisements provide the burglar with a virtual shopping list of what to take when he breaks into a house."

It used to be that the first things taken during a breaking and entering would be televisions, stereos and other expensive appliances. Now, more often than not, they are untouched by the burglar who knows precisely what he wants and goes right for the gold and silver. Silver, in particular, is the single most frequent item on inventories of items missing from homes broken into.

Years ago, fencing silver and gold items usually required a trip downstate and the holding of the goods too long for comfort. Now, says Lasater, a thief can get quick cash for his take locally and the evidence is destroyed almost immediately. Most silver and gold items bought by the itinerant merchant are melted down within a day or two with no records of what came from whom and for how much.

Lasater acknowledges that not all stolen items from breaking and entering cases wind up in the hands of silver and gold buyers and that many of the traveling merchants are cooperative with law enforcement personnel. Many, however, are not, he says, and right now there is nothing in the state statute book that says they have to cooperate.

New bill sponsored

Heavy pressure is being put on the state legislature by law enforcement agencies to pass a bill sponsored by State Rep. Brooks Patterson of Oakland County that would require the transient merchants to keep complete records of their transactions. Such records would include a description of each item, who sold it and how much he was paid for it. The bill also includes a provisun that items be kept intact for a period of time before they are melted down.

This bill, says Lasater, would be greatly helpful in the investigation of breaking and entering cases since, as it is now, if stolen goods such as silver are not recovered within days after they are taken, there is little or no hope that the cases can be fully solved.

Lasater also points to the sorry state of the economy as a doubly important factor in the current rash of B & E's.

The obvious result of high unemployment in this area (a state high of 17 percent for Charlevoix County according to recent figures) is people with less money and more idle time; thus more burglary. In the breaking and entering in Marion Township three weeks ago, stolen items included large amounts of beef from the freezer which seems to say something about the times.

But the sagging economy has also meant budget cuts for almost every unit of government, including law enforcement, so that departments such as the Charlevoix County Sheriff's are handicapped in their efforts to combat the growing problem.

"To be effective, we need help from the citizens," says Lasater. "Our personnel are attacking this problem very agressively with many individuals putting in overtime hours on cases and many working on their own time. We have also had super cooperation from the prosecutor's office. But we really need the citizens' help or we are going to lose the battle."

Lake residents concerned

Two citizen groups who have needed no convincing of the problem are the lake property owners associations for Lake Charlevoix and Walloon Lake. Theirs, naturally, are the homes most often victimized because of the isolation of lakefront homes and because of their highly seasoned use.

How to prevent breaking and entering

One of the best ways to prevent an unoccupied home from being broken into is to hide the fact that it is unoccupied.

Sheriff George Lasater recommends several ways to do this. One of the most effective is the timer system which can turn lights on and off randomly and in different rooms at night. A burglar will hardly ever break into a well lit home, says Lasater.

But sometimes, close observation can still disclose that no one's home. Such as free distribution advertising papers accumulating in roadside tubes or an unplowed driveway.

Lasater recommends that delivery of any publications be stopped immediately when a home is left for the season and that arrangements are made to have the driveway plowed occasionally. He said that it's not a bad idea to buy an old junk car for $50 and park it in the driveway.

Another good trick is to hang some old clothes out on the clothesline.

Missing: one building

Sometimes things happen that are hard to believe.

That's how Denny Heck feels about the disappearance of a building on the McCutcheon Boat Works property which his company recently bought.

It wasn't really a large building, but neither was it the size that a person might "borrow" for a fish shanty. It was 12 feet by 20 feet, constructed of wood and painted white like thousands of other outbuildings in Charlevoix County.

Heck believes the "house nappers" moved in with a flat bed trailer and just drove the building away.

"It was about four feet above the lake level, and it was too heavy for anyone just to push out onto the ice," Heck explains.

The building disappeared sometime early this month. There is no reward for its return, and a classified ad in this week's Courier encourages the "house nappers" to return and take the large building on the property to save the owners the cost of having it torn down.

Heck is associated with Northwest Marine, Inc., which is developing the Northwest Yacht Basin on the property.

U-M offers local real estate course

A course in Real Estate Finance will be offered in Petoskey this winter by the statewide Real Estate Program of the University of Michigan.

The course begins Feb. 4 and runs each Wednesday for 11 sessions from 7 to 10 p.m. It will be held in Room 322, Petoskey High School.

The finance course involves a thorough study of residential home financing, types of lending institutions available, and explanations of the mortgage procedure. The Michigan land contract will also be covered.

Although advance registration for the course is advised, students may also register at the class site prior to the opening session.

The University of Michigan Real Estate Program, now in its 34th year, offers courses for the professional benefit of both experienced persons and those new to or interested in the real estate field. The U-M Extension Service, the Graduate School of Business Administration, and the Michigan Association of Realtors cooperate in offering the state-certified courses, which have been approved for the granting of Continuing Education Units (CEU's) and can lead to the U-M Certificate in Real Estate.

For further information on this course and others scheduled this winter at a variety of locations around the state, contact the U-M Extension Service, 350 South Thayer, Ann Arbor, Michigan (313) 763-2170.

Ironton ferry may become ward of county transportation unit

The Ironton Ferry, which has long been a county orphan, may soon have a new family.

The ferry is slated to be the Number One Child of the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority when and if the Authority is approved by the state.

The County Board of Commissioners last week authorized its chairman, Clyde Cunningham, to enter into an agreement with the County Road Commission to establish a County Transportation Authority, which must be approved by the state before it comes into being.

The Ironton Ferry has been described for years as being "operated by the Charlevoix County Road Commission for the County Board of Commissioners", but there has never been a delineation of responsibilities, and some questions have arisen regarding the legal existence of the ferry and the county's right to operate it.

The County Transportation Authority would assume all existing obligations, debts, and duties of the ferry and be assigned all rights and settlements of the ferry. Operating costs would be split between the Road Commission and the county.

If the Transportation Authority is approved by the state, it will be available to operate any other transportation facility formed within the county.

The Iron Ferry, which spans the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at Ironton, is a unique tourist attraction. It has been in operation for over 100 years and was originally "powered" by horses pulling a cable.

In 1936, the creator of Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" came to Ironton, crossed on the ferry, and used it for one of his famous cartoons. Today, the ferry ride is often taken just to add a "boat trip" to an automobile vacation.

Pay scale raised for magistrate position

The person hired to fill the vacancy in the Magistrate's position in District Court will receive an annual salary of $14,280.

The grade level of the job was raised by the County Board of Commissioners last week at the request of Judge David W. Fershee. Previously, the job had paid $13,240 a year.

Another branch of the court system also received an increase in salary as the result of action by the Board of Commissioners.

At the request of Judge Martin Breighner, court-appointed attorneys will receive $35 an hour. Their fees have been set at $25 an hour for approximately 10 years.

This increase became effective January 1.

Grandvue residential care unit appears healthy after 10 months

by PEG ORLE

It's been about ten months since the first residents were admitted to the Residential Care Unit at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Twenty-four men and women, ranging in age from 62 to 97, now make their homes there.

They are all residents of Charlevoix County who need personal care but who are not sick or infirm.

They live in bright, light rooms with one or two other residents, read or watch television in the day room, eat their meals around small tables in a sparkling dining room, and may even congregate in the smoker's corner.

Of course, it's not like the private homes these people all once had, but to most, it's the next best thing.

Alice Heise, who went to Grandvue from Charlevoix, was watching TV when we stopped by.

"If you can't go home, this is a good place to be," she said.

James Floyd, a native of Beaver Island, was watching TV, too, obviously enjoying the morning soap opera.

Those who live in the Residential Care Unit are, of course, fortunate because they can get around without much help. Their families and friends can take them for auto rides, to church, to dinner, or home for visits.

Kay Peck, LPN, supervises the Residential Care Unit. She took over this duty when the unit opened after serving 30 years in the Medical Care Unit. In terms of years of service, she is the oldest employee of Grandvue, having started in the old building with "peeling paint and windows that wouldn't open".

Kay loves her job. "We get very close to our residents and their families," she explains. "We have fun – bingo parties, popcorn parties, cookie parties, and just plain visiting."

Charlevoix County is the only county in the state having a Residential Care Unit attached to its Medical Care Facility. In fact, there are only seven such Residential Care Units throughout the state.

The need for such a facility was recognized several years ago by Richard Tillen, head of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, and others responsible for the care of the elderly, but it was a long time before it became a reality. Possibilities of securing federal funds were explored but never realized. Then came the idea of "retirement village for a sinking fund". The proposition passed – one mill a year for three years, and the Residential Unit at Grandvue would be paid for when it was completed.

As it turned out, only three-quarters of a mill was levied the third year because that was all that was needed. The construction contract was let for $589,000. Furnishings and equipment cost several hundred thousand dollars more.

The cost of operating the Residential Care Unit is just about half the cost of operating the Medical Care Unit, according to Ronald Conkle, administrator of Grandvue. This is a saving for the residents as well as the county. There is a disadvantage, however, in that Medicaid does not pay the costs of Residential Care. Costs are paid from private sources, county funds, and state general assistance.

The costs of operating Grandvue have soared like everything else. Right now, Conkle is worried about losing the eight employees in the Residential Care Unit who are working under CETA Title II-D, which is a training and work program. We are hoping to finish the fiscal year with these employees, Conkle says. "It would cost us $70,000 in salaries alone, plus fringe benefits, if we had to pay them direct."

Conkle describes the Care Facility as one of the "systems of family life".

"You are born into a family, you furn your own family, you may move into an apartment or condo which is part of a family setting, you may move into a senior citizens complex later, then, when you can't maintain that level of independence, you may come to Grandvue. It's an attempt to provide another choice in life's circle."

All placements in the Residential Care Unit are handled by the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, where Gary Weglarz, Community Placement Worker, is the coordinator.

Local native has role in movie playing here this weekend

The movie "Dressed to Kill" opens this weekend at the Cinema III theater in Charlevoix and featured in a small standin role will be a local native Bobbie McDermott.

McDermott, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDermott, 204 Upright, is a 1966 graduate of Charlevoix High School. After he left Charlevoix, McDermott pursued an acting career which took him to New York and the prestigious acting classes of Lee Strassberg. He has been seen in several television commercials.

In "Dressed to Kill", a suspense thriller starring Angie Dickinson and Michael Caine, McDermott is seen briefly as one of the people trying to murder Dickinson. the movie was shot in New York City and will play Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Cinema III.

Sleepy Hollow Preserve is latest Conservancy acquisition in county

Little Traverse Conservancy announced last week that a 55-acre parcel of land seven miles south of Charlevoix has been donated anonyimously to the conservancy for use as a nature preserve.

John Fischer, chairman of Little Traverse Conservancy, said the parcel to be known as Sleepy Hollow Nature Perserve is on highway M-66 near Phelps Road and consists of rolling hardwood-conifer forest land close to the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

The donor of the land has expressed a wish to remain anonymous.

Sleepy Hollow is the third parcel in Charlevoix County obtained by the Conservancy following the Charles A. Ransom and Weslik Nature Preserves. The Little Traverse Conservancy is a private, non-profit organization which hos worked since 1972 to save critical natural land throughout Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Mackinac Counties.

Lands acquired by the Conservancy are maintained in their natural state for public benefit.

"We're very pleased to accept this acreage when lies close to the shores of Lake Charlevoix," said Horace M. Huffman, Jr., head of a special Conservancy program to help protect the quality of area lakes. "Through this gift, the donors have helped protect the water quality of the lake and have preserved this beautiful woods for all generations to come. Through joint work with the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners' Association we hope we'll be able to help other conservation-minded individuals protect the quality of the lake and surrounding land."

Dr. Allen Damschroder, Chairman of the Conservancy's Preserve Stewardship Committee, siad the Conservancy is working now to form a management committee of local residents who will watch over the preserve and that a management plan defining appropriate oses will be developed.

He explained that some nature preserves, such as the Charles A. Ransom Preserve, are developed with hiking trails and similar improvements, though most are kept entirely natural.

Charlevoix attorney Thomas D. Pointner, a Conservancy trustee and executive committee member noted that, "The Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve is one result of the Conservancy's increasing activity in Charlevoix County. The Conservancy looks forward to working with other individuals interested in preserving lands in their natural character for the benefit of the public."

Opinion

Knight on the Town

Get involved? We'd love to!

It was Monday, January 12 when neighbors noticed the first signs of something unusual at the home in the area of Ferry and Wickersham Roads in Marion Township.

The owners of the home, a retired couple, had been in Florida since winter's early storms so nobody who knew them expected to see any activity at the house until they returned later in the spring. Before leaving, they had asked a few of the nearby farm owners to keep an eye on the house so when some damage to the frogt door turned up that Monday, it was noticed immediately by more than one neighbor driving past.

The torn off front door was reported to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department whose subsequent investigation turned up some items missing from the home. It was a typical case of breaking and entering, one of several logged this year in the area.

As in other such cases, there had been no witnesses thus little hope was held out for any good leads.

This case, however, took a different turn than most.

The next night, Tuesday, January 13 at about 10 p.m., a neighbor up the road could see a vehicle parked at the home burglarized the day before and flashlight beams glancing off the inside walls. Whether by greed, courage bolstered by previous success or just plain stupidity, the burglars had apparently returned for a second load from the vacant home.

The neighbor called the Sheriff's Department right away. Fortunately, the undersheriff lived only a short distance away and was on the scene in a hurry. The only other car available at the time was at the other end of the county.

While officers responded to the call, the neighbor didn't waste any time. In a short period, he had roused several other nearby residents, some of whom had CB's and established early communication with the undersheriff who had a CB in his car.

As all this traffic began to converge on the scene of the crime, the three young men in the process of carrying out such items as a orisole television and a side of beef from the freezer decided it was quitting time and implemented escape Plan A in which one of them jumped behind the wheel of their pick-up and the other two headed for the woods across the road on foot.

The driver frantically drove up and down the road looking for his comrades but when neighbors and the law started to arrive, he took up the cause of every man for himself and headed for the highway at what police records call "a high rate of speed."

Meanwhile, the neighbors who were first on the scene had spied the two suspects on foot hightailing it into the woods. Deep footprints in the fresh snow made for easy tracking. The call went out for a snowmobile and within minutes, a nearby resident just gotten out of bed, was on the scene with his machine.

He took a companion on the passenger seat and roared off into the swampy woods following the trail that eventually split into two. They followed one and before long, at the edge of an open field, the snowmobilers came upon the exhausted figure of one of the suspects lying in the snow.

"I guess I was kind of scared all of a sudden," recalled the driver of the snowmobile. "Because I just realized then that he might have a gun or something."

Such fears notwithstanding, the pursuers indicated to the prone figure something to the effect that he either get up or get run over. He got up, but was too exhausted to move.

While the snowmobiler's companion stayed with the first suspect, he took off after the second track and made the apprehension in a similar manner.

As all this was going on in the woods, Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department was in danger of losing the pick-up driver who would have made it to Highway 66 and freedom long before the other county car could make it to the vicinity. A call for assistance was made to Charlevoix City Police.

They responded in minutes with a roadblock at the highway and had suspect number three in custody in no time.

The three suspects have been arraigned, a 23 year-old with two counts of breaking and entering, a 22 year-old with two counts and a 17 year-old with one count. They are all now free on bail and are awaiting trial.

Said Sheriff George Lasater of the incident, "There is no way we would have apprehended the suspects in this case without the cooperation of the neighbors. They did a tremendous job."

Said one of the neighbors, "This is a good community out here. We like to help each other out."

Names and exact locations have been left out of the above account at the request of several individuals involved.

Hot tips for cold days

by Eric Larson

'Tis the season to be active in Charlevoix. It's winter! The holiday spirit has long gone but. Ah! Those cross country ski excursions around Mt. McSauba; the snowmobile adventures at midnight, the sledding, the skating.

Charlevoix in winter is a wonderland in which to work off those Christmas cookie calories.

But, alas. Pity the few of us Charlevoixans who are just naturally sedentary; those of the unsung minority who feel that the sprinkling of rock salt on the front porch is their closest link to the great outdoors in January.

Have no fear, comrades in hibernation. You still have many creative options. Of course, 1981 dollar signs may hamper the one and only alternative for you: Florida sunshine.

But here are a few possibilities for those of you who prefer the less active role.

-Design a Venetian Festival theme for your 1958 vintage canoe.

-Play "Lawrence Welk's" Greatest Hits" at 78 rpm.

-Shave your head, Savalas-style.

-Wait for "Superman III".

-Count K-cars at the corner of Bridge and Belvedere.

-Skip stones in your bathtub.

-Discuss school nullage elections with a friend who owns 300 feet of bay frontage.

-Read Dr. Seuss's "Green Eggs and Ham" for yourself and not the kids.

-Savor a teaspoon of chunky peanut butter.

--Forget about Big Rock, just for a while.

-Take time to smell the flowers, even though they resemble only frost-bitten pods.

-Remember the Charlevoix IS really Beautiful in July.

And if none of those grab you, you can always just shed a tear and fill out your tax forms.

Eric Larson, who enjoys writing about the lighter side of life, is a year-round resident of Charlevoix who teaches English and Journalism at Central Lake High School.

Vacant homes being victimized

The Walloon Lake Association, plagued by a rash of breaking and entering cases earlier this winter, offered in newspaper advertisements a $250 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in the cases. The ads attracted no calls and the reward has not been given.

Information and education was the tack taken by the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association which invited representatives of local security firms and law enforcement personnel to address their annual meeting on the prevention of break-ins.

Who is the typical suspect in a breaking and entering?

A profile drawn by Lasater based on individuals apprehended and convicted is of a young male, in his early twenties who lives within the four county area of Emmet, Charlevoix, Otsego and Antrim and who is usually unemployed.

What the burglar looks for, says Lasater, are homes that cannot be seen from neighboring homes and to which there is easy access, by car or snowmobile. He also must be sure that the home is unoccupied and that is one of the keys to prevention. (See accompanying story.)

Of the 50 or so breaking and entering cases over the past three months in Charlevoix County, about 25 percent have been solved as far as filing charges and locating stolen goods. Even when some of the items stolen in a breaking and entering are recovered, however, there are usually many that will never be found.

"If we recover half of what is taken," says Lasater, "We are lucky."

One program being pushed by the sheriff's department is Operation Identification. This program makes available to anyone in the county equipment to mark valuable items with either an engraving pen or a felt tipped pen that uses fluid visible only under ultraviolet light. Such identification helps investigation greatly, says Lasater.

Any property owner in Charlevoix County can also take advantage of the security check program offered by the Sheriff's Department. This entails filling out a request form and assures the property owner that his home or business will be checked on a regular basis by patroling officers. Last year, 3524 security checks were made on businesses and 1640 on homes.

Lasater is also trying to organize a Neighborhood Watch Program, sponsored by the National Sheriff's Association, in which individual neighborhoods police themselves with organized patrols and coordinators.

Private security firms are doing big business lately in both the patroling and electronic alarm phases of home security. Such firms are highly endorsed by Lasater and have cooperated closely with law enforcement in combating break-ins.

Editorial

New plan represents an attitude

If the proposal for a new city master plan by Ronald F. Nino & Associates is rejected by the City Council, Charlevoix will not wither up and blow away. In that respect, it is not a life or death question.

In another respect, however, the plan represents not just another comprehensive study but an attitude; an attitude of growth and aggressiveness. What Charlevoix needs right now are more jobs. With unemployment the highest in the state, we obviously need a new strategy to attract business and industry because whatever we are doing now is not working.

The proposed project cannot be compared to the last master plan done for the city over ten years ago. In that instance, the city basically got what it paid for which was not much. The finished plan was too general, under-researched and how outdated. The plan proposed by Nino has economic growth as its focus and solid, proven techniques as its method.

The product of this type of planning can be used as a tool to promote the city to business and industry; it will be useful in obtaining Charlevoix's fair share of supplemental governmental funding; it will be essential in dealing with city-township growth questions.

But most importantly, it is a way of saying "We can make things better if we try!" If you like the sound of that attitude, tell your council member this week.

Council tables plan where every tree should be planted," but a specialized study focusing on economic growth. Porter criticized the members of the council concerned about the township not being included saying, "We are getting too paranoid about the township. After all, most of the people do live in the city. We should not have to worry about the township everytime we want to do something."

A motion to table the master plan proposal until more citizen input can be solicited was made by Councilwoman Shirley Roloff who suggested that the council "air out" the proposal further before making a decision. The motion passed with only Porter dissenting.

Edward Gregory, project manager of the Charlevoix Housing Commission's 65 unit elderly housing complex now under construction, reported to the council on the admission regulations recently adopted by the Housing Commission.

The regulations comprise a 13-page document and, according to Gregory, were almost entirely dictated by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which is funding the project.

The age requirement for applicants is 62 or older.

Other eligibility requirements for the elderly housing units to open next summer include maximum adjusted income levels of $9350 annually for one person, $10,700 for two and no more than $40,000 in total assets.

Seventy-two percent of the units, or 45 units, are to be allocated to those with incomes below $5365. Residents of the city or school district will be given first priority for openings but, if other qualifications are met and there are units available, anyone from anywhere in the state is eligible to apply.

Rent payments, under the HUD formula, will be approximately one quarter of each renter's income.

Gregory said that over 200 names have been submitted to date but that few, so far, have met all the qualifications.

He also reported that progress was slightly behind on the project and that a dispute over use of a contingency fund of $103,000 for change orders had yet to be settled.

In other action Monday night, the council:

-Approved lease and purchase agreements with the Beaver Island Boat Company who went along with a 25-year lease on its downtown dock facility at $3600 annually.

-Decided to charge for use of city garden plots at a rate of $5 per 24-foot square plot with a two-plot limit and June 1 cutoff date.

How to prevent break-ins

For those with the desire to explore the latest electronic security gimmickry, there are several systems available that have proven very effective. The most sophisticated alarm systems respond to the slightest sound vibration and can be tripped by a rattled paper or a mouse running across the floor.

These can be patched in over existing telephone lines to the Sheriff's Department where, if the alarm is tripped, a taped phone message is automatically received requesting immediate assistance at the address. Charlevoix deputies responded to 84 calls to local businesses and 69 calls to residences from automatic alarms in 1980. The problem with the supersensitive, complicated alarms, however, is that they can be set off by almost anything and that many times, relatives or caretakers do not deactivate them when entering the premises.

Of the 153 calls in 1980, only ten were actual break-ins.

The best prevention tactic for breaking and entering is getting a neighbor to watch one's property, says Lasater. Neighbors can report anything unusual to authorities and often times help apprehend suspects by identifying vehicles or taking suspicious license numbers.

Forgotten customers

As of Monday morning, there w still some doubt whether Chrysl Corp.'s unionized employees will willing to bite the bullet and accept 20-month wage freeze in an effort help the company weather its latest nancial crisis.

Workers at some plants have turn down the freeze; others have agreed t forego their next raise and cost-of-li ing allowance, a move which will mak
Chrysler eligible for another round loans guaranteed by the federal go ernment.

In the meantime, both General tors and Ford are beginning to "Me, too," to the chagrin of union
cials.

Executives at both corporations h let it be known through the press th Chrysler workers are willing down on contracted wages, then auto workers should be willing to do same.

They feel that if Chrysler's wages frozen, the company will have a $ edge per vehicle in labor costs over competitors, enabling Chrysler to com pete more fiercely than ever in the marketplace.

Which is precisely why Chrys workers are voting on the wage freez
The business community — along w state and federal government officia — have agreed that it would be a bi thing for the country if Chrysler belly-up.

An elaborate loan-guarantee pro gram was worked out in late 1979 to save the company. And the loa helped. Chrysler was just beginning pick up a little steam last early last fall when interest rates — nudged by the Federal Reserve Board — began to rise, making deep inroads into auto sales.

As Chrysler's cash-flow problem worsened, a new refinancing acti was worked out, contingent upon the cooperation of management, gover ment, banks and the workers th selves, who were asked to freeze th wages and fringes for the next months at the present level of about an hour.

General Motors and Ford appar
have sensed a weakening in union darity and are casting a baleful eye on current UAW contracts. Both com nies still are in the black, th largely in Ford's case to overseas op ations, but they would like their wor ers to accept a wage freeze — just Chrysler workers appear to be doing in order to deny Chrysler that little vantage.

Which is nonsense.

UAW President Douglas Fraser s
GM and Ford will never agree to freeze as long as their employers main solvent, and he is probably right

The problem, of course, began the current contracts which never should have been signed by any of auto companies.

It is sheer folly to promise to pay auto assembler $20 an hour — or $10 hour — or $18 an hour — or even $1 hour — when the bulk of your pr tive customers are trying to make meet on $5 or $6 an hour.

Someone in the executive suites
Chrysler, GM or Ford should h known there was going to be trou ahead, but I don't think anyone th too clearly in such thin air.

I also believe the caliber of co contract negotiators has slipped in re cent years. How many of the brig young, college-trained legal minds w drew up the contracts have ever had meet a payroll — much less run th own businesses at a profit?

Unfortunately, it is easier to come terms — any terms — with the U than it is to hammer out a contract th will be fair to everyone concerned, in cluding the virtually forgotten stock holders and customers.

End of sermon.

Vicki Rogers is Chx. rep. for Campus Life Sweetheart Pageant

When the annual Campus Life Sweetheart Pageant is held at Petoskey High School Sunday, Charlevoix will be represented by Vicki Rogers, 18, Charlevoix High School senior.

She will be among candidates from several area communities seeking the honor.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rogers, Vicki was a member of the Rayder Cross Country team last fall and a member of the Campus Life singers. She will present as her talent, a film entitled "The Good Samaritan" made by the Campus Life group of which she is a member.

Her escort at the pageant will be Greg Swanson.

Vicki Rogers

The pageant is the chief fund-raising project of the Youth for Christ organization. Last week the local group sponsored a cookie sale and a Rock-a-Thon to raise fugds. They will also hold a canvass of the community as part of their fund raising drive.

The pageant will be held at the Petoskey High School Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Each candidate will be expected to give a brief speech and her talent presentation. Points toward her candidacy will also include the number of supporters from her home community so Charlevoix residents are urged to attend the event.

Following graduation in June, Vicki plans to continue her education in accounting at Lake Superior State College.

Windmill Farms plans wooden ski rally

Old fashioned ski clothes and grandfather's old wooden skis will be the order of the day on Saturday, February 7 when Windmill Farms Ski Touring Center holds its Great Wooden Ski Rally.

Beginning at 1 p.m., the rally will feature a grand promenade, not a race, of appropriately attired skiers. The event will not be based on speed, distance or stamina but rather on costuming, poise and dignity.

Events at the rally are open to everyone with the registration deadline at 12:30 p.m. February 7. Windmill Farms Ski Touring Center is located five miles north of Charlevoix on the Boyne City Road.

Another event at the rally will be a tandem ski race in which teams of two racers each will race on special skis with bindings for two. Those with their own tandem skis are encouraged to bring them.

Fiddlers asked to regroup in East Jordan

Following the resounding success of the January 17 Old Time Fiddlers Jamboree, organizers in East Jordan are planning to get many of the musicians who took part in the Jamboree together on a regular basis.

All musicians interested in playing for squares and rounds are invited to a session this Saturday, February 7, at the East Jordan Civic Center at 4 p.m. The first of a monthly series of dances is tentatively scheduled for February 14 at the Civic Center.

Kay Chase is shown above in her new store, Charlevoix Creations and the Sewing Corner. The store opened last week in the former laundromat and variety store next to Oleson's Food Store. Featured at Charlevoix Creations and the Sewing Corner are all sewing and fabric needs as well as some plants and craft items. See the ad on page 2.

New dietician has plans for Chx. hospital

With a name like Diane Charlebois how could the new dietician at Charlevoix Area Hospital be anything but a success.

Most people pronounce her name "Charlevoix" to emphasize the coincidence.

Since Dec. 1, the 27 year old Michigan State Dietetics graduate has been putting her professional know-how to work in the Charlevoix Area Hospital kitchen where her innovations range from emphasis on home-style cooking to efforts to meet individual patients' dietary needs, even desires.

As Mrs. Charlebois moves from kitchen to office, to nurses' station and patient rooms, her concerns include providing the best possible meals to patients and hospital staff, patient education and establishing a team approach with other health care professionals.

After graduation from MSU in 1978, she entered the Flint Area Dietetic Traineeship, a year-long on the job program during which she worked in community nutrition as well as in hospitals and schools. She became head of the Dietary Department at Clinton Memorial Hospital in St. Johns, Michigan, later moving to Plymouth General Hospital.

She became a Registered Dietician in 1979.

At Charlevoix Area Hospital, Diane plans to combine her culinary talents with experience in therapeutic dietary work and education. She says she feels strongly that as a department head she must be both a teacher of staff and patients as well as take the final responsibility for her department's product.

She is now in the process of revising the menus, for more variety, and organizing the department for greater efficiency.

"I want my staff to have fun while they are working," she says as she admires a cauldron of homemade soup bubbling on the stove.

LaLeche League to start meeting series

The Charlevoix LaLeche League will begin a series of four discussion meetings on Wednesday, February 11 at the United Methodist Church.

The group meets the second Tuesday of each month at the church. During the series the group informally discusses different phases of breastfeeding. The topics to be discussed at the first meeting will be the advantages of breastfeeding to mother and child.

The league offers mother-to-mother help based on the manual "The Womanly Art of Breastfeeding." The discussions include the latest medical research as well as personal experience. Other services include a lending library of books on childbirth, child care and breastfeeding.

All women who are interested in nursing their babies are invited. You need not be pregnant or have a baby to attend. For further information call Jenny Belairs at 547-6255 or Jan Vanderwall at 536-7252.

Rayders can't keep up with Cheboygan

Cheboygan demonstrated, at the expense of the Charlevoix Rayders, why it is currently one of the forces to be reckoned with in the Michigan-Huron Shores conference basketball race as they ovarpowered the Rayders 80-58 on their home floor.

Outstanding individual performances by Cheboygan's Kirk Taylor and Todd Precord paced the Chiefs' win with 28 and 27 points respectively.

The Rayders were never able to mount a sustained drive in the game though they were theoretically within striking distance until the final quarter when Cheboygan scored 23 points to Charlevoix's 14 and put the game out of reach.

First quarter action saw the Rayders close on Cheboygan's heels trailing only by a 16-14 margin at the end of the period. The Chiefs steadily pulled away in the second and led 39-32 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Cheboygan lengthened its lead to 13, 57-44 and in the fourth ran away with the win.

Sub-par shooting, 43 percent from both the floor and the free throw line, plagued Charlevoix as well as turnovers of which the Rayders had 20 to Cheboygan's 13. Cheboygan also dominated the boards, outrebounding Charlevoix 38-26. The Rayders had only nine offensive rebounds.

Individual scoring honors for Charlevoix went to Craig Klooster who canned 18.

For the Rayder junior varsity team, fortunes were much better Friday night at Cheboygan as the Rayder understudies pulled out a 55-49 victory.

George Smith was the big gun for Charlevoix with 22 total points, 18 of them in the first half. Steve Schmidt also had a good night with 17 points.

Charlevoix battled from a 17-14 deficit in the first quarter to a commanding 35-25 lead at intermission. Defense took over in the third period which saw the Rayders cling to a 44-33 lead. In the fourth quarter, Charlevoix held off the Chiefs for the 55-49 victory.

This Friday, the Rayders take on another league power, Grayling, at Grayling.

Volleyball team blanks Grayling; is now 4-2

The Charlevoix High School girls volleyball team blanked Grayling 2-0 in a meet here last Wednesday night.

The Rayder JV squad also won their match, taking two of the three games, Coach Mary Gengle said.

The team will travel to Rogers City Wednesday.

"They finally got their game together and played their best since the season opened," said Coach Gengle. She added that the team played without regular Mel Kerridge who was out with the flu but received a lot of help from Lisa Pischner and Colleen LaBlance who came off the bench.

In the first game, Charlevoix won 15-9, 15-13 with Margo Smith the top server, Doretta Anderson the outstanding offensive player and Becky Witthoeft and Smith the top defensive players.

In the second game, Charlevoix lost the first match 5-15 but came back strong to win the next two 15-11, 15-1 with Brenda Buchanan joining Smith as the top servers, Anderson being joined by Buchanan as top offensive players and Teresa Nolrot joining Smith for defensive honors.

The Charlevoix Varsity team now has a 4-2 record in conference play. The Junior Varsity is now 2-1 after losing the first match 11-15 and winning the final two 15-7, 15-5. Jackie Mitchell was singled out as top server. Coach Gengle said played well with all 18 players seeing action.

Two losses bounce girls from tourney

The Charlevoix volleyball team lost their first two matches in the Leland Invitational tournament Saturday and returned home before the event was over according to Coach Mary Gengle.

In the first round, Charlevoix lost to Traverse City 15-8, 16-14 and in the second match fell victim to Petoskey, 15-10, 18-16.

Top server in the first match was Margo Smith, spiker Doretta Anderson and defensive player Brenda Buchanan. In the Petoskey game, Buchanan was the outstanding server, Buchanan and Lisa Pischner the top offensive players and Smith and Becky Witthoeft the defensive players.

Charlevoix will play at Rogers City Wednesday.

Marcia Smith follows through on a set-up.

Freshmen won one, lost one last week

It was one and one for the Charlevoix freshman basketball team last week as they posted a 45-43 overtime win over Gaylord Tuesday but took a 47-40 loss to Cheboygan Thursday.

In the game with Gaylord, Charlevoix was ahead by eight points with eight minutes to go but fell victim to a Blue Devil press as Gaylord tied the score at 41 at the buzzer.

In the overtime, Gaylord scored first to go ahead 43-41 before Alec Sheets tied the score with four seconds remaining. Dan Buday hit a long shot from the corner for the last second win. Bill Tillen had 12 for the Rayders.

The Charlevoix-Cheboygan game was much closer than the score indicates, according to Rayder coach Chuck Wright.

Cheboygan led 6-4 at the quarter but the Rayders outscored them 17-12 in the second period to take a 21-18 lead at halftime. At the three-quarter mark, Cheboygan had grabbed a 31-30 lead and then coasted to a 47-40 win.

Charlevoix outscored their opponents 16-15 from the floor but lost the game at the charity stripe where they were outscored Cheboygan connected on 17 of 27 attempts while the Rayders hit on six of 20. Pat Mitchell paced Charlevoix's scoring with 13 points.

City League results

In A-League action January 29, the B-League All-Stars shot past V.I.P. 73-68. Tim Carey led the Stars with 27 while Mike Crain had 13 and Jim Parrish 11 for the winners. Both Randy Holecheck and Jerry Skippergosh had 20 for the losers and Clint Berlage had 10.

Kaden's topped I.D.C. 62-50 behind 17-point performances by Dean Hicks and Kim Hoquard; Bob Spencer and Scott Hausler had 12 and 10 for Kaden's. I.D.C. was led by Tex Drenth with 12, Brian Parrell with 11 and Jim Danbert with 10.

Townhouse logged a 2-0 victory over Great Lakes Energy in the scorebook following a forfeit of the game by Great Lakes.

In B-League action on January 28, Alray Cottages survived a low-scoring contest with Carey's Boot Shop and took home a 44-39 victory. Steve McClellan had 20 for Alray and Pat Schaeffer hit 17 for Carey's.

First State Bank squeaked by Wojan Aluminum 36-34 on 16 points from Roger Gowell and 12 from Ralph Doan. Dave Smith had 18 and Don Ward 16 for Wojan.

Kit Carson slew Medusa 68-62 behind four players in double figures including Mike Crain, 21, Dale Boss, 17, Butch Kloosterr, 13 and Tim Ejenbaas, 10. Jim Parrish had 26 and Doug Winnell 16 for Medusa.

Peanut League scores

The results of a series of games in the Peanut League have been reported by director and coach Dave Moyer. The games were played at the high school Saturday.

The results of the sixth grade action were as follows:

Pistons 36, Bullets 34, Quint Walker of the Pistons and Jim Cuk of the Bullets shared scoring honors with 12 each.

Shaun Bier and Joey Miller also had eight for the winners.

76ers 28, Lakers 4, Darrin Batdorff had 12 points for the winners. Bobby Sharrow and Paul Zoet had two each for the Lakers.

Spartans 48, Celtics 12, Mike Thompson had 13 points and Kevin Shepard nine for the Spartans. Jamie Spencley had eight of the Celtics 12 points.

Fifth grade:

Cosmos 18, Spartans 9, Mark LaBlance, Chad DeVries and Jason Titsworth scored four points each for the Cosmos. Scott DeYoung had five and Marty Joy four for the Spartans.

76ers 18, Lakers 15. Dan Drury accounted for ten of the winner's points while Charles Britton and Chad Thorp had four each for the Lakers.

Matmen beat Boyne City, three 1sts at Petoskey

The Rayder wrestlers posted a 42-18 win over the Boyne City Ramblers last Thursday night.

Charlevoix will host St. Ignace Thursday in a meet postponed from last month. The team will also participate in the conference meet at Rogers City Saturday and travel to Onaway February 11.

In winning at Boyne City Thursday, the Rayders tallied four pins and two decisions plus two more by forfeit while the Ramblers had two pins and, a forfet to their credit.

There were also two mutual forfeits.

Mike Steele (112) won by a 14-8 decision over Scott Elzinga; Mick Belly (122) pinned Doug Kenyon in the final period; Tim Bruce (138) won by a second period pin over Pat Abel; Alan Bergmann (155) pinned Larry Williams in the second period; Scott Golovich, back on the mat after suffering a leg injury, won a 3-0 decision over Mark Moody and Ken Wojan (196) pinned Alan Alama in the second period.

In the 98 pound class, Jim Herriman lost by a pin in 57 seconds to Mike Kruzel and Rick Gallant lost by a first period pin to Charles Gregware.

Greg Andrick (119) and Gregg Whitley (145) won by forfeit for the Rayders and Bob Prebble (167) by forfeit for Boyne City. There were also mutual forfeits in the 105 and heavyweight classes.

Three Charlevoix matmen came out of the Petoskey Invitational tournament as winners Saturday though the team finished last among eight teams in the field.

Gregg Whitley (145), Allan Bergmann (155) and Scott Golovich (185) came through the tournament undefeated.

Charlevoix lost to Oscoda 60-15, Glenn Lake 46-30 and to Roscommon 48-24.

Escanaba won the meet and Petoskey was runner-up.

Mike Steele works for position.

HER HEART BELONGS TO...
Even if her heart belongs to daddy, you still have a place. Many a heart has been won with diamonds.
With Valentine's Day just around the corner, now's the time to plan your strategy. You can choose from pendants, bracelets, earrings, rings and stickpins in many shapes and sizes.
If you're not trying to be subtle, you'd probably like a heart shaped setting or even a heart shaped diamond. Diamond heart jewelry is very popular this year. Some of the nation's finest designers and manufacturers are giving us new and exciting designs so you have an excellent selection to choose from.
And say that once you get her over, you'll never let her go? Then how about a set of chains to prevent her from straying. gold chains that is. For an extra nice touch, you might buy her a chain with small diamonds tucked in here and there. You don't have to stop with a necklace either. You can select a bracelet or an anklet. Whichever you choose is sure to win her appreciation.
At Reusch Jewelry we don't just sell jewelry, we sell love. Please feel free to consult us at any time for your jewelry needs. We've been in business for 56 years and have started many a love affair with our diamonds. What's more, we'll still be here when you need service and when you're ready to buy your wedding rings!

Obituaries

MARY R. DILLON

Mrs. Francis (Mary R.) Dillon, a nine-year resident of Charlevoix, died January 29 in Harbor Hospital, Detroit.

Memorial services were held at Our Lady of Salette Catholic Church in Berkley on Sunday evening, February 1.

Mrs. Dillon, the former Mary Rad, was born December 28, 1914 in Detroit. She married Mr. Dillon on August 16, 1944 in Detroit.

Survivors include her husband; a son, Michael, of Lathrop Village; two daughters, Ms. Nora Cassady of Royal Oak, and Mrs. Daniel (Kim) Smith of Oxford; two brothers, George Rad of Wayne, and Herbert Rad of California; one sister, Mrs. Ann Blair of Lincoln Park; and seven grandchildren.

Memorials may be made to the Cancer Research Fund at Harbor Hospital, or to the Palliative Medicine Department of the hospital.

Executive Director Susanne Dye invites anyone wishing to learn more about the Conservancy to contact her at the Conservancy's Petoskey office at Room 28, North Central Michigan College. Dye says that she has presented slide programs on Conservancy activities to several clubs including the Charlevoix Lions, East Jordan Garden Club, Charlevoix Garden Club and Charlevoix Jaycees. Other organizations wishing to have similar presentations are invited to contact her.

DONALD J. FILCEK

Funeral services for a former resident, Donald J. Filcek, 36, of Middleville, were held Thursday, January 29 at the First Baptist Church of Middleville. Interment was in Auburn Pine Grove Cemetery at Midland.

Mr. Filcek resided in Charlevoix from 1972 until 1978 when he was manager of the Charlevoix Cooperative. While here he was a member of the Charlevoix Post No. 3153, Veterans of Foreign Wars and had served as Post Commander a position he held until he left the area. The family had resided in Middleville since leaving Charlevoix.

A native of Midland, he had served two years in the U.S. Army and had spent a year in Viet Nam. The family had come to Charlevoix from Marcellus. He had always been active in the V.F.W.

He is survived by his wife, Terry Joan, two children, Donald Adam and Denise Ann, both at home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Filcek of Midland, four brothers and four sisters.

Middle School art show

The Charlevoix Middle School will present an art show, "Picture Perfect" a two-dimensional art exhibit at the Charlevoix Public Library through Wednesday. Mrs. Roxie Lodine, art instructor, has announced.

The show may be viewed during school hours. Parents and interested persons are invited to visit the school and see the accomplishments of the students.

The show opened Monday with a reception.

MARY KEEM and DEE HOADLEY of Charlevoix and PHYLLIS DEKORNE and MARGE BEST of Ellsworth joined 310 other Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers (MAEH) members from across the state at the "Learn and Lead through MAEH" conference January 6 and 7 at the Michigan State Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

"The purposes of the conference were to provide the opportunity for members to share program ideas that were successful in their respective counties, to learn effective leadership skills and to develop a long range program plan," Mary Keem, Charlevoix County MAEH Chairperson.

Participants selected two of the eight workshops offered. Workshop sessions covered topics like receiving group conflict, basic parliamentary procedure, effectively and motivating persons to use their skills and talents in MAEH and other groups.

paprika on roasting potatoes, she continues. "If you enjoy what you are doing you will have pride in your work and that is one of my goals."

Another of her goals is to work closely with patients and staff so that menus can be modified according to the individual patient's needs as directed by physicians. Her plan includes visiting every patient to obtain a diet history and to get a feel for the patient's appetite and eating schedules.

"I hope to make two or three visits to patients and involve other family members in food preparation and menu planning for when the patient goes home," she said.

Charlebois is already involved in patient education through referrals from doctors.

"Diabetics, heart patients, people with hernias or ulcers and alcoholics have certain nutritional needs with which I can help."

Already the Charlevoix Area Hospital menu includes a range of dishes from quiches to beef burgundy and fish a la Scotia. As well as many homemade items -- soups, breads, pies -- Diane is planning to include Polish, German and French dishes. She is now developing a pediatric menu working with staff and parents. She is also hoping to assist the Obstetrics Department in nutritional counseling for expectant and new mothers.

Very health conscious herself, Diane jogs, takes aerobic dancing, swims, cross country skis and bikes.

She says she is excited to be part of the Charlevoix Area Hospital team, working closely with nursing staff and medical staff to offer nutritious and appealing menus.

Dairy marketing seminar set

Dairying is one of the most important segments of Michigan's agricultural economy, but consumers of dairy products don't always understand how milk is marketed.

Clarifying this sometimes complicated process is the aim of a special milk marketing seminar to be held in this area on Friday, February 6. The session will be at the Ironworks Restaurant in Elk Rapids.

The program, which is intended for farm women as well as non-farm women, will begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. It is sponsored by the Michigan State University Department of Dairy Science and MSU Cooperative Extension Service.

The morning segment of the program features discussion on how milk is currently marketed and the relationship of the consumer to the dairy industry. Speakers for this segment of the program are Glynn McBride, eMSU Extension Agricultural Economist, and Necia Sharkey and Bonnie Lynch, of the Michigan division of the American Dairy Association.

The afternoon program has concurrent sessions on new and traditional dairy products, and farm management. The segment on dairy products will be conducted by Mary Zehner, MSU Extension consumer marketing specialist, Gale Baumgardner, MSU dairy specialist, and Marlene Caszatt, area Extension Home Economist. The session on farm management will explain how to develop and understand Profit and Loss, Financial, and Cash Flow Statement to determine a dairy operation's net worth. It will be conducted by Glenn Kole, MSU District Farm Management and Livestock Agent.

The primary concern in the milk marketing system is to provide the consumer with a fresh and wholesome product. As a result, milk is one of the purest natural foods available over the retail counter.

These sessions will explain how this quality is maintained, the necessary costs – and subsequent prices to consumers – of keeping the dairy producer in business, and the operation of the marketing system.

Reservations must be made by contacting the County Cooperative Extension Service office by February 3. Further information may be obtained by calling 533-8607, extension 31.

Extension workshop will focus on restoring, mending old clothes

This area's Cooperative Extension Service is offering an upcoming workshop to help people turn old, worn-out garments into updated styles.

The ARM (alterations, repair and mending) Clothing Program is designed to teach the basic fundamentals for altering clothing on women and children. Participants will learn specific skills necessary for repair of garments as well as mending and applique techniques for extending the wear life of garments for women and children.

Participants will receive 20 hours of instruction and kits for reteaching the techniques they learn.

Those interested are to call the Cooperative Extension Service at 582-6232 for more information. Workshops are scheduled to begin in February.

County to lose two high level employees

Hess to join private firm

By PEG OHLE

John Hess, who has served as Charlevoix County Planner since October, 1977, tendered his resignation to the County Planning Commission last week.

In a letter addressed to Tom Wieland, chairman of the Planning Commission, Hess stated that he had "an outstanding job offer here in the Charlevoix area, and I believe that after twelve years of working for government, it is time I started work in the private sector."

When questioned by the Courier about his future plans, Hess said he would start working as a planner for Site Planning Development, Inc. in April, when his resignation from the county job becomes effective.

Hess' letter to the Planning Commission also expressed some thoughts about future operations of county government:

"The next few years are going to be economically devastating to local governments. We, as planners, should be working hand in glove with the County Board to be as frugal as possible with our tax dollars. Yet, at the same time, we must provide our constituents with competent and professional service. The new planner and the Planning Commission should press forward with bulk purchasing, capital improvements, energy saving measures in all our buildings, a study into the advantages of hiring a County Controller, solid waste planning, saving agricultural land, and maintaining high water quality ... our lakes.

"In regards to the subject of County Controller, county government is a business. Our non-profit business is providing governmental needs and services to our constituents at an economical price. Our budget is $2,345,525. A 2.3 million dollar per year business needs a manager who can carry out the policies and recommendations of the County Board on a day-to-day basis. We have 18 full and part-time people working for the County, with gross wages and fringe benefits exceeding $1,328,969, or over 56 percent of our total budget. The controller could also act as a personnel manager so that we could keep these 18 people producing at peak levels, or if we have to cut services, we could cut in such a manner that we could maintain essential services. I believe in the long haul, the controller would save us more money than what the position would cost."

Hess came to Charlevoix County from Marquette County, where he had served as Assistant Planner. He is a native of Harbor Springs and received bachelor's and master's degrees from Northern Michigan University.

Stockwell moving to Sunbelt

by FRAN MARTIN

Under-Sheriff Byron D. Stockwell, who has been associated with law enforcement in Charlevoix County since 1964, has announced his resignation from the office he now holds effective October 1, 1981.

In his letter of resignation to Sheriff George T Lasater under whom he has served since January 1, 1976, Stockwell said that he had found it necessary to leave the position to take his wife, Mary, to a warmer climate on the advice of her doctors. He added that he was advising Sheriff Lasater of his decision at this time to give him ample time to seek a successor.

In making the announcement, Stockwell said that it was with regret that he decided to resign.

"I have enjoyed my work with the Sheriff's Department," said Stockwell, "I have also enjoyed my service to the residents of Charlevoix County. I have always found them cooperative in every way. It has been a good association just as working with the fellow employees at the Sheriff's Department has been. Both Mary and I regret having to leave the county but it is necessary for the protection of her health."

Stockwell said that they have tentative plans to move to Arizona which offers a more temperate climate.

Ryron Stockwell

Stockwell has been associated with law enforcement in the county since he joined the staff of the Sheriff's Department in October, 1964, under Sheriff Philo Sumner. Later, he served as assistant police chief under Charlevoix City Police Chief Jack Mol from June, 1971 until being named under-sheriff by Lasater.

A native of Lansing and a veteran of service in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II, Stockwell was associated with the Eaton County Sheriff's Department and Michigan Military District prior to coming to Charlevoix in 1962.

New cars starting to move locally thanks to initiatives by banks, credit union

by LISA AGNELLO

Runaway inflation and high unemployment have many people thinking very negatively about the local economy right now.

But not Charlevoix's lending institutions.

Over the past few weeks, several agressive steps have been taken by the local institutions to spark Charlevoix's economy in these uncertain times.

Already, the response has been heavy and the effect felt by some of the community's key businesses.

Much of the action has focused on sagging automobile sales. The First State Bank of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County State Bank and Charlevoix Federal Credit Union are all now offering special low interest auto loans on new car models for qualified borrowers.

The basic idea behind the lowered rates is to generate more business for local automobile dealerships. Car dealers across the country are in the middle of one of the worst sales slumps in recent history and most point to high interest rates as the major cause.

The First State Bank of Charlevoix is offering a 36-month loan for 25 percent down at an interest rate of 15 percent. The loan only applies for new cars purchased from one of the local dealerships.

Bank officials stated that, hopefully, the program will encourage local people to buy cars in Charlevoix as well as draw people from outlying areas into Charlevoix to do business.

No cut off time for the loans has been set by the First State Bank.

Charlevoix County State Bank is featuring a 36-month loan for 25 percent down at an interest rate of 12.75 percent for 1980 or 1981 model cars. These loans are available through February 28.

Charlevoix Federal Credit Union can offer a qualified borrower a 14 percent interest loan with any dealer on a new car. The term of the loan will depend on the amount of the downpayment. Loans will be available until a cutoff date is set.

So far, the response to the initiatives by the banks and credit union has been promising, according to their loan officials.

Car dealers are happy with the special loan programs, too.

Spokesmen for Kusina Motors (Pontiac-AMC), Village Car Care (Chrysler), Erber Auto (Ford-Lincoln-Mercury) and Fochtman (Chevrolet-Buick) all indicated that there has been a noticeable increase in traffic through their showrooms since the new loan programs were announced.

Many also said that, in addition to the local initiatives, the special promotions offered by the manufacturers such as Chrysler, Ford and General Motors are sparking more interest in potential buyers.

The dealers point to positive attitude as one of the major factors in selling cars. The recent incentives offered, both locally and nationally, are doing much, they say, to create such an attitude.

Atty. Discipline Board hands Reibel one-year suspension

by DAVE KNIGHT

Arthur R. Reibel, local attorney and former district judge, was suspended from the practice of law for one year Friday by the state Attorney Discipline Board.

The action was filed in Detroit by a three-member panel of Northern Michigan attorneys who heard testimony at a November 14 hearing regarding a sum of $1,200 given to Reibel by Denis Erin Arvilla of Harbor Springs to post bond for her brother who was jailed in Leland.

Attorneys John M. Senger, Michael Dettmer, both of Travers City, and James Cotant of Gaylord comprised the 46th Circuit hearing panel who ruled on the professional misconduct charges against Reibel.

In their decision the panel stated that Reibel violated professional standards by keeping $1,200 given to him by Denis Arvilla after indicating to her that the money was to be used as bail bond for her brother Joel Arvilla and would be returned to her following Joel's appearance in court.

The dispute dates back to February, 1978 when Joel Arvilla was jailed in Leelanau County for writing bad checks. Denis Arvilla gave Reibel a total of $2,600 in cash at the time of which $1,200 was to post bond for Joel Arvilla. Reibel was assessed $139 for the expenses of the hearing panel plus the cost of the hearing transcript.

Arthur R. Reibel

Although $563.32 was returned to Denis Arvilla in March, 1980 by Reibel, he apparently has not returned any further amount. The hearing panel's decision states that Reibel "continues to keep certain monies that belong to the family of Joel Arvilla."

In an initial decision reached more than a month ago, the hearing panel recommended a three year suspension of Reibel's license to practice which would have required him to retake the state bar examination before qualifying for reinstatement.

"It should be noted," reads the final decision, "that the Hearing Panel spent much time, effort and soul searching in an effort to come to agreement as to a proper disposition of this complaint."

The one-year suspension eventually agreed upon by the panel takes effect 30 days after the panel's decision which was dated Friday, February 6. It requires Reibel to notify all his present clients of his change of status by that time. He also must be recertified, after the suspension, by the state Board of Law Examiners before qualifying for reinstatement.

Reibel was also assessed $139 for the expenses of the hearing panel plus the cost of the hearing transcript.

Manistee Attorney Donald Jennings, who represented the Attorney Grievance Commission at the November 14 hearing, expressed satisfaction with the panel's decision.

Said Jennings, "The procedure has been followed and a reasonable decision has been reached by the panel. A one-year suspension is a pretty heavy sentence but I assume the panel considered Mr. Reibel's actions serious enough to warrant it."

Reibel said Monday that he had no comment on the decision other than that it will be appealed.

The appeal process first involves review of the case by the state Attorney Discipline Board, a seven-member panel comprised of five attorneys and two laymen. The board has a broad list of options available including dismissal of the case, increase or decrease of the penalty or approval of the hearing panel's ruling.

The only other recourse following review of the case by the Attorney Discipline Board is with the State Supreme Court.

County 1980 financial picture complete

Charlevoix County and its component parts ended the year with a balance of over $3.3 million.

County Treasurer Anah Potter's figures show that $1,700,000 was held in certificates of deposit, $1,200,000 in investments and $447,000 in checking and savings accounts.

A substantial part of the funds are earmarked for special accounts such as Grandvue Medical Care Facility, Social Services, County Road Commission and the Health Department, according to Mrs. Potter.

Included in the deposited funds is money derived from interest on delinquent property taxes. About the middle of May each year, the county "buys" from the townships, school districts, cities and villages all delinquent property taxes.

The county then charges the delinquent owner 1.25 percent interest per month for the amount of taxes he owes.

The amount of delinquent taxes "purchased" each year has risen steadily since 1972, the first full year of the tax operation.

That year, the county paid $374,434.67 for delinquent taxes. In 1977 the figure rose to $1 million; in 1978 it was $1.2 million and in 1979 it was up to $1.6 million.

Mrs. Potter expects the 1980 figure to pass $2 million.

While collection of delinquent taxes by the county may appear slow, Mrs. Potter points out that eventually almost all of them are paid. To date, 99 percent of 1976 taxes has been collected, as has 98 percent of 1977 taxes, 79 percent of 1978 taxes and 54 percent of 1979 taxes.

'Flash' comes to the Courier!

Over the past few years, it seems, high school students have been getting some bad press.

Various testing agencies and college entrance offices have indicated that, in particular, reading and writing skills are lower in high schools than they should be.

In an effort to dispel that notion locally, the Courier this week introduces a new, regular feature in the paper.

Each month, the Charlevoix High School newspaper, the Crimson Flash, will appear in the Courier. The Flash will include high school news, features, creative writing pieces, photos, cartoons, interviews and opinions among other things.

It will be produced entirely by Charlevoix High School students.

For the students, this project represents an opportunity to expose their talents to a large audience and to learn more about the nuts and bolts of a newspaper operation. Eventually, they will have a hand in page composition, advertising and other aspects of the newspaper production.

For Courier readers, the Flash will be an entertaining and informative addition to the paper. Although a strong attempt is made to cover events at the high school, letting the students tell about it from "the inside" should make our coverage that much more complete.

The first special edition of the Crimson Flash is found on pages 12 and 13 of today's Courier.

Both winners in Basketball Contest had perfect cards

It was bound to happen before the contest ended! This week's winner of the Courier Basketball Contest, Blane Lagerman of Boyne City, had the first entry with no mistakes. Blane guessed the outcome of all ten games correctly and will receive a $10 gift certificate. The win was not that easy, though, since Charles Kavo of Charlevoix also turned in an entry with no wrong guesses! The deadlock was decided by the tiebreaker score total which Lagerman came within one point of guessing. Kavo wins a second place prize of a $5 gift certificate.

Names In The News

THERESA S. LILAK, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Smith of East Jordan, has been promoted in the U.S. Army to the rank of specialist five. Lilak is a physical therapy assistant at Fitzsimmons Army Medical Hospital, Aurora, Colorado.

MARY KEEM and DEE HOADLEY of Charlevoix and PHYLLIS DEKORNE and MARGE BEST of Ellsworth joined 310 other Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers (MAEH) members from across the state at the "Learn and Lead through MAEH" conference January 6 and 7 at the Michigan State Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

The purposes of the conference were to provide the opportunity for members to share program ideas that were successful in their respective counties, to learn effective leadership skills and to develop a long range program plan," Mary Keem, Charlevoix County MAEH Chairperson.

Participants selected two of the eight workshops offered. Workshop sessions covered topics like resolving group conflict, using parliamentary procedure effectively and motivating persons to use their skills and talents in MAEH and other groups.

Six students from Charlevoix are among the nearly 2000 students included on the academic honors list for the recently completed fall quarter at Ferris State College at Big Rapids. They are JAMES C. ALGER, JR., DANIEL L. BOSS, PATRICK F. CAMILLERI, CHRISTINE A. PIDEK, DEBRA SUE POTTER and GREGORY J. WOJAN. To be eligible, a Ferris student must have compiled a 3.25 grade point average in at least 14 quarters of graded work.

paprika on roasting potatoes, she continues, "If you enjoy what you are doing you will have pride in your work and that is one of my goals."

Another of her goals is to work closely with patients and staff so that menus can be modified according to the individual patient's needs as directed by physicians. Her plan includes visiting every patient to obtain a diet history and to get a feel for the patient's appetite and eating schedules.

"I hope to make two or three visits to patients and involve other family members in food preparation, and menu planning for when the patient goes home," she said.

Charlebuis is already involved in patient education through referrals from doctors.

"Diabetics, heart patients, people with hernias or ulcers and alcoholics have certain nutritional needs with which I can help."

Already the Charlevoix Area Hospital menu includes a range of dishes from quiches to beef burgundy and fish a la Scotia. As well as many homemade items – soups, breads, pies – Diane is planning to include Polish, German and French dishes. She is now developing a pediatric menu working with staff and parents. She is also hoping to assist the Obstetrics Department in nutritional counseling for expectant and new mothers.

Very health conscious herself, Diane jogs, takes aerobic dancing, swims, cross country skis and bikes.

She says she is excited to be part of the Charlevoix Area Hospital team, working closely with nursing staff and medical staff to offer nutritious and appealing menus.

Dairy marketing seminar set

Dairying is one of the most important segments of Michigan's agricultural economy, but consumers of dairy products don't always understand how milk is marketed.

Clarifying this sometimes complicated process is the aim of a special milk marketing seminar to be held in this area on Friday, February 6. The session will be at the Ironworks Restaurant in Elk Rapids.

The program, which is intended for farm women as well as non-farm women, will begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. It is sponsored by the Michigan State University Department of Dairy Science and MSU Cooperative Extension Service.

The morning segment of the program features discussion on how milk is currently marketed and the relationship of the consumer to the dairy industry. Speakers for this segment of the program are Glynn McBride, MSU Extension Agricultural Economist, and Necia Sharkey and Bonnie Lynch, of the Michigan division of the American Dairy Association.

The afternoon program has concurrent sessions on new and traditional dairy products, and farm management. The segment on dairy products will be conducted by Mary Zehner, MSU Extension consumer marketing specialist, Gale Baumgardner, MSU dairy specialist, and Marlene Caszatt, area Extension Home Economist. The session on farm management will explain how to develop and understand Profit and Loss, Financial, and Cash Flow Statement to determine a dairy operation's net worth. It will be conducted by Glenn Kolenbrander, MSU District Farm Management and Livestock Agent.

The primary concern in the milk marketing system is to provide the consumer with a fresh and wholesome product. As a result, milk is one of the purest natural foods available over the retail counter.

These sessions will explain how this quality is maintained, the necessary costs – and subsequent prices to consumers – of keeping the dairy producer in business, and the operation of the marketing system.

Reservations must be made by contacting the County Cooperative Extension Service office by February 3. Further information may be obtained by calling 533-8607, extension 31.

Extension workshop will focus on restoring, mending old clothes

This area's Cooperative Extension Service is offering an upcoming workshop to help people turn old, worn-out garments into updated styles.

The ARM (alterations, repair and mending) Clothing Program is designed to teach the basic fundamentals for altering clothing on women and children. Participants will learn specific skills necessary for repair of garments as well as mending and appliqué techniques for extending the wear life of garments for women and children.

Participants will receive 20 hours of instruction and kits for reteaching the techniques they learn.

Those interested are to call the Cooperative Extension Service at 582-6232 for more information. Workshops are scheduled to begin in February.

County to lose two high level employees

Hess to join private firm

By PEG OHLE

John Hess, who has served as Charlevoix County Planner since October, 1977, tendered his resignation to the County Planning Commission last week.

In a letter addressed to Tom Wieland, chairman of the Planning Commission, Hess stated that he had "an outstanding job offer here in the Charlevoix area, and I believe that after twelve years of working for government, it is time I started work in the private sector."

When questioned by the Courier about his future plans, Hess said he would start working as a planner for Site Planning Development, Inc. in April," when his resignation from the county job becomes effective.

Hess' letter to the Planning Commission also expressed some thoughts about future operations of county government:

"The next few years are going to be economically devastating to local governments. We, as planners, should be working hand in glove with the County Board to be as frugal as possible with our tax dollars. Yet, at the same time, we must provide our constituents with competent, and professional service. The new planner and the Planning Commission should press forward with bulk purchasing, capital improvements, energy saving measures in all our buildings, a study into the advantages of hiring a County Controller, solid waste planning, saving agricultural land, and maintaining high water quality in our lakes.

"In regards to the subject of County Controller, county government is a business. Our non-profit business is providing governmental needs and services to our constituents at an economical price. Our budget is $2,345,525. A 2.3 million dollar per year business needs a manager who can carry out the policies and recommendations of the County Board on a day-to-day basis. We have 118 full and part-time people working for the County, with gross wages and fringe benefits exceeding $1,228,569, or over 50 percent of our total budget. The controller could also act as a personnel manager so that we could keep these 118 people producing at peak levels, or if we have to cut services, we could cut in such a manner that we could maintain essential services. I believe in the long haul, the controller would save us more money than what the position would cost."

Hess came to Charlevoix County from Marquette County, where he had served as Assistant Planner. He is a native of Harbor Springs and received bachelor's and master's degrees from Northern Michigan University.

Stockwell moving to Sunbelt

by FRAN MARTIN

Under-Sheriff Byron D. Stockwell, who has been associated with law enforcement in Charlevoix County since 1964, has announced his resignation from the office he now holds effective October 1, 1981.

In his letter of resignation to Sheriff George T. Lasater under whom he has served since January 1, 1976, Stockwell said that he had found it necessary to leave the position to take his wife, Mary, to a warmer climate on the advice of her doctors. He added that he was advising Sheriff Lasater of his decision at this time to give him ample time to seek a successor.

In making the announcement, Stockwell said that it was with regret that he decided to resign.

"I have enjoyed my work with the Sheriff's Department," said Stockwell, "I have also enjoyed my service to the residents of Charlevoix County. I have always found them cooperative in every way. It has been a good association just as working with the fellow employees at the Sheriff's Department has been. Both Mary and I regret having to leave the county but it is necessary for the protection of her health."

Stockwell said that they have tentative plans to move to Arizona which offers a more temperate climate.

Byron Stockwell

Stockwell has been associated with law enforcement in the county since he joined the staff of the Sheriff's Department in October, 1964, under Sheriff Philo Sumner. Later, he served as assistant police chief under Charlevoix City Police Chief Jack Mol from June, 1971 until being named under-sheriff by Lasater.

A native of Lansing and a veteran of service in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II, Stockwell was associated with the Eaton County, Sheriff's Department and Michigan Military District prior to coming to Charlevoix in 1962.

New cars starting to move locally thanks to initiatives by banks, credit union

by LISA AGNELLO

Runaway inflation and high unemployment have many people thinking very negatively about the local economy right now.

But not Charlevoix's lending institutions.

Over the past few week's, several agressive steps have been taken by the local institutions to spark Charlevoix's economy in these uncertain times.

Already, the response has been heavy and the effect felt by some of the community's key businesses.

Much of the action has focused on sagging automobile sales. The First State Bank of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County State Bank and Charlevoix Federal Credit Union are all now offering special low interest auto loans on new car models for qualified borrowers.

The basic idea behind the lowered rates is to generate more business for local automobile dealerships. Car dealers across the country are in the middle of one of the worst sales slumps in recent history and most point to high interest rates as the major cause.

The First State Bank of Charlevoix is offering a 36-month loan for 25 percent down at an interest rate of 13 percent. The loan only applies for new cars purchased from one of the local dealerships.

Bank officials stated that, hopefully, the program will encourage local people to buy cars in Charlevoix as well as draw people from outlying areas into Charlevoix to do business.

No cut off time for the loans has been set by the First State Bank.

Charlevoix County State Bank is featuring a 36-month loan for 25 percent down at an interest rate of 12.75 percent for 1980 or 1981 model cars. These loans are available through February 28.

Charlevoix Federal Credit Union can offer a qualified borrower a 14 percent interest loan with any dealer on a new car. The term of the loan will depend on the amount of the downpayment. Loans will be available until a cutoff date is set.

So far, the response to the initiatives by the banks and credit union has been promising, according to their loan officials.

Car dealers are happy with the special loan programs, too.

Spokesmen for Kusina Motors (Pontiac-AMC), Village Car Care (Chrysler), Erber Auto (Ford-Lincoln-Mercury) and Fochtman (Chevrolet-Buick) all indicated that there has been a noticeable increase in traffic through their showrooms since the new loan programs were announced.

Many also said that, in addition to the local initiatives, the special promotions offered by the manufacturers such as Chrysler, Ford and General Motors are sparking more interest in potential buyers.

The dealers point to positive attitude as one of the major factors in selling cars. The recent incentives offered, both locally and nationally, are doing much, they say, to create such an attitude.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Nutrition seminar planned

Teachers, administrators, media specialists and school food service and health personnel are all invited to increase their awareness of available nutrition education resources and hear an update on consumer nutrition issues at a special workshop in Traverse City on Saturday, February 28.

The day-long conference, co-sponsored by the Dairy Council of Michigan and the Nutrition Education and Training Program, is entitled "Nutrition Education: The Three Rs". It will be held at the Traverse City Holiday Inn from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Steven Singleton, M.A., M.P.H., a sociologist from Ann Arbor, will be the keynote speaker and will discuss "Nutrition, the Consumer and Eating Behavior". After a specially planned nutritious lunch, four coocurrent afternoon sessions will be held, illustrating a diversity of ways in which nutrition education may be integrated into the school setting. Browsing time will be offered at the end of the day for exploring resource materials available.

A $3 registration fee covers lunch and materials. For a registration form, those interested are asked to call Aon Lambrecht at the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District, 946-1260.

Shorthanded crew grateful for mild winter

by PEG OHLE

"It's been a good winter for us weatherwise", Fred Welch, engineer-director of the Charlevoix County Road Commission reports.

And he's glad that the storms have been few and the snowfall light because he's working with a reduced staff and a cut budget.

"If it doesn't get any worse, we'll be all right", he says hopefully of the remainder of the year.

The Road Commission staff is down to 37 employees from the high of 47 in April, 1977, according to Welch. There are 13 men in the Boyne City garage, 11 in the Ironton garage, and two in the Beaver Island garage; there are also four mechanics, one stock clerk, three foremen, and three office workers, all of whom add up to an annual payroll of $244,000.

Last year, the Road Commission received $1,027,208 from gasoline sales taxes and state license plate fees, which went to pay for road maintenance, machine parts, fuel, insurance, and all other expenses, including wages.

Now, Welch has received word that 1981 revenue may be cut 12 to 20 percent. In fact, his February check was 10 percent less than last year's February check, and it is anticipated that the May check may be down as much as 25 percent.

"That's our biggest problem," Welch says, "we don't know how much revenue we will have.

To keep operating costs to a bare minimum, Welch points out that the Road Commission has cut out most overtime, does no weekend snowplowing except in real emergencies and co trunklines for which they are reimbursed, and has scheduled no new resurfacing except that paid for by the townships.

The sales tax on gasoline, the single largest source of Road Commission funds, amounts to 11 cents a gallon, a set figure which is not reflected in the rising price of gasoline. However, the rising price of gasoline is bringing about a decrease in gallon gasoline sales.

After the various state agencies receive their share of the taxes – including public transportation – about 34 percent is left to be shared by the 83 County Road Commissions in the state. It is allocated on the basis of population and road mileage, among other factors.

"We have a good work force," Welch says of his crew, "that is why we are getting along as well as we are."

Welch is also "high" on the members of the Charlevoix County Road Commission – chairman Donald Graham, vice-chairmao John Kujawski, and Robert Stowe.

"They're a hard-working bunch of men and do a lot to help us maintain an efficient operation," he says of them. "They also see that we get good equipment so we can do an efficient job."

One percent of the monies received from the state are snow removal funds. When snow measures over 80 inches during the course of the year, County Road Commissions receive additional snow removal funds. Last year, with a total of 105 inches of snow, Charlevoix County received an additional $68,000 for snow removal.

Welch reports that as of February 1 this year, the Road Commission measured snowfall at 63.5 inches. Last year by February 1 the snowfall was 69.6 inches.

Andrews named vice chairman

The Republican vice-chairmanship of the House Military and Veterans Affairs Committee was added last week to the committee responsibilities of State Representative Steve Andrews (R-Wolverine).

Andrews, a Viet Nam veteran, is currently serving his second term in the State Legislature.

"As a veteran, I naturally have a strong interest in the well being of all our veterans and I predict a busy agenda for this committee," said Andrews.

Other committee assignments for Andrews announced last week included reappointments to the Judiciary and Senior Citizens and Retirement Committees and appointment to the Tourist Industry Relations Committee.

Of his newest appointment, Andrews said, "Tourism is of course very important to the economic health of our area and I'll be looking for ways to encourage and protect this vital industry."

He said that the Judiciary Committee will probably take up another juvenile code reform bill, while the Senior Citizens and Retirement Committee will consider legislation covering pensions and bills to improve the quality of life for Michigan's elderly.

Dr. Harry R. Custer, right, presented a $500 check to Hospital Board member Max Novak last week that had been donated to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for its expansion project by a patient of Custer's from Grand Blanc. James P. Barkman of Grand Blanc, a regular summer visitor to Charlevoix, underwent surgery at the local hospital last summer. Barkman expressed gratitude for his treatment at the hospital saying, in a letter accompanying the donation, "I greatly appreciated the fine care and services rendered by the hospital staff." Said Custer, "This completely unsolicited donation by one of this area's seasonal visitors shows that support for the hospital is coming from not only year-round residents but also summer visitors, many of whom are treated here during their stay."

DNR report bids ill for area rec. programs

Northern Michigan may not continue to be the playground of Michigan if the Recreation Action Program recently suggested by the Recreation Services Division of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is implemented.

An introduction to the Program points out the all-too-familiar facts of life in Michigan in 1981:

"The state's economy is in its worst condition since the Great Depression. State, local, and federal recreation agencies have been forced to cut back on maintenance, programming, facility development, and land acquisition. Many Michigan residents have cut back on recreation spending, and rising fuel prices are changing people's recreation travel patterns. Use has increased greatly at some recreation facilities near population centers and decreased at some remote sites."

In the light of these facts, the Recreation Action Program suggests a southern lower Michigan and urban emphasis for state recreation programs.

There is little question that people are seeking and will continue to seek to satisfy their recreation desires closer to home than in the past. And 'home' for most Michigan residents is the urban areas of southern lower Michigan," the report says.

This statement is followed by descriptions of 21 projects being planned by the DNR in the southern part of the state. They range from the acquisition of 2400 acres of land in Oakland County, to redevelopment of the State Exposition and Fairgrounds in Detroit, to creating a man-made lake in the Ionia State Recreation Area, to constructing fishways over barrier dams in the Grand and St. Joseph Rivers, among other similar projects.

The Recreation Action Program does not totally ignore northern Michigan, however. 'Money will be sought to protect the recreation resources of the outlying areas.' Among projects under consideration are designation of Munising Bay and Thunder Bay as Great Lakes Bottomland Preserves, making grants to local governments to help preserve Great Lakes shoreline resources with recreation value ($40,000 has already been granted to Escanaba), developing 400 miles of designated off-road-vehicle trails on state forest lands, buying a sand dune area site at Sturgeon Bay southwest of the Straits of Mackinac and 800 feet of Lake Michigan shoreline on Grand Traverse Bay adjacent to Traverse City State Park, and constructing sea lamprey barriers on select rivers and streams.

Of course, northern Michigan's present recreational facilities – its parks, campgrounds, fishing sites, etc. – will be kept operating. It's just that they may not be maintained quite as well as in the past and may be used by fewer people.

VFW Auxiliary sets earlier potluck date, reports activities

The Charlevoix V.F.W. Post and its Auxiliary will hold its monthly potluck dinner for members, their families and prospective members at the post home at 6 p.m. Saturday, February 21, a week earlier than usual. Mrs. Clarence Goldstick, Auxiliary president announced at a recent meeting.

She also announced that the next meting of the Auxiliary will be held at her home at 8 p.m. March 5. The recent meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Russell.

Mrs. Goldstick reported that at the recent potluck dinner, Chaplain Joseph Seidel offered a prayer of thanks for the safe return of the hostages and for the hopeful return of all servicemen listed as missing in action or prisoners of war in Vietnam. She said the 52 yellow ribbons on the tree at the post home would remain there.

At the Auxiliary meeting, members voted to pay their district dues. Mrs. Kenneth Staley rported that $225 had been redeemed from Glen's Market slips and contributed to the Auxiliary's Cancer Fund.

She asked that members continue to keep the slips for this purpose. It was also noted that the local Auxiliary was the third highest in District 13 in monies contributed to various organizations during 1980.

The building committee, Mrs. Goldstick, Mrs. Donald White and Mrs. Jack Warner, were authorized to purchase equipment for the kitchen.

It was also decided to dispense with the monthly cookie cook-off and solicit cookies for the concession booth from members. Those wishing to contribute cookies are asked to contact Mrs. Goldstick, Mrs. Clement Olach and Mrs. Staley are in charge of the concession booth at the weekly bingo parties. She also thanked those who had assisted with the project.

Moerland elected

Lee Moerland, right, of Charlevoix, was recently elected chairman of the Northwest Michigan Manpower Consortium Administrative Board. Moerland's new post was announced at the January 29 organizational meeting of the board. The Administrative Board is responsible for administering $13.4 million in CETA funds in ten Northwest Michigan counties. Elected vice chairman at the meeting was Cecil Edgecomb, representative of Grand Traverse County.

Bill Martin, Jr., above, will be the featured speaker at the annual Northern Michigan Reading Inservice Night at Harbor Springs Middle School-High School gym on Thursday, February 26. Martin is the author of many publications on reading education such as "Sounds of Language", the "Owl Books", "Instant Readers", "Freedom Books" and "The Human Connection." He is considered to be an outstanding lecturer and teacher as well as a good story teller. The day's events include exhibits and bookmen at 4 p.m., dinner at 5:30 p.m. and Martin's talk at 7 p.m. All area teachers are invited as is the public.

Knight on the Town

You tell me your troubles...

I was pausing between news stories at the Townhouse on a recent evening, mesmorized by a droning Kenny Rogers on the juke box, when a stranger came in and took the stool next to mine.

He wore the uniform of the self-assured skier; down-filled, fur-trimmed and color coordinated to the zipper tassels on his apre ski boots. But the glass of beer and shot of Wild Turkey placed before him disappeared too quickly for a man totally at peace.

Forty-five, forty-seven, I guessed. Too old to be dressed like a Park Falls' brochure. His shadowed face looked even older as he stared unseeing at the idle glass washer behind the bar.

"Nice day on the slopes?" I asked as his second round arrived.

"Guess so," he mumbled, still staring blankly.

"Where'd you ski?"

"I dunno...Boyne something...can't remember which one."

Glad I'd been less nosy and more respectful, I probably wouldn't have continued the conversation because the poor fellow obviously wanted to drink much more than he wanted to talk. But I persisted.

"Staying in town?"

"Some motel."

"Nice to come up here and get away, huh?"

He looked at me for a moment and turned back to the glass washer.

"You don't know," he said. "You have no way of knowing."

He downed another Wild Turkey, took a deep breath and slowly shook his head. "Gotta drive back tommorrow and I can't do it. I don't want to go back to work. I don't want to face it. There's nothing there I want to get back to. I want to stay here."

He spoke slowly, softly. I believed him.

But, I thought as half his beer disappeared in one swallow, this person is going to be in a bad way soon. His wife and kids are probably back at the motel watching TV and waiting. I'd better keep him awake, keep him talking.

"It's not all that great up here, you know," I said unconvincingly. "Awful darn quiet, in fact, most of the time. You would miss the action of the city before too long. You'd get bored."

"Action?" he said, "Like fighting traffic every morning on the way to the office and having a rematch in the afternoon? Like having lunch from a deli every day where you either eat fast or get wrapped up in the tablecloth and thrown out with the bread heels? Like standing for an hour in a line a block long for a movie and finally getting a seat next to a transvestite?"

"Yeah," he sneered, "I'd miss that action a lot."

Ready about, I thought, time for another tack.

"A lot of people up north here aren't getting by all too well these days," I said, "Economy and all, you know. Business is crummy and everyone's depressed about how much worse it's supposed to get."

"You think it's any better where I come from?" he said. "Three guys in our department were told to clean out their desks last week. Right now they're sitting at home waiting for bowling night. Nothing else to do."

"Unemployment, yeah. Bunch of guys were just in here who got laid off last month from one of the local factories," I said picking up on the subject, "You should have seen the string of perch they showed me out in their car. And one monster northern. Said they were chasing up-ups all day."

My sullen friend winced. Had I said something wrong? He rested his forehead on his arms folded upon the bar. He's slipping, I thought, better not quit now.

"Just think, if you lived up here, the family would want to ski every weekend during the winter and want to get a sailboat for the summer. You'd have to mortgage the house to pay for it all."

"You got that right," he said raising his head back up, "Between the kids at the snack counter and the wife in the ski shop, I may have spent more today than King Khaled at a Tiffany's close-out."

I could tell I had gotten him thinking as gradually his eyes cleared somewhat and he seemed to come around. He straightened up, left a dollar on the bar and hauled himself off the stool. Just before walking out, he turned to me.

"Guess home isn't so bad after all. Didn't know what you people were up against up here. Thanks, buddy." And with that he was gone.

Back to the traffic. Back to the rat race. Back to work in the city. Back to the roller rinks and fast food strips. Back to the heavy air and strange tasting water.

What had I done?

I ordered a beer and a shot of Wild Turkey and contemplated the glass washer as Kenny Rogers wailed on in the background.

It won't be easy

Did you hear President Reagan's "economic calamity" speech last Thursday night?

I fortified myself with a cup of instant coffee so I wouldn't fall asleep, as I sometimes do during political diatribes, but the coffee was unnecessary. In fact, Reagan's frank discussion of the nation's economic problems kept me awake half the night.

He purposely avoided the specifics of his economic program in order to better define the broad parameters of the problem, which he managed to do in nuts-and-bolts language that no one could fail to understand.

The speech fell short of the grand oratory we used to expect from Franklin Roosevelt and John Kennedy, but it was a remarkable speech — if only for its simplicity.

For one thing, Reagan made you glad you aren't in his shoes — because he is going to be on the firing line for the next four years.

The proposals that he will make to Congress next week to rescue the nation from the jaws of inflation, inefficiency, profligate government spending and ubiquitous government control will not be popular with anyone.

He didn't say so in so many words, but he left the impression that unless drastic measures are taken now, time is indeed running out for the free enterprise system.

Reagan, of course, is gung-ho for laissez-faire economics, but he believes American business cannot survive the restraints — and the obligations — placed upon it by big government.

No one can say for sure at this point just what Reagan has in mind, but you can be sure that unwarranted government regulation of business will be one of his first targets, right up there with unbridled government spending.

And when you talk about reducing either government regulation and government spending, you are taking about reducing the number of government jobs and this is where Reagan — and Congress — are going to encounter the most difficulty in rebuilding the American economy.

The pressure to maintain the status quo — from lobbyists, from unions, from consumer groups, from the professions, from activists of every stripe — is going to be fearsome, to say the very least.

Every branch of government, every department, every office, every bureau and sub-bureau has its own cheering section and you can be sure they will not take lightly any attempt to tamper with their numbers, their functions or their budgets.

If Reagan is able to follow through on his objectives, the country is going to find many high-paid federal employees either drawing public assistance or working in other federal jobs several salary grades below their present levels.

Reagan is not going to be a very popular president while the belt-tightening is in progress. But if he can pull it off, he will emerge a national hero of the first water.

WASN'T IT NICE to wake up to the sound of snow plows Sunday morning? The crews did such a fine job no one had a good excuse for missing church.

Out of the Blue

No job belittles dignity;
None justifies conceit--
Whom kings bow down in homage to,
Washed his apostles' feet.

Letters: Love Carefully

To the Editor:

If the message of the February 14 observance of Love Carefully Day can be put in a simple equation, it is this: One pregnant teenager often equals two troubled kids.

Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood is celebrating Love Carefully Day to call attention to the epidemic proportion of teenage pregnancy in America. Each year, one million teenagers become pregnant - that's one out of every ten adolescents.

Of that number, 600,000 actually give birth, 300,000 have abortions and 100,000 have miscarriages.

In Charlevoix County, there were 43 births to women 10-19 years old. The economic, social, physical and mental health hardships borne by those youths who bear children are enormous. Similarly, we cannot underestimate the anxiety and stresses experienced by those who chose to terminate their pregnancies.

Repercussions of adolescent pregnancies include higher risks of death, illness and injury not only for the adolescent giving birth but for the infant as well.

Because many young mothers never complete high school and the majority have no work experience, adolescent mothers are doubly disadvantaged in competing for jobs. In fact, teenage mothers are more likely to be unemployed and to receive welfare than mothers who postpone childbearing until their 20's.

In addition, those teenagers who marry under the pressure of pregnancy are two or three times more likely to break up, compared with those who marry in their 20's. Further, those teenage couples are more likely to be economically disadvantaged in terms of occupation, income and assets than are older couples of similar socio-economic status.

With increasing teenage sexual experimentation - now involving almost seven million men and four million women between the ages of 15 and 19, and about one fifth of the eight million 13-14 year-olds - we can no longer ignore the problem.

Sex education is critical to helping adolescents make choices about their sexual activity and parenthood. Yet, most teenagers, at risk of unwanted pregnancy, are receiving neither the education nor the family planning services they so desparately need.

It is sexual and contraceptive ignorance, not knowledge, that is the catalyst for inappropriate sexual behavior. Let's let our children grow to adulthood without the added burden of children of their own.

Where are you, Art?

by Eric Larson

Art Linkletter once hosted a daily afternoon program on CBS-TV; it was called "House Party". A typical show included Gizelle MacKenzie's singing, Dr. Joyce Brother's advice and Linkletter's jokes.

Art would end the half-hour by interviewing four elementary school students. He asked probing questions of the cherubs on life, love, and whatever else would evoke audience laughter.

Linkletter even wrote a best-seller, based on the youngsters' comments aptly titled "Kids Say the Darndest Things."

Now, twenty years later, as the father of a four year-old, I am the first to defend that theory.

The other night, as we gathered at the dinner table for our evening meal, the family conversation went something like this:

"Daddy, don't give me any slime beans."

"They're mixed vegetables, Erica."

"Yes, but I don't like those slime beans."

My wife Kathi and I finally concluded that slime beans were actually lima beans as Erica stubbornly lined the flat, green beans neatly on one side of her plastic plate.

"Kitty will eat them," I added quickly, not wanting to disrupt the peaceful dinner hour.

A few minutes later...

"Daddy, when will I die?"

"When you get very old, Erica."

"Oh."

(Pause.)

"Daddy, when will you die?"

"When I get very old, if I'm lucky. Eat your dinner."

"Oh."

Trying to change the subject, I passed the mixed vegetables to Erica.

"I don't like the slime beans, remember?"

"That's right, I forgot."

(Pause.)

"When will Kitty die?"

"When she gets hit by a Mack truck," I blurted without thinking. "Now eat your vegetables!"

"What truck?"

"I'm only kidding, Erica."

"Mommy, why did Daddy say when she gets hit by a truck?"

"He didn't mean it, honey," reassured Kathi, as she glared at me across the lima beans.

"Daddy, you're mean!"

"I know, I know...What did you do in school today?" (I really blew it this time, I thought.)

"I worked on the letters."

"Oh, that's nice." I fumbled with my fork.

(Pause.)

"Do slime beans die, too?"

"Yes, Erica, slime beans live and slime beans die but they never get run over by Mack trucks."

"Huh?"

"What's for dessert?" I asked with a sigh.

Mr. Linkletter, where were you when I needed you?

Plans parenting presentation

by ANNE KELLY

Jan Ready, R.N., uses the "teaching loop" to instruct her three year-old son Christopher on block building. It is one of the techniques she will cover in her program to be presented in Charlevoix this week.

Janet Ready, a former childbirth instructor for the Charlevoix Area Hospital, will present a videotape on parenting Wednesday, February 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Char-Em Intermediate District office board room on Mercer Blvd.

She invites all those interested in parenting and communicating with the very young child.

On Thursday, February 12 at 9:30 a.m., the same presentation will be made to the Char-Em Intermediate District's Alternative Education program which is located at St. Matthew's Church in Boyne City. The showing is open to pregnant teens in the program and their families.

Ready, a registered nurse, wrote and directed the one-hour film. It features parents bottle feeding a two-month old infant, bathing a four month-old, spoon feeding a seven month-old, breast feeding an eight month-old, changing the diaper of a one year-old and teaching a one year-old.

Ready, the mother of four sons, lived in Charlevoix from 1970 to 1977. She has been certified by the Michigan Department of Mental Health to assess parent-infant interactions. She is employed by Northwest Michigan Child Guidance Program through its teenage parent program.

Ready also teaches LaMaze classes for teenage and single women in Grand Traverse, Antrim, Kalkaska, Leelanau and Benzie counties. She works closely with Traverse City counseling agencies and the Traverse City Continuing Education Program.

While living in Charlevoix, she organized and taught the first childbirth preparation classes sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Women's Guild. She taught the classes from 1974 until moving to Traverse City in 1977.

"No one has the perfect parenting method, but we can learn much from infants whose physical reactions and expressions are a language we can learn to understand," she says. "I hope to offer help to new parents learning to understand and respond to the new infant-stranger. The goal is to relax and enjoy our babies as we help them grow."

Band students bring home four firsts

Four of Charlevoix High School's six entries in the District II MSBOA Solo and Ensemble Festival at Traverse City Saturday earned First Division ratings.

Band Director Terry Isenbarger announced.

The remaining two received Second Division ratings.

Taking top ratings and qualifying for participation in the State Festival at Cheboygan in March were Mary Plagge who played a flute solo; David Staublin, trombone solo; William Horton, trumpet solo; and Karen Mayhew, alto sax solo.

Eric Hoffman, who played a tenor sax solo and the clarinet quartet of Randy Schnackenberg, Tim Shupert, Brenda Newton and Kelly Drost received Second Division ratings.

Steve Stargardt, accompanist, and Isenbarger accompanied the group to the festival held at Traverse City St. Francis high school.

This unusually attired band of cross country skiers turned out Saturday for the Great Wooden Ski Rally held at the Windmill Farms Ski Touring Center. Along with their wooden skis, participants wore various traditional skiing outfits to go along with the old-time theme. Events at the rally included one-leg ski races, tandem skiing and a triathalon.

Human Support seminars offered at NMH

Northern Michigan Hospitals will offer its third series of Human Support Seminars to aid any community members in dealing with life crisis situations.

This year's sessions will start Wednesday, February 11, and are scheduled from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. on each of six consecutive Wednesdays through March 18. The afternoon schedule is timed to allow people with children in school, afternoon shift employees and the elderly to attend.

Sessions will be held in the Westminster Room of the Presbyterian Church at 317 E. Mitchell Street in Petoskey.

A major focus of the seminar centers on the crises of death and dying from both the patient and family perspectives but sessions go beyond these to other stressful events that can occur in a patient's life such as loss of limbs, organs or roles.

"In the past we were always aware of the physical conditions under which people died," said Mrs. Amelia Barbus, assistant vice president for patient services at NMH. "But we seem to have been less concerned with other conditions such as the extent of personal communication of the dying with others, comforting of relatives and even financial planning for survivors."

A core group for the Human Support Group was formed two years ago, with the dual goals of becoming competent and comfortable working with people who have experienced loss or are themselves dying, and also becoming resource people for others either through personal contact or by furthering education opportunities.

The series of seminars is a direct outgrowth of the core group and will feature a faculty of group members who have completed their training and wish to help others.

"We all came together with a need to share something with others," said core group member Shelly Igrisan, R.N., "and it has helped all of us to help others."

According to Ms. Barbus, forming a bank of such resource people for the hospital as well as the community is a major aim of the group.

"We have become very supportive of each other as we discuss the experiences we have with dying patients. It is important to be able to share such experiences, not only for educational reasons which benefit others, but because it is vital to the mental health of the person offering the service," adds Ms. Barbus. "Now we are expanding in order to prepare more members to be such resources to their patients, to friends and to family."

In order to promote a sharing of attitudes, insights and approaches for care, membership for each group will not exceed 12.

Those persons interested in joining the Human Support Seminar series may contact Vicki Patterson, R.N. at 348-4013 for registration. The only cost for the series is $2.50 for the series workbook. There is no registration.

Weddings

Rice-Alger

Cheryl L. Rice of Saginaw became the bride of Robert W. Alger on Saturday, January 24, at St. Christopher's Church in Bridgeport.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rice of Saginaw, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Alger of Charlevoix. He makes his home in Big Rapids.

The Reverend James Gavit officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

Jill Bell of Muskegon served the bride as honor attendant, and Renay Cocking of Detroit and Diane Christiansen of Marquette served her as bridesmaids.

Gary Notovny was the bridegroom's honor attendant, while his brother, Jim, and Jim Marsh served as groomsmen. Tom Meggison, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Steve and Dave Rice, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

A reception at the G.B.U. Hall in Bridgeport followed the wedding ceremony, after which the newlyweds left for a wedding trip through northern Michigan.

Maybe Wilderness is the reason you celebrate Washington's birthday with pie.

We cannot tell a lie. The just picked flavor of Wilderness Cherry Fruit Filling (like all our fruit fillings) is simply uncanny. That's why a cherry pie made with Wilderness is simply delicious. Just follow your favorite recipe, and you'll see what we mean. Even George never had it so good.

Dave Buday goes in for a layup against Kalkaska.

Inspired Rayders upset Grayling

Two big wins last week, including one over a second place Grayling team, boosted the Charlevoix Rayder cage squad to 5-5 in Michigan-Huron Shores action and 8-5 overall.

Hosting Kalkaska in a non-conference game Tuesday, the Rayders overwhelmed their opponents behind a 22-point performance by Jeff Drury. Charlevoix was never threatened as they opened a 25-10 lead in the first quarter.

The margin was increased to 46-26 by halftime and 67-40 at the end of the third quarter.

Charlevoix dominated statistically as well with 32 field goals recorded compared to 15 by Kalkaska. The Rayders were 14 of 24 from the free throw line while Kalkaska was 20 for 29.

Dave Buday was the only other Rayder player to hit double figures in individual scoring with 13. Doug Spencer led Kalkaska with 19 points.

The Rayder junior varsity squad added another victory to their record also with a 52-43 win over their Kalkaska counterparts.

Chris Putman contributed a game-high 22 points to the victory and Georg Smith had 14 for the local team.

Charlevoix built upon a slim lead of 16-14 at the end of the first quarter to take a 34-23 lead at the half. They still led 40-35 by the end of three quarters of play enroute to the 52-43 final score.

The season's biggest offensive explosion coupled with an effective defense helped Charlevoix upset Grayling Friday when the Rayders returned to conference action on the Grayling home floor.

Five Rayder players hit double figures in individual scoring in the offensive flurry including Jeff Drury with 23, Dave Buday with 22, Craig Klooster with 18, Gary Drury with 12 and Paul Hoffman with 11.

Thirty of the Rayders' 92 points came from the free throw line where Charlevoix shot as accurately as they have all year. The 30 free throws came on 38 attempts for a red-hot 79 percent. Their accuracy from the field was also admirable as they canned 31 of 52 shots for a 60 percent clip.

Grayling statistics were rather anemic as they hit only 29 of 74 shots from the floor for 39 percent and gathered only 23 rebounds, six offensively, as compared to 34 total rebounds by Charlevoix.

The only area in which Grayling excelled was in free throw shooting. They hit 28 of 31 tries for an incredible 90 percent.

It was not enough to stem the Charlevoix tide, however, which saw the Rayders jump immediately to a 20-17 lead by the end of the first quarter. By halftime, the Rayders led 44-35.

In the second half, the Rayders picked up where they left off and stormed to a 67-57 margin at the end of three quarters.

The Rayders scored 20 points or more in each of the four quarters while holding Grayling to under 20 in the first two quarters.

Charlevoix junior varsity players also came away with a victory as they topped the Grayling JVs 54-45.

Three players had especially good nights individually for Charlevoix including Chris Putman with 17 points, and Tim LaBlance and George Smith with fifteen each.

This week, Charlevoix faces its biggest test of this part of its schedule as league-leading Petoskey visits the Rayder home court for a rematch Tuesday. In their earlier tilt with Charlevoix, the Northmen eked out a one-point victory. On Friday, Winter Homecoming day at Charlevoix High School, the Rayders host Rogers City.

Game times for both Tuesday and Friday are 6:30 p.m. for junior varsity and 8 p.m. for varsity.

Gregg Whitley stalks his opponent.

Wrestlers sixth in conference meet

The Charlevoix Rayder matmen finished in sixth place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet held at Rogers City Saturday, Coach Greg Bryan reports.

Placing among those who received medals for their accomplishments were Ken Wojan, heavyweight, who defeated Solomonson of Grayling to take first place; Scott Golovich, at 180, who lost to Rich Brown of St. Ignace, said to be the finest in his class in this area, to place second and Allan Bergmann (155) and Gregg Whitley (145) who came in third in their respective weight classes.

Charlevoix will travel to Onaway Wednesday for their last scheduled match of the season and to Pine River Saturday to participate in the Class C District Tournament.

The wrestling team dropped two dual meets last week, the first to Kalkaska by a 29-30 score and the second to a strong St. Ignace squad, 50-14.

In the Kalkaska meet winners included Jim Herriman (98) by a pin over Mike Valdez; Greg Andrick (119) by forfeit; Gregg Whitley (145) won by forfeit; Scott Golovich (185) pinned Brian Brouwer and Ken Wojan (198), won by a pin over Mark Fairbotham.

Winners in the St. Ignace meet were Tim Bruce (138) who won a 9-7 decision over Chris Dekyser, Alan Bergmann (155), who pinned Bill Pemble and Ken Wojan (Hwt) won won a 14-0 decision over Jerome Keviet.

Sports Boosters plan dance for video equipment purchase

The Charlevoix Sports Boosters are in the midst of a fund-raising project to purchase a video cassette camera, recorder and tuner plus a color television set to show the film on.

Dr. Don Trimper, president of the booster organization, said the equipment had been purchased and is in use. The proceeds from the chili suppers sponsored recently by the boosters were applied to the cost of the purchase he said.

Another event, an old fashioned hoedown featuring Jasper and His Tag-alongs, including refreshments, hors d'oeurves and a buffet dinner from 8 until 9 p.m. will be staged at the V.F.W. post home Saturday, Feb. 28. Western dress is suggested but not neccessary.

Tickets for the event will be $12 per couple in advance sales and $14 at the door.

All proceeds from events sponsored by the Boosters are used to support some phase of the Rayder athletic program. The press box and storage area for sports equipment constructed and placed in use last fall was among the major projects financed by the Boosters last year.

The Sports Banquet in the spring, plaques and some equipment are among other items financed by the Boosters.

Dr. Trimper said the group also supports a matching fund program whereby the group needing assistance raises funds and the Sports Boosters match the amount. The baseball team now has warmup jackets and the cheerleaders new uniforms under this program.

"We supplement what the school supplies in the way of athletic programs," said Trimper, "For instance, on a long road trip we underwrite the cost of a lunch for the team following the game; we try to supply the equipment like the camera and related equipment that are important to the program. Because we support all programs and in this way help a great many young people, we would appreciate the community's support."

Volleyball team drops two

The Charlevoix Rayder volleyball team ropped a doubleheader to Rogers City Wednesday night to give the team a 4 wins-4 losses record in Michigan-Huron Shores play.

This week Charlevoix will host St. Ignace on Wednesday.

In their games with Rogers City played on the latter's floor, Charlevoix lost the first match 7-15, 15-6, 2-15 and their second by similar scores of 7-15, 15-17, 8-15.

Teresa Noirot and Margo Smith were the top servers in the first series, Doretta Anderson the top spiker and Brenda Buchanan on defense while in the second series Noirot was both top server and defensive player and Buchanan the top spiker.

Rogers City also won the JV match by scores of 5-15, 10-15, 15-13. Treasure Drost was named outstanding server; Laura Henry and Mary Ellen Cluk, top spikers and Cluk best defense.

Freshmen win one, lose one

The Charlevoix freshman basketball team split its two games last week, winning over Boyne City 49-48 and dropping the second to Harbor Springs by a score of 44-43.

The team will be at Central Lake Monday.

In their game at Boyne City, the young Rayders took an early lead and were in front of the Ramblers 19-9, 22-13 and 43-31 at the quarters. With Coach Chuck Wright using his entire bench, a total of 18 players, the Ramblers pulled within three points at the buzzer.

Bill Tillen was top scorer for the Rayders with 12 points. Dan Buday had 10

Jeff Gabus paced the scoring with 20 points followed by Mitch Kruzel for the Ramblers.

At Harbor Springs, the Rams edged to an 8-7 lead over Charlevoix before increasing it to 26-19 at the half and 40-31 going into the final period where the Rayders outscored them 12-4 to cut the winning margin to one point.

Tillen with 13 points and Wayne Bergmann with 10 were the Rayders' top scorers. Clancy had 14 and Antilles 10 for the Rama.

The Charlevoix freshmen now have a 3-6 record. The team will play its final game of the season against St. Ignace here on Feb. 19

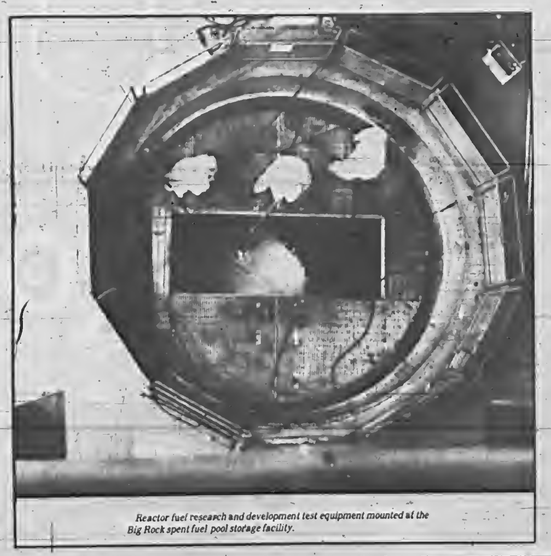
A technician from Exxon Nuclear Corporation, fuel vendor for Big Rock, works on some research and development on spent fuel rods. The machinery shown is the electric read-out equipment used to take profilometry measurements of the fuel rods as well as to study use of th eddy current technique to evaluate fuel rod cladding material integrity.

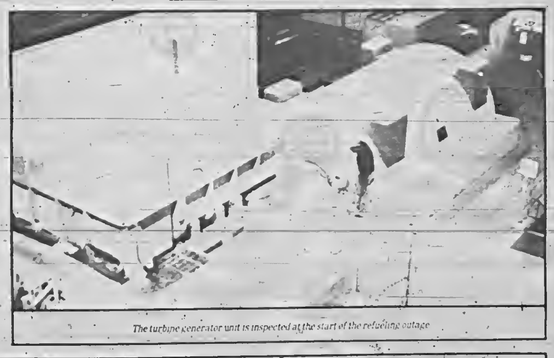
Scenes from refueling at Big Rock



Reactor fuel research and development test equipment mounted at the Big Rock spent fuel pool storage facility.

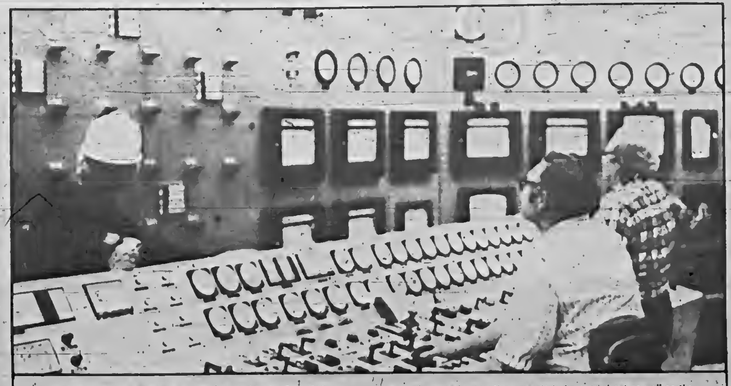
The huge container shown above being maneuvered by the plant's overhead crane system is a special transfer cask in which reactor fuel is transferred from the core to the spent fuel storage pool.

Last Wednesday at about 2:30 p.m. the Consumers Power Big Rock nuclear plant came back on line after a three month shutdown for refueling. Other activites conducted during the refueling shutdown included operational surveillance tests on plant systems and components; preventive maintenance; inservice inspection of all piping, welding and pressure boundaries and backflitting of the plant to meet current Nuclear Regulatory Commission requirements. The shut down was the nineteenth in Big Rock's history. (Photos courtesy of Consumers Power Company.)



The turbine generator unit is inspected at the start of the refueling outage.

Manipulations of reactor core hardware during reactor refueling activities.



Refueling activities at Big Rock were initiated in the Control Room where, above, the licensed operator inserts control rods. By inserting the rods, the plant is shut down in preparation for the various maintenance, surveillance and renovation projects to be carried out as well as the actual refueling procedure.

CHS Counselor talks about college financial aid

by LAURA COEN

Students at Charlevoix High School, as well as many other schools, are uncertain about their futures. College costs and unemployment have risen at such alarming rates that students and parents find it hard to cope. Financial aid is available to low or even middle income families wishing to put their high school senior through college. America's education system is known as an equal opportunity, allowing, all eligible students, to get a higher education. Information about available funds is easily obtainable from colleges or through high school counseling centers. To learn more about state and federal aid available, the Flash recently talked with Charlevoix High School counselor Gayle Kaszynski.

High School Counselor Gayle Kaszynski

FLASH: Are you aware of the rising college costs and the stress it is putting on both parents and students?

KASZYNSKI: Yes, we are aware of the stress put on both parents and students. College costs are going in only one direction - up, and up still another ten percent in 1981. The inevitable result will be that more people will be seeking financial aid. Paying for college is probably the second largest expenditure any family will make - buying a house is first.

FLASH: Do you have an estimate on the number of students who have applied for financial help when sending in their college information?

KASZYNSKI: Close to 90 percent of all college applications filed through our office have filed for financial aid.

FLASH: How do you think we can make the students and parents aware of available financial aid?

KASZYNSKI: A very small percent are unaware of financial programs. The news media have brought loans and scholarships to the public attention. Locally, the counselors have made available a workshop on financial aid. This was advertised in newspapers and radio stations throughout the county. Other area schools are offering the same type of workshops. Anyone interested in seeking help for themselves or their son or daughter should stop check with their local banker, the high school counseling office and the financial aid office of the college involved.

Homecoming plans are made, royalty named

by COLLEEN SMITH and BONNIE JOHNSON

Winter Homecoming festivities at Charlevoix High School begin February 10 with hall decorations and the game against Rogers City on Friday, February 13.

Following the game is the dance at the high school cafeteria from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

This year's Homecoming court candidates are Pam Lamoreaux, Lisa Sandahl, Angie Spieles, Cindy Trimper and Terri Wojan for the Queen and Jeff Drury, Paul Hoffman, Frank Kaufman, Lew Kline and Rick Rajewski for the King.

The student council and the cheerleaders are sponsoring the activities and the cheerleaders are responsible for selecting the band, the name of which is unkown at this time.

There will be no ice sculptures this year due to weather but there will still be hall decorations. The main hall in the school will be decorated. This year's theme is nursery rhymes.

Freshmen will decorate the hall February 10; Sophomores, February 11; Juniors, February 12 and Seniors, February 13. The decorations will be judged by three teachers.

Last year's Winter Homecoming Queen, Brenda Klooster and King Kurt Williams will hopefully be present to crown the successors.

Curtains go up on 'Feiffer's People'

by KATIE CLOCK

On January 30, the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts class traveled to Saginaw to participate in the District one-act play competition under the direction of Mrs. Connie Ford.

Their play, "Feiffer's People", is a collection of skits poking fun at human idiosyncrasies.

As of this writing, they are uncertain if they will participate in the Regionals February 14.

The main characters are Bernard, played by David Buday; Huey, portrayed by Gary Carson; and the Dancers played by Janine Browe and Kathy Pidek. Jim Boggs and Bob Best do the musical effects besides acting. Rick Rajewski and Larry Reising handle the spotlights. Mike Ford mans the light board.

The experienced members of the class play several roles in the production. Eventually the play will be performed for the general public.

Winter Challenge

by LAURA COEN

As the last leaves of Fall tumbled lifelessly to the barren earth, life prepared for Winter. Plants that had once flourished and brought beauty to the world now shivered in the increasingly cold air of Fall. Flowers that had once blossomed with life and creativity brushed the dying grass in wisps of wind that tormented their bodies. Morning light paled with the changing seasons.

Sounds that had cheered the morning sky had long since left with the warm weather. Plants relinquished their skeletal remains to the ground with the falling snow. The wind whipped them against the beaten soil. Snow fell in steady streams of forgotten dreams and cherished memories. Tall weeds stood alone against the pale sky, gently swaying back and forth.

The plants lost to Winter with the passing days.

They poked above the crisp snow, their life faded weeks before: They had approached Winter with readiness. They had sprinkled their tiny budding children gently over the flowing wind. Their scented petals had brushed against many a passing wind.

The plants had prepared for Winter throughout the long Summer. Their great blossoms had filled the meadows and fields with endless beauty and vitality. They had brightened many rainy days and lifted many lonely spirits. Winter had come taking away their spirits but their achievements still rested in the frozen soil, waiting for Spring.

As the last of Winter melted away into growing puddles, the barren land came to life once more. The memories of the plants had not been forgotten. Their children grew anxiously, looking ahead for reassurance of the future. The flowers of the year before ceased to bloom but their gentleness is still felt through passing generations.

The wind stopped blowing and the air had a peaceful calm. The long arm of death had extended, picking up the remaining spirits on Winter's edge and depositing them in a blossoming meadow of happiness.

Peace was found. Peace at last.

Wave of the future comes to CHS with computer course

by KATIE CLOCK

Computers are the wave of the future and now students at Charlevoix High School are getting a chance to learn how they function.

Computer Science, taught by Ken Bartley, is a new course this school year and offers an unusual challenge to the students.

Six people are taking the course in a classroom situation. Eight more are studying computers independently.

Bartley is also directing a computer class for adults on Wednesday nights.

The computers that the students use are the TRS-80 Microcomputers made by Radio Shack. The computer has a television-like screen to display data. A key board allows access to the computer's "memory".

A tape recorder enables the programmer to use different types of software (programs which are a set of "blueprints" telling the coputer what to do.)

Each student has chosen a computer program project that is of special interest to him or her. Scott Kelly, a junior, is writing a program to record basketball statistics.

Randy Schnackenberg is working on an intricate "Space Invaders" program using graphics. Bill Horton is writing a program to play Yahtzee, a popular game played with dice.

Martha Staley is working on a program designed to test a student's ability in math.

Said Bartley, "The study of computers is one of the most pertinent classes offered at Charlevoix High School because of the place computers hold in our world today and will hold in the future."

Jim Crinnion brings 'free style' to ski slopes

by LINDA BOOCHER

Frequently people have hidden talents or abilities that others are unaware of. One such person is Jim Crinnion who has excelled in freestyle skiing, a form of ballet done on skis.

Jim has been skiing since he was four years old; he is currently a junior at Charlevoix High School.

He started competing two years ago and his only real lessons were last summer at a ballet skiing camp in Gatlinburg, Tennessee. Of all the freestyle movements, Jim says he enjoys most the challenge of inverted aerials which are the most difficult. Due to insurance problems, they are illegal in competition.

At the end of last year's season, Jim had accumulated a third place and two first place finishes in four Midwestern meets. This year Jim is shooting for the Midwestern Championships and then, hopefully, he will qualify for the National Championships.

When asked about his future plans, Jim replied, "I hope to make the national team next year but it will take a lot of time and hard work."

The freestylists are hoping to have freestyle competition in the 1988 Winter Olympics where an official World Championships will be held.

Not everyone is familiar with this type of skiing and freestylists are hoping that this will increase interest in the sport.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

FEBRUARY 2, 1981 8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernew presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Wood, Muma, Block, Porter, Timms, and Roloff. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the January 19, 1981 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Ed Gregory, Executive Director of the City Housing Commission, reported on the admissions policy for the City's Senior Citizen Housing Project. He also reported on possible financial problems with the project and stated that the Commission may have to come to the City for additional funds. The City Manager suggested that the Commission submit periodic reports to the Council to keep them abreast of the financial situation.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Porter:

RESOLUTION 81-2-1

WHEREAS, the City Council by a resolution duly adopted November 17, 1980 Authorized the issuance of $460,000 General Obligation Water Bonds, and

WHEREAS, due to favorable construction bids it is deemed necessary to reduce the amount of said bonds

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

Sections 1, 5, 8, and 7 of the aforesaid resolution adopted November 17, 1980 be and are hereby amended to read as follows:

1. Bonds of the issuer designated GENERAL OBLIGATION WATER BONDS be issued in the aggregate principal sum of Four Hundred Ten Thousand Dollars ($410,000) for the purpose of paying the cost of the above-described project. Said issue shall consist of eighty two (82) bonds of the denomination of $5,000 each, numbered consecutively in direct order of maturity from 1 upwards, dated as of February 1, 1981. The bonds shall bear interest, mature, be redeemable and be payable at the same and in the manner set forth in Sections 5 and 8 hereof.

5. The said Bonds and coupons shall be in substantially the following form:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
STATE OF MICHIGAN
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
GENERAL OBLIGATION WATER BOND

No. $5,000

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that the CITY OF CHARLEVOIX, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan (the "Issuer"), acknowledges itself to owe and, for value received, hereby promises to pay to the bearer hereof the sum of lawful money of the United States of America, on the first day of October, A.D. 19..[ ], with interest thereon from the date hereof until paid at the rate of ..... percent (.....%) per annum, payable on October 1, 1981, and semiannually thereafter on the first day of April and October of each year, upon presentation and surrender of the proper interest coupons hereto attached as they severally become due. Both principal of and interest on this bond are hereby made payable at the principal office of ....., and for prompt payment of the bond, both principal and interest, the full faith, credit and resources of the Issuer are hereby irrevocably pledged.

This bond is one of a series of eight-two (82) of even date and like tenor, except as to rate of interest, and date of maturity, aggregating the principal sum of $410,000, numbered consecutively in direct order of maturity from 1 upwards, issued for the purpose of paying the cost of acquiring and constructing improvements to the City's Water System, in pursuance of a vote of the qualified electors of the Issuer voting thereon at a general election duly called and held on November 4, 1980.

Bonds of this issue shall not be subject to redemption prior to maturity.

This bond is payable out of the Issuer's Debt Retirement Fund, and it is hereby certified and recited that all acts, conditions and things required by law to be done, precedent to and in the issuance of the bond and the series of bonds of which this is one, exist and have been done and performed in regular and due form and time as required by law, and that the total indebtedness of said Issuer, including this bond, does not exceed any constitutional, statutory or charter limitation.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Issuer, by its legislative body, has caused this bond to be signed in the name of the Issuer, by its Mayor and to be countersigned by its Clerk and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, and has caused the annexed interest coupons to be signed by the facsimile signatures of its Mayor and Clerk, all as of the first day of February, A.D. 1981.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF SALE

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX,
STATE OF MICHIGAN
GENERAL OBLIGATION
WATER BONDS

SEALED BIDS for the purpose of the above bonds will be received by the undersigned at the Clerk's offices located at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, on the ..... day of ....., 1981, until ..... o'clock ..... m., Eastern Standard Time, at which time and place said bids will be publicly opened and read.

IN THE ALTERNATIVE sealed bids will also be received on the same date and until the same time by an agent of the undersigned at the offices of the Municipal Advisory Council of Michigan, 2136 First National Building, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

BOND DETAILS: Said bonds will be coupon bonds of the denomination of $5,000 each, dated February 1, 1981, numbered in direct order of maturity from 1 upwards and will bear interest from their date payable on October 1, 1981, and semiannually thereafter.

Said bonds will mature on the first day of October, as follows:

$10,000 1981 through 1984, inclusive,
$20,000 1985,
$25,000 1986 through 1989, inclusive,
$50,000 1990 through 1994, inclusive.

REDEMPTION OF BONDS: Bonds of the issue shall not be subject to redemption prior to maturity.

INTEREST RATE AND BIDDING DETAILS: The bonds shall bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding 11% per annum, to be fixed by the bids therefor, expressed in multiples of 1/8 or 1/20 of 1%, or both. The interest on any one bond shall be at one rate only, all bonds maturing in any one year must carry the same interest rate and each coupon period will be represented by one interest coupon. The difference between the highest and lowest interest rates bid shall not exceed 2%. No proposal for the purchase of less than all of the bonds or at a price less than 100% of their par value will be considered.

PAYING AGENT: Both principal and interest shall be payable at a bank or trust company located in Michigan qualified to act as paying agent under State of Michigan law to be designated by the original purchaser of the bonds, who may also designate a co-paying agent, which may be located outside of Michigan, qualified to act as paying agent under the law of the State in which located or of the United States, both of which shall be subject to approval of the undersigned.

PURPOSE AND SECURITY: The bonds were authorized at the general election held November 4, 1980, and are issued for the purpose of paying the costs of acquiring and constructing improvements to City's Water System. The bonds will pledge the full faith and credit of the City for payment of the principal and interest thereon and will be payable from ad valorem taxes, which may be levied without limitation as to rate or amount. The rights or remedies of bondholders may be affected by bankruptcy laws or other creditors' rights legislation now existing or hereafter enacted.

GOOD FAITH: A certified or cashier's check in the amount of $8,200 drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company and payable to the order of the City Treasurer must accompany each bid as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, to be forfeited as liquidated damages if such bid be accepted and the bidder fails to take up and pay for the bonds. No interest shall be allowed on the good faith checks and checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be promptly returned to each bidder's representative or by registered mail. The good faith check of the successful bidder may be immediately cashed in which event payment for the balance of the purchase price of the bonds shall be made at the closing.

AWARD OF BONDS: The bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose bid produces the lowest interest cost computed by determining, at the rate or rates specified in the bid, the total dollar value of all interest on the bonds from ....., 1981, to their maturity, and deducting therefrom any premium.

LEGAL OPINION: Bids shall be conditioned upon the unqualified approving opinion of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, attorneys of Detroit, Michigan, a copy of which opinion will be printed on the reverse side of each bond and the original of which will be furnished without expense to the purchaser of the bonds at the delivery thereof. The fees of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone for services rendered in connection with such approving opinion are expected to be paid from bond proceeds. Except to the extent necessary to issue their unqualified approving opinion as to validity of the above bonds, Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone has not been requested to examine or review and has not examined or reviewed any financial documents, statements or materials that have been or may be furnished in connection with the authorization, issuance or marketing of the bonds, and accordingly will not express any opinion with respect to the accuracy of completeness of any such financial documents, statements, or materials.

DELIVERY OF BONDS: The City will furnish bonds ready for execution at its expense and will be delivered without expense to the purchaser at a place to be agreed upon. The usual closing documents, including a certificate that no litigation is pending affecting the issuance of the bonds, will be delivered at the time of the delivery of the bonds. If the bonds are not tendered for delivery by twelve o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, on the 45th day following the date of sale, or the first business day thereafter if said 45th day is not a business day, the successful bidder may on that day, or any time thereafter until delivery of the bonds, withdraw his proposal by serving notice of cancellation, in writing, on the undersigned, in which event the City shall promptly return the good faith deposit. Payment for the Bonds shall be made in Federal Reserve Funds. Accrued interest to the date of delivery of the bonds shall be paid by the purchaser at the time of delivery.

CUSIP NUMBERS: It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on said bonds, but neither the failure to print such numbers on any bonds nor any error with respect thereto shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the purchaser thereto to accept delivery of and pay for said bonds in accordance with terms of the purchase contract. All expense in relation to the printing of CUSIP numbers on said bonds shall be paid for by the issuer, provided, however, that the CUSIP Service Bureau charge for the assignment of said numbers shall be the responsibility of and shall be paid for by the purchaser. THE RIGHT IS RESERVED TO REJECT ANY OR ALL BIDS.

ENVELOPES containing the bids should be plainly marked "Proposal for General Obligation Water Bonds".

7. The estimated period of usefulness of the proposed improvements is hereby declared to be not less than thirty (30) years and its total cost is estimated to be Four Hundred Ten Thousand Dollars ($410,000).

8. All resolutions and parts of resolutions insofar as they conflict with the provisions of this resolution be and the same hereby are rescinded.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Wood, Muma, Block, Porter, Timms and Roloff. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Timms:

RESOLUTION 81-2-2

Electric Rate Schedule

BE IT RESOLVED, by the City of Charlevoix, that in order to operate a more efficient Electrical System, does hereby resolve:

The following classes of electric service are established for purchasers of electric energy from the City Electric Utility with rates, qualifications and special conditions as follows:

A. Residential Service Rate - "RS"

1. Availability

Available for single family or two family residences used as apartments, condominiums and trailers, where individual units are separately metered.

2. Designation

Monthly rate:	In-city	Out-city
Service Charge	$2.00	$2.75
Energy Charge	5.0¢/kwh	6.0¢/kwh

Minimum Charge

The minimum charge under this schedule shall be the Service Charge of $2.00 and $2.75 as provided under the in city and out city designations.

3. Power Cost Adjustments

See Section "E".

B. General Service (Commercial) Rate - "GS"

1. Availability

Open to any customer for service, at secondary voltage, for any purpose, for which no other, specific rate scheduled is provided. This rate is not available for auxiliary or stand by service.

2. Character of Service

Alternating current, 60 hertz, single phase or three-phase, at the City's available secondary voltages.

3. Designation

Monthly Rate:	In-city	Out-city
Service Charge	$4.00	$5.50
Energy Charge	5.5¢/kwh.	6.5¢/kwh

Minimum Charge

The minimum charge under this schedule shall be the Service Charge of $4.00 and $5.50, as provided under the in-city and out-city designations.

4. Power Cost Adjustments

See Section "E".

6. Metering

Metering under this schedule will normally be done at the secondary voltage supplied. However, the City at its option, may elect to meter at primary voltage and deduct 2% from energy measurements to adjust for transformer losses.

C. General Service (Commercial) - Option Rate - "GSO"

1. Availability

Open to any customers for service at secondary voltage for all power and lighting purposes, when billing demand is 5kw or more.

2. Character of Service

Alternating current, 60 hertz, single phase or three phase, at the City's available secondary voltages.

3. Monthly Rate

Demand Charge $5.25 per kw for all kw of billing demand

Energy Charge 4.0¢ kwh for all kwh used

Minimum Charge

The demand charge of $5.25, included in the rate.

4. Billing Demand

The billing demand shall be the kilowatts (kw) supplied during the 15 minute period of maximum usage during the billing period but not less than 60% of the highest billing demand of the preceding eleven months, nor less than 5 kw.

5. Power Factor

The above rate is predicated upon the customer maintaining a power factor not less than 80% lagging. When the average power factor is less than 80% lagging, the City reserves the right to increase the billing demand in the ratio that 80% bears to the actual power factor.

8. Power Cost Adjustment Charge

See Section "E".

7. Metering

Metering under this schedule will be done at the secondary or primary voltage, at the option of the City. If the City meters at secondary voltage, the Demand Readings and Energy Readings will be increased by 2% to compensate for energy used by transform

COMMISSION ORDER
(Under authority of Act 165, P.A. 1929 and Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended)
STATEWIDE TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS

The Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on January 9, 1981, under the authority of Act 165, P.A. 1929, as amended, and Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, ordered that for the period beginning March 1, 1981, and ending March 31, 1982, no person shall take, or attempt to take, any species of trout or salmon from any of the waters of this state except by hook and line during the open seasons prescribed, and within the minimum size limits and maximum possession limits indicated below.

Statewide open seasons on all streams and designated trout lakes shall be from the last Saturday in April through September 30, (longer on waters designated by the Director for extended fishing under Act 165) on all trout and salmon. Statewide open seasons on all other inland lakes and the Great Lakes shall be any time for all trout and salmon. Size limits shall be 8 inches on Lower Peninsula streams, 7 inches on Upper Peninsula streams, and 10 inches on lakes. The daily limit for trout and salmon shall be 5 fish singly or in combination but no more than 3 lake trout or splake, except that an additional 5 brook or brown trout may be taken from streams from the last Saturday in April through September 30 only and in the following areas of the Great Lakes it shall be unlawful to take or attempt to take more than one lake trout or splake.

In all waters of Lake Superior east of a line drawn due north of Crisp Point (Sec. 1, T51N, R8W), to the international boundary line and thence east to the city of Sault Ste. Marie.

In all waters of the St. Mary's River.

In all the waters of Lake Huron north and west of a line drawn from Forty Mile Point (Sec. 23, T36N, R4E), northeasterly to the international boundary line, thence north and west to the point where the St. Mary's River flows into Lake Huron, thence west to the Mackinac Bridge.

In all waters of Lake Michigan north of a line beginning from the Michigan-Wisconsin state boundary line east to the tip of the Leelenau Peninsula including Grand Traverse Bay.

In the following waters of the Great Lakes it shall be unlawful to take or attempt to take more than 2 lake trout or splake:

In all waters of Lake Michigan south of a line beginning from the Michigan-Wisconsin state boundary line east to the tip of the Leelenau Peninsula.

This order rescinds the Commission Order issued July 11, 1980, by the Natural Resources Commission-STATEWIDE TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS.

TIE BREAKER BOX
Pick the total number of points you believe will be scored in the tiebreaker game, and write it in the box.

RULES

1. Anyone can enter, except the employees of the paper and their families. Use the entry blank from the paper or make your own, following the same plan. A copy of the Charlevoix Courier will be available at the Courier office to anyone wishing to copy the list of names.

2. Weekly gift certificates will be awarded to the persons naming the most winners. All tie games are considered incorrect unless picked as ties on your entry blank. In case of a tie, persons guessing nearest correct score in the tiebreaker box will win. Insert what you think total score will be of the game in the tie breaker box.

3. Gift certificates are redeemable at any of the participating sponsors on this page only.

Entries should be addressed to: Contest Editor, Charlevoix Courier and postmarked by not later than 5 p.m. Friday night. Winners will be announced the following weeks.

4. On the entry form simply draw a circle around the number of the team you predict will win each of the games listed in each of the ads. Then, predict the total on the points "tie breaker" at the bottom of the entry form.

Obituaries

HOWARD R. GRIFFIN

Memorial services for Howard R. Griffin, 76, who died Saturday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Wednesday with Rev. Walter Hastings officiating.

Mr. Griffin was born May 10, 1904, at Quick, a logging community in the Gaylord-Grayling area. In 1923 he enlisted in the U.S. Navy and made it his career, retiring in 1953 with the rank of Lieutenant, junior grade. He returned to Charlevoix at that time and was employed at local marinas as a cabinet maker. He was a member of Charlevoix Post No. 1163, Veterans of Foreign Wars. His wife, the former Gladys Eddy whom he married March 4, 1946 at Charlevoix, preceded him in death in 1970.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Paul (Kathleen) Burlew of Garden Grove, Cal.; three grandchildren; six great-grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Ralph (Norma) Cogklin of Big Rapids and Mrs. Dorothy Crawford of Dayton, Ohio.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

ALVINA LYDON

Funeral services for Mrs. Alvina Lydon, 76, who died Friday at Beverly Manor Convalescent Home, were held Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Cecil Drost, lay minister, officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

The former Alvina Russell was born in Charlevoix on May 19, 1904 and, at the age of 16, left here to live in Detroit. She later lived in several Southern Michigan cities including Grand Rapids before returning here 13 years ago. In 1969 she was married to William Lydon who died May 25, 1977.

She is survived by a son, Amos Moore of Grand Rapids; two sisters, Mrs. Jake (Edith) Deschermeier of Bay Shore and Mrs. Rita Zukowsky of Pontiac and six brothers, Miles, Bernard, Albert, Walter, Douglas and Robert, all of Charlevoix.

ARTHUR E. BATEMAN

Funeral services for Arthur E. Bateman, 55, Assistant Charlevoix City Fire Chief, who died unexpectedly February 3, were held at the Winchester-Hallead Funeral Home in Petoskey Friday. Minister Gordon French of the Church of Christ in Grayling officiated. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery at Petoskey.

Born June 6, 1925, in Ann Arbor, Mr. Bateman had spent most of his life in the Petoskey area, coming to Charlevoix in October, 1978 when he became assistant fire chief here. He had attended Charlevoix schools and Redford High School. Later, he attended various police and fire schools. He was veteran of World War II serving in the U.S. Air Force.

Mr. Batemen had been employed by the Petoskey Street Department, Petoskey Police Department and the Petoskey Fire Department for 25 years prior to coming to Charlevoix. He was acting chief of the Petoskey Fire Department when he came to Charlevoix. He was a licensed paramedic, coached Little League and was a softball umpire.

Surviving are his wife, the former Betty Kern, whom he married Aug. 22, 1980; two sons, Richard and Arthur III, both of Colorado; a step-son, Arthur Terrell serving with the U.S. Army; three step-daughters, Mrs. Gary (Leafa) Moore of Conway, Wanda and Judy Terrell of Traverse City; two grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Frank Brown of Dearborn and a sister, Mrs. Nile (Grace) Beyers of Silver Springs, Md.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Section 1, Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, being Sections 211.1 to 211.157 of the Compiled Laws of 1948 is amended by adding Section 34a to read as follows:

Sec. 34a. The equalization director of each county shall prepare a tabular statement each year by the several cities and townships of the county, showing the tentative recommended equalization ratios and estimated multipliers necessary to compute individual state equalized valuation of real property and of personal property. The county shall publish the tabulation in a newspaper of general circulation within the county on or before the third Monday in February each year and furnish a copy to each of the boards of review in the county and to the state tax commission. All notices of meeting of the boards of review shall give the tentative ratios and estimated multipliers pertaining to their jurisdiction. The tentative recommended equalization ratios and multiplying figures shall not prejudice the equalization procedures of the county board of commissioners of the state tax commission.

WATCH WHAT HAPPENS

Nothing can stop the march of time, but you can follow it in style and with minimum care with a well-crafted watch.

Many people with diversified lifestyles need more than one watch depending on the type of activities they're involved in.

Sun-diving and strenuous sports require a water-resistant watch with a plastic or stainless steel band. The same watch or a similarly rugged one fits the bill for shop and yard work. A more elegant style is most desirable for the office and social occasions.

For a dress watch that will continue looking beautiful for many years, you should consider gold-filled or karat gold. Dramatic opaque gemstones are sometimes used as watchfaces. The brown tiger's eye, blue lapis lazuli and multi-colored opal are very dramatic, especially when accented with diamonds. If you're not afraid of attention, you can even find a watch face entirely paved with diamonds.

The newest quartz analog watches are being promoted as "thin as a dime." The thinner movements of space age technology make the sleek lines possible.

Digital watches are children of the computer age. An LCD (liquid crystal display) or generally black on a white background and displays the time continuously. An LED (light-emitting diode) watch requires a free hand to push its button and light up the display.

Watches are no longer merely functional objects. They are beautiful to look at and fun to use. If you have a gift-giving occasion coming up, consider a gift that will be a reminder of your time after time.

At a meeting of the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association Thursday, State Senator Mitch Irwin (Sault Ste. Marie) announced his appointment of DICK WHEELER, of East Jordan, as a delegate to the Michigan Conference on Small Business. Wheeler, who owns WRW, Inc. of East Jordan, will represent small businesses at a regional caucus in Sault Ste. Marie on March 12, joining the statewide conference May 11-13 in Lansing.

"I'm confident that Dick will aggressively represent the small business communities of Northern Michigan," said Irwin, "Small business is the backbone of our economy and it's important for us to be directly involved in this thinktank. Dick is an enterpreneur and has a long record of success in the manufacturing industry. He'll do an excellent job." Irwin was asked by the State Department of Commerce to select a small business person from his district to participate with elected delegates in the conference. The appointed delegate is required to be the owner, operator or manager of a business with less than 500 employees.

Economic master plan okayed by council but not by much

by DAVE KNIGHT

By the narrowest of margins, the Charlevoix City Council voted Monday night to go along with the City Plannning Commission's' proposal to have a comprehensive master plan conducted for the city.

Mayor Sam Supernaw cast the deciding vote to break a 3-3 deadlock that followed lively discussion on the issue.

Ronald F. Nino & Associates, a Grand Blanc consulting firm, authored the plan proposal which was chosen by the Planning Commission last month from several they reviewed. The project will cost the city $16,000.

Several local business people attended the meeting with most lending support to the plan. Attorney Richard Pajtas, president of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, reported that the chamber's executive board, at its February 10 meeting, voted unanimously in favor of the plan and the expense involved.

Said Pajtas, "It was the consensus of the board that although unnecessary expenses are a problem today, this would be a wise investment. It offers support and assistance to the business people of the community."

County planner John Hess voiced a concern that the plan would be done by a downstate firm. Though he agreed that planning played an important part in industrial development, Hess recommended that the work be done by a Northern Michigan company with more orientation to the recreational base of this area.

Dr. David Strawbridge, chairman of the Planning Commission, explained to the council that the commission had spent three meetings screening plan proposals and that Nino's offered the most amount of expertise and the best sense of Charlevoix's particular problems.

The Nino proposal focuses heavily on economic development of the community and the creation of more jobs through the attraction of new industry to the city. It was described by Strawbridge as providing the city with "direction".

Said Strawbridge, "Right now, Charlevoix's not moving. We have an unemployment problem and we have to deal with it. But we won't be able to deal with it unless someone is directing the ballgame. The benefits of this plan definitely outweigh the price."

Local resident Oscar Ward opposed the plan saying, "I don't think anybody is against seeking better conditions in Charlevoix but we are victims of a condition that is throughout the state. Our community should not have to compensate for what is being done in Lansing."

Council member Ray Wood was apprehensive about the $16,000 expense saying that he supported the concept of planning but thought that right now was a poor time to justify the cost to the taxpayers.

Local businessman Don Voisin pointed out to the council that the justification of the cost would be realized later. Said Voisin, "You already have our (tax) money. What we want to know is whether you will spend it the best way for the future of the city."

Crucial "yes" votes on the question were cast by council members Shirley Roloff and James Block, both of whom had expressed some doubts on the plan at the last council meeting. They were joined by council member Jeff Porter and Supernaw in supporting the plan.

Voting against it were council members Earl Muma, Robert Timms and Wood.

Nino has estimated the project to take about six months.

In another similar discussion, questions were raised by council members on the necessity of a $4,000 water and sewer survey requested by City Manager James Brinker. Timms, for one, indicated that the information needed might be more inexpensively obtained from studies done for nearby cities.

The matter was tabled for further study.

Also tabled was the lease agreement between the Coast Guard and the city involving docking rights of the cutter Mesquite at the municipal dock. City Attorney Frank Hoffman reported that discrepancies still existed between the agreement he drafted and one proposed by the Coast Guard.

The Mesquite berth is leased to the Coast Guard for $1 a year.

Another branch of the service was brought up at the meeting when Mrs. June Cross suggested that the council pass a resolution supporting the retention of the Air Force radar station at Bay Shore. Some indications have been that the station may be moved to another site.

The council responded favorably to the suggestion and passed the resolution unanimously.

In other action, the council:

-Approved salary increases of from $210 a week to $225 for the city dockmaster and from $160 a week to $185 for the municipal golf course manager.

-Terminated a contract with Shapco & Associates for a sewage facility plan because of inaction on the project.

-Gave Fochtman Chevrolet until March 2 to pay an outstanding city utility bill of over $2,000 assessed for installation of service when the firm opened and directed that service be cut off if the full amount is not paid by the set date.

-Passed a resolution commending City Hall employees, the Emergency Medical Unit and the Police Department for their actions on February 3 when Assistant Fire Chief Arthur Bateman was fatally stricken by a heart attack.

-Set new dock rates for the city docks and golf rates at the municipal course which will be increased from $4.50 to $5 for nine holes and from $6.50 to $7.50 for eighteen holes.

-Directed that a closed meeting be arranged with representatives of the Chicago Club to deal with a property tax assessment dispute involving litigation with the city.

Board acts on library use, band students

by FRAN MARTIN

Citizen groups will be able to use the downstairs meeting room at the public library and Middle School band students will be able to compete interscholastically following action Monday by the Charlevoix Board of Education on two major policies.

The first policy spelled out guidelines for use by the public of the Charlevoix Public Library meeting room in the basement of the building.

With meeting places at a premium in the community, the library basement has attracted the interest of many groups looking for a regular place to hold meetings. The increased interest lately prompted the school board to establish guidelines for the room's use.

The room will now be available on a first come - first serve basis for non-profit purposes. Students and library personnel have priority on its use and permission must be granted by the board.

The second policy acted upon by the board at its regular meeting Monday will permit Middle School instrumentalists and musical groups to participate in solo and ensemble contests. Bands from the Middle School will also be able to participate in festivals and other events according to the new policy.

In other action, the board:

-Approved a request for early

Final winners named in Basketball Contest

This week's was the last of the Courier Basketball Contests for the 1980-81 season and the two winners were both repeaters. Harry W. Ladd, 714 Park, Charlevoix, and LeRoy Buchanan, 224 Maple, Charlevoix, both had three wrong on their entries but Ladd came closest to the tie breaker total score to take the first place prize of a $10 gift certificate. Buchanan, a three-time money winner in the contest this year, takes home a $5 gift certificate this time.

New flags were added to the recently remodeled City Council chambers Monday courtesy of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. The local chapters of those two organizations have donated an American flag and the flag of the State of Michigan to the city for use in the chambers. On hand at Monday night's council meeting for the presentation were, left to right, Clarence Goldstick representing the V.F.W., Council President Ray Wood, Mayor Sam Supernaw and Louis Mackenzie representing the American Legion.

Winter Cup approaches with hopes for cooperative weather

There are more than one pair of crossed fingers around town this week as the Winter Cup festival gets closer and the snow gets scarcer.

Unseasonably warm temperatures early this week made short work of the massive snowfall that hit the area last week, bringing activity to a halt Wednesday and part of Thursday. Charlevoix schools were closed both days in the first "snow days" of the winter so far.

By Monday, however, much of the white had turned to dirty brown as temperatures in the 40s left much of the city a soggy mess instead of a winter wonderland.

As of Monday, the Winter Cup schedule of events was still on including the ice sculpture contest for students in East Park on Saturday. Chairman Suzi Reis set 3 p.m. Saturday as the deadline for the sculptures which will be judged on conformity to the theme of "Winter Sports", originality, craftmanship and visual impact. Five sculptures are to be constructed, one by each of the four high school classes and one by Middle School students.

Prizes of $150, $75 and $50 have been put up for the contest by the Chamber of Commerce and Ski and Shore of Charlevoix. Said Mrs. Reis, "We have enjoyed the work the students have put into the sculptures in past years and expect them to come up with more outstanding creations again this year."

Bill Vogel will be master of ceremonies when the prizes are awarded at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Cross country ski races will start at 11 a.m. at Windmill Farm Saturday and a "Learn to Cross Country Ski" session is planned for 1 p.m. that afternoon next to Duffy's.

Sunday's events include a pancake breakfast sponsored by the county Republicans at the American Legion Hall from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., downhill ski races at 1 p.m. at Mt. McSauba, skiing exhibitions at Mt. McSauba at 3 p.m. followed by a "Top of the Mount Frisbee Throwing Contest" sponsored by Charlevoix Properties at 4 p.m.

Petoskey spur last hope for local rail service

by PEG OHLE

In 1892, when the first railroad train came to Charlevoix, there was much rejoicing.

Through the years, the railroad helped Charlevoix grow into a major resort area, but shrank in importance as people gradually turned their backs on rail transportation in favor of the more available automobile.

Today, a locomotive and two or three freight cars chug through Charlevoix once or twice a week.

It's a losing proposition for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company, which has been trying to end the service through Charlevoix for the last three or four years. Now, it looks as if the Interstate Commerce Commission will permit it to do so.

Because of this probable abandonment of rail service and abandonment of other service lines in northern Michigan, the State Transportation Commission has been working on plans to offer alternative means of serving the community.

In a recent report to the Transportation Commission, James C. Kellogg, Chief Administrative Officer in charge of Urban and Public Transportation for the State, offered a five-point plan which includes a little help for Charlevoix.

The plan states that the State Department of Transportation would no longer oppose the C & O system abandonment if satisfactory arrangements could be made to preserve rail operations between Charlevoix and Petoskey. It suggests that, in place of C & O service, Charlevoix could be served by the Michigan Northern Railroad by way of a spur from Petoskey.

Thus, the C & O service between southern Michigan and Charlevoix, which started 89 years ago would no longer exist. However, the future is recognized by a statement from the State Transportation Commission:

"Many believe that continued deterioration of energy availability and/or increased price could eventually render the rail passenger mode

Milliken asks SBA aid for county

Charlevoix County is one of nine Michigan counties for which Gov. William G. Milliken has requested a Small Business Administration (SBA) Disaster Declaration for weather-caused crop losses in 1980.

According to the National Disaster Ledger, 209 farms in Charlevoix County suffered a total of $1,260,364 in losses from a drought period lasting from July 1, 1980 to August 3, 1980.

Along with the other eight counties of Huron, Muskegon, Saginaw, Sanilac, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Otsego and Antrim, the total estimated losses in 1980 were $34,457,178 affecting 9,660 farms.

In a letter to SBA Regional Director Donna Harrigan, Milliken said that damage estimates continue to surface after crop harvest figures are summarized.

Excessive rain, hail and high winds during spring and summer plagued counties in Southern Michigan and drought conditions limited crop production in the northern counties.

The United States Department of Agriculture has already designated the nine counties for emergency loans and provided the SBA Disaster Branch Office in Detroit with documentation, Milliken said.

An SBA Disaster Declaration would entitle eligible farmers in the affected counties to low-interest Disaster Recovery Loans and Economic Injury Loans.

Building permits in county hit bottom in January

January is always a slow month for the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection, but January, 1981 was the slowest month ever.

The Department issued only eight permits during January, for construction totaling $40,068. In January, 1980, the figures were 14 permits for construction totaling $520,176 (which included the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center).

Only one permit for a new residence was issued last month – for a $23,840 house in Boyne City. Five other permits, were for residential additions (mostly wood stoves and chimneys) and remodeling totaling $10,748, and two permits were for commercial remodeling totaling $5,500.

None of the permits issued were for work in the City of Charlevoix or Charlevoix Township.

At 2:00 P.M. Sunday afternoon Sarah and Warren Taylor were packed and ready to start their vacation.

B.I. students to take NEDT tests

The Beaver Island Community School will administer the National Educational Development Tests, a testing program that helps professional educators, parents, and students plan together for the educational and vocation future of the students, on February 18.

Barbara Rakowski, principal of the school, says that the NEDT Program is being used because it will give the school the type of information it needs to help the students make realistic decisions. "The NEDT will help us to help our students plan wisely for their education and future career.

"The program will reveal how well the students can apply the skills they have acquired since entering school. It will help us recognize the strengths in each student's educational development and, at the same time, will pinpoint weaknesses. This information will enable us to help a particular student while in school, and will serve as a guide in helping us to improve our educational program."

4-H leaders, members to be busy

Participants in the Charlevoix County 4-H horse and livestock programs have a busy and informative time ahead in the next few weeks.

Going to Gaylord on February 18 for the 4-H Animal Science Leaders Seminar will be leaders Marsha Belahlay of Charlevoix, Shirley Cozier of Boyne City and Beverly Walker of East Jordan. Also attending will be teen members Becky Witthoeft, Kim Seizik, Lisa Heckendorn, Sheila North, Beth Falting and Vicki Falting all of Charlevoix as well as 4-H Program Assistant Leah Green.

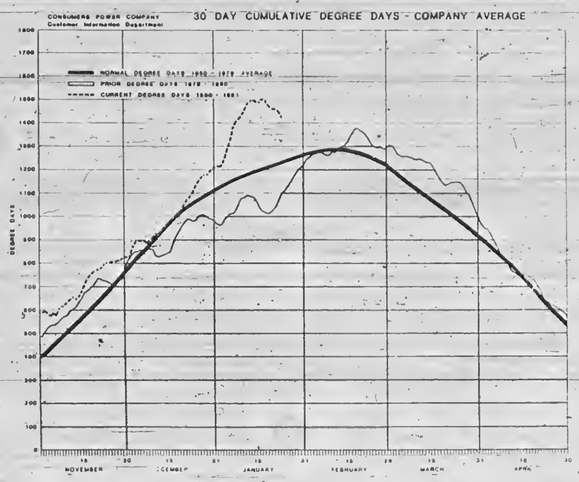
This seminar, designed to give local 4-H leaders in livestock activities additional training, will be highlighted by sessions in horse, beef, dairy, goats, poultry and rabbits. Participants will have the opportunity to select four different skill sessions in addition to a general session on communications.

In addition, Mrs. Crozier will be a resource person teaching at the Horse Teen Leaders Conference at Kettunen Center, Michigan 4-H Conference Facility at Tustin, Michigan on February 20-22. This leadership development workshop will be attended by Vicki Falting and Cinda Crozier of Boyne City.

Additional learning will take place when leaders DAvid and Lucy Stolt of Boyne City and teen leaders Shari Jones and Mary Plagge from Charlevoix attend the Veterinary Science leaders' workshop at Kettunen Center on March 6 and 7. 4-H members in veterinary science will study the normal animal, animal disease and immunology.

Information gained at all three events will be valuable 4-H members raising animals complete their projects and look forward also to the summer horse shows and judging at the Emmet County Fair.

For more information on these events or other 4-H activities contact Leah Green, 4-H Program Assistant, at the Cooperative Extension Service Office at 582-6232.



This graph for the first 24 days of January shows how much colder this past January was compared to last year and compared to normal. Degree days are a measure of how much colder each day is compared to 65 degrees so in winter the greater number of degree days means that it has been colder. The dotted line shows 1980-81 degree days, the solid line shows normal degree days and the shaded area shows the 1979-80 degree days. Records were taken in Detroit and Lansing.

MSU course for clerks, treasurers set

A series of governmental accounting courses designed for township, village, and city clerks and treasurers, will be offered by Michigan State University in northern Michigan beginning this spring and continued through the summer and fall. Courses scheduled for late winter include Basic Governmental Bookkeeping, and Township and City Treasurers' Workshop: Duties and Cash Management. The instructor will be Albert C. Blankenship, Governmental Accounting Specialist, formerly with the Local Audit Division of the State Department of Treasury, and MSU Senior Extension Lecturer.

Basic Governmental Bookkeeping will meet in Traverse City from 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays, March 2, 5, 9, 16, 19, and 23 (no class March 12) at Northwestern Michigan College, and in Baldwin from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays, March 3, 6, 10, 17, 20 and 24 (no class March 13). This beginning course for all elected officials will cover: fund accounting, debit and credit theory, the accounting cycle, the uniform chart of accounts, journal entries and posting, accrual accounting, adjusting and closing entries, Statement preparation, special funds. The fee will be $60 including materials.

Township and City Treasurers' Workshop: Duties and Cash Management will meet in Traverse City from 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays, March 30, April 2, 6, 9, 13 and 20 (no class April 16) at Northwestern Michigan College, and in Baldwin from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays, March 31, April 3, 7, 10, 14, and 21 (no class April 17). This is a course for elected officials who have a basic background in accounting and who wish to update or increase their skills in governmental accounting. Topics which will be covered include: current tax collection procedures, cash management, treasurers' records, the uniform accounting system, regular collection and disbursement procedures, personal property taxes, jeopardy assessments and settlement procedures with the county treasurer. The fee will be $55 including materials.

To register for the above courses or to indicate interest for programs in other locations, interested persons should contact the MSU Center for Lifelong Education Programs, 1701 East Front Street, Traverse City, telephone (616)-946-7498. Additional programs will be arranged later.

Cold weather, nuke plants down made electric heat costly

Customers of the Consumers Power Company who heat their homes with gas or electricity should expect unusually high bills for January according to company officials who point to colder weather as the culprit.

"Company records show that January was about 15 percent colder than last year and almost 11 percent colder than normal," said R.G. Dahlquist, Consumers Power area manager. "So customers will see the effects of those cold days in the February bills. Weather this cold significantly increases the the use of gas or electricity for home heating and also means increased use of furnace fans, humidifiers and lighting."

Consumers' electric customers can look for a 15 percent increase on their February bill over January because of a change in the monthly fuel cost adjustment.

Said Dahlquist, "The fuel and purchased power adjustment this month reflects November costs because of a three-month lag between the time fuel costs are experienced and the time they are included in customer billings. Our costs of generating electricity last November were higher because we had to burn more coal and oil when our two nuclear plants were out of service – Big Rock for refueling and Palisades for inspection of the electric turbine."

Another two percent increase can be expected on February bills reflecting allowance of certain operating and maintenance expenses – Palisades Nuclear Plant returned to service December 13 so Consumers Power will be using less fossil fuel to make up for Palisades' large output. This, says Dahlquist, means that relief is on the way for electric customers. He added that, the lower cost of the nuclear generation of power will mean a lower fuel cost adjustment for March bills.

Of course, the item that will afford the greatest relief in the amount of bills for both gas and electric customers will be more normal weather," said Dahlquist.

Scouts cite 71st anniversary

Boy Scout Troop 11 celebrated the 71st anniversary of Scouting at the annual banquet held at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria. The troop, their Scoutmaster, Louis Edwards and Assistant Scoutmaster, John Houting, were joined by the Scout Committee, prents of the Scouts and members of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club in observing the anniversary.

Highlighting the event was the presentation of Star awards to two members of the troop, Tim May and Mike Paul. Donald Coulter of Traverse City pinned May's award and Jeff Conway, District Scout Executive, presented Paul with his award.

Awards for recognition of work done in special fields of interest were presented to the Scouts during the program. David Novotny, comitteeman, presented the following merit badges: Citizenship in the Nation and Citizenship in the Community to Gerald Zeitler, May and Paul; First Aid to Chase and Novotny; Small Boat Sailing to Chase.

Rick Rajewski, May and Zeitler of the Leadership Corps presented a total of 24 skill awards to Chase, Norman, Tim Salmonson, Novotny, Smith, Wurst, Thayer, Cosgrove and Phillips.

Kevin Whitley, also of the Leadership Corps, presented Polar Bear awards to Smith, Novotny, May, Chase, Wurst, Zeitler, Thayer and Norman.

As part of the program, Conway spoke on Camp Grielick and what it means to Scouts: Tim May gave an account of the International Camporee Troop 11 attended at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Other entertainment included skits presented by the patrols including "The Talking-Dolphin" by the Owl Patrol; "Movie-Scenes" by the Liberty Patrol and "E for" by the Panther Patrol.

Badges of office, year pins and perfect attendance pins were presented by Mr. Edwards and Mr. Houting.

Rev. Austin Regier gave the invocation and Tim May, as master of ceremony, the Scoutmaster's Benediction. Members of the Leadership Corps are Whitley, Rick Rajewski, May, Zeitler and Dan Buday. The Scout Committee is composed of Valois Avery Gunnar Lundtegen, Houting, Jerry Paul, Thayer, Novotny, Robert Rajewski, Schuch, Charles Rergmann and Scoutmaster Edwards.

Irwin tells of school funding received

State Senator Mitch Irwin reports that the Charlevoix Public Schools recently received $32,124 in Title I funds and $18,458 in Vocational Education funds from the State Department of Education.

At the same time, the East Jordan Public School District received $7,785 in State Aid funds, $25,000 in Title I funds, and $477 in Vocational Education funds.

The Boyne City Public School District received $79,683 in Title I funds and $4,180 in Vocational Education funds.

Nurse refresher program planned at NMH

Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey will offer area registered nurses who have been out of an acute care setting for five or more years a Nurse Refresher Program during March and April. An informational coffee hour for interested persons will be held Thursday, February 19, from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in the Little Traverse Division Doctors' Dining Room. Actual sessions are scheduled to begin March 9.

The eight-week course will consist of daily weekday sessions that, upon completion, will have participants ready for re-entry into the nursing field. The course meets the Michigan Board of Licensure's guidelines for re-entry programs and will include both classroom and clinical experience.

The intent of the program is to bring area R.N.'s who have been away from nursing back into their professional field and help ease a growing national shortage of qualified nurses.

"We've had numerous inquiries from nurses wanting to know how they can re-enter the nursing field," said Judy Brink, Assistant Director of Nursing at Northern Michigan Hospitals. "We feel this type of program can fill a need for these people and be of help to us and other health care organizations in the community. There is a need to urge these nurses to return to their profession."

The program content areas will include reviews of legal and ethical problems, current trends in nursing, the nursing process, emergency measures, common problems, patient teaching, management and communication skills, discharge planning, and pharmacology.

Nurses interested in this program should attend the coffee hour at 2 to 3:30 p.m. on February 19, in the Little Traverse Division Doctors Dining Room. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Ann William, R.N., Nurse Recruitment, at 348-4053.

Knight on the Town

Sheriff logged a busy year

Civil process actions were up; traffic accidents were down; the number of inmates booked in the jail was up but the number of meals served to them was down.

Such are among the findings of the 1980 Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department annual report released last week by Sheriff George T. Lasater.

Thirty-three of the 59 statistical categories listed in the report reflected increases. Lasater attributed the increased activity of the department to more people living under the department's jurisdiction.

Said Lasater, "As the report indicates, this has been an extremely busy year for the Sheriff's office in all areas of responsibilities and duties. As our census reports indicate, we are having a larger number of citizens moving into the township areas which, in turn, results in a larger impact of activity for your Sheriff's Office, along with additional activities such as concerts etc., that also create more activity in the area of law enforcement."

One of the most dramatic increases was in the area of civil processes served which jumped 33.8 percent from 931 in 1979 to 1,244 in 1980. These include civil actions filed for unpaid bills, child support and other court ordered processes, usually involving financial matters, that must be served upon individuals by the Sheriff's Department.

The increase in civil processes, said Lasater, is an accurate reflection of the poor economic climate in the county and the worsening financial situations of many individuals living here.

The figures for the Patrol and Investigation Division of the department reveal a decrease in total activity complaints for the year to 4,230 from 4,426 in 1979, a drop of four percent.

Felony arrests were down significantly from 54 in 1979 to 33 last year, a 39 percent drop, but misdemeanor arrests were up 65 percent to 132 in 1980 from 80 in 1979. Total arrests increased from 148 in 1979 to 208 in 1980, a 41 percent jump.

Traffic statistics revealed some noticeable trends. Arrests for driving under the influence of liquor took over a 300 percent jump from 14 in 1979 to 43 in 1980. Property damage accidents investigated were down from 284 in 1979 to 238 in 1980 but personal injury accidents were up to 113 in 1980 from 95 in 1979.

Charlevoix County recorded only two traffic fatalities in 1980 as compared to 1979's toll of five.

The total number of traffic accidents, 353, was down in 1980, from 381 investigated in 1979.

Traffic citations in 1980 totalled 603, a 21 percent increase over 1979's 333. Among those citations, hazardous citations were up, non-hazardous were slightly down and while no citations were issued in 1979 for defective equipment, 21 were recorded in 1980.

Another statistic reflecting current criminal trends was the number of security checks made by the Sheriff's Department at local homes and businesses.

Sheriff's officers made 3,524 security inspections of county businesses last year and 1,640 of homes; 773 more security checks were made in 1980 than in 1979 reflecting the recent concern over an increase of breaking and entering incidents. Burglar alarm responses were also up last year, as much as 100 percent in the businesses category from 42 to 84.

Marine related complaints were up dramatically from 76 in 1979 to 106 in 1980 but the number of students in boat safety classes taught by the department was down to 41 last year from 80 in 1979.

No snowmobile complaints were logged in 1979 but last year eight were made to the department. Students in the snowmobile safety classes dropped way down to 14 in 1980 from 47 the year before.

According to the activity report by township, Marion, Melrose, Hayes and Eveline townships all showed steep increases in activities in 1980 over 1979. The total activities report included complaints, security checks, traffic citations, investigations, etc. Lasater alluded to large rock concert crowds attracted to these areas as the primary factor for the jump.

Sheriff's Department recorded activites in Melrose township alone jumped from 583 in 1979 to 1,016 in 1980, a jump of 74 percent. Marion went from 698 in 1979 to 1,165 in 1980.

In Charlevoix Township, however, the number of activites dropped to 1,982 from 2,246 from the year before.

Lasater also pointed out in the report that hours put in by volunteer Sheriff's posse members totaled 2,120 and indicated that the county is fortunate to have such such dedicated volunteers willing to help.

competitive with the automobile. The region has several population concentrations and is a substantial tourist attraction. The resumption of rail passenger service is a future possibility warranting consideration."

In order to preserve such future options, the report states that it "would be prudent!" to land bank any right-of-way on which service is terminated if a potential need can be identified and funding is available.

The whole subject of rail transportation in northern Michigan has been under study for almost eight years. Many rail lines have been subsidized in order to keep them running temporarily, but operating contracts for the subsidized lines expire this March, and available funding may be insufficient to continue operations at current levels. That is why the problem is coming to a head at this time.

The Michigan Transportation Commission called a meeting in Lansing recently to consider the Petoskey to Charlevoix recommendation, as well as others, but the meeting was cancelled at the last minute and has not been re-scheduled.

British humor surfaces

When I was kid, the "English sense of humor" — or, more properly, the lack of it — was a topic given a great deal of debate on this side of the Atlantic.

In the 1930s, Americans generally viewed the British as a dour, stuffy, almost humorless race of people — at least in comparison to Americans whose varied cultural, ethnic and linguistic origins gave rise to a rich and invigorating sense of the ridiculous.

My father used to tell a story about an Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman walking to Edinburgh. They came upon a roadsign that read: "Twelve miles to Edinburgh. If you can't read ask the blacksmith."

The Irishman and the Scotchman laughed uproariously at the sign, but the Englishman didn't crack a smile. A couple of miles down the road, however, the Englishman suddenly broke into peals of laughter and was so convulsed he had to sit down on a rock.

"What's so funny?" his companions asked.

"It's that sign back there," the Englishman explained when he caught his breath. "Twelve miles to Edinburgh. If you can't read ask the blacksmith."

The Irishman and the Scotchman smiled politely.

"Well, the sign was funny, but it wasn't that funny," the Scotchman replied.

"But what if the blacksmith wasn't home?" the Englishman laughed, slapping his knee.

The joke, I suppose, was intended to show that the English don't laugh at the same things as other people. If so, it did a fairly decent job of it. But after viewing a season of British comedy on the Canadian Broadcasting System (CBS) and the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) — both offered in Charlevoix via Lake Charlevoix Cable TV — I am convinced that my father's old joke about English humor was not only unfair but also untrue.

Every weekday from 7 to 8 p.m. Channel 9 out of Windsor, Ont., presents "The British Comedy Hour," consisting of two half-hour sit-coms from British television. Up until last week, the selections were "You're Only Young Twice!" and "Doctors on the Go" or "Doctors at Sea."

"You're Only Young Twice" is laid in an imposing old manse that bills itself as a retirement home for gentle folks. The central characters are four tany old dolts with enough time on their hands to get themselves into a peck of trouble every night.

Leading the pack is a stoutish widow, Flora, played by Peggy Mount, who would be a top-rated comedienne in any country.

Unfortunately, "You're Only Young Twice" was phased out last week and has been replaced by "The Many Wives of Patrick." But I would not be surprised if Channel 9 doesn't revive the old gals in the near future — if only in re-runs.

I have only seen one episode of "The Many Wives of Patrick," but it also has a good deal of promise. Patrick is a superannuated businessman who has seen fit to tie the matrimonial knot nine times. However, he always manages to maintain cordial relations with all of his ex-wives, their many off-spring and his myriad in-laws. The program could be a real winner.

The second half of "The British Comedy Hour" is called either "Doctor on the Go" or "Doctor at Sea" — depending on whether the main character, the amorous Dr. Duncan Warring, is tending the ills of cruise ship passengers or botching up the routine at stately St. Swithins Hospital in London. Sometimes "Doctor on the Go" leans toward slapstick, but the dialogue is superbly written and superbly delivered.

"Good Neighbors," which appears Thursdays at 10 p.m. on PBS Channel 6, is a delightful comedy about an exuberant young couple striving for rural self-sufficiency in the London suburbs. Not only to they have an extensive garden in the backyard but also maintain a stable of livestock and chickens. Their upper middle class neighbors invariably are aghast as their off-beat lifestyle — hence the title and the story.

Thanks to British TV and Channels 8 and 9, I think we're all becoming better neighbors with our English cousins.

Ostling to speak here

State Representative Ralph Ostling will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Charlevoix County Republicans on Thursday, February 19, at 7:30 in the County Building.

Ostling will talk about Governor Milliken's new tax proposal and there will be a question and answer period afterward.

Everyone is welcome to attend the meeting.

The Republicans are also sponsoring a Pancake Breakfast, to be held Sunday morning, February 22, from 8:30 to 12:30 at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix.

Costs will be $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Ruth Heilig is keeping plenty busy with taxes

At the time of year when most Charlevoix business people experience a slowdown in customer activity, Ruth Heilig is spending her busiest weeks.

Mrs. Heilig is a tax preparer for H & R Block. With Federal and State income Tax forms in taxpayers' hands shortly after the first of the year and due to be returned by April 15, January through April is the top season for Mrs. Heilig and H & R Block.

One day last week, Mrs. Heilig arrived at her office in the Market Mall at 8 a.m. to "get a few things done" and stayed until 8 p.m. During that time she worked on income tax returns for numerous clients, young and old, men and women, some with simple returns, others with more complicated returns.

Those who have substantial tax refunds due them are always among Mrs. Heilig's first clients in January. "They want to file their returns so they can get their refunds early," she explains.

Then, there are those whose incomes are very small and who file early in order to take advantage of allowances for housing, heating, insulation, or whatever else they might be entitled to.

But most of the returns which Mrs. Heilig prepares are for people who have more than a straight salary income and who itemize their expenses. "When we go over their records, we can usually find a lot of things they don't think about," Mrs. Heilig says about saving money for her clients.

However, even those with small incomes and simple forms can save money by having their returns prepared by professionals, Mrs. Heilig believes. "We've done so much for so many," is the way she puts it.

The cost of having income tax returns professionally prepared depends upon the number of forms required to make the return.

How does one become an income tax preparer? By going to classes conducted by colleges such as North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, and by H & R Block. After basic training, there are refresher courses each year to learn about new regulations. There are also seminars "all summer", according to Mrs. Heilig.

This year, there were few changes in income tax regulations -- the same exemptions and the same allowances -- but it is expected that 1981 will bring quite a few changes, Mrs. Heilig says.

Mrs. Heilig has been working for H & R Block for seven years. Before that, she was a decorator-saleswoman for Hess Furniture Company. "I like figures and I like people," is how he explains her change in careers.

It's been over 33 years since Mrs. Heilig came to Charlevoix. She was born in Cincinnati and lived for a while in Dayton, but Charlevoix is definitely her home now. She has a son who lives in Grand Haven and a daughter who lives in Rockford. Her husband, Arthur, died several years ago.

When not on the job, Mrs. Heilig plays golf and sews. The latter hobby results in a very well dressed business woman.

Vet widows may be eligible

There may be some service widows in the area who have become eligible for benefits but are not aware of the fact Ronald Geer, Counselor at the Charlevoix County Office of Veteran's Affairs, has announced.

The new Public Law 96-402 extends Survivor Benefit Plan (SBP) benefits for spouses of uniformed personnel who died on active duty before SBP was enacted and who were eligible for retirement at the time they died.

Many of the eligible widows, or widowers in some cases, can be traced through the spouse's military or Veterans Administration records but others cannot be located, Pentagon officials said.

Those who know potential beneficiaries may do them a good turn by suggesting they get in touch with a service finance center or veterans counselor to check on their entitlement.

Great game, terrible ending for Rayders against Petoskey

Statistically, the Charlevoix Rayder varsity basketball team came out even last week with one win and one loss. Emotionally, however, it was a different story.

On Tuesday, the Rayders had as good a chance as they could have hoped for to knock off the league-leading Petoskey Northmen. With 12 seconds to go, Charlevoix sat on a 55-52 lead.

A quick jump shot, a steal and two free throws by Petoskey, though, in the span of five seconds, stunned the Rayders and sent them to the lockers at the short end of a 56-55 final score, remarkably the same score by which Petoskey had beaten Charlevoix in their first meeting last month.

Even Friday night's 69-44 Homecoming victory over Rogers City could not totally make up for Tuesday night's disappointment.

Against the Northmen, Charlevoix played tough the entire game. They quickly recovered from a 6-0 Petoskey lead as the game got underway and were behind by only two, 14-12, when the first quarter ended. Despite two consecutive rejections of Dave Buday layups off the fast break, Charlevoix eventually got its running game in order.

Slath man Ross Carey provided the spark in the early going with eight of his 18 points scored in the first quarter on four field goals.

Jeff Drury picked up the torch for the Rayders in the second quarter scoring ten of his game total of 14 points in the second quarter while leading the Rayders to a 34-28 lead at intermission.

The third quarter saw both teams play about even with Charlevoix hanging onto a 46-42 lead when the fourth quarter began. Tough defense Rayders' and some nifty outside shooting by Gary Drury kept Charlevoix in control of the see-saw battle right to the final minute. Though tied at several points, Charlevoix never trailed.

With 22 seconds left, Buday was fouled and faced a one-and-one from the free throw line with the Rayders ahead 54-52. Despite two consecutive time-outs called by Petoskey coach Paul Van Wagoner to let Buday think about the crucial shot, Buday dropped the first one through the net for a seemingly comfortable three-point lead.

With the score 55-54, the Rayders inbounded the ball under the Petoskey basket but were rattled by the frantic press put on by the Northmen. Craig Klooster lost the ball to Northman Jim Alton and then fouled him under the baskey sending Alton to the line for two shots, both of which he made calmly.

Charlevoix had one last chance with seven seconds left but missed a jump shot to seal the win for Petoskey.

Other individual scorers for Charlevoix were Buday with seven, Gary Drury with 12 and Klooster with six. Only seven men saw action for the Rayders.

The junior varsity game was a fitting prelude to the varsity action as Petoskey won that one with some last minute heroics also.

Charlevoix led 47-46 with 30 seconds to go when Petoskey scored from the floor, got the ball back and hit two more free throws for a 50-47 victory.

The game was nip and tuck all the way with Petoskey taking the early momentum and a first quarter lead of 12-9. By halftime Charlevoix had climbed to within a point, 21-20. At the third quarter juncture, the score was knotted at 36, setting the stage for the fourth quarter thrills.

Chris Putman had an outstanding night for Charlevoix with 24 points on 11 field goals and a pair from the line. George Smith had 14, Fred Mielke 6 and Tim LaBlance three.

Friday night's contest provided Charlevoix with a more relaxed atmosphere in which to work as they cruised to an easy win over the last-place Rogers City Hurons.

The Rayders were never threatened. They led 15-10 after the first quarter, 35-19 at the half and had built a comfortable 59-28 cushion going into the fourth.

Several Rayders saw action in the Homecoming rout with Paul Hoffman and Gary Drury leading the individual scoring with 41 apiece. Jeff Drury had ten.

The JV Rayders were easy winners also as they crushed the Huron junior varsity squad 65-30. Putman again led the Charlevoix team with 19 points while Jon Superaw had ten, LaBlance, Smith and Mielke each had eight points.

Now 6-6 in the Michigan-Huron Shores standings, Charlevoix plays a non-conference game Tuesday night at Onaway and then travels to St. Ignace Friday for a conference game against the Saints.

Volleyball team bows in St. Ignace tourney

The Charlevoix volleyball team, after a had day on the court, failed to make the playoffs in the eight-team St. Ignace Invitational tournament Saturday.

St. Ignace went on to win its own tournament after defeating Rogers City 15-17, 16-14, 15-11 in the finals.

In the semi-finals, St. Ignace defeated Newberry 15-7, 15-3 and Rogers City defeated Boyne City 15-11, 15-5.

Boyne City then won in the consolation bracket after dumping Newberry 15-8, 15-7.

The standings after the elimination rounds found St. Ignace with 6-1 leading Pool A followed by Boyne City 4-2; Gaylord 2-4; Grayling 1-5.

In Pool B Rogers City had a 5-1 record; Newberry 3-3; Charlevoix and Petoskey 2-4 each.

Charlevoix had split with Petoskey and Rogers City and lost two games to Newberry in the qualifying rounds.

Freshmen also lose to Petoskey frosh

The Charlevoix freshmen basketball team dropped its game to Petoskey by a score of 48-32 last week according to Coach Chuck Wright.

The team will close out its 1980-81 schedule Thursday when St. Ignace comes to town for a 7 p.m. game.

In commenting on the game, Coach Wright said that he was pleased with the players' efforts. With 18 players seeing action, it is difficult to keep the tempo that it takes to win games Wright said.

Charlevoix got off to an 11-7 first quarter lead and trailed by only one point, 19-18, at halftime. However, with the lineup changing as he emptied the bench, the young Rayders trailed 34-25 going into the final period.

Dane Tollas paced the game for Charlevoix with 11 points. Tony Spadniolo had 16 and Gar Atchinson 12 points for Petoskey.

Rec. league basketball results

In B-League action February 11, Wojan Aluminum downed Carey Boot Shop 60-43. For Wojan's, Don Ward and Dave Smith led individual scoring with 14 apiece while Stan Martin had 12 and Butch Wagner 10. High individual scorer for the game was Ken Wesley of Carey's with 19. Pat Schaeffer had 18 for the Boot Shop.

Medusa turned Alray Cottages to stone by a 64-39 margin. Jim Parrish topped all individual scorers with 31 points for the plant; Dave Swanson had 14. Steve McClellan hit 14 for the losers.

First State Bank came out on top of Kit Carson 58-46 behind 13 points each from Ralph Doan and Jim Gels and 12 from Ike Boss. Dale Boss hit 18 for Carson's and was joined by Mike Crain with 18 and Conrad Klooster with 10.

Charlevoix will play at Boyne City at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday and close out the 1980 schedule with St. Ignace here the following Wednesday.

The three Charlevoix wrestlers who won championships at Saturday's district competition at Pine River were, from left, Ken Wojan, Alan Bergmann and Scott Golovich.

Three Rayder matmen advance to regional

The Charlevoix Rayders, with a team of nine wrestlers, qualified three for Class C regional competition and placed sixth among 14 teams participating in the Class C District meet at Pine River Saturday.

Hart placed first with a total of 214½ points followed by Mason County Central with 125; Farwell with 123; Hesperia, 98; Shelby, 67; Charlevoix, 65½; Grayling, 50. Boyne City was 13th with 11½ points.

Scott Golovich in the 167 pound class and beavyweight Ken Wojan placed first and Allan Bergmann, a sophomore, third in the 155 pound class. This was Wojan's second year in a row as a district champion.

Golovich pinned Roger Berndt of Mason County Central in 1:46 and won by decisions over Brian Langley of Clare and Allen Jaworski of Bensie Central. Golovich had to come from behind in the latter two matches according to Coach Greg Bryan.

Wojan pinned James Macci of Pine River in 1:06; Tom Shafer of Kalkaska in 3:02 and Steve MacGuire of Bensie Central in 1:05 and won a 5-1 decision over John Bohrman of Hart to take the heavyweight title.

Bergmann pinned Paul Matthews of Kalkaska in 3:35, lost his second match, and won a 6-2 decision over Blaine Berry of Farwell. Bryan said Bergmann lost to a wrestler who had won the state title in their class for two years.

The three will advance to competition at the regional level at Lakeview next Saturday. Others who participated were Jim Herriman (96), Mike Steele (112), Greg Andrick (119), Rick Gallant (126), who won his first match of the season at the meet, Tim Bruce (138) and Greg Whitley (145).

Wojan and Golovich, both seniors, are team captains. Tim Bruce is the third senior on the team.

Ken Wojan struggles for an escape.

Obituaries

LEWIS J. FOWLER

Funeral services for Lewis J. Fowler, 63, who died February 8 at his home on Six Mile Lake, East Jordan, were held Wednesday at the Hastings Funeral Home. Rev. David Willett of the Wesleyan Church officiated. Interment was in Southern Cemetery at Central Lake.

Mr. Fowler was born in Atlanta on January 8, 1917 and on September 25, 1937 was married to the former Eunice Norton in Charlevoix County. They had always resided on Nelson Road in South Arm Township. He was employed in construction work and later at Morweld Steel Products until he retired in 1976. Mrs. Fowler preceded him in death in 1971.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Leona Fuller, Mrs. Lawrence (Nellie) Maurer and Mrs. Donald (Shirley) Metcalf, all of East Jordan; two sons, LeRoy of Walloon Lake and James of East Jordan; seven grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Hazel Marlin of Beverly Hills, Fla., and Mrs. Mary Murphy of East Tawas and one brother, Roy, of East Jordan.

FRANCES M. DANLY

News of the death of a long-time summer resident, Mrs. Philo A. (Frances M.) Danly, 88, at Hinsdale Hospital, Hinsdale, Ill. on February 8 has been received here.

A funeral mass was celebrated at St. Isaac Jogues Church in Hinsdale Thursday. Interment was in Queen of Heaven cemetery at Hillsdale, Ill.

The family had owned a large farm on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix in Hayes Township for many years and maintained a summer home there. Mr. Danly preceded her in death.

Surviving are three sons, Bruce, Donald and John; 18 grandchildren; three great grandchildren and a sister.

GERALD E. OHMER

Funeral services for Gerald E. Ohmer, 54, retired U.S. Coastguardsman who had resided at Ellsworth, were held Tuesday at the Gorsline-Runciman Funeral Home in Lansing. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mr. Ohmer died Sunday at Lansing General Hospital where he had been a patient for five weeks.

A native of Lansing, he was a veteran of 24 years in the U.S. Coast Guard. He had retired as a Master Chief on June 1, 1970 and made his home in Norwood Township before moving to Ellsworth last year. He had served aboard the U.S.C.G.C. Sundew for several years.

Surviving are his wife, the former Pauline King; four daughters, Trudy of Spring Arbor, Mrs. James (Karen) Ludlow of Sealy, Tex., Mrs. Cecil (Brenda) Drost of Charlevoix, Mrs. Glenn (Bonnie) Mundell of Amarillo, Tex.; a son, Phillip, of East Jordan and five grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Albert Stone of Lansing; two brothers and three sisters.

Mrs. Ohmer's home address is Rt. 1, Box 120, Ellsworth. She is presently at ttttt Jerryson, Grand Ledge.

Cribbage tourney results

With nine and a half tables in play in the annual Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament, the Masons tallied 466 points to 247 by their opponents to take the lead by a 140 point margin, Ronald Geer, tournament secretary reports. Gordon Neff was the high scorer for the night with 961 points. Albert Russell had 943 for the Oddfellows.

The tournament will be played at the Masonic Lodge this week. All area cribbage players are invited to participate.

GEM WISE
JEWELRY FASHIONS, FACTS, FICTION

Colleen Tilsworth Manager
WEARING OF THE GREEN
If you don't wear green on St. Patrick's Day, you risk getting pinched. You don't like green clothing, you say? Well, there's another solution to keeping bruise-free on March 17 — wearing jewelry set with a green gemstone.
There are quite a few gems that will do the trick. Those that immediately come to mind are emerald, green garnet, tourmaline, jade and malachite. All these stones occur in a shade of green that St. Patrick would be proud of.
Most people are familiar with the lovely emerald. The gemstone has been prized for centuries. Cleopatra owned several emerald mines, and it's been said that Nero used an emerald to shade his eyes from the sun as he watched the games in the Colosseum.
Green garnet is a beautiful stone that sometimes resembles emerald. It's relatively new on the gem scene.
Tourmaline boasts rich color and is readily available in large sizes, whereas emerald and garnet are mostly found in small sizes.
Jade varies widely in color and transucency. It's not unusual to find a gem cut from a mottled piece of rough where green mingles with white or rust or some other interesting color.
Malachite is a popular fashion gem. An opaque stone, it is typically a grass green with light and dark green banding.
The values of the above stones range from several dollars a carat for fine malachite to thousands of dollars a carat for the finest emeralds. So everyone can afford some kind of anti-pinch insurance.

Gary Gleason trims excess material off a sail at his Spinnaker City workshop.

Thoughts are always of summer in the sailmaking business

by ANNE KELLY

Where does one look for local color around Charlevoix during the drab days of winter? Other than the ski slopes where pom-pommed hats and flashy attire provide relief from the whites and grays of the season, there is one spot right off Bridge St. where the bright colors of summer can be found year round.

At Spinnaker City, they think summer all the time and it shows in the brilliant shades of red, yellow and blue sewn into the sails made daily at the little Mason St. enterprise.

In what was previously the storage room for the Market Mall, Gary Gleason, sailmaker by trade, hangs his hat, slips off his shoes and trims his sails.

If sails are being made, can spring be far away? The busy sailmaking season, Gleason reports, is February through May when orders stream in on a regular supply and demand basis. However, Gleason is "in business" all year long with orders coming in sporadically during the summer months and with perhaps an added impetus around Christmas.

Who are the buyers? Gleason does a 90 percent mail order business. He advertises successfully in such trade publications as Sail, Cruising World and the Great Lakes Sailing Scanner. His mailing list consists currently of 700 to 800 names of boat owners from all over the country. Sails are ordered from as far away as Seattle, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Texas, Florida and Virginia.

The majority of boat owners he supplies own 25 to 35 foot Great Lakes crafts. The price of a completed sail for these customers can run anywhere from $100 to $1,000.

Gleason's sails are custom made. Interested buyers see one of his advertisements or have received word-of-mouth recommendations, then make an inquiry.

Taking into consideration the type of boat, specific mast and boom measurements, type of sail desired and color combination requested, Gleason uses a computer to formulate a pattern in which each piece of the sail to be sewn is geometrically designed. Every sailmaker has his own trade secrets in making his sails both serviceable and beautiful.

Other than an occasional slip-up on the color combination requested by a buyer, there is very little room for error in the sailmaking business. Any seamstress has to appreciate the painstaking process of sailmaking which, for instance, can involve sewing together some 50 pieces cut from as much as 100 yards of nylon in specific sequence for a spinnaker. The sailmaker cannot afford to make mistakes.

Gary Gleason has been a sailor himself since his Boy Scout days back in Oakridge, Tennessee. In high school, he and his sister travelled from regatta to regatta with their own 13-foot rig. It was not until graduation from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, however, that Gleason began his sailmaking career.

Serving as an apprentice of sorts for a sailmaking friend in Texas, Gleason got hooked on a trade that seemed to overpower any former plans he may have harbored as a result of his degree in engineering or his dabbling in the advertising business.

As with many residents of the area, Gleason had spent summers in Northern Michigan, several as sailing instructor at Camp Chick-Ami in Levering. From there he went to a sailmaking position with the Irish Boat Shop in Harbor Springs and, since the fall of 1979, has run his own business, Spinnaker City, in Charlevoix.

There are not many sailmakers in the area, the closest being in Traverse City, Harbor Springs, Holland and Mount Clemens. Yet Michigan ranks high on the list of states with the most registered sailboats.

But even without much nearby competition, Gleason realizes that sailboat owners recognize and appreciate quality work and that is what he wants to be known for.

If the success of Spinnaker City is any indication, his sailmaking talents have spoken quite well for themselves.

Gleason uses a leather hand guard called a "sailmaker's palm" to sew hardware onto the sail.

Woods to reign over Mardi Gras

Two well known local people heavily involved in community affairs, Ray and Nancy Wood, have been chosen as the King and Queen of the Mardi Gras celebration scheduled for this weekend in Charlevoix.

Mardi Gras organizer Dave Phillips emphasized this week that the Mardi Gras events will go on regardless of the weather. Only the skiing races, he said, may be changed to inner tubing or other hill sliding events. All other planned events will go on as scheduled since they do not require the snow that has disappeared lately from the area due to unseasonably high temperatures.

Designation of the Woods as the 1981 Mardi Gras royalty was made with note of their many civic contributions to the City of Charlevoix.

Ray is currently president of the City Council and was recently named president of the Northwest Shriners. Nancy is the director of the Charlevoix Big Brothers-Big Sisters, belongs to several area organizations, and was a 1979 recipient of the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association Liberty Bell award.

The crowning of Ray and Nancy Wood as Mardi Gras King and Queen will take place on Friday, February 27 at 10 p.m. at the Grey Gables with dancing to follow.

The Woods will also reign over Saturday night's festivities which include "Night of the Ball" costume dances at the Grey Gables and the Weathervane.

Winter Cup will try again

Warm weather that did away with the mounds of snow around Charlevoix last week also squelched plans for the annual Winter Cup celebration originally scheduled for February 21 and 22. Another try will be made to hold the Winter Cup, however, on the weekend of March 7 and 8. According to organizers who announced the postponement last Wednesday, the same schedule of events will be followed as was planned for the original Winter Cup weekend.

Last two basketball contest winners

Two final winners in the Courier Basketball Contest have been named and one of them, Harry Ladd, has become a familiar face in the winner's circle for the contest. Ladd, who had won prizes in three of the weekly contests this year, won first prize in last week's contest with two wrong on his entry. He receives a $10 gift certificate. Howard Struthers of Charlevoix was the second place winner with three wrong and a tiebreaker closest to the mark. Howard will get a $5 gift certificate for his efforts.

Opposition to low level jet flights heard

by TOM DAMMANN

Ernest Hemingway, who loved covering the major wars of the first half of this century, probably would be intrigued, though not neccessarily happy, with the simulated "Space Invader" type low level aerial combat exercises being planned for the air space above the streams, lakes and woods around here where he spent many youthful summers.

The impact of the loud jet fighters on wildlife and the increased hazard to private aircraft has raised the concern of many residents of this area, environmentalists and state officials. A spokesperson for DNR Director Dr. Howard Tanner reports that several phone calls and letters of protest have flooded Tanner's office since announcement of the new combat training routes.

The exercises will involve pilots of the Ohio Air National Guard's 180th Tactical Group operating from Toledo's Express Airport. All they need to begin flights is approval from the Department of Defense which, in turn, is seeking approval from Michigan authorities.

Such approval was hanging fire as of Monday when the Michigan Environmental Review Board met in Lansing and asked for an indefinite postponement of the flights which were scheduled to begin April 14. The board also asked that the appropriate military authorities and state officials get together to restructure policy on the use of air space over Michigan and that the Aeronautics Commission and Environmental Review Board be the reviewing agencies for any future applications by the military for use of air space.

The Ohio Air National Guard wishes to use the U.S. Air Force strategic training range at Bay Shore which is capable of radar bomb scoring and can set up electronically simulated counter measures.

Capt. William Hickey, 180th Attack Group Air Space Manager, told a telephone interviewer that the jets would approach from the southwest, cross over Lake Charlevoix and Horton Bay and then swing east over Walloon Lake, ironically following a path over some of Hemingway's most frequented spots.

According to Lt. Col. Robert J. Rajewski, commander of the U.S. Air Force 61st Command Evaluation Group at Bay Shore, the Bay Shore installation has served for the past 15 to 20 years as an integral part of training exercises for Air Force B-52s and FB-111 bombers, flying from all over the continent, as well as Royal Air Force Vulcan bombers that fly all the way from the British Isles.

At present, the Ohio Air National Guard is using the same military operating area which, since last summer, is largely confined to the Lake Michigan waters between Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

But Capt. Hickey explained that because the current Air Force philosophy is that the decisive air battles of the next war will be fought over land at altitudes below 1,000 feet, which is under radar range, the pilots need low level combat training over land.

In several telephone interviews last week, Hickey indicated that the local terrain is very similar to that of Northern Europe which is where his unit would be sent in case of war.

Hickey said that the A7 jet attack fighters would travel at "strictly subsonic speeds" of about 420 knots, or 440 miles per hour, and at levels "no lower than 500 feet".

He said there would be an average of three flights of two or three jets each week during daylight hours.

Actually, the jets would be attending training flights over Michigan National Guard bombing ranges in the Huron National Forest near Grayling which is the nesting area of the nearly extinct Kirtland's warbler. Hickey said that, at the suggestion of federal and state environmental officials, the planes will fly no lower than 1,000 feet over the Grayling area during the endangered warbler's nesting season from May 15 to August 15.

Another concern mentioned has been the proximity of the Big Rock nuclear plant to the air routes. In a 1971 mishap, a B-52 plunged into the lake seconds before it would have struck the plant prompting the Pentagon to order military flights to keep at least a three mile distance from the plant. Last summer the order was ammended to keep the training missions solely over water.

It is presently uncertain as to what impact Monday's action by the Environmental Review Board to seek postponement of the flights will have. State officials told a reporter last week that even if the state opposes the flights in principle, it may have to accede if they are proven vital to national defense.

Capt. Hickey said Friday that, in view of the new questions he expected at Monday's hearing, he would "conduct a new assessment of the proposed flight corridor" before making recommendations to the Defense Department, which is where the final decision will be made.

Bay Shore site's days are numbered

By PEG OHLE

The long-rumored departure of the Air Force's 61st Command Evaluation Group from Bay Shore is now scheduled to start in July, 1981 and continue over a three-year period.

This information was relayed to the County Board of Commissioners last week by Commissioner John Haggard, in whose District the Group is located.

In fact, Haggard said he had learned that the Air Force, through its Barksdale Air Force Base in Louisiana, is already in the process of relocating some equipment and/or personnel from Bay Shore.

The move was confirmed Monday by Lt. Col. Robert J. Rajewski, commander of the Bay Shore installation, who told the Courier plans were to phase out the site completely in fiscal year 1983 which would mean the major moving job could begin as early as October, 1982.

Haggard estimates that through the payroll of approximately 80 Air Force personnel and other monies generated by the Group (which is commonly called the Bay Shore Radar Station), the installation is worth approximately $1.6 million annually to the area.

"We would have no objection if, to save money, the Air Force closed up the installation and abandoned it," Haggard said. "But if they are just going to move it to the sunbelt where the officers can play golf all year long, we object. Unemployment and the economic climate here is too serious to permit that."

Haggard then submitted a resolution to the Board of Commissioners asking that before any more plans for moving are considered, the Air Force be required to provide an Economic Impact Statement to this Board.

The resolution was passed and copies directed to the President, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Air Force, the Michigan congressional delegation, the Governor, and state representatives.

New sign ordinance to be aired at hearing

by DAVE KNIGHT

One of the items on the agenda for this Monday's City Council meeting shows "signs" of becoming a lively topic of discussion.

The March 2 meeting, starting at 8 p.m. in the new council chambers, will include a public hearing on a proposed sign ordinance recently devloped by the City Planning Commission.

The proposed measure, outlined in a 13-page document, would replace a four-page ordinance now on city books that has been labeled as too vague, too permissive and basically uneffective.

City Manager James Brinker said last week that he has long been in favor of a new sign law because of the impracticality of the present ordinance. Brinker said that the only violations he has encountered under the present law have involved failures to obtain permits. There are currently, he said, very few restrictions for any type of sign in the city and that the law should be tightened.

Specific sections of the proposed ordinance that have raised some concerns among local businessmen include a restriction to ten percent of the window area for any window sign. This would prohibit the large signs found in the windows of many area grocery stores, drug stores and service stations.

Said Planning Commission Chairman David Strawbridge in defending the commission's inclusion of the window sign provision, "We felt that windows should be used as windows and signs should be used as signs."

Also prohibited under the ordinance would be all translucent signs lit from the inside and all portable signs. No signs larger than 36 square feet would be allowed in the city except for wall signs which could be as large as 72 square feet. The ordinance includes a complex chart of which types of signs would be allowed in which zoning areas.

Planning Commission member Joe Morris, who was the only member to vote against presenting the ordinance to the council, hopes to see the sign law returned to the commission.

Said Morris, "I think we are moving a little too fast on this. The business community should be given much more of a chance to review this ordinance so it is completely understandable to them before the council acts on it." Morris was one of a committee including June Cross and Clem Olach who began work on a new sign law about two years ago. Most of the language in the proposed ordinance was gleaned from other communities' sign laws.

Opposition to the ordinance also came from local sign contractor Fritz Allard who said, "The regulations they are proposing, I think, involve many things the city should not be concerning itself with. They are too petty and would only be restrictive too businesses in Charlevoix. I think people want less interference in how they run their business right now."

Strawbridge said that the commission felt strongly about improving the image of the city through more control of signs.

He said, "Our intention is to make the city as pleasing as possible and and one of the best ways we can do it is by improving the use of signs."

Char-Em receives gift of materials from March of Dimes

The Northern Michigan Chapter of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation has donated a set of educational materials to the Alternative Education Program of the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

The Pre-parenthood Education Program Kit deals with proper nutrition for good health and also with the need for pregnant women to eat right so that their unborn child can develop normally. The kit includes several comic-style books, three posters dealing with nutritional needs, a time line chart showing how a fetus develops; and some cards that outline important nutritional information.

"One of the strengths of this program," says teacher Kay McDowell, "is the way the information is presented. The comic book format gets the attention of the students and encourages them to read the material."

The Alternative Education Program gives the opportunity to continue getting an education to pregnant teens, teen mothers, and teen fathers, who otherwise might not be able to continue their education.

The March of Dimes is dedicated to the prevention of birth defects, especially low birth weight, which is one of the leading forms of birth defects.

Those desiring additional information about the Alternative Education Program may receive it by calling 547-9947. More information about the March of Dimes, birth defects, or the Pre-parenthood Education Program may be obtained by calling Ron Knapp at the March of Dimes, 347-7752.

Girl Scout Fun Day to be held at Whiting Park this weekend

The North Association of the Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council will sponsor a Fun Day at Whiting Park Saturday, Feb. 28 for not only Girl Scouts in the fourth and fifth grades but all girls in these two grades.

The event will be ehld at Whiting Park on the south shore of Lake Charlevoix and will be attended by girls from Antrim, Kalkaska, Emmet and Charlevoix Counties and their leaders.

The fee for the day of fun will be $4 for scouts who can also use 1980 cookie credits for this purpose. and $5 for non-scouts. The fee for these girls will include the cost of insurance.

The day will begin at 11 a.m. and will include a full program of outdoor fun which will include cross country skiing which will be taught (equipment may be rented) and ice skating on Lake Charlevoix with Gwen Anderson as volnnteer instructor.

There will also be downhill innertubing, a snowman making contest, snow games and a campfire lunch.

The campfire lunch will feature "stone soup". Everyone is asked to bring a bandfaf of chopped vegetables, noodles or rice for the stone soup. The event will last until 3 p.m.

Those attending are asked to bring their dunk bag with soup bowl, spoon and cup; extra socks, mittens and slacks; ice skates; ski equipment which can also be rented; something to "dress" the troop snowman and wear warm clothes and a hat or a cap.

Further information can be obtained from Jill Washburn at 547-4202 or Jan Wiser at 547-5333 to register for the Fun Day.

Local students do well on state exams

Charlevoix students did well on the State Assessment tests given to fourth, seventh and tenth graders in September according to results received recently from the state.

In fact, in al categories, Charlevois students were above state averages, The averages, it was explained,, represent the number of studenis who meet the criteria set by the state. It was also pointed out that the percentages include all students from those who might be considered gifted to the below average students whoop represent only a small percentage of the total.

Attention was also called to the fact that there was a revision of fourth grade math to include areas not yet taught in the material presently available through the first three grades. Thus, this year's test results will be used as a bench mark to measure the basic skills achievement in future years.

Locaf graphs show improvement in all areas except in the fourth grade where math showed a marked decrease which was anticipated and a minor decrease in reading. All other areas showed an upward trend.

Test results were the following:

In math, the average scores for the fourth grade were 73.7 locally,, 72.3 statewide; seventh grade, 63.3 locally, 58.7 statewide; tenth grade, 63.6 locally, 57.7 statewide.

In reading; the average scores for the fourth grade were 77.8 locally, 70.7 statewide; seventh grade, 86.9 locally, 78.7 statewide; tenth grade, 78.5 locally, 73.3 statewide.

All fourth and seventh graders have taken the State Board Math and Reading tests since 1969 while this marks only the second year that all tenth graders have been tested.

The program was established by the Michigan Legislature for the purpose of providing parents, communities and the Legislature with information about basic skills achievement of Michigan students. The tests are given in September of year and students are tested on what they learned during the three previous years of schooling.

Studenis who achieve 75 percent of the objectives on the tests are considered "satisfactory". Students who achieve less than 25 percent are judged to have learning problems.

Test results are discussed with the students and made available to parents.

As a result of the tests, Charlevois schools make every effort to place emphasis on the students' weak points so he or she may better their averages during the ensuing years of study.

Wayne Barnett sworn in as new magistrate

District Judge David W. Fershee last week swore in Wayne Barnett as Magistrate in the 90th District Court.

Barnett, 32, comes to the Court from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, where he worked for sis and a half years, first as a Communications Officer, then as a Deputy Sheriff.

Barnett was born in Petoskey but grew up in Detroit, where his father was a police officer. He is a 1966 graduate of Cody High School in Detroit and a veteran of three years in the United States Signal Corps with two tours of duty in Vietnam.

Following military service, Barnett worked as an electrician, then decided to follow in his father's footsteps as a law enforcement officer. To that end, he studied in the police school at Lake Michigan Community College in Berrien County.

Barnett, and his family – wife Deborah Ann and children Scott Michael, eight and Tracy Lynn, four – live on a farm off Flagg Road near East Jordan, where they raise beef cattle, pigs, chickens and geese.

In his new position, Barnett will have various duties, including issuing arrest warrants and search warrants, setting bail bonds, accepting pleas, presiding over traffic hearings, and performing marriages. He will work closely with former magistrate Patricia Conkle, who is now Court Administrator.

In commenting on his new position, Barnett said, "I will enjoy the challenge. The job will be different from what I have been doing because it has to do with the judicial aspects of the law instead of law enforcement. It's a real opportunity."

Don O'Brien, 11, is shown above with his poster that won first prize in the 10-12 year-old category of the Market Mall "What Mardi Gras Means to Me" poster contest. Don won ten free lessons from Ceramic's Fun. Other winners were, in the 6-7 year-olds, Chanie Potter, 7, 1st prize ($10 gift certificate from Wickerville Station) and Heather Keller, 7, second prize (a mug from Charlee's), Amy Shupert, 7, and Willie Habel, 7, received honorable mention. In the 8-9 year-olds, Randy Zipp, 9, won first prize (a haircut at P.S. Added Touch and a stuffed animal from Wickerville) and Travis Conti, 9, won second prize (a mug from Charlee's); David Salmonson, 9, and Mike Wise, 9, received honorable mention. In the 10-12 year-olds, Tammy Zbinovec, 10, won second prize ($5 cash from Kathrine's) and honorable mention went to Sean Henne, 11, and Charles Britton, 10. Judges were Kathy Cornell, Gary Miller and Howard Struthers. Over 200 posters were entered and are on display at the Market Mall through Saturday, February 28.

Charlevoix area historian and gunsmith Bob Burns visited activity hour at the Charlevoix Public Library Saturday to tell the children attending something about the settlers' way of life and show them some of their tools. Burns is shown above with his buckskin outfit, coonskin cap and some handmade black powder weapons. Saturday's was the last in the most recent activity series at the library.

Ironton Ferry lost money in 1980

The picturesque Ironton Ferry probably lost some of its charm for County officials last week.

County Commissioner Ralph Harmon reported to fellow commissioners that the ferry operated at a deficit of $17,543.57 during 1980. Revenues were $38,828 and expenses were $56,341.57.

Harmon also reported that 41,300 cars and trucks used the ferry during the year.

These figures compare with a deficit of $9,449.99 during 1979, when 37,987 cars and trucks used the ferry.

During recent years, the fare for ferry crossing has been $1, or .75 cents when booklets of 10 tickets are purchased.

The deficit will be paid half by Charlevoix County and half by the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Secret reports a bad idea

Legal jousting continues in the matter of suspended Charlevoix Policeman Patrick Martin and a settlement through arbitration does not seem imminent in the near future. In discussion of the case at last week's City Council meeting, however, a question was raised that bears directly on how city business will be conducted in the future and that deserves some immediate attention.

A request was made on behalf of Martin to release the contents of a written report by City Manager James Brinker to the City Council containing Brinker's frank assessment of the case. Brinker, with the support of City Attorney Frank Hoffman, argued that the report was of a confidential nature, contained material that could jeopardize the arbitration process and should not be released.

In this instance, the refusal to disclose the report appears justifiable under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act, which exempts disclosure of records that constitute invasion of privacy and that "deprive a person of the right to a fair trial or impartial administrative adjudication".

Brinker and Hoffman went a step further, however, and asked the council to designate all future reports to the council by the city manager as exempt from public disclosure.

This, I think, is unwarranted and creates a dangerous threat to the public's right to know how city business is conducted.

Surely the city manager must be able to communicate to council members candidly and off the record when circumstances dictate. The intent of the Freedom of Information Act was never to interfere with this type of dialogue. To throw a blanket over all "city manager's reports to the council", however, is much too broad and ambiguous an action to take to protect this right of the city manager.

Such an action only invites abuse.

I would hate to see the council making decisions regularly on the basis of secret reports from the city manager's office. It might make the jobs of the city manager, the city attorney and probably the council much easier but it would shut the people out of the process and that is not what the democratic system is all about.

The council should avoid any comprehensive policy regarding disclosure of city managers' reports. If the city manager wants to write reports, memos, intra-office correspondence, etc., that is his privilege but each should stand on its own merits under the Freedom of Information Act. The law clearly defines what subject matter can and should be accessible and that which should be private.

Advisory reports from the city manager, a public official, should be open until proven exempt; not the other way around.

Letters: Don't change zoning

To the Editor:

We oppose the attempt to ammend the reduction of the present Charlevoix Township Zoning requirement that there be a minimum of 25 acres for a planed unit development. The reduction of from 25 acres to one acre, as proposed by potential developers of the property located at 711 Park Avenue, Charlevoix Township, destroys the intent and purpose of the zoning ordinance. We also oppose rezoning or re-classifying that property from residential to planned unit development.

We want to see our neighborhood and the community in which we live and reside, retain its character, uniqueness and liveability. We do not oppose condominiums or developements, but we do not feel that full time resitents of our community should be compelled to change their neighborhoods and manners of living solely for the purpose of aiding real estate developers and part time residents. We choose to live in this part of Charlevoix Township because of its family neighborhood character. The zoning ordinance as presently written and established, protects us, in requiring a minimum of 25 acres for a planned unit development.

A present attempt to allow this type of development which should include commercial as well as multiple residential units, has been scheduled for hearing before the Charlevoix Township Zoning Board on Wednesday, March 4, 1981 at 7:30 p.m., the Charlevoix County Planning Commission on March 5, 1981 at 8 p.m. and before the Charlevoix Township Board on Monday, March 9, 1981 at 7:30 p.m.

We urge our neighbors and fellow voters who share our concern to contact the members of these boards and attend these meetings to voice their beliefs.

We'll all remember the thaw of '81

IF ANYONE ever writes another history of the City of Charlevoix, I hope they see fit to mention the third week of February, 1981 — the year of the unprecedented spring thaw.

On Monday we started our 10th day of above-freezing temperatures, right on the heels of two of the wildest, snowiest weeks Charlevoix has ever experienced.

Yet the towering banks and drifts of St. Valentine's Day are now virtually gone; the hills are splotchy; three-quarters of Round Lake is now open water; and the ice on Lake Michigan has all but disappeared, with the exception of drift ice along the shore.

And it's still February!

I was surprised at the number of bicycles and basketballs that emerged from mothballs over the weekend as kids took advantage of the unseasonably warm weather.

Can winter possibly be behind us? Will we really slip through March and April without another snow storm? It could happen, but it's not very likely. A fresh storm already is brewing in the Midwest and some of our worst blizzards in the past have come just before the vernal equinox.

But regardless of what's in store, the rest of the winter should be a snap because we now have room to accomodate any new accumulation of snow. A week ago the banks on each side of my driveway were so massive that I couldn't reach the top with my snow shovel. But the spring-like weather has melted them back to a manageable size and I now have enough "storage capacity" until spring arrives for real.

DID YOU WATCH Ronald Reagan's economic report to Congress last Wednesday? I thought he gave a fine talk about what the country must do to survive the current economic maelstrom. He didn't try to scare anyone; he simply told it like it is — and that was scary enough.

I only wish he had stressed more strongly the fact that unless the burden of government spending is reduced, we will soon find ourselves with no money for essential social programs. And when the till runs dry, things will really get rough for everyone.

Of course, Mr. Reagan's critics already are climbing all over him to save this program or that program and it is no secret that the administration's austerity offensive will be a hard pill to swallow for many members of Congress — without the support and encouragement of the American people.

The only part of the president's program that gives me qualms is his suggestion that rent subsidies be reduced, but I don't know yet just how sweeping this proposal will be. As you know, millions of elderly Americans have sold their homes and are living in subsidized rental housing — paying something like one-quarter of their monthly income as rent, regardless of how much they make. The balance is kicked in by the federal government. I do not think it would be wise — or even legal — for the federal government to change the terms of its contract with them, but this may not even be what the president has in mind.

IT MUST HAVE been embarrassing for the nation's dedicated teachers to have the National Education Association (NEA) come out four-square against the president's program, even before Mr. Reagan addressed Congress. We all know, of course, that the president doesn't look too favorably upon the battalions of paper shufflers in the Department of Education, most of whom never come face-to-face with a classroom student during the course of the school year.

There is little doubt our schools could function almost as well without them, since they did so long before the DOE was organized.

I for one found the NEA's stark defense of the status quo a little surprising, because educators — of all people — should know the nation is riding for a painful fall unless the economy is reined back with all possible haste.

What's in a name?

by Eric Larson

"What's in a name? That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

Juliet to Romeo

Shakespeare may have been only half right - especially when I consider the plight of us all. We received our names at birth and, like it or not, we are stuck with them. Thank goodness "Eric" is a good Swedish name or my old-country Upper Peninsula relatives would have disowned me or my parents.

Perhaps the importance of a name first dawned on me when I was a sophomore in high school. My locker partner was dubbed "Stone Wall". After the first semester ended, I finally found the courage to ask the inevitable question, "Is 'Stone' your nickname?" He answered quite nonchalantly, "No, 'Stone' is my real name but at least it's better than brick."

It might be said that a name makes the man. Maybe that's why Leslie Townes Hope changed his to Bob. And whoever would have called rugged John Wayne by his original...Marian. Or could Frances Gumm sing "Over the Rainbow" like Judy Garland did?

But then there is Engelbert Humperdinck...somewhat of a paradox.

According to author Favius Friedman (another name to remember), fashion in names changes over the years. In 1948, Robert and Linda were the most popular names for newborn babies. Thirty years later, in 1978, Jason and Jennifer were No. 1 in the parent polls with Zachary and Kimberley coming in as a close second.

One thing you can be sure of; John and Mary are still going to hang in there as part of our traditional American nomenclature. And why not? Mom's apple pie still tastes great and the Chevy still runs well. I expect the same will hold true for good ol' John and Mary.

All this rambling has reminded me of a balding, forty-ish school principal whose face fell when he first looked at his newborn son.

"What are you going to name him?" asked the attending nurse.

"Theophilus," the father replied.

"Why on earth would you name him that?" she questioned.

"Because," the school principal muttered, "he's Theophilus baby I ever saw."

Fourth Wednesday Forum

The Fourth Wednesday Forum is a monthly feature in the Courier that provides those with thoughts on nuclear power and its relationship to this area a chance to air their views. The deadline for the next Forum is Friday, March 20.

Nuclear subsidies not out of line

A recent article called attention to a new but as yet unpublished report that says the atomic power industry has received $40 billion in U.S. government subsidies. The story, syndicated nationally and distributed in Michigan by the major news services, cited a study that singled out the nuclear power industry as a recipient of government largesse. Not only was the size of the subsidy overstated, the study falsely implies that government aid given to the nuclear industry was disproportionate.

In fact, the federal government subsidy for civilian nuclear power development has been less than $10 billion. Three quarters of the funds cited in the news reports went for defense department programs.

All energy development programs have received about $150 billion in federal subsidies over the years. The civilian nuclear power program has received about seven percent of the total. The oil industry has received about $80 billion in subsidies; coal industry, $7 billion; hydropower, $17 billion and natural gas, $15 billion.

This is not to mention the $88 billion in loan guarantees that Congress has approved for synthetic fuel development, a potential subsidy that received widespread news coverage in Michigan.

Furthermore, the private nuclear power industry has responded to the government's $10 billion in subsidies with a private commitment of nearly $200 billion - which is about a 20-1 response so far to the government investment. This involvement by the nuclear industry - which includes a multi-billion dollar investment in nuclear energy by Consumers Power Company alone - is evidence of the private sector's faith in nuclear energy as a viable energy source.

It should be obvious to your readers that no modern industry involving sophisticated and complex technology could be brought to the commercial stage without public support. The research and development phases of modern technologies are expensive. Look to the jet airplane and computers as examples of technology that was refined using government funds ultimately for great public benefit.

Americans are benefitting greatly from the federal government's foresight in helping nuclear power development. Michigan residents will realize the enormous impact of that action as the price of oil continues to skyrocket and increasing concern is registered over the environmental effects of energy alternatives.

John J. Keane
Region Public Affairs Director
Consumers Power Company

Why press on?

Sometimes I feel a grudging respect for Consumers Power Company. Like warriors having lost the war they refuse to accept defeat. In folly or instinct, like kings of old, they order an offensive in defiance of logic, resources and the facts screaming in from the world around them. I guess it's always been kind of American to value that last-ditch stubbornness. But it's also old-fashioned Yankee dollars and cents to see that it is just plain dumb.

So what does this all have to do with the big utility that provides our electrical and gas needs? I am speaking about the offensive that Consumers has launched around their two nuclear power plants being constructed in Midland.

Within the past three weeks Consumers Power has found their way into print or on the airwaves either defending their nuclear construction or attacking those that oppose it: First came the letter to the opinion page by the utility's regional manager defending the federal government's heavy subsidizing of the nuclear industry, (see elswhere on this page), then the statements by John Selby, chief executive officer for the utility, condemning "no growth extremists" and environmental activists; and just recently at least one local newspaper headlined: Consumers puts NRC on defensive, a reference to the utility's tactics during the soil settlement hearings.

Let's examine the nuclear reality out there and perhaps my description of Consumers' efforts will be clearer.

Fifteen nuclear facilities were cancelled after the accident at Three Mile Island, and no new reactors have been ordered in two years. There is still no satisfactory solution to either high or low level radioactive waste storage and the cost of mothballing and entombment of decommissioned facilities are proving very unattractive. In addition, and certainly more devastating to our local utility, the demand for electrical energy has decresed while the costs of construction, regulation and mismanagement have risen.

Many utilities are presently in financial trouble. As Forbes Magazine puts it, the utility industry is suffering the effects of planning mistakes it made in the early Seventies when many companies started major construction projects in anticipation of of seven percent growth that never materialized and now are struggling to complete unaffordable construction programs. The Wall Street Journal, barometer of business and investor views, expressed their concern in 1980, "Nuclear power, which needs all the friends it Even as John Selby puts down "no-growth advocates" people continue to conserve and make the construction in Midland unneccessary. Even as Consumers builds they sell off huge ares of their land and cut down on customer services to pay for construction financing. Even as they purchase the expensive service of Chicago lawyers to brow beat witnesses with legalese and rudeness at the soil settlement hearings, there are reported cracks found in the reactor cooling tank reisted to soil settlement.

Now come on friends, I appreciate the underdog too, but we are talking about our health, our safety and our money and it's just Yankee horse sense to know when it's time to say uncle.

Weddings

Janis-Baldridge

Gail A. Janis and Bobby Wayne Baldridge, Petty Officer, First Class, U.S. Coast Guard, exchanged their wedding vows at a quiet ceremony at the First Congregational Church Saturday, Feb. 14.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Allison of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baldridge of Brownsville, Tex.

Rev. Austin Regier officiated at the single ring service in the presence of immediate families and close friends.

For her wedding, the bride chose a burgundy velour suit and beige accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations around red roses.

Mrs. Clyde Allison served as her sister's-in-law matron of honor. She wore a muted floral print skirt and matching blouse and carried a bouquet similar to the bride's.

Clyde Allison, twin brother of the bride, assisted the bridegroom as best man.

A wedding reception followed at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Allison, in Hampton Village.

The couple will reside in Charlevoix.

The bride is employed at Duffy's of Charlevoix. The bridegroom is stationed here aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite.

Wedding guests were present from Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Traverse City.

Ditlow-Stewart

Kari Beth Ditlow became the bride of Craig David Stewart in a candlelight ceremony on Valentine's Day at the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ditlow of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. David Stewart of Ellsworth.

The Reverend Dan Minor officiated at the ceremony, during which Mrs. Sally Saunders, organist, played "Laura's Theme" and a traditional wedding march.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory gauze gown, fashioned with a high neck, Schiffli embroidered yoke, pleated bodice and sleeves, and Chapel train. Her headpiece was an ivory hat covered with pearl-accented veiling, and she carried a single red long-stem rose.

Terri Johnson served the bride as maid of honor; Kyle Ditlow, sister of the bride, was her bridesmaid; and Laura Reibel, cousin of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. They wore identical floor-length gowns of garnet red Qiana, blouson styled with a high neck, and featuring macrame insert, and long sleeves. They carried single ivory long-steam roses.

Ron Houtman served the bridegroom as best man; his brother, Keith, was groomsman, his brother, Kevin, was junior groomsman; and the bride's brothers, Kurt and Kip, were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ditlow wore a creme-colored gown of Silesta with long sleeves and flared skirt. Mrs. Stewart wore a two-piece gown of textured creme and wine. Their corsages were made of deep red rosebuds

Following the marriage ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pesce acted as master and mistress of ceremony; Cathy Butz served the punch; Linda Ditlow, sister-in-law of the bride, cut the cake which was made by the bridegroom's mother; and April Meadows presided over the guest book.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at their home the evening before the wedding.

Following a wedding trip through southern Michigan, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix. The bride is a recent graduate of the Petoskey Beauty Academy and is presently employed by The Lodge. The bridegroom is assistant manager of the Holiday Station in Charlevoix.

Guests came to the wedding from Grand Rapids, Fremont, Grant, Dearborn, Brighton, Royal Oak, Troy, Lincoln Park, and Traverse City.

Lounsbury-Wilson

Laurie Ann Lounsbury, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Lounsbury of Sequanota Club, Charlevoix and River Forest, Illinois, became the bride of David Randolph Wilson on January 17. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson of Sequanota Club and Tenafly, New Jersey.

The ceremony was held in the First Presbyterian Church of River Forest, folowed by a reception and dinner at the Oak Park Country Club.

Attending the bride were her sister, the Matron of Honor, Mrs. Peter Trantow, and bridesmaids, Virginia Huette of St. Louis and Julia Randolph of Detroit. Junior bridesmaids were Laura and Lisa Wilson of Tenafly, New Jersey and flower girls were Heidi and Laura Trantow, nieces of the bride.

The groom's attendants were Commander Howard Loving of the U.S. Navy, his Best Man, and his groomsmen were Dr. Ben Lounsbury, the bride's brother, Peter Trantow, David Loving and Charles Ervin, III. The bridal party was entirely comprised of relatives and friends from Sequanota Club.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown which was trimmed at the neckline with Brussels lace from her grandmother's wedding gown. The couple spent their honeymoon on St. Thomas and are now at home in New York City.

The bride graduated from Oak Park River Forest High School and the University of Arizona at Tuscon. Her husband is a graduate of Brown University, Providence, R.I. and received his Masters degree from New York University, Graduate School in Business Administration.

Hospital Guild nears full pledge payment

The Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital has paid another $2,000 on its $15,000 pledge to the hospital's expansion and renovation fund according to Mrs. Carl Gunn, Guild president.

At the same time, she said the Guild expects to fulfill its obligation this year. The pledge was to be paid within five years. It is likely it will be paid within three years.

Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, addressed the meeting explaining the operation of the hospital and what the additional facilities will mean.

The chaplain service introduced recently is well accepted and appreciated by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and other denominations not members of the association.

Diana Rogers, who heads the nursing staff, will conduct a tour of the new addition at the April 13 meeting of the Guild.

V-Ball team makes good showing

The Charlevoix girls volleyball team advanced to the semi-finals of the Rogers City Invitational tournament and then lost to Tawas to go into the consolation bracket where they lost a second time, this time to Kalkaska.

In the semi-finals Charlevoix lost to Tawas by scores of 13-15, 15-8, 11-15 and, in the consolation bracket, to Kalkaska 10-15, 9-15.

In the second division of the semi-finals, Rogers City defeated Kalkaska 15-12, 15-11 and then took the title in their own tournament by dumping Tawas 15-6, 11-15, 11-15.

The tournament had attracted a total of eight teams but before the day of the tournament one team withdrew. As a result, teams of Pool A found themselves playing a total of six matches to four each for the teams in Pool B.

Charlevoix and Kalkaska, with like standings of 5-1, advanced to the semi-finals while Rogers City (4-0) and Tawas (2-2) were the winners in Pool B. Grayling had a 2-4 record and Petoskey 0-6 in Pool A and Wiltemore-Prescott 0-4 in Pool B.

Coach Mary Gengle said Mel Kerridge was the top server, Teresa Noirot the top spiker and Kerridge and Brenda Buchanan the top defensive players.

The girls volleyball team won a doubleheader from Boyne City Wednesday by scores of 15-4, 15-7 and 15-10, 14-16, 15-9 to bring their record to six wins and four losses.

Top servers in the first game Wednesday night were Teresa Noirot and Mell Kerridge, spikers, Kerridge and Doretta Anderson and defensive player, Noirot.

In the second game, Noirot and Kerridge were the outstanding servers; Kerridge, Noirot and Anderson, spikers and Margo Smith and Anderson, defensive players.

Charlevoix's junior varsity lost its single game 16-18, 5-15, 9-15. LeeAnn Struthers and Karolyn Bearss were the top servers, Missy Walker, spiker and Treasure Drost, defensive player.

Saints avenge early loss to Rayders

As the Michigan - Huron Shores season wanes, the Charlevoix Rayders find themselves fighting for a .500 conference record going into the last game.

Last week, the Rayders split again but lost the game that counted most, a conference match up with St. Ignace, by a 60-57 score. Tuesday's action involved a non-conference game with Onawat which the Rayders won handily 75-55.

At Onaway, Charlevoix established dominance early jumping to a 20-8 lead by the end of the first quarter. Another 20-plus performance in the second quarter kept the Rayders ahead comfortably 41-27 at the half. By the time the third quarter was over, Charlevoix led 63-47 giving Coach Dave Moyer a chance to test his bench strength and give a look to some of next year's prospects.

Jeff Drury led all individual scorers in the game with 18 points for the Rayders. Craig Klooster had 14, Gary Drury 10 and Dave Buday nine for Charlevoix.

The Rayder junior varsity squad was taken to the mountain in a much closer game but pulled out the victory 50-49 over the Onaway understudies.

George Smith canned 14 points for Charlevoix and Chris Putman 11; both scored seven points apiece in the crucial fourth quarter. Other high scorers for Charlevoix were Tim LaBlance with nine and Jeff Trimper with eight.

The Rayder jv's fought a tough battle from the outset and were behind 15-14 when the first quarter ended. Onaway came on strong in the second quarter and established a 32-21 lead going into the locker room at the half. Charlevoix came right back in the third quarter with 15 points to cut Onaway's lead to 39-36 and then fought to tie finish for the one-point victory.

At St. Ignace, the Charlevoix varsity started out strongly and led the Saints 18-14 in the first quarter. They tacked on another 18 points in the second quarter and went into halftime with a 36-31 lead.

The Saints came out fighting in the third quarter and, by the time the fourth quarter was ready to start, had pulled themselves up to the Rayders and were tied 46-46. In the last stanza, the Saints canned eight of 14 free throws enroute to their 60-57 win which avenged a 73-65 loss to the Rayders at Charlevoix in the two teams' first meeting of the season.

Jeff St. Louis led the Saints in scoring with a game high of 20 points. For the Rayders, Gary Drury was top man with 14; Buday had ten, Jeff Drury and Ross Carey each had eight.

Charlevoix junior varsity players had little trouble with their counterparts from St. Ignace as they easily swept to a 67-42 win behind an outstanding 31-point performance by Chris Putman. Putman came out hot from the start sinking seven shots from the floor in the first quarter alone. His final statistics were 13 field goals and five of six free throws.

Smith also hit double figures for Charlevoix with 14 points while LaBlance and Steve Schmidt had seven each.

St. Ignace was never in the game. Charlevoix led 19-8 at the end of the first quarter, 36-16 at the half and 48-35 at the end of the third quarter.

With a 6-7 conference record, the Charlevoix varsity Rayders have one more chance to salvage a .500 average as they host intra-country rival Boyne City this Friday. In their first meeting this year, the Rayders lost at Boyne City.

Rayder basketball fans and other backers of the sports program of CHS are reminded of the buffet dinner and hoedown dance being put on by the Sports Boosters this Saturday, February 28. The buffet is from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the V.F.W. post home with the dance following.

Charlevoix High School Basketball coach Dave Moyer is shown above with the video taping equipment now in use by the high school athletic program. The equipment, which allows coaches to tape games for replay and analysis, was obtained by the Charlevoix Sports Boosters and includes the camera, viewing screen and accompanying mechanisms. The Boosters are sponsoring an old fashioned "hoedown" at the V.F.W. post home this Saturday night, February 28, to help pay for the vide system. The evening will start with a buffet supper from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. The dance will follow with music provided by Jasper and his Tag-Alongs. Tickets are $12 per couple in advance and $14 a couple at the door. Western dress is encouraged.

Wojan on to state!

Ken Wojan will be the sole Charlevoix representative at the state high school wrestling meet this Saturday following Regional action at Lakeview over the weekend. Of the three Rayder matmen involved, Wojan took a championship in the heavyweight division, Scott Golovich placed fourth at 167 pounds and Allan Bergmann failed to place at 155. Wojan will make his second straight appearance at the state meet in Ann Arbor.

Freshmen end season with pair of wins; hold awards presentation

The Charlevoix High School freshmen closed out their 1980-81 season with two victories during the final week of play for a 7-7 season record.

The team defeated Central Lake 50-47 and wrapped up the season with a 56-50 overtime win over St. Ignace.

In commenting on the season, Coach Wright said the players came along well. "After three losses to open the season, they worked hard and improved greatly. It has been a good experience for me as well as the players."

In the game with Central Lake, Charlevoix was down 47-46 with :21 seconds to go when Bill Tillen put the lema ahead with a layup and Dan Buday wrapped it up with two free throws.

Charlevoix led Central Lake 12-6 at the quarter but trailed 24-22 at the half and 39-33 at the three quarter mark.

Tilen had 23 points in the game, Eric Lundy had 25 and Doug McDowell 10 for Central Lake.

The scoring was much the same in the game with St. Ignace as the young Rayders led 15-12 at the end of the first quarter and then trailed 28-27 and 39-38 at the quarters only to knot the score 50-all at the buzzer. In the overtime, Charlevoix outscored the Saints 6-0 for the victory.

Tillen had 17 and Dane Tollas 11 for the Rayders. All 17 Rayders saw action.

The players, parents and coaching staff then gathered at the high school cafeteria where awards were presented and an informal party held to conclude the season.

John Houting, who has served as a van driver and official scorekeeper throughout the season without charge was presented with a gift from the team and Coach Wright.

Wright then presented outstanding team member awards to all 17 players and Best Fan awards to the freshman cheerleaders. Other awards presented included Luckiest Shot award to Dan Buday, Hatchet Man award to Jeff Kelly, Most Improved Player to Bob Jones and Lee Allard and Best Attitude and Hardest Worker to Bill Tillen. Awards were selected by team members.

Lift-A-Thon planned

Charlevoix High School weight lifters are conducting the second annual Lift-A-Thon on Saturday, February 28 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the high school gym.

Each participant will be securing sponsors to pledge a certain amount of money per pound lifted. Lifters will compete in three events; the bench press, military press and dead lift. Last year, 13 participants lifted lifted a total of 9,133 pounds.

All sponsors will receive a receipt for their donation, which is tax deductable. Funds raised by the Lift-A-Thon will be used to maintain the weight room at Charlevoix High School, a program that has been developed primarily through private donations and events such as the Lift-A-Thon.

A portion of the money raised will also be used to defray the cost of the high school athletic program.

The public is invited to the Lift-A-Thon. There is no admission charge.

Rec Leagues set tourneys

The Charlevoix Mens Recreation Basketball B-League will join with the Petoskey Senior Men's league for a single elimination tournament to close out the 1980-81 season, Dwight Boss, city recreation director, has announced.

At the same time, the Charlevoix A-League will hold its own double elimination tournament to run concurrently with the B-League event.

The tournaments will open Monday, March 2, and run through March 19.

Playing in the B-League tournament will be Ward & Els Gallery, NORMAC, Huggs, Side Door Saloon, PBR Farms, McDonalds and Puff's Home Center of Petoskey and Carey Boot Shop, Alray Cottages, Kit Carson, Medusa, First State Bank and Wojan Aluminum of Charlevoix.

Carey Boot Shop will meet NORMAC at 7 p.m. Monday, March 2 followed by two A-League games, Kadens and I.D.C. at 8 p.m. and Great Lakes Energy vs. V.I.P. at 9 p.m.

The tournament will continue Wednesday with three B-League games as First State Bank meets Huggs at 7 p.m.; Wojan Aluminum and Side Door Saloon clash at 8 p.m. and McDonald's and Medusa meet in the nightcap at 9 p.m.

Other teams will enter the tournament on Thursday.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

February 16, 1981
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Muma, Block, Porter, Timms, Rolloff, and Wood

Absent: None

The Minutes of the February 2, 1981 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Mayor Supernaw expressed the City's appreciation to the local V.F.W. and American Legion posts for their donation of two new flags for the new City Council Chambers.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Wood to accept and file the City Parks and Recreation Commission Minutes dated January 27, 1981.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Muma, Block, Porter, Timms, Rolloff, and Wood.

Nays: None

Absent: None

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilwoman Rolloff.

RESOLUTION 81-2-4

WHEREAS, on February 3, 1981, certain City of Charlevoix, City Hall Employees did act above and beyond the scope of their duties in a valiant effort to save the life of their fellow employee, Arthur E. Bateman, and,

WHEREAS, members of the City of Charlevoix Emergency Medical Unit and Police Department did act in an expeditious and professional manner in an effort to save the life of said employee, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Charlevoix City Council commend the City Hall Employees, the members of the Emergency Medical Unit, and the members of the Police Department for their actions during this very critical period.

AND, BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of this Resolution be posted in City Hall, the Fire Department, and the Police Department.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Muma, Block, Porter, Timms, Rolloff, and Wood

Nays: None

Absent: None

Richard Pastas, representing the local Chamber of Commerce, read a Resolution, as adopted by the Chamber Board, supporting the City Planning Commission's recommendation that the City retain the firm of Ronald F. Nino and Associates to develop a Comprehensive Master Plan for the City. Several members of the General Public present also expressed their opinion regarding the proposed Plan.

Moved by Councilwoman Rolloff and supported by Councilman Porter to retain the firm of Ronald F. Nino & Associates to develop a Comprehensive Master Plan for the City.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Block, Porter, Rolloff, and Mayor Supernaw.

Nays: Councilmembers Muma, Timms, and Wood.

Absent: None

Council discussed retaining a firm to study the City's water and sewer rates. It was generally agreed to table the matter to allow time for further study at the next regular Committee of the Whole meeting.

Moved by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Timms to adopt the following Dock Rates for the 1981 boating season:

Council discussed a lease with the U.S. Coast Guard for dockage at the City dock. The City Attorney noted that the lease he had prepared differed in several aspects from the lease proposed by the Coast Guard. It was generally agreed to ask a Coast Guard representative to meet with the Council to discuss the matter at a future meeting.

Moved by Councilman Muma, and supported by Councilman Wood that a Resolution be drafted and sent to the U.S. Air Force requesting no reduction in personnel at the Bay Shore base.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Muma, Block, Porter, Timms, Rolloff, and Wood

Nays: None

Absent: None

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Muma that the Council meet in a Closed Session, time and date of said meeting to be set by Mayor Supernaw, for the purpose of discussing the Chicago Club's appeal of their tax assessment, as discussing this matter, at an open meeting would have a detrimental financial effect on the litigating or settlement position of the City.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Yeas: Councilmembers Muma, Block, Porter, Timms, Rolloff, and Wood.

Nays: None

Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Rolloff and supported by Councilman Muma that the City Manager's Report to the Council dated November 28, 1980 be exempt from disclosure as a public record under Section 13 (1) (n) of the Freedom of Information Act.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Fifteen percent of county house numbering is complete

Earl Muma, Director of Emergency Services, told the County Board of Commissioners last week that his Department has completed about 15 percent of the house numbering project in rural Charlevoix County.

"We have all the platted property numbered," he said, "and have detailed maps of those areas. The property numbered has been matched to owners of the land for notification, and names and addresses are compiled with the house number and ready to be typed for official records."

There are, two problems with the house numbering system at this time, according to Muma. Some road names will have to be changed, and it must be decided how house numbers will be distributed and purchased.

As soon as possible, Muma or his assistant will go out on the road with a foot-o-meter to do the meets and bounds required in setting up the numbering system.

The need for a rural numbering system has been expressed many times by fire and police departments whose job it is to respond to emergency calls.

However, Muma has pointed out that it will take three or more years to complete the work, and after it is completed, someone will have to oversee and update the project as the county grows in population.

County cancer unit plans April crusade

An effort to better serve the residents of Charlevoix County is underway by the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Unit president Joan Hoffman of Charlevoix says board members, at their Feb. 16 meeting, unanimously agreed that the group is on the right track toward reaching and helping more cancer patients and their families in the county. The unit's present efforts are almed at conducting a county-wide crusade April 6-27.

Crusade chairperson Joanne Curtis of Charlevoix announced that crusade workshops will be held in three locations in March for volunteer workers and captains. Volunteers from Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Walloon Lake, Deer Lake, Advance, Ironton and Horton Bay will meet in the basement of St. Matthew's Church in Boyne City at 6:30 p.m. March 5. The same night, at 8 p.m., crusade volunteers from East Jordan will meet at the Raquetball Restaurant in that community. The third workshop will be conducted in Charlevoix at the Grey Gables Inn, March 10, at 7:30 p.m.

Captains for this year's crusade are Joy Green on Beaver Island; Curtis in Charlevoix; Ginny Carey in East Jordan; Linda Bavin in Walloon Lake; Belly Hammontree in Advance; Jean Korthase in Deer Lake; Gerri Howard in Boyne City; Bernice Franckowiak in Boyne Falls and Roseanne Ainley in Horton Bay.

Hoffman says that any residents wishing to volunteer to work with the local unit on the crusade or at any other time are asked to call her at 547-6365 or Curtis at 547-5494.

Hoffman also noted that work is progressing on making brochures available throughout the county concerning the Charlevoix County unit, its services and personnel who can be contacted to assist cancer patients and their families.

Public Informallon chairman Phil Loomis discussed initial plans for a Cancer Society sponsored Walter Hagen-Babe Zaharias golf tournament in the area this spring or summer. Locations and time of the tournament will be announced in the near future, he said.

Garden Club to cite 50 years

The initial plan for the observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc., at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn May 18-20 have been made known to the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

The local club, as a member of the Federation, has pledged its support of the federation's project to celebrate the anniversary and the acquisition of the Green Bay project on Lake Huron.

In May, 1980, the Federation voted to raise $50,000 to support the purchase of 80 acres of land in the Green Bay area on Lake Huron in Cheboygan County through the Michigan Nature Conservancy. The property, reached by a trail of US 23 over the old shoreline bluff of the Nepisiing Great Lake (about 5,000 years old), features a myriad of wildflowers including 22 species of orchids, a coniferous forest containing trees native to Michigan, grassy meadows, a marshy pond known as Grass Lake and a sandy beach on Lake Huron. The conservancy has purchased the tract to be maintained and managed as a nature preserve.

The Federation fund raiser is a quilt of wildflowers with every club in the state contributing a square. The Charlevoix club's square is the yellow ladyslipper which has been completed by Mrs. G. D. Swinton, a club member. The quilt will be assembled and exhibited at the anniversary party.

The Charlevoix club's fund raiser will be a quilt depicting landmarks and scenes that make Charlevoix beautiful. Tickets will be sold and the winner announced at the Waterfront Art Fair.

Club members are planning an on-the-site conservation-natural history experience at Green Bay June 9.

John Campbell of Site Planning Development made an informative slide presentation on the Medusa Reclamation project at a recent meeting of the club. Plans were made to visit and tour the site in August.

At another recent meeting, Marge Dinwiddie presented a comprehensive lesson entitled "Seeds to Growing Plants" which included good sense about containers, planting aids, methods and schedules for planting for food and beauty.

Names In The News

Consumers Power Company has announced the appointment of RALPH W. DOAN, SR. of Charlevoix as general supervisor of the company's nuclear plant training groups. Doan, who has been training supervisor at Big Rock Point since 1973, is now responsible for training groups at each of the utility's nuclear facilities. He began working with Consumers Power Company on a temporary basis in 1948 as a yard and plant helper at the J.C. Weadock plant at Essexville. He came to Big Rock in 1962. Doan is a member of the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus; Charlevoix Kiwanis Club; Charlevoix American Legion; past chairman of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission; member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and a member of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club.

EDWARD McNAMARA, also of Charlevoix, has been named training supervisor at Big Rock succeeding Doan. McNamara has been a training instructor at the plant since 1976. He came to Big Rock in 1962 when he underwent training to become a control room operator at the facility. McNamara, who served the past several years with the Charlevoix United Way, is now president of the organization.

Both Doan's and McNamara's appointments were effective February 1.

John Kurtz, right, has joined the First State Bank of Charlevoix as vice-president and cashier.

He comes to the Charlevoix bank from the First National Bank of Petoskey, where he was employed for eight years. Prior to that, he worked for the National Bank of Detroit for three years.

A native of Ann Arbor, Kurtz graduated from Eastern Michigan University with a degree in business administration and a major in marketing.

In his new position, Kurtz will be the bank's loan officer and person in charge of the bank's books. The accounting and auditing. When not on the job, he likes to play tennis, jog, and sail.

Kurtz says he was acquainted with Lou Hollow before coming to Charlevoix and knew the First State Bank would be a "good place to work".

"Charlevoix is one of the prettiest towns in the area and the people at the bank are some of the best I've ever worked with," he commented.

Kurtz and his wife, Kay, have a three-and-a-half year old son, Luther. They presently live in Petoskey.

Edwin C. Gregory, right, has joined the law firm of John R. Michael, located in the Pine River Building, as an associate.

Gregory, 28, is a 1980 graduate of the Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing. A native of Petoskey and a 1970 graduate of St. Francis High School there, he is a veteran of four years in the U.S. Air Force. He received an Associate Degree from George C. Wallace College in Selma, Ala. in 1974 and his B.A. degree from Lake Superior State College in 1976. He was admitted to the bar last June.

Gregory is married to the former Penny Henley. They have two daughters, Jennifer and Julie.

FRAN TOLLAS, of Charlevoix, will present her senior voice recital on Wednesday, April 22, at 12 noon in the Calder Fine Arts Center at Grand Valley State College in Allendale. Tollas, a soprano, will be accompanied by Patricia Klimas for the recital.

MICHELLE ALLARD and KEIGH LEHMANN, both from Charlevoix, recently performed in the annual Ferris State College Symphonic Band Winter Concert held February 8 in conjunction with the 1981 Festival of the Arts. Allard and Keigh both play the horn.

School Board okays three-year teacher pact

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, after meeting briefly in executive session Monday night, ratified a three-year master contract with the Charlevoix District Schools teaching staff.

The contract will now go to the Charlevoix Education Association, headed by high school teacher Barry Anderson, for review and a decision on Wednesday.

The details of the contract will not be made available until the teachers have ratified the document.

Superintendent Gordon W. VanWieren would make no comment on the contract except to say that it was comparable with other contracts in the area that had been accepted.

The board also took action on a student, Terry Charboneau, who was under suspension. The board recommended that Charboneau be allowed to return to school with the provision that he be under probation for the remainder of the school year. It is also understood that he will not be allowed to ride the school bus.

At Monday night's regular meeting of the board, VanWieren advised board members that $40,000 remains from the monies raised to construct the addition to the high school which was completed last summer and is now in use.

He said that legal alternatives by which the board could return the money to the Charlevoix School District taxpayers was being investigated.

In other action, Mrs. Doris Pearl reported on the progress of her committee relating to Human Growth and Development; VanWieren spoke briefly on the current community survey that has been completed and is now being evaluated; Mrs. Ardith Wieland, who represented the board at the Intermediate School District budget meeting also gave a report.

The board will meet next on March 16.

Though the weather was somewhat dreary Saturday, it was not enough to discourage these festive marchers, above, who attracted area television coverage with their Mardi Gras sidewalk "Snowflake" parade downtown. The parade was part of the weekend's Mardi Gras celebration designed to parallel the famed festival held in annually in New Orleans. See page 7 for more photos of the Charlevoix Mardi Gras.

Condos back for rezoning

by DAVE KNIGHT

Round two of the attempt to build condominiums at 711 Park Avenue in Charlevoix Township gets under way this week with a new zoning change request to be taken up by township and county planning officials in three successive meetings.

Birmingham developers Jerome and Marvin Bookstein, who were turned down in January on their request to rezone the property for a 33-unit condominium complex, have resubmitted scaled down plans for 14 condominium units to be built on the 3.9 acre lot.

The Booksteins are seeking to have the property rezoned from R-1, residential, to Planned Unit Development (PUD) under which the condominiums are allowable. Since the present township zoning ordinance requires a minimum of 25 acres for a PUD designation, a request will first be made to amend the ordinance to lower the minimum PUD acreage to one acre.

The last attempt to rezone the lakeshore property to R-4, multiple housing, was withdrawn on January 12 before it reached the full Charlevoix Township Board. Heavy opposition from neighborhood residents and the public at large caused the township Zoning Board and the county Planning Commission to recommend rejection of the request at the time.

Indications from the developers were, as of last week, that construction will take place on the property in one form or another and most likely will commence this summer. Jerome Bookstein told the Courier that if the rezoning request and thus the condominium plan is turned down this time, the property will be subdivided for single family home development.

An alternate plan for as many as ten single family homes has been mentioned. Such a plan would not require the property to be rezoned.

The PUD proposal under consideration this week, prepared by Site Planning Development of Charlevoix, involves two buildings, one with eight condominium units and the other with six. The existing home would also be utilized as a unit making a total of 15 on the entire plot.

Booksteins pointed out that the buildings are lower, at 32 feet, than in the previous plans and set back farther from Park Ave. thus comprising less of a detraction from the lake view.

The proposed buildings along with the existing home, cover approximately 25 percent of the property. Said Booksteins, "We are probably under-utilizing the space."

The condominium proposal will be taken up first by the township Zoning Board this Wednesday, March 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall. It will then go before the County Planning Commission Thursday, March 5 at 4 p.m. and to the Charlevoix Township Board on Monday, March 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Charlevoix's Ken Wojan came home from the state high school wrestling tournament this weekend with a second place finish in the Class C heavyweight. It marked only the third time a Rayder wrestler has advanced to the state finals. Wojan is shown above trying to get Tim Martel of Byron Area on his back in the semi-final match which Wojan pulled out 9-8. See page 10 for more details.

Trial on PBB contamination of Warner farm is adjourned; no new date set

by TOM DAMMANN

The personal injury case of a Charlevoix area farmer, Douglas Warner, and members of his family, who charge that their health has been endangered by PBB contamination was adjourned Monday by Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner.

Judge Breighner set no date for the jury trial which had been scheduled to start this week Tuesday, March 3.

Two hundred and two head of dairy cattle died or were destroyed as a result of PBB contamination of Warner's farm in 1972-74. Warner, 30, one of three plaintiffs in the case, maintains his family was also contaminated at the same time.

According to Warner, his was the first quarantined farm to seek personal injury damages in court. The original suit was filed on August 30, 1976. The other two plaintiffs are his former wife, Marty Jo Aardema, 31, Ellsworth, and his mother, Grace Irene Warner, 61, a fourth grade teacher in Central Lake.

Defendants in the case are Michigan Chemical Co., Michigan Salt Co., Farm Bureau Services, Inc., Northwest Industries, Inc., Northwest Chemco, Inc., Metsicol Chemical Corporation, Charlevoix Co-op and Ellsworth Co-op, also known as the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange.

Originally the suit asked for $25 million in damages but the amount has been reduced considerably during a series of pre-trial hearings held with Judge Breighner.

According to Grand Rapids Attorney Patrick Muldoon, who represents the three plaintiffs, the amount is "more than $100,000." Sources close to the case suggest it is closer to $500,000.

Warner said last week that that his farm was quarantined three times in 1973-74 and that in 1974 all the cows that had not died from PBB were destroyed.

The Warners took the lead in demanding blood tests as well as having biopsies so that their fat could be tested. In fact, the then Marty Jo Warner was the first person in the state to have her body fat tested for PBB.

Since then, both have had yearly blood and fat tests and the tests continue to show the presence of PBB, they told the Courier last week.

At the time of the birth of their daughter, Sarah Warner, who is now four, doctors advised Marty Jo not to breast feed her and not to take blood or fat tests from her. But she appears to be a healthy child, they say.

Both confessed to being worried about the continued presence of PBB in their blood but said they had expected it to stay in their fat.

"It's something we'll have to put up with all our lives," said Warner.

The suit charges that the ingestion of PBB resulted in one or more of the following symptoms: swollen and inflamed joints, physical fatigue, lameness, anxiety, mental distress, loss of sleep, pain and suffering.

Warner was hospitalized for a week in 1974 suffering from violent stomach cramps, the cause of which was not diagnosed. He said he was bothered by the cramps for about a year. He told a reporter last week that both Marty Jo and his mother lost all their fingernails though they have grown back now.

Both Marty Jo and he told the interviewer separately that the continued stress caused by the PBB, the loss of their cattle, and the difficulties of starting over again contributed to the break-up of their marriage three years ago.

"The PBB thing is always on your mind," Warner said.

He said that he was partially reimbursed for the loss of his cattle and that he now has a healthy herd of 202 milk cows.

The calves aren't dropping over dead - we only lose one in a hundred now - and the cows are giving good milk," he said. But he emphasized that it has taken a long time and considerable effort to get his farm cleansed of any PBB vestiges.

Winter Cup written off

Succumbing finally to the uncooperative climate, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce officials made the decision Monday to cancel the 1981 Winter Cup weekend festival.

The Winter Cup was originally scheduled for February 21-22 but was postponed until March 7-8 when a sudden thaw made the ice sculpture and ski racing events impossible. Noting that it would take almost a miraculous turn of climatic events to provide enough snow to mount the festival this weekend, organizers made the decision early this week to cancel the Winter Cup altogether for 1981.

New sign ordinance goes back to Plan Commission for input from local businesses

by DAVE KNIGHT

There will be no new sign regulations in the City of Charlevoix for the time being after Monday night's City Council meeting at which a proposed new ordinance was returned to the City Planning Commission.

The proposed ordinance was the subject of a public hearing at the council meeting but attracted few comments in the relatively short time it was discussed.

Among the more controversial provisions of the sign ordinance drafted by the Planning Commission were bans on signs in store windows that covered more than ten percent of the window, bans on roof signs larger than 36 square feet, bans on translucent signs lit from the inside and strict limits on the number of signs businesses would be able to display.

Planning Commission member Joe Morris told the council that, being the only commission member to vote against the ordinance, he felt that more input was necessary from the business community before a radically different sign policy was enacted.

Said Morris, "I would like to see the business people attend a Planning Commission meeting to discuss this ordinance so they can be aware of it and fully understand it before it is put into effect."

Morris criticized some portions of the proposed ordinance, such as the size limit on roof signs and the four-foot height limit on ground signs, for not allowing local businesses to advertise adequately.

City Manager James Brinker emphasized to the council that the present sign ordinance in the city code was "way out of date" and basically ineffective. He also said that support for the proposed sign law had been indicated to him by several local Chamber of Commerce members.

Council member Earl Muma voiced specific opposition to the proposed restrictions on window signs saying, "Store window signs are inside the stores and I don't think we should be telling a store owner what to do within his place of business."

The council proceeded to vote unanimously to return the sign ordinance to the Planning Commission for further consideration.

Narrow approval was given by the council to a $4,000 study of water and sewer rates prompted by a continuing financial deficit in those departments.

Brinker explained to the council that by simply raising all rates by a percentage to get the sewer and water funds "out of the hole", important questions about possible inequalities in sewer and water billing would be unanswered. He stressed that the study would focus on how rates are structured and not simply the rates themselves.

Council members James Block, Ray Wood and Muma voted against the study while council members Robert Timms, Jeff Porter and Shirley Roloff supported it. Mayor Sam Supernaw cast the deciding vote in favor of conducting the study.

Discussion on the future of the Air Force Strategic Training Range site at Bayshore was prompted by a suggestion from County Commissioner John Haggard that the council take action to keep the site in the area. Recent indications from the Air Force have been that the site will be phased out at Bayshore within the next two years.

Haggard said that a possible move for the council would be to lend support for the attempt to authorize Ohio Air National Guard low level training flights over the Bayshore site. Opposition to the flights slated to begin in April has caused the state Environmental Review Board and Gov. William Milliken to ask for postponement of the flights from Toledo.

Haggard pointed to the sagging economy of the area as a major reason for seeking to keep the Air Force site at Bayshore. By allowing the Ohio Air National Guard flights to be called off, he said, the Air Force would have all the more reason to move out of the area.

Council members indicated that they needed more specific information on the matter and would take it up at a later date.

In other action, the council:

-Tabled action on a revised water detention plan for the May Street apartments on the grounds that although the water problem appeared solved, there was still concern about the size of the large pit adjoining the apartment complex.

-Authorized the city assessor to proceed with the assessment of a Chicago Club plot which has been disputed and will apparently be taken up in a tax tribunal session.

-Rescinded a previous motion seeking full payment from Forchtman Chevrolet-Buick on an overdue bill for electrical installation services and authorized a new payment plan for the dealership.

Vet nursing unit to open

A new 30-bed Nursing Home Care Unit which will emphasize rehabilitation will soon open at the VA Medical Center in Saginaw according to Ronald Geer of the Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs.

Admission to a VA Nursing Home Care Unit is only one of a variety of existing avenues of placement for VA patients who are in need of long term term health care. The facility is a stepping stone between hospitel and home for veterans who no longer require acute medical care but do require skilled nursing care and rehabilitation.

Aims and objectives of the unit are to promote optimum rehebilitation activities, provision of carefully chosen nutritional requirements, high expectant climate and homelike atmosphere.

At the Nursing Home Care Unit, rehabilitation will be encouraged by a team which consists of a physician, nurse, physical and occupational therapist, social worker, dietician and other health care workers.

Applications for admission are now being accepted.

Further information may be obtained by contacting the VA Medical Center at 793-2340, ext. 296.

Blue-Gold features Winter

Ken Winter, general manager of the Petoskey News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier, was the featured speaker at the recent Blue and Gold Banquet held by the Charlevoix Cub Scouts.

Winter, a member of the Scenic Trails Boy Scout Council executive board and former scout, reminisced about many of his experiences in scouting and told of the importance of the program.

A large crowd of over 100 Cub Scouts and parents attended the banquet at the Elementary School. Many awards were also presented as part of the program.

EJ Weight loss classes set

Beginning April 7, the East Jordan Family Health Center will be conducting monthly weight reduction classes. Classes will be held at the clinic from 1 to 2 p.m. the first Tuesday of each month. Classes will include information on proper diet, exercise, ways to control overeating, low calorie recipes and more.

The class is aimed especially at those who have tried to diet on their own but have been unsuccessful. A registered dietician will conduct the classes. The charge per session, including all materials, is $3. For further information, contact the East Jordan Family Health Center at 536-2249.

Oddfellows grab cribbage lead

With only two nights of play remaining in the 50th annual Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament, the title is still up for grabs as the lead changes every other week.

The Masons, leading by 37 points, lost the lead to the Oddfellows following play at ten tables Thursday night. The Oddfellows now lead by 460 points.

Ron Putman with 331 points was high man for the Masons. Bruce Rinehart with 957 was high for the Oddfellows.

The Oddfellows had 721 points to 224 for the Masons following play Thursday night. The tournament will be played at the Masonic Temple March 5.

Charlevoix residents among those to be contacted for PCB research

Charlevoix will be one coastal area of the state into which the physiological effects of PCBs on people who eat fish from Lake Michigan and those who don't will be studied.

The Michigan Department of Public Health is expanding its PCB research study of Lake Michigan fisheaters to include residents living along the Lake Michigan shoreline who eat little or no fish from Lake Michigan waters according to Dr. Harold Humphrey, Project Director.

Department staff will begin making telephone contacts with residents from New Buffalo to Petoskey soliciting participants.

Participation is voluntary and confidential. It will involve a brief questionnaire and attending a clinic conveniently located in or near the participant's community.

During the clinic, height and weight measurements, lung function measurements (breathing into a machine) and blood pressure measurements will be taken. Also, a sample of blood will be collected for PCB, PBB and other pesticide and industrial chemical contaminant analysis.

Each participant will receive a copy of their test results.

The department has received a three-year grant from the EPA to evaluate persons who eat Great Lakes fish that contain various water-borne chemicals. The study includes medical evaluation in order to determine whether subtle health effects may be occurring as a result of eating fish.

Dr. Humphrey also states with the enrollment of 500 fisheaters nearly complete, the comparison group can begin to be identified.

A sample of random telephone numbers are being selected for each of the telephone exchanges along the Lake Michigan shoreline. Callers will have no idea of whom they are calling when they start the survey.

Those who receive phone calls will have the study explained and, if they are willing to participate, will be asked a few questions.

Enrollment of people who eat an average of one meal or more of sport-caught fish per week is continuing with volunteers being sought in the Leelanau, Grand Traverse, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs areas. Any fish eaters from these areas who feel they may qualify, or persons who are contected for the study and have addtional questions, may call the department's Big Rapids office collect at 616-796-3314 or write Marvin Budd, Field Coordinator, Division of Environmental Epidemiology, Michigan Department of Public Health, 19260 Northland Drive, Big Rapids, Mi. 49307.

Conservancy gains lakeshore tract

The Little Traverse Conservancy has established its first nature preserve along Lake Michigan, Chairman John Fischer announced today. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Loeb of Charlevoix have given the conservancy a tract near Nine-Mile Point in Charlevoix County which includes 500 feet of Lake Michigan shoreline.

The land is historically significant in many ways, according to Executive Director Susanne Dye. The beach of exposed, jagged limestone was formed about 345 million years ago when most of Michigan was covered by a large inland sea.

Though the rocky shore is "not exactly ideal for swimming or sunbathing", Dye said, "it's a rock hound's haven. Fossils abound and arouse the geological curiosity of nearly everyone who visits the site."

The Loed-Nature Preserve was also important in more recent Michigan history. It is believed that the Pere Marquette trail used by the Indians and early settlers traversed the parcel and that Indians regularly used the beach as a canoe landing site.

"I know I speak for all Conservancy members in thanking the Loebs for their generous gift," said Fischer. He invites all those interested in learning more about this preserve or other Conservancy activities to contact the Conservancy office at Room 28, North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

Milliken approves eligibility for crop disaster loans

Governor William G. Milliken said Friday that five Michigan counties, including Charlevoix, have been made eligible for disaster loans due to damages caused by adverse weather conditions last year.

The Small Business Administration has been authorized by the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to accept loan applications in Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Huron and Menominee counties.

Nonfarm small businesses which suffered losses may apply for Economic Injury Disaster loans in these counties. In addition, agricultural enterprises which have been referred to the Small Business Administration by the FmHA may apply for Physical Disaster Loans.

Charlevois Cheboygan and Emmet counties suffered from severe drought between July 1 and August 31, 1980. High winds, excessive rain and hailstorms caused damage in Huron County between May 29 and October 31, 1980 and in Mennominee County between July 21 and 28, 1980.

Applications for loans will be accepted by the Small Business Administration until August 24, 1981.

Cunningham names new commissioners

Clyde Cunningham, chairman of the Charlevois County Board of Commissioners, last week appointed members to two Commissions dealing with County affairs.

Commissioner Lee Moerland of Charlevoix was appointed to the District Health Department No. 3 Board, and Boyne City Manager Tim Clifton was appointed to the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission to represent the cities of Charlevoix County.

Bloodmobile here this week

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Charlevois Wednesday, March 4.

The quota for the one-day visit will be 125 pints.

The collection site will be the American Legion post home on Garfield Ave. The hours will be from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. The hour from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. has been set aside for the men from the U.S.C.G. Cutter Mesquite to donate. However, others may come at that time if no other time is convenient for them.

A calling committee has been busy calling previous donors reminding them of the Bloodmobile and urging them to make an appointment. Appointments assure an even flow of donors throughout the day. However, new donors are encouraged and will be neccessary to meet the quota. All those between the ages of 16 and 66 are urged to donate.

Those under 17 must have written permission from a parent given on a Red Cross form. These forms are available at the high school principal's office.

Appointments may be made by calling 547-9314. Walk-ins are welcome for those who do not make appointments.

A special need for O-positive and O-negative blood exists at this time. It is hoped that people with these types will make a special effort to donate on March 4.

As they always have, the Xi Epsilon Gamma and Kappa Sigma chapters of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority have organized and staffed the canteen for the duration of the drive.

Mrs. John Bradley assebled registered nurses who donate their time and Mrs. Vernon Mathew, Jr. has recruited a corps of others to help with the many volunteer positions neccessary to the one-day clinic.

Those who will be away or unable to donate March 4 can attend a blood drive by the students of Charlevoix High School at the high school on March 23. Otherwise the next city-wide drive will be September 29.

This week marks the start of the annual Girl Scout cookie sale. Members of the local Girl Scout and Brownie troops will be canvassing the community from Wednesday, March 4 to Saturday, March 14 to take cookie orders. The Brownies are shown above organizing their order blanks at an organizational meeting held last week at the United Methodist Church

County Board wants to see state pension fund invested wisely

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners believes that at least a portion of the Michigan State Employee Pension funds should be invested within the State of Michigan in a manner that will stimulate growth of small businesses, mortgage availabilty, or the expansion of critical major industries while protecting the fund through the use of prudent guidelines.

This was the gist of a resolution introduced by Commissioner Martin Biegnowski and passed by the Board last week.

The resolution pointed out that the state pension funds presently amount to some $4.2 billion and could reach $8 billion by 1985. It further pointed out that studies in another state indicated that every $100 million in pension assets invested in that state could eventually generate 3,000 jobs, $65 million in annual income to the residents, and $5 million in taxes. Also, it was stated that the long-term stability and integrity of the pension funds themselves depend upon the general economic health of the state."

Copies of the resolution were sent to state officials and to the Michigan Association of Counties.

March of Dimes releases 1980 financial report

During 1980, the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation received over $70 million, the Foundation's annual report reveals.

Of this amount, the American public contributed over $62 million, and over $8 million came in bequests, special gifts, grants from affiliated agencies, and revenue from investments.

The money was spent in several different ways.

Over $10 million for research in a "wide-ranging effort to evaluate the psychological and physical capabilities of newborns, especially those babies born with birth defects."

Over $7 million for medical services to provide genetic services, perinatal care facilities, and services for high-risk mothers and newborns.

Over $13 million for community service programs aimed at reducing the number and magnitude of the hazards potentially standing between every baby and a healthy start in life.

Over $19 million for education, especially of health professionals, who in one way or another deal with the identification, treatment, and prevention of birth defects.

Ronald E. Knapp of Petoskey is executive director of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation in Charlevoix, Emmet, and Cheboygan Counties.

Charlevoix Antrim Florida picnic set

The 18th annual Charlevoix-Antrim County Florida Picnic will be held at noon on Wednesday, March 11 at the Count Phillippe Park on the west shore of Old Tarpon Bay, two miles north of Safety Harbor, Florida.

All former residents of the two county area or those spending the winter in Florida are invited to attend.

Knight on the Town

Attack of the Killer Snowmobile

If you ever visit Larry Scholl on Beaver Island, chances are he'll invite you in, introduce his wife, his son, and then he might take you outside and have you meet his snowmobile. You see, Larry treats his machine like part of the family these days. He's afraid that if he doesn't, it might run away.

Don't laugh. It's already tried.

A bitter cold gripped Beaver Island during morning January 31. Rising early, Larry hurried out the door on his way to church. It was about quarter to ten and his wife and son had already left so Larry figured it was as good a time as any to put his new snowmobile to practical use.

He had bought the used Massey Ferguson 404 about a week before and had only been on it once since then. Late for church and itching to try his new toy, Larry anxiously primed the engine and hoped that the extreme cold would not mean too many pulls on the starter cord. When he finally got around to yanking the cord, he was hardly prepared for what happened next.

With a violent roar that shattered the Sunday morning solitude of the island, the machine came to life...quite literally.

The Schulls' house, known to islanders as the old Gallagher place, sits near the harbor lighthouse looking out over the lake from a thick grove of birch trees. There are enough trees in the yard to make it impossible for anything travelling in a straight line to make it from the house to the road without hitting a tree.

So it wasn't the fact that the throttle stuck wide open and the machine took off by itself like a scared zopher that amazed Larry Scholl. That happens occasionally. What leaves him still shaking his head is the flawless route the riderless snowmobile proceeded to take through the yard.

Gaining speed by the second, it wove its way through the trees as gracefully as a pro skier threading a slalom course. As Larry watched unbelieving, it made it to the road without nicking a single piece of bark.

Frequent visits by the St. James snowplow had left huge banks on both sides of the road. The roaring snowmobile easily shot up the first one and scurried across the road as if nervous about traffic. The other bank, approached from street-side, was much steeper. Much too steep, thought Larry, for a snowmobile without a rider to scale. He ran down, expecting it to stall.

Nothing doing. Up the bank went the determined machine and off toward the lake. At full throttle.

All poor Larry could do was watch as his new snowmobile deftly, made its way past piers and docks and sped off on the ice toward the mainland. Though it was little consolation to him at the time, Larry had bought a machine that could really cook: it was making for Cross Village at about 40 knots.

There she goes, thought Larry, off to that great implement dealer in the sky.

But the Phantom 404 had other ideas.

Somehow the skis on the front of the snowmobile hit a jagged shelf of ice that suddenly jarred them askance. The result was a neatly executed 180 degree turn at full speed. Well, almost 180 degrees. Instead of heading back toward Scholls', the machine was now on its way straight toward the center of the Village of St. James.

To this point, the worst that Larry expected was a lost snowmobile. Now he had a genuine public menace on his hands. He jumped into his Jeep and took off towards town, not really knowing what he'd do when he got there.

By this time, some other island residents had heard the commotion and, seeing the snowmobile streaking across the ice towards town, hustled out to lend a hand, or at least join in the unusual Sunday morning excitement.

Almost diabolically, the crated snowmobile eluded its pursuers as it neared the village. But another bump in the ice caused it to change direction once more.

To the Larry's relief, it turned away from the center of the village. Then, to his horror and that of the others at the scene, it headed directly for the Beaver Island power station. The sudden reality occurred to everyone right then that a direct hit could take out the emergency power source of the entire island.

The only worse disaster would be for the machine to ram the Shamrock Bar.

Thus the chase intensified.

Finally, just short of the power station, the kamikaze snowmobile hit some rocks on the bank and was held up just long enough for Larry to run up and turn the key. Quiet again reigned on Beaver Island.

The belt was busted, skis damaged a bit and the cowl dented. But the machine was in good shape otherwise and Larry had it running again before the day was over.

Now, when Larry Scholl starts his snowmobile, he carefully checks the throttle, makes sure everyone is out of the way and points it toward a tree.

He also drives the Jeep to church on Sundays.

Gas decontrol a bitter pill

THE BAD NEWS from Washington is that natural gas decontrol will add as much as $600 most next year to home heating bills -- and another $1,100 or so more by 1985 -- when most existing gas controls will be phased out.

Although President Regan favors decontrol, Congress is promising to fight him on this one, with the support of 40 million Americans who heat their homes with gas.

All of which catches me in the middle. I like Reagan's policy of routing government from the marketplace, but termination of controls over such a short time frame creates a serious imbalance in favor of the suppliers of vital goods and services.

We would have been better off if controls never had been enacted.

Things would be different if we had a dozen natural gas companies serving Northern Michigan instead of just one. Decontrol would be an easier pill to swallow, since competition would serve to put the brake on outlandish price increases.

In a monopoly situation, however, we cannot "shop around" for natural gas. We must pay what is charged and hope the state Public Service Commission is on its toes to prevent gouging.

IN THE MEANTIME, Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., which serves Northern Michigan, also is caught in the middle. It's parent company, American Natural Resources, would like to cut the umbilical cord because Michigan Con is the one dark corner of its total profit picture -- believe it or not. ANR feels it would do better if it merely supplied natural gas to utilities and removed itself from the state controlled utility business.

By this summer, Michigan Con could be on its own -- for better or worse.

Further complicating the picture is the fact that under the Consumer Bill of Rights, Michigan Con is obligated to serve thousands of no-pay customers throughout the state. It is frightening to think of the thousands of poorly insulated -- and sometimes windowless -- homes in Detroit's inner city alone which are being heated free-of-charge by Michigan Con.

The company must absorb millions of dollars worth of bad debts every year and the figure is growing alarmingly.

These costs, of course, make it increasingly difficult for Michigan Con to turn a profit.

BUT THE MOST pressing question is how Northern Michigan residents are going to pay their home heating bills in years ahead.

The answers will differ from family to family, although improved insulation will help in almost every instance.

Retired persons may find they can actually save money by closing up their homes during the prime heating months and moving south.

Others may decide to "double up" during the winter with friends, neighbors or relatives, effectively cutting utility bills in half.

Still others will move to smaller homes that are easier to heat, dial down their thermostats, close off unused rooms, and wear warmer clothes.

Life during the present energy crunch would be easier if there were a light at the end of the tunnel. But there isn't, so we might as well learn to adjust to a vastly different standard of living.

Letters: More on Bayshore

Getting it straight

To the Editor:

Let's set the record straight on Bayshore.

In the February 25th copy of the Charlevoix Courier, the article "Bayshore site's days are numbered" there were many distortions. Starting with that this site is Det. 6, 1 Combat Evaluation Group, not 51st Command Evaluation Group.

The number of personnel authorized is only 71 and we have 61 assigned at the present time. We contribute approximately $1.9 million to the local economy, not the $1.6 million as recorded. At present 31 of our people live in Charlevoix with the remaining living in Petoskey, Bayshore, Boyne City and Boyne Falls areas.

As for the site moving to the sunbelt so that the officers can play more golf is the biggest joke of all. For starters we only have two officers assigned and neither play golf.

Tentative plans call for the site to be transferred to one of the most desolate areas and poorest areas of the U.S. It would be more appropriate to say that the site is moving to the coal belt (Wyoming or Montana).

As for the people of Charlevoix suffering because of this move, let us really look at who is going to suffer. It means that families will again be uprooted and have to settle in areas where housing is non-existent. They also will not have access to facilities that most military families enjoy on bases.

And last, but not least, maybe the low level flights that are needed to train our military pilots are a nuisance to some, to others they are of great importance.

It's our duty

To the Editor:

I would like to address this letter to the people of the Grand and Little Traverse Bay areas and I hope you'll do me the courtesy of printing it. It concerns the recent controversy over the proposed use of nearby airspace by U.S. military aircraft, and especially the Ohio National Guard.

It is not an unnatural occurrence for people who live away from major population centers to develop a certain provincialism. Expressed in terms of pride and contentment, it is an altogether positive force. It is only when this quaint provincialism becomes regional parochialism that problems occur. The northwest lower peninsula is noted for its serenity and beauty. But it has an existence beyond that. It is part of the State of Michigan. It is part of the United States. It cannot escape its place in this world as a participant in the affairs of life.

The threat of war and the need for an adequate defense is one of these affairs of life. As distasteful and inconvenient as it may be, everyone must participate. How do we do this? Some of us are members of active duty and reserve forces. Some of us are employed in defense related industries. Most of us pay the taxes to finance the required hardware. Some of us have given our fathers, sons, husbands or brothers. Some of us have died. Is it unreasonable to ask some people to merely be patient and tolerant?

"Let George do it." But we're running out of "Georges". "George", in the current controversy, seems to be anybody but the quiet folk of Grand and Little Traverse Bays. Let "George" put up with the jet noise that interrupts a quiet July morning. Let George's daily routine be disturbed. But what is the real cost of this "not me" attitude?

Most immediately, in the context of this controversy, it's the cost of foregoing needed training that may help our combat pilots stay alive in the war that could come next year. Or next month. How so? Because the Grand and Little Traverse Bay area has natural and technical facilities that enable some very necessary training. We can't afford to lose this important contribution to our training. And believe me when I tell you that the impact to the area is genuinely considered when we determine we must fly our jets in that environment. We do it only because it will help us stay alive in any future war.

What is in the balance? Periodic intrusions into a peaceful haven on one hand, weighed against combat survival on the other. How do we decide? First we must, remember that we are Americans first, and Michiganders, Detroiters or Traverse Bayers second. It's not the people of Grand or Little Traverse Bay versus the Ohio Air National Guard; or versus the Michigan Air National Guard; or versus U.S. military flying altogether. We are one.

Let's start acting like it! Can we muster solidarity only when our citizens are held captive, as in Iran? Or when actual war is at our doorstep? I think not. When the jet pilots of Ohio are learning their craft over Grand or Little Traverse Bay, they are honing skills of which we shall all be beneficiaries. When the jet pilots of the Michigan Air National Guard are developing wartime tactics over the rural countryside of Ohio; of New York; of Florida; or of Kansas, we are honing skills of which we shall all be beneficiaries.

If we could find the necessary ingredients to accomplish our training elsewhere, we would. But we can't. If you can't find the enthusiasm and concern to help us, at least don't hinder us. All we want to do is learn how to fight well and stay alive so we can help preserve this America of ours.

As a private citizen;

Re-examine defense

An open letter to Senator Don Riegle:

Dear Senator Riegle:

In the current demand for cutting government costs, the defense budget should have extremely thorough scrutiny. Please use your influence as a member of the Senate Budget Committee to demand that an independent analysis of the defense budget be made.

Arthur Simon, executive director of "Bread for the World" has stated that at this time "there is no comprehensive independent analysis of the defense budget."

The U.S. defense budget alone exceeds the total annual income of the poorest billion people on earth. The directors of "Bread for the World" are not proposing what the necessary level of defense spending should be. They have stated "We do, however, question insufficiently examined steps toward greater military spending when so much of the human family lives in squalor and destitution."

Evidences of waste in military spending should be thoroughly examined. We hear reports of inadequately advertised competitive bidding, huge cost overruns and unnecessary military bases.

I believe there is more hope for national security and world peace when we focus attention on economic and social improvement in our own country and in the world than in ever increased military spending.

Suggestions for Chx.

To the Editor:

A truly great community or city is by balance and diversity a complete entity. If Charlevoix does not provide in its downtown a relatively full variety of stores along with more free and easy parking, existing businesses will not prosper. Empty stores and parking meters are black flags! A handful of specialty shops and bars do make the picture complete. Harsha House also is a more beginning of great importance. "Drop-in centers" for young and old are an absolute necessity downtown. A junior achievement program would help as well as craft, art and creative "back to nature" programs. There is community commitment and involvement that is, as yet, hardly even contemplated or begun in Charlevoix the "bountiful."

One does not get heat from the old wood stove without beforehand putting wood in. We prepare for growth rather than waiting complacently for that growth or prosperity to fall into our doorway. Charlevoix's beauty has attracted both the "builders" and the "destroyers".

The builders work with existing culture and substantial foundations or put up new "structures" that enhance and beautify the existing, be it residential or commercial. The destroyers put on big shows and devastate with excuses and little thought for our future...it's a fast buck now! And their money contributes short term, superficial "benefits". Their structures stick out like sore thumbs on a tremendous landscape carved out by nature. And Charlevoix is forever stuck with their deposits.

Tourism in "balance" does not devastate our area and more of it is a known future source of income. A small convention center and hotel is direly needed here. Industrial park development is a must to be fostered by a coonty Economic Development Corporation.

Charlevoix is losing its character and identity, its uniqueness. Would the city of Harbor Springs, who really has its act together, allow steel pole barns in or near its downtown? Our lumbering history except for old photos is erased as will be the "fishing villaga" concept. Actual fishing of any kind is in danger, too. The animals, the fish, the trees and water: what did we do with them? What will we do with what's left?

We may have taken for granted this tremendous area for too long. Can we be so concerned in "roots" that growth is forgotten? Can we be so wrapped up in growth that we forget our "roots"? The answer is found in "love", conservation, an end to "selfish interests", objective balance and a real key word, "diversity".

Memorials sought

To the Editor:

Some time ago the directors of the Grass River Natural Area were asked about provisions for monetary donations to the Grass River project in the form of memorials.

With the hope that more people would contribute to the preservation and future educational offerings of the 1,000 acre natural area here in Antrim County, the directors have acted favorably on this suggestion. Memorial cards used to donate gifts to the Grass River Area in someone's name will be available at all Antrim County funeral homes and from the Grass River Natural Area directors upon request.

A special committee of the directors will be in charge of a Grass River Natural Area Memorial Fund. In addition to acknowledging memorial gifts, this committee will keep these monies in a special account and use them expressly for the designated projects.

Memorial donations other than monetary contributions will also be administered by this committee.

Area funeral directors or a member of the Grass River Natural Area board will be able to assist you in making a memorial gift.

Lundteigen-Murphy

Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Lundteigen of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter Nina of Ogden, Utah to John T. Murphy, Jr., son of the Honorable John Murphy and Mrs. Murphy of Petoskey. A March 28 wedding at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in Petoskey is planned. Nina is a 1974 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a 1978 graduate of Michigan State University where she received a B.A. degree in education of the deaf and blind. She has been employed for the past two years as a teacher of the deaf and blind at the Utah School for the Deaf in Ogden. John is a 1971 graduate of St. Francis Xavier High School in Petoskey and received a B.A. degree in special education from Central Michigan University in 1975. He is presently employed by the Char-Em Intermediate School District as a teacher of the mentally impaired at Melrose School in Walloon Lake.

Ellis-Curiel

Donald Ellis of Troy, Michigan and Shirley Germain of Charlevoix have announced the engagement of their daughter, Donna Ellis, of Charlevoix, to Stephen Curiel, son of Raymond and Patricia Curiel of Prescott, Arizona. An April 4, 1981 wedding is planned at the Christ Episcopal Church. The bride-to-be is a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is attending North Central Michigan College where she is seeking an associate degree in science. The groom attended Northern Arizona University where he studied geology. He is presently serving in the Coast Guard as an emergency medical technician and small boat engineer.

Legion district meeting date told

The District meeting for the American Legion and Auxiliary will be held at Boyne City, Sunday, March 8, members of the local Auxiliary were advised in a letter from District President Sophia Stafford of Alpena read at a recent Auxiliary meeting.

Legion and Auxiliary members planning to attend are asked to make reservations through Mrs. William Farkas, Auxiliary president.

Mrs. Ray Wood, chairman of the Girls State committee, advised the members that candidates and alternates were being selected and sponsors being sought for the event to be held at Central Michigan University in June.

Initial plans for the annual American Legion Poppy Days on May 14-16 were announced. Poppies, made by veterans, have been ordered in preparation for the annual sale.

After some discussion, the membership voted to continue to award a service pin for each year in office to the auxiliary president and for every two years in office for other officers.

Mrs. Josephine Bindl, Sunshine chairman, announced that 20 Valentine cards and four get-well cards had been sent to shut-ins and out-of-town members. Refreshments were served by Mrs. George Lochner and Mrs. Clarence Goldstick. Mrs. Harry Pearsall and Mrs. Farkas will host the March 12 meeting of the Auxiliary.

Erber celebrates 74th

Karl Erber's 74th birthday was celebrated recently at the Jonathan Dickinson State Park near Jupiter, Florida where a group of Charlevoixans gathered to mark the occasion.

Joining Mr. and Mrs. Erber, who spend the winter months at North Palm Beach, Fla., were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Beaudoin, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fairbanks, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shapton, Mr. and Mrs. James Hitler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith, all of Fort Pierce; Mr. and Mrs. William Ochs of Singer Island, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McRae of North Palm Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Don Cameron of Arlington Heights, Mr. and Mrs. John Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neff, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiersma of Grand Rapids and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin VanderVeen of Kalamazoo.

Charlevoix County 4-H Notes

Meet the Friendly Stitchers

by Leah Green, Program Asst.

Mondays at 4 p.m. is an important time for eight Charlevoix Middle School girls. Each week at that time the girls can be found at the home of Elsie Joyce in Norwood Township where they convene their 4-H project club, the Friendly Stitchers.

Under Elsie's guidance, Stacy Way, Lara Stargardt, Diana Stilwell, Michelle Englehart, Nancy Louiselle, Lee Ann Campbell, Lily Englehart and Jody Cummings will each complete an outfit or garment of their choice.

Individual projects range from dresses to skirts and vests with blouses to robes and gowns. Two members of the club are in their first year of participation in 4-H, two are in their second year and the other four have been involved for three years.

The immediate goal for the Friendly Stitchers will be the 4-H Spring Achievement Day on April 11. There the sewing projects will be evaluated along with all the other projects by Charlevoix County 4-H members. Evaluation takes place during the day. An evening program features a style show where members have a chance to display what they have done and awards are given.

Project leader Mrs. Joyce sees a long term goal, however, that extends far past this Achievement Day or even next. She feels strongly that it is important for people to acquire a life-long skill such as sewing which can be a hobby, too. Such a skill can help combat the high prices of clothes today while also providing much personal satisfaction and emotional wellbeing.

Mrs. Joyce teaches her members how to organize a task such as making a garment in hopes that the experience will encourage the girls to organize other projects and endeavors in their everyday life. She also sees sewing as an opportunity to channel creativity which, she believes, everybody has to some extent.

Elsie Joyce is a firm backer of 4-H since she believes it was instrumental her and her husband Peter adjust to a new life in Charlevoix. They retired here, in fulfillment of a dream, in 1977 after spending their lives since 1946 in Pontiac. She was born Elsie Hilton on the farm where Peter and she now live next to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Hilton.

Mrs. Joyce works together with Ruth Ann Campbell, mother of former member Donna and current member Lee Ann. The two have been able to coordinate their responsibilities well such as when Mrs. Campbell took over last winter while Mrs. Joyce was away.

Elsie Joyce learned to sew in 4-H herself as a six-year member. She also worked on calf raising and canning projects. She is typical of many 4-H project leaders who pass on skills that they learned originally from 4-H.

Watching her own daughter Alta grow up learning these same skills convinced Mrs. Joyce that she could make a valuable contribution through 4-H. That contribution has since become a big part of her life and an important part of the Charlevoix County 4-H program.

Japanese cooking is topic of Crooked Tree class

Mrs. Austin Regier demonstrated the art of Japanese cooking to a group of 15 students in the Lake Charlevoix home of Dr. and Mrs. Kang-Tai-Hee last Tuesday.

Creative cooking classes, sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council, are being given in various homes in the area and students from Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Walloon and Charlevoix are included as the participants.

Mrs. Regier prepared two seperate dishes, Sukiyaki and Shabu-Shabu as well as giving tips on the preparation of rice (she recommends soaking it first) and how to eat with chop sticks.

Mrs. Regier was assisted by her daughter Michiko who is a first year student at the University of Michigan and by her mother, Ayako Ishii, who lives with the Regiers in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Regier announced to the group that she intends to cater Japanese meals in private homes for small dinner parties starting in April.

There are three more creative cooking classes scheduled. The next class in Charlevoix will be held in May at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Smith. Mrs. Sue Kleinpell will give a lesson on, "Easy and Elegant Desserts".

Anyone interested in attending the series next year is asked to contact Mrs. Martin Breighner of Petoskey or the Crooked Tree Arts Council at 347-4337.

Behind the scenes at Bayshore

'Space Invaders' Air Force style

by DAVE KNIGHT

"War" is a daily routine at the Air Force strategic training range at Bayshore. While birds sing and waves lap the beach of nearby Lake Michigan, Detachment 6 of the 1st Combat Evaluation Group is busy each day dealing with bombing attacks and missile strikes.

In what has been termed a sophisticated version of "Space Invaders", the popular video arcade game, bombers and fighters from across the country and beyond fly to the Bayshore range to test their combat skills against the site's complex electronic scoring system.

Early forms of such combat evaluation by the Air Force involved the dropping of sand bags or dummy bombs into target circles drawn on the ground. One tour of the Bayshore facility is plenty of proof that the procedure has come a long, long way since then. Bomb scoring by radar was introduced by the Air Force in 1946 at a San Diego site. Strategic Air Command planes now make over 100,000 simulated drops each year over 14 training ranges similar to the one at Bay Shore.

Sgt. Fred Upton establishes radio contact.

Though most of the aircraft participating in drills over Bayshore originate from nearby bases such as K.I. Sawyer AFB in the Upper Peninsula, some travel from as far away as the East and West Coasts. Vulcan bombers flying from Great Britain have even been scored at Bayshore. Mid-air refueling allows aircraft to reach the site from bases out of their normal refueling range.

A1C Morris Bennett plots a bombing run.

Low level important

"Attacks" on the Bayshore range are never by surprise. Each week, the station receives a computer schedule from its group headquarters in Barksdale, Louisiana. The schedule tells which planes are to come from which bases and when they can be expected. Most flights come over the range between noon and 4 p.m. during the day and between 8 p.m. and midnight after dark. Bombers, such as the B-52s most familiar with area residents, come over singly. Fighters, such as the A-7s the Ohio Air National Guard would like to start flying over Michigan regularly, come over in flights of two to four planes at a time.

Some of the flights occur at high level altitudes of over 30,000 feet but most of the current concern surrounding training flights over Bayshore involve the low level scoring range employed by the site.

Land routes abandoned

The terrain over which the planes fly to get to Bayshore is the primary reason for above sea level. Lake Michigan is about 500 feet above sealevel so that puts the planes no higher than 1,500 feet off the ground. While at this altitude, they travel at subsonic speeds around 400 miles per hour and never fly lower than 400 feet.

The low altitude training is important to combat training, says the Air Force, because in a wartime situation, aircraft must fly extremely low to avoid detection by radar.

Flights to the Bayshore low level training range generally take one of two airspace corridors into the target area. Those approaching from the east fly north from North Bay, Ontario, west across the desolate upper reaches of the province to Lake Superior where they start the descent to low altitude and then south across the eastern Upper Peninsula and the Straits of Mackinac to Little Traverse Bay. Those coming from the west enter the corridor at Menominee, Wisconsin, make a wide, clockwise circle up to the Keewanau Peninsula, head easterly across Lake Superior and come down the straits.

When on the low level course, aircraft maintain an altitude ceiling of 2,200 feet

Bayshore's main radar with a MSQ-77 antenna.

These A-7 fighters are the planes the Ohio National Guard would like to fly on low level training missions across Michigan to the Bayshore scoring range. The flights were tentatively scheduled to begin April 14. Following action by the Michigan Environmental Review Board last week asking that the flights be postponed, Gov. William Milliken's office indicated early this week that Milliken would send a letter to the Defense Department also seeking a postponement.

The B-52 Stratofortress is the heavyweight among the Strategic Air Command's bomber force. Designed as a nuclear bomber, the B-52 can also carry a conventional bomb load and short range air-to-surface missiles. It is the most familiar low-flying aircraft to area residents after flying low altitude routes regularly over Bayshore for 17 years before being rerouted over the lake last spring.

Detachment 8 being stationed where it is. The sub-arctic, lake dotted woods in this region assimilate similar territory combat aircraft would fly over in several other areas of the world where they could be called into action.

The Bayshore target range consists of seven primary targets along a 40-mile stretch of Lake Michigan between Beaver Island and the mainland. The targets do not exist in any other form than coordinates on a map. There are no physical markers at the spots.

The range over the lake is the only low level range in use since last spring when all such routes over land were terminated. Since all aircraft on low level training flights now come no closer than ten miles to the mainland, they are never seen or heard by mainland residents. Because they are flying at such low altitude, Bayshore radar cannot even pick them up until they round the point at Good Hart in Emmet County.

Radar jamming added

Prior to radar contact, however, radio communication is established between Bayshore and the incoming aircraft. The pilot indicates to the Bayshore radio operator which targets he will be using and relays the statistical information from his instrument panel that the Bayshore personnel will need to accurately score his run. The verbal communication between aircraft and Bayshore personnel is virtually the only aspect of the training experience that would be different for the plane's crew under real combat conditions.

As the aircraft streaks in from the north for a bomb drop or missile launch, another game takes place between radar operators both on the ground and in the air. From Bayshore, radar jamming signals are beamed to the plane while the electronic warfare officers in the aircraft similarly try to jam the radar on the ground.

This type of electronic one-upmanship is exactly what the bomber crews would face in a hostile, wartime situation according to the Bayshore personnel, thus making it a vital part of the training program. The jamming techniques used to confuse the planes are designed closely to what crews could expect in a hostile environment. The techniques and equipment are updated every few months or as necessary to make the training as realistic as possible.

"Space Invaders" was never this complicated.

Accurate to ten feet

To make the training even more realistic for the aircraft crew, Bayshore also has the capability to counterattack a bombing run with electronically simulated surface-to-air missiles. It is one of the few phases of the Bayshore operation that is strictly classified for obvious reasons of security.

As a bomber approaches the designated target, an electronic tone is sounded. At the moment of the drop, the tone stops thus marking precisely the point of the drop. Then the computers take over.

Using such data as the aircraft's distance, heading, ground speed, wind conditions, bomb fall characteristics and other variables, the computer system can determine exactly where the bomb or missile would hit in relation to the target.

The scoring system is accurate to within about ten feet. The system is equally as accurate in determining how close simulated anti-aircraft fire from the ground comes to a direct hit on the plane.

As each "drop" is carried out, plotters in the Bayshore station carefully chart the results. After the run, bomb and electronic scoring information is later sent to the bomber crew's home base through higher headquarters where the evaluation results are carefully analyzed and logged.

The benefits of the training runs scored at Bayshore are thus twofold. Plane crews increase their combat skills and readiness and the defense establishment gets a clearer picture of our strategic bombing capabilities.

Compared to the "Space Invaders" games played at downtown taverns and pinball arcades, the game played at Bayshore is infinitely more complex.

And the stakes are much, much higher.

Mardi Gras was weekend of fun

One last fling before Lent; that is the idea behind Mardi Gras and several Charlevoix area residents took advantage of the opportunity to make it a good fling during Mardi Gras festivities held in town over the weekend. The celebration got underway Friday night at the Grey Gables where Ray and Nancy Wood, above left, were crowned King and Queen of the Charlevoix Mardi Gras by Grey Gables owner Dave Phillips. Saturday's events included a "Snowflake" parade that ended with prizes awarded to those with the best costumes, below left. Prize winners included Amy Sanborn, the clown in the back row, and Eric Hess, the cowboy in the fronmt row. Also judged Saturday was the World's Smallest Ice Sculpture contest which was won by Kevin Kemp's four-inch wine glass, above, which will be submitted to the Guiness Book of World Records. Saturday night's costume balls at the Weathervane and Grey Gables capped the weekend fun.

MARCH BIRTHSTONE AQUAMARINE
The aquamarine has been a favorite gemstone for centuries because of its relaxing and refreshing color. A fine colored stone resembles the shallow waters that skirt the Caribbean shores -- a clear and cool, greenish blue. In fact the word "aquamarine" is Latin for "sea water."
At the height of the Roman Empire sea voyagers carried a piece of aquamarine to guard against seasickness. Other powers attributed to the gem over the years were the abilities to quicken the intellect, bestow courage, cure laziness and produce happiness and peace.
Aquamarine has long been regarded as a birthstone for March, sharing the honors with the brightly mottled quartz, bloodstone. However, aquas are certainly suitable for everyone -- no matter when they were born. If you wear a lot of blues, grays or other neutral colors, you should consider aquamarine jewelry to accent your wardrobe.
Aquamarine has greatly increased in value over the past decade, but in the sizes most often used in jewelry, it is still within reach of most jewelry lovers. It is a beautiful and valuable gem that is truly a fine investment in beauty and pleasure.
If you are interested in adding an aquamarine to your jewelry collection, please come to Reusch Jewelry and consult me first. I'd be happy to answer any further questions you may have about this beautiful gematone and the care it requires to stay beautiful.

Old business card shows how times have changed

The Courier recently acquired a business card for "Fowler's Bus and Taxi Service located at 113 Bridge Street, phone 54-J."

The card is not dated, but information on it may provide a clue about the year it was printed. Rates for bus and taxi calls within the city limits: One passenger bus call, 20 cents each; two or more passenger bus call, 15 cents each; one passenger taxi call, 25 cents each; two or more passenger taxi call, 20 cents each; one or two passenger closed or seven passenger car, 50 cents; three or more passenger closed or seven passenger car, 25 cents each.

H. H. Fowler, proprietor of the Bus and Taxi Service, also ran a "Rapid Transit Reo Bus Line" between Charlevoix and Petoskey. The bus left Charlevoix each day at 8:15 a.m., 12:45 p.m., and 6:45 p.m. The return trip left Petoskey at 10:15 a.m., 3:15 p.m., and 9:30 p.m.

In addition, Fowler advertised that he had "Five and seven passenger cars for hire."

Scouts help out with cancer drive

With the 1980 Cancer Crusade scheduled to begin April 6 in Charlevoix County, Charlevoix Boy Scout Troop 11 responded to a call for volunteers to stuff envelopes with informational material for house-to-house workers according to Mrs. Robert Hoffman, "president of the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

At a recent meeting, the Scouts stuffed each envelope with eight pieces of material and assembled folders of 25 envelopes each for the 300 volunteers who will canvass the county during the forthcoming fund drive being chaired by Mrs. John (JoAnne) Curtis.

Mrs. Hoffman expressed gratitude for the Scouts' help saying their efforts "meant priceless hours donated to this very worthwhile cause by youngsters in the community...a prime example of Boy Scouts in action."

Mrs. Curtis was also pleased with the help and added that the Scouts, under their leaders Louis Edwards and John Houting, saved the cancer drive volunteers many hours of work. Said Mrs. Curtis, "The Scouts are to be complimented for responding in such a fine manner. They are truly good Scouts!"

The materials stuffed into the envelopes are to be distributed at the area meetings for volunteers being held this week.

Charlevoix women to observe World Day of Prayer

The annual World Day of Prayer will be observed in Charlevoix on Friday, March 6 at Bethany Lutheran Church, 1407 Bridge St. at 1 p.m.

The theme of the service, which is sponsored by Church Women United and was written by American Indian women, is "The Earth Is the Lord's".

Each year, on the first Friday in March, women in 150 contries gather to participate in the ecumenical prayer service.

Assisting with the Charlevoix worship service will be Mrs. Frances Boss, Community Reformed Church, organist; Mrs. Elaine Dvoracek, First Baptist Church, soloist; Pastor Jim Plackner, Bethany Lutheran, sermon; Mrs. Virginia Jarvis and Mrs. Mary Kerr, Church of God; Mrs. Agnes Lombard, Church of the Nazarene; Mrs. Connie Raymer, Community Reformed; Mrs. Lynne Salmonson, United Methodist; Suellen Schueler, Christ Episcopal Church; Sister Ellen Mary, St. Mary's Catholic Church; Mrs. Bertha Sternaman and Mrs. Romaine McCondra, Bethany Lutheran and Mrs. Edith Chamberlain, Congregational Church.

All women in the Charlevoix area are encouraged to attend, according to Marion Parker, chairman.

And in East Jordan

The World Day of Prayer service in East Jordan will be held Friday, March 6 at the Presbyterian Church at 1:30 p.m. Representatives from the Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist and Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints in East Jordan will be participating.

Thousands of pounds of "iron" was pumped in the Charlevoix High School gym Saturday as the 1981 Lift-A-Thon was held to raise money for the weight training program. Several athletes from Charlevoix and the surrounding area lined up pledges for the amount of weight each accumulated in the afternoon event. The proceeds will go toward maintaining the high school weight room equipment.

First Cong. sets Sunday sessions

On Sunday evenings during the Lenten season at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, there will be a series of sessions on the heritage, principles and thrust of the denomination to which the church belongs, the United Church of Christ.

Topics to be discussed include how the church was established from four different previous denominations, the U.C.C. Statement of Faith and how the heritage and beliefs are applied to the human issues of our day.

Each of the sessions will be led by a lay leader of the congregation and discussion will be encouraged. The sessions, which will begin at 7 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the church, are open to all.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF SALE
$410,000
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX,
STATE OF MICHIGAN
GENERAL OBLIGATION
WATER BONDS

SEALED BIDS for the purpose of the above bonds will be received by the undersigned at the City's offices located at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, on Monday, the 16th day of March, 1981, until 4:00 o'clock p.m., Eastern Standard Time, at which time and place said bids will be publicly opened and read.

IN THE ALTERNATIVE sealed bids will also be received on the same date and until the same time by an agent of the undersigned at the offices of the Municipal Advisory Council of Michigan, 2135 First National Building, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

BOND DETAILS: Said bonds will be coupon bonds of the denomination of $5,000 each, dated February 1, 1981, numbered in direct order of maturity from 1 upwards and will bear interest from their date payable on October 1, 1981, and semiannually thereafter.

Said bonds will mature on the first day of October, as follows:

$10,000 1981 through 1984, inclusive;
$20,000 1985;
$25,000 1986 through 1989, inclusive,
$50,000 1990 through 1994, inclusive.

REDEMPTION OF BONDS: Bonds of the issue shall not be subject to redemption prior to maturity.

INTEREST RATE AND BIDDING DETAILS:
The bonds shall bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding 11% per annum, to be fixed by the bids therefor, expressed in multiples of ¼ or 1/20 of 1%, or both. The interest on any one bond shall be at one rate only, all bonds maturing in any one year must carry the same interest rate and each coupon period will be represented by one interest coupon. The difference between the highest and lowest interest rates bid shall not exceed 2%. No proposal for the purchase of less than all of the bonds or at a price less than 100% of their par value will be considered.

PAYING AGENT: Both principal and interest shall be payable at a bank or trust company located in Michigan qualified to act as paying agent under State or United States law to be designated by the original purchaser of the bonds, who may also designate a co-paying agent, which may be located outside of Michigan, qualified to act as paying agent under the law of the State in which located or of the United States, both of which shall be subject to approval of the undersigned.

PURPOSE AND SECURITY: The bonds were authorized at the general election held November 4, 1980, and are issued for the purpose of paying the costs of acquiring and constructing improvements to City's Water System. The bonds will pledge the full faith and credit of the City for payment of the principal and interest thereon and will be payable from ad valorem taxes, which may be levied without limitation as to rate or amount. The rights or remedies of bondholders may be affected by bankruptcy laws or other creditors' rights legislation now existing or hereafter enacted.

GOOD FAITH: A certified or cashier's check in the amount of $8,200 drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company and payable to the order of the City Treasurer, must accompany each bid as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, to be forfeited as liquidated damages if such bid be accepted and the bidder fails to take up and pay for the bonds. No interest shall be allowed on the good faith checks and checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be promptly returned to each bidder's representative or by registered mail. The good faith check of the successful bidder may be immediately cashed in which event payment for the balance of the purchases price of the bonds shall be made at the closing.

AWARD OF BONDS: The bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose bid produces the lowest interest cost computed by determining, at the rate or rates specified in the bid, the total dollar value of all interest on the bonds from April 1, 1981, to their maturity and deducting therefrom any premium.

LEGAL OPINION: Bids shall be conditioned upon the unqualified approving opinion of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, attorneys of Detroit, Michigan, a copy of which opinion will be printed on the reverse side of each bond and the original of which will be furnished without expense to the purchaser of the bonds at the delivery thereof. The fees of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone for services rendered in connection with such approving opinion are expected to be paid from bond proceeds. Except to the extent necessary to assure their unqualified approving opinion as to validity of the above bonds, Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone has not been requested to examine or review and has not examined or reviewed any financial documents, statements or materials that have been or may be furnished in connection with the authorization, issuance or marketing of the bonds, and accordingly will not express any opinion with respect to the accuracy or completeness of any such financial documents, statements or materials.

DELIVERY OF BONDS: The City will furnish bonds ready for execution at its expense. Bonds will be delivered without expense to the purchaser at a place to be agreed upon. The usual closing documents, including a certificate that no litigation is pending affecting the issuance of the bonds, will be delivered at the time of the delivery of the bonds. If the bonds are not tendered for delivery by twelve o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, on the 45th day following the date of sale, or the first business day thereafter if said 45th day is not a business day, the successful bidder may on that day, or any time thereafter until delivery of the bonds, withdraw his proposal by serving notice of cancellation, in writing, on the undersigned in which event the City shall promptly return the good faith deposit. Payment for the Bonds shall be made in Federal Reserve Funds.

Accrued interest to the date of delivery of the bonds shall be paid by the purchaser at the time of delivery.

CUSIP NUMBERS: It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on said bonds, but neither the failure to print such numbers on any bonds nor any error with respect thereto shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the purchaser thereto to accept delivery of and pay for said bonds in accordance with terms of the purchaser contract. All expenses in relation to the printing of CUSIP numbers on said bonds shall be paid for by the issuer, provided, however, that the CUSIP Service Bureau charge for the assignment of said numbers shall be the responsibility of and shall be paid for by the purchaser.

THE RIGHT IS RESERVED TO REJECT ANY OR ALL BIDS.

ENVELOPES containing the bids should be plainly marked "Proposal for General Obligation Water Bonds."

Wojan is second at state

Ken Wojan, Charlevoix Rayder heavyweight, placed second in his class at the Michigan State High School Wrestling Tournament held in Crisler Fieldhouse at Ann Arbor Friday and Saturday.

It marks only the third time in Charlevoix wrestling history that a local matman has advanced to the finals of the state tournament, according to Charlevoix Coach Greg Bryan.

"I'm very, very proud of Kenny. When you go to state you're among the eight best wrestlers in your class in the state. That in itself is an honor but to come in second is terrific. I'm very proud of his performance. Everyone should be equally as proud," said Bryan.

Wojan, who tips the scales at 200 pounds, lost to 265-pound George Manson of Lansing Catholic Central in the finals Saturday.

In his first two matches, Wojan won by close decisions, first over Lee Bonczkowski of Burton Bendle by 5-3 and then over Tim Martel of Byron Area by 9-8.

Wojan was pinned by Manson in 5:05 of the Class C heavyweight championship match.

The match marked the end of Wojan's prep wrestling career during which he amassed a record of 87 wins and 23 losses. He was a two-time conference champion, two time Class C District champion and two-time Class C Regional champion.

Victory over Boyne is satisfying end to schedule

Fans who attended the Charlevoix-Boyne City game Friday may have awakened Saturday morning with sore necks following the wild season-ending battle that saw the two teams engage in a running battle that took action from one end of the court to the other constantly. It was more like watching a tennis match.

And when the dust settled, the Charlevoix Rayders had saved themselves from a losing conference record by one point. The 63-64 barnstorm victory was a fitting end to a season in which Charlevoix lost perhaps more than its share of close games.

With the win, the Rayders salvaged a .500 record in Michigan Upper Shores action while Boyne City settled for a respectable 9-5 conference record overall on the season. The Rayders boasted an 11-7 win-loss record.

It was nip and tuck for most of the game though Charlevoix maintained a consistent lead for most of the second half. Paul Hoffman had the hot hand for the Rayders early on the game as he scored eight of his 14 points in the first quarter to keep Charlevoix within two, 20-18 when the quarter ended.

Both teams played the second quarter even as Charlevoix gained one point on the Ramblers and went into the halftime lockerroom down 28-27.

By way of some nifty fast breaks and some accurate passing under the basket, Charlevoix gained the upper hand in the third quarter opening up a ten-point, 45-35 lead at one point. They were ahead 49-41 when the quarter ended.

Boyne City, behind a poised Brian Vroman who canned eight of eight free throws in the quarter, kept creeping up on the Rayders and, by the 40 second mark, had climbed to within one point, 63-64. Charlevoix had led 63-58 only a minute before.

A missed one and one free throw opportunity by Charlevoix's Craig Klooster with 24 seconds to go gave the ball back to Boyne City who bounced several agonizingly close shots off the rim and backboard but couldn't put it through before Mike Loper tied up a rebound for a jump ball with three seconds left.

To the delight of Charlevoix fans, the Rayders controlled the jump and salvaged the win.

Individual scorers for Charlevoix included Hoffman with 14, Gary Drury with 13 and Dave Buday and Craig Klooster with ten each. Vroman led all scorers with 22 while Larry Jarema had 18 and John Tompkins 15 for the Ramblers.

Balanced scoring by the Charlevoix junior varsity propelled them to a 67-34 victory over the BC JVs.

Chris Putman canned 13 points for Charlevoix while Jeff Trimper, Tim LaBlance and George Smith each had 12 apiece.

After holding Boyne City to four points in the whole first quarter, the Rayders went on to dominate the game with leads of 36-19, 48-27 and 67-34 at the ends of the second, third and fourth quarters respectively.

The victory salted away an outstanding season record of 15 wins and three losses for Coach Don Carey's junior varsity squad.

Charlevoix bumped

Charlevoix was unexpectedly knocked out of their own Class C District tournament Monday night by Elk Rapids who upset the Rayders 66-62 in a first round game at the Charlevoix High School gym.

Details of the game and the rest of the District action will be covered in next week's Courier.

Loss ends V-ball year

The Charlevoix girls volleyball team ended its 1981 season Thursday with a 2-0 loss to St. Ignace which gave the Saints the 1961 Michigan-Ituron Shores conference title.

The Saints had an 11-1 record to win the title; Rogers City finished in second place with a 10-2 record and Charlevoix in third with a 6-6 mark.

Charlevoix will now join Grayling, Rogers City and Boyne City from the M-HS Conference in the Class C tournament at Kalkaska Saturday. Grayling and Charlevoix will kick off the tournament at 10 a.m. followed by Rogers City and Boyne City at approximately 11 a.m. Elk Rapids and Benzie Central will meet in the next game and Traverse City and Kalkaska will meet in the fourth game before the playoffs start at about 2 p.m. The finals will be played at about 5 p.m. according to tournament manager Phil Reed.

In Charlevoix's make up game with St. Ignace here last week, Charlevoix won the first game 15-12 but from then on it was the Saints all the way. With the title at stake, they took the first match with wins of 15-5, 15-2 and the second with wins of 15-13, 15-4.

In the first set, Brenda Buchanan was the top server, Teresa Noirot and Mef Kerridge the top spikers and Kerridge the outstanding defensive player. In the second series, Kerridge stood out as the top server and spiker and Noirot as the defensive player.

The Charlevoix JV's won by forfeit.

Obituaries

DORA FRANK

Funeral services for Mrs. Dora Frank, 80, who died Feb. 23 at Grandvue Medical Care Facility where she had been a patient since September, 1979, were held Feb. 26 at the Church of the Everlasting God in East Jordan. Rev. Jimmie McWatters officiated. Burial was in Star Township cemetery, Antrim County.

Born in Star Township on December 21, 1899, the former Dora Gates was married to Warren Frank in Detroit on Jan. 5, 1918. They resided in Detroit until moving to South Arm Township in 1940. Mr. Frank preceded her in death in 1968. She was a member of the Church of the EVerlasting God in East Jordan.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Ellery (Jacquette) Inman of Tampa, Florida; two sons, Marvin of Manton and Warren of East Jordan; nine grandchildren; 12 great grandchildren; a brother, Clare Gates of Arizona and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Black of Ellsworth, Mrs. Veryl Francis of Alba and Mrs. Gladys Gracboe of Gulliver.

The family suggests memorials to the Church of the Everlasting God. Hastings Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Local voices sought for Easter cantata

Plans to present the Easter cantata "The Seven Last Words of Christ" by Dubois at the First Congregational Church on Palm Sunday, April 12, have been announced by Ellen Addington who will direct the presentation.

Area residents interested in singing in the cantata are invited to attend the first rehearsal to be held at the Community Reformed Church at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 10. Voices are needed for the chorus, said Miss Addington in issuing an invitation to all interested persons to join in the presentation sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

Soloists for the cantata will be Jay Thompson of Interlochen Arts Academy, baritone; Mark Puchala of Traverse City, tenor, and Frances Toilas of Charlevoix, soprano. Elizabeth Humphrey will be the organist.

Rehearsals will be held weekly at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday in preparation for a 3:30 p.m. performance Sunday, April 12.

Boyne VFW plans two events

Boyne City V.F.W. Post 3675 and its Auxiliary will hold a Swiss steak dinner at the post home on I-75 at Boyne City from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday, March 14.

The cost will be $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for children under 12. The public is invited.

On Sunday, March 21, the V.F.W. Post 3675 will hold an open house at its post home in Boyne City. A special invitation is extended to all Korea and Viet Nam veterans and their wives. The open house will be held at noon and will include refreshments and lunch.

Met opera singer to sing in area

Northern Michigan Community Concerts will present its third concert of the series Thursday, March 5 at the Petoskey Middle School at 8 p.m. with the appearance of Philip Creech from the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

Creech has been acclaimed in major operatic, orchestra and recital performances throughout this country and in Europe. Since 1978 he has sung with the Chicago Symphony, Boston Symphony, New York Philharmonic, Cincinnati Symphony, St. Louis Symphony, Berlin Philharmonic and the Vienna Philharmonic.

Series ticket information may be obtained by calling the Crooked Tree Arts Council at 347-4337.

Reborn Park Ave. condo plan fails rezoning test

by DAVE KNIGHT

Going into Monday night's meeting of the Charlevoix Township Board, the plan for 14 new condominium units at 711 Park Ave. was one and one for the week. It had failed to obtain favorable recommendation from the Township Zoning Board last Wednesday but won the approval of the County Planning Commission Thursday.

Monday's meeting, however, was the only meeting that really counted in the end.

By a 5-0 count, the Charlevoix Township Board flatly refused to change the township's zoning ordinance to accomodate the proposed condominium. The board also rejected specifically the application submitted by developers Jerome and Marvin Bookstein for rezoning of the property.

At issue was a two-part request by the Booksteins to change the present requirement for PUD (planned unit development) from 25 acres to one acre and to subsequently rezone the 3.77 acre plot at the south end of Park Ave. from its present R-1 (single family residential) to PUD.

Plans developed for the project by architect Jack Begrow and Site Planning Development, Inc. of Charlevoix included 14 new condominium units in two two-story buildings plus condominium use of the existing home on the site for an actual total of 15 units.

Plan scaled down

The plan was a smaller version of the Booksteins' original proposal, offered and withdrawn in January, for a 33-unit complex on the property now owned by Olive L. Moyer. The first time around, the Booksteins requested rezoning to R-4 but received strong opposition from the zoning board and county planners.

Charlevoix attorney Thomas Pointner, representing the Booksteins, explained to zoning board members last Wednesday that the more recent plan was developed in response to concerns voiced board members and others when the original proposal was made.

Among the factors he mentioned were obstruction of the lake view, inadequacy of setbacks, affect on neighboring properties and increased traffic flow.

Said Pointner, "This plan (the 14-unit version) addresses those concerns."

Homes are alternative

Also appearing before the zoning board at the March 4 meeting were Trevor Wood and John Campbell of Site Planning Development who emphasized the merits of a consolidated, coordinated development over the building of several single family homes on the property.

Jerome Bookstein confirmed that single family home construction would take place as an alternative to the condominium plan saying, "We are going to develop this property, if not under PUD then under R-1."

Bookstein said that the property will accomodate nine to ten homes and that possibly the first two models will be erected this summer if the condominium plan fails, he reaffirmed that intention Monday night following the action of the full Township Board.

The Booksteins have maintained all along that their plans had the support of many neighbors and area residents but few supporters were in evidence at any of this most recent series of meetings.

Full houses, which means about 60 people in the Charlevoix Township Hall, attended the Zoning Board and Township Board meetings, most of them neighbors and other township residents opposing the plan. Petitions and letters of opposition were also acknowledged; those addressed to the Zoning Board included petitions with 25 signatures from Boulder Park residents, others with 331 signatures of township residents and others with 159 signatures from city residents. All were in opposition to the plan.

A frequent point made by audience members at the township meetings regarded the future of R-1 zoning in the township if the Moyer property was rezoned PUD.

Said township resident Louis Hollow to the Zoning Board, "If you grant one request to rezone from R-1 to PUD, you have no grounds to deny others."

The only support for the plan came from the County Planning Commission which voted Thursday to recommend the ordinance change and the rezoning for the Bookstein plan.

One dissenting vote was cast at that session by commission member Larry Levengood from the City of Charlevoix who indicated that his constituency had made clear their opposition to multiple family use of the property.

Commission approved

The consensus of the commission, however, and of County Planner John Hess, was that the PUD zoning was appropriate for the Moyer lot and that it provided for more control over future development on small parcels in the township.

Thus the issue advanced to the Charlevoix Township Board with one recommendation for denial and one recommendation for approval.

Shown above is a model created by Site Planning Development, Inc. to show how the proposed condominiums would have appeared on the Moyer property. Park Avenue is in the foreground; Boulder Park would be off to the left Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud made an initial attempt at the crucial board meeting Monday night to send the request back to the Zoning Board. Stroud said that to drastically diminish the PUD acreage minimum would require a complete redrafting of the PUD definition since several other portions of the PUD classification were based on the 25-acre minimum.

Said Stroud, "The PUD zoning ordinance is not sufficient for Charlevoix Township."

Board member Dale Glass opted for immediate action on the Bookstein request; however, saying that to send the application back to the Zoning Board would be to avoid the basic question of whether the Moyer property shall remain R-1.

Said Glass, "This plan has been flatly rejected by the Zoning Board ... there is no necessity to throw it back to them. We should vote now on the issues at hand."

Both votes unanimous

Board member Don Smith was supported by Glass in his motion to deny the requested change in the PUD ordinance. Smith cited the unacceptability of multiple family use of the property in making the motion. The subsequent vote was unanimous with board members Rose Bergmann and JoAnn Elzinga joining Smith, Glass and Stroud in support of the denial.

After confusion over whether another motion was necessary to address the specific application for rezoning, Glass offered a second motion to deny the Bookstein application on grounds that "the most profitable use of the land is not always the best use."

That motion also passed unanimously.

Indications were Monday night that the Zoning Board will still take up possible changes in the PUD classification at later meetings but that the changes will not necessarily relate to the Park Ave. condo plan.

Jerome and Marvin Bookstein said following the meeting that single family home construction will, in all probability, begin this summer on the property.

Public hearing coming up for proposed 1982 city budget

by DAVE KNIGHT

Monday, March 16 has been set by the Charlevoix City Council as the date for a public hearing on the proposed 1981 budget for the city.

In a budget proposal forwarded to City Council members about two weeks ago, City Manager James Brinker has projected total expenditures of $3,921,755 for fiscal 1982 which begins April 1, 1981.

In comments accompanying the proposal, Brinker cites the inflationary trends of the current economy as making the budget especially difficult to prepare.

He also warns of further cuts that will have to be made in the city's spending if a substantial property tax cut is enacted by the state legislature this year.

Said Brinker, "The Governor's proposed tax package would mean a reduction in revenues to the city of some $70,000 and in the event this or some other tax package is approved by the voters, the city would have to reduce spending and amend the budget."

Another ripple from Lansing causing a wave in the Charlevoix budget is the sharp decrease in state shared gas and weight tax revenue. The drop has been attributed to less fuel consumption and road travel due to conservation initiatives.

This loss of funding directly affects the city's Major and Local Street Funds and will require a transfer from the General Fund to balance the budget. Brinker proposes shifting of all Federal Revenue Sharing Funds to the Local Street Fund as has been done the past two years. He states that this transfer will eliminate all past deficits in the fund by the end of the 1982 fiscal year.

The proposed Major Street Fund is $138,350 and the Local Fund is $104,018. No street resurfacing is included in these figures but Brinker suggests that a one-mill increase, earmarked for street improvement, be considered, possibly in a special vote.

The single largest item on the city budget and the one with one of the most dramatic increases over last year is the electric utility with a proposed budget of $1,938,836 for fiscal 1982. That compares to a 1981 budget of $1,503,056 and represents an approximate 27 percent jump in one year. Brinker attributes the increase to cost adjustments in the power purchased by the city.

Personnel also takes a big chunk out of the city operating expenses with a total of $519,493 budgeted for salaries and employee benefits. A precise breakdown of the personnel figures were impossible to come up with because negotiations with city employees are still in process. In an effort to hold the line, however, Brinker has proposed adding no new positions and reducing the hours of one City Hall employee.

The only budget areas not balanced in the 1982 proposal are the Sewage Disposal and Water Supply funds. With projected incomes of $205,280 and $127,292 respectively, both show deficits of $37,000 which, for Sewage Disposal, will mean a cumulative deficit (including past years) of over $93,000. For the water fund, the cumulative deficit will be about $42,000 by the end of the fiscal year.

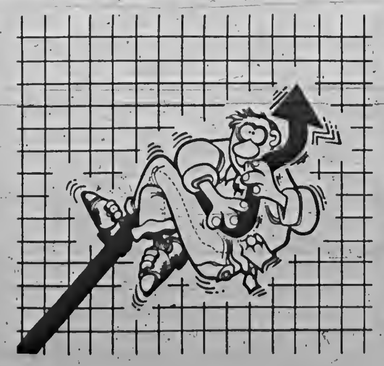
The deficits are a primary reason for the council's recent approval of a rate structure study of both departments. Brinker cites the new water tower project to begin this spring, however, as an important step toward improvement of that system.

General Fund expenses are budgeted at $961,935 for 1982, an increase of 7.9 percent over last year. That increase, points out Brinker, is well below the double digit inflation rate.

On the income side, the budget was prepared on the basis of the present property tax levy on State Equalized Value (SEV). Because of decreased construction, the city saw an increase of only $3 million in SEV last year, which, based on the same tax levy, will provide an additional $29,000 of revenue for the city. Debt retirement was increased from one and a half to two mills for the new water tower bond.

That, plus 10½ mills for general operating purposes, comprises a total tax levy of 12½ mills for fiscal 1982. The resulting revenue is projected at $487,680 as compared to the fiscal 1981 figure of $451,500.

At the March 16 hearing, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers, the council will entertain any comments from the public on the budget. It is possible that, if complications do not delay the process, the 1982 budget could be approved at that session.



Tree planting forum set

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an open forum this Wednesday night on whether to initiate a privately-funded tree planting program in the downtown and auxiliary shopping areas of the community.

All interested citizens are invited to participate in the forum which will be held Wednesday, March 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix City Council chambers at City Hall.

Township settles for $11,000 in Haggard suit

Charlevoix Township will receive a total of about $11,000 in an out-of-court settlement of a suit filed against Haggard Plumbing and Heating of Charlevoix following authorization of the agreement by the Township Board Monday night.

The suit, filed in late 1979, involved a well dug for the township on the south side of the city that allegedly failed. The Haggard firm, contracted to dig the well, was subsequently sued by the township for nearly $20,600.

The case was to go before Judge Martin Breighner in Charlevoix Circuit Court Monday but was settled by attorneys without litigation.

According to the agreement okayed by the Township Board, the township wins a total settlement of $16,000, about a third of which will go to their attorneys. That makes the actual sum received by the township approximately $11,000.

Supervisor Oscar Stroud told the board that the alternative would be to proceed with the suit in court and risk higher legal fees that might decrease the township's net award.

On a motion by board member Dale Glass, the board voted unanimously to accept the settlement as offered.

Trapped under truck cab, Mousseau now improving

by FRAN MARTIN

Bernard Mousseau, 59, who was seriously injured in a three-car pile-up on US 31 south of Conway Thursday is on the mend. He has been removed from the sub-acute care area of Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey, according to a member of his family and is now recuperating in a Main Floor room.

Mousseau was the driver of a semi-truck loaded with lumber when an accident involving two other vehicles resulted in his being pinned under the tractor cab for more than 90 minutes. The accident occurred at about 1 a.m. Thursday.

He was pinned under the cab of the truck after it rolled with the trailer, crashing into the hood of a car driven by Annette LaCount, 18, of Petoskey. Deputies worked for an hour and a half with a "Jaws of Life" hydraulic tool to free Mousseau.

Assistance was also needed from a large wrecker belonging to a Petoskey towing company. The Resort-Bear Creek fire department stood by in case of fire from diesel fuel leaking from the overturned tractor.

Mousseau was taken to Northern Michigan Hospitals by a Petoskey ambulance.

According to family sources, he suffered several fractured ribs and severe bruises and was burned by battery acid and fuel oil that came into contact with his skin.

George England, 43, of Conway was the driver of the third car involved in the accident. Miss LaCount was treated at the hospital and released.

Brownies hold rededication ceremony

Members of Brownie Scout Troop 284 renewed their Girl Scout Promise and Laws recently at a special Rededication ceremony.

Highlight of the ceremony was the lighting of five gold candles as Christine Dillon and Kate Christensen recited the Girl Scout Promise. Ten green candles representing the Girl Scout laws were then lighted by Tamara Cosgrove, Sonja Wiltute, Stacy Hussell, Rachel Meyers, Jennifer Frabis, Kandra Olinger, Lisa LaFavy and Kallie Washburn. Stacy Bunting was unable to attend to recite her Girl Scout law.

Their leader, Carolyn Olinger, then presented Friendship patches to each member of the troop. To earn the patch, the girls wrote letters about themselves to a Brownie Troop in Jackson, Michigan.

For their closing ceremony, members of the troop sang "On My Honor", "AH-TA-KA-TA-NU-VA", a song about Eskimo adventures sung with delightful actions, and "America the Beautiful" during which they were joined by their parents and others who attended the ceremony.

The ceremony opened with the presentation of the colors with Tamara Cosgrove and Christine Dillon as flag bearers and Kandra Olinger and Rachel Meyers as the color guards.

In recognition of Think Day, Feb. 22, Jennifer Frabis presented a reading. On nation-wide Think Day all Girl Scouts remember their sister Scouts.

Refreshments were served at the close of the ceremony. The Scouts and leaders thanked the parents and other relatives for furnishing the refreshments and attending the ceremony.

4-H Livestock Clubs to meet

Charlevoix County 4-H Market Livestock Clubs will hold a joint meeting, open to the public on Mon., March 16, 1981 at 7:30 p.m. It will be held in the City Hall Auditorium, 319 N. Lake Str., Boyne City. Doug Nielson, animal husbandry expert and manager of the M.S.U. Lake City Experimental Station will speak on feeding livestock and answer questions. All 4-H Market Livestock members as well as other persons interested in the topic of livestock feed are invited to attend.

During the day of March 16, Mr. Nielson will tour the county to inspect selected steers belonging to Charlevoix County 4-H members. His observations will contribute to the proper raising of these animals which will be finished 4-H projects by late summer 1981, and destined for show and auction at the Emmet County Fair in August.

Oddfellows gain cribbage lead

With one week remaining to be played in the 50th annual Mason-Oddfellow cribbage tournament, the Oddfellows tallied 118 points to take a 460 point lead according to tournament secretary Ronald Geer.

Don Couse had 950 points for the Masons and Tim Bergmann 945 for the Oddfellows. Nine tables were in play. The final games of the tournament will be played at the American Legion post home Thursday.

Following the tournament, the losing team hosts the winners at a dinner where prizes for the year are presented.

CEA ratifies contract

At a Wednesday meeting last week, the Charlevoix Education Association officially ratified a three-year contract. The contract had been forwarded to the CEA by the Charlevoix District Board of Education which had ratified the contract at its March 2 meeting (Courier, 3-4-81). The contract must now be ratified by the Northern Michigan Area Education Association which is slated to take up the matter next month. Until ratification by the NMAEA, terms of the contract will not be announced.

Reibel appeal filed

Charlevoix Attorney Arthur R. Reibel has filed an appeal with the state Attorney Discipline Board which suspended Reibel on February 7 from the practice of law for one year. A tentative date of April 29 has been set by the board to hear Reibel's appeal. At that time, Reibel will appear in front of the full seven-member panel in Detroit and have 20 to 30 minutes to orally refute the findings of the three-member panel of Northern Michigan attorneys that made the initial ruling. The full panel has the options of increasing, decreasing or leaving the punishment as is or it can dismiss the case all together. Reibel's case involves a sum of $1,200 allegedly given to him to post bond for a client in February, 1979 but which the Attorney Grievance Commission charges that Reibel mishandled.

James Bowman named CHS commencement speaker

By FRAN MARTEN

James N. Bowman, Assistant Athletic Director at the U.S. Air Force Academy, has accepted an invitation to give the Commencement Address at his alma mater, the Charlevoix High School, in June, Vane H. Smith, Charlevoix High School Principal, has announced.

This follows the custom established several years ago of inviting graduates of the Charlevoix High School to return as Commencement speakers.

In accepting the invitation Bowman, a 1951 graduate, wrote "I accept with pleasure your invitation to be your commencement speaker for the 1981 graduating class on June 7. It will be a lot of fun for me to renew old acquaintances. I appreciate the invitation and consider it an honor".

As Assistant Athletic Director for Candidate Counseling, Bowman is in charge of recruiting for 28 varsity sports teams at the Air Force Academy.

He came to the Academy in 1958 and was head junior varsity football coach for four years before becoming head freshman coach. He served as frosh coach until the 1975 season when he again assumed the J.V. program. After the 1975 season, he retired as a coach to devote his full duties to the recruiting program.

In his five seasons as J.V. Head Coach, his teams compiled 24-4-1 record and his 1963 and 1975 teams were undefeated. In his eleven seasons as freshman coach his teams had a 37-28 record.

A 1961 graduate of Charlevoix High School, Bowman won All-Conference honors and received All-State mention as a center in 1960. The Raydens were undefeated during the four years he was in high school here. Bowman went to the University of Michigan where he played football during the 1953, 1954 and 1955 seasons, lettering as a center. He was graduated in 1956. He was a member of Sigma Phi fraternity at the U. of M.

He entered the U.S. Air Force following graduation and completed pilot training at Reese AFB, Texas, in 1957. After earning his pilot's wings, he attended the B-47 transition school at McConnell AFB, Kansas.

After arriving at the Academy, he was a member of the Falcon Coaching Staff whose teams played in three bowl games...the 1959 Cotton Bowl, the 1963 Gator Bowl and the 1971 Sugar Bowl.

Bowman served a dual role as Assistant Athletic Director since 1964. Since that time Academy teams in all sports have compiled a 70 percent winning percentage which is one of the best in the nation. He helped develop the Academy's Women's Athletic Program which is outstanding in all respects. He is a member of the Admissions Review Committee, Athletic Eligibility Committee and has represented the Academy at numerous conferences and meetings across the nation.

He has had extensive public speaking experience and has represented the Academy on radio and television on numerous occassions during his 21 years on the athletic staff. He has been the "Voice of Falcon Hockey" as the public address announcer and was selected for the NCAA tournament in 1968. In 1966 and 1977 he hosted his own television sports program on a local channel.

James N. Bowman

A spokesman for the Academy says his extensive experience in all phases of inter-collegiate athletic programs in the country has helped contribute immensely to one of the most successful athletic programs in the country.

He and his wife, Mae, live at Colorado Springs. His son, Jim, 22, is a graduate of Colorado College, Jordy, 21, a student at New England College and Jed, 18, a senior at Air Academy High School.

Bloodmobile tops quota at March 4 visit by 23

The Charlevoix area topped its quota in the Bloodmobile Drive Wednesday by 23 pints of blood Mrs. David Fowler, coordinator for the drive, has announced.

A total of 163 persons responded to the call for blood. Of that number, 148 donated blood. The remaining 15 were deferred for various reasons such as a cold, temperature, medication or some similar reason.

"After missing our quota by as few as one or two pints so many times it is most gratifying to surpass our quota. We were all pleased with the response. The people of the Charlevoix area are to be commended for turning out in such numbers" Mrs. Fowler said.

She went on to say that the drive started out with 51 people registering the first hour. The crew of the USCG Mesquite had been scheduled for that time but they were joined by others she said.

"When the Bloodmobile comes to town it means large corps of workers must be recruited for the six hour clinic. The response to our call for volunteers was as gratifying as the response for donors" Mrs. Fowler said.

Assisting with the Bloodmobile were Mrs. Vernon Mathews, Jr., who organizes a telephone calling committee and workers other than nurses; the Kappa Sigma and Xi Epsilon Gamma chapters of Beta Sigma Phi sorority who supplied and manned the canteen; the Jaycees under Dan Miller who off-loaded and loaded the Bloodmobile equipment at the American Legion post home which was donated by the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion.

"It was truly a community effort. - Everyone is to be thanked, everyone from the donors to those who volunteered for the many jobs involved in a successful clinic" Mrs. Fowler added.

The next visit for the Bloodmobile is scheduled for late September.

Developmental screening for kindergarten students-to-be set by Char-Em

There will be Developmental Screening Clinics for all children who will be enterng kindergarten in the fall of 1982. These clinics are sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

The purpose of these clinics is to provide parents information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three year old children, and to have children informally screened in order to identify any potential difficulties which may arise during the school years. There are a free service with appointments made on a first come, first served basis.

The clinics will be held at Central Lake-Ellsworth on March 11, at The Children's Place on Central Lake and at East Jordan on March 8.

Those interested in attending the above clinics, or who reside in a district other than those listed above, are asked to contact Joan Smith, 547-9947, at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for an appointment or further information.

North Point residents band together in cooperative anti-crime programs

by LISA AGNELLO

Charlevoix County has experienced an increase of breaking and entering cases of approximately 29 percent. Concerned citizens from the North Point area of Charlevoix Township organized a meeting last month, with Sheriff Lasater, regarding the cooperation of the citizens of the North Point area and the Sheriff's office to bring better protection to the citizens.

The three programs that are being implemented include a Neighborhood Watch Program, Operation Identification and a Community Child Watch Program. These programs will be used as a citizen involvement to assist the Sheriff's office in crime prevention.

The goals and objectives behind the Neighborhood Watch Program are to maintain a cooperative system of surveillance over one another's property. Citizens are requested to report any suspicious activity, people or crimes in progress to the Sheriff's Department. All members of law enforcement are aware of areas that are involved in a Neighborhood Watch Program. Home Security Inspections and Operation Identification would assist in crime prevention. The Sheriff's office will provide educational material, on a regular basis, relative to self-protection and criminal awareness. The Neighborhood Watch Program will help the citizens of the North Point area to police their area with organized patrols and coordinators.

Operation Identification is a method of marking valuable property of a residence with special marking tools. Operation ID aids in the return of lost or stolen property to the lawful owner, makes the disposal of stolen property more difficult for the thief, and assists in obtaining prosecution and conviction of thieves.

The Community Child Watch Program is strongly encouraged by the Sheriff and has been adopted and copied after the Grand Rapids Program that was set up after they had a tragic loss two years ago. This type of crime is on the increase and is not limited to large cities such as Atlanta, Georgia and Grand Rapids. Last year, Belding, Michigan was a victim community. Sheriff Lasater emphasizes the importance of a Child Watch Program for the entire county. Prevention should be implemented before a serious crime occurs.

The Child Watch Program is designed to provide assistance to children in many kinds of emergencies, such as attempted abduction, attack by dogs, illnesses, lost, bullying, etc. Statistically most sexual attacks involve children from the ages of kindergarten through grade five.

Only one in 500 are reported to the police. More than half of the assaults occur when the child is either on the way to or from school, or on or near the school property.

Burglary accounts for one-third of all crimes reported. It is statistically the most increasing crime in our county and nation wide. The citizens of the North Point area are the first in Charlevoix County, to establish cooperative effort programs between the citizens and the Sheriff's Department. Sheriff Lalsater commented that "Without the assistance of the citizens that we serve, we in law enforcement are going to loose the battle against the criminal element." Other areas of the county are encouraged to establish similar programs by contacting Sheriff Lasater.

Band Boosters plan St. Pat's luncheon

The Charlevoix Band Boosters will sponsor a St. Patrick's Day Salad and Casserole luncheon at the American Legion post home Tuesday, March 17, according to Mrs. Frank North, president of the group.

Mrs. Neil Jones, coordinator of the event, said serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 1:30 p.m.

The luncheon will offer a wide selection of hot casseroles, salads, rolls, desserts and beverage.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $2 for senior citizens and students. Proceeds will be used to purchase much-needed equipment for the high school band program.

Knight on the Town
One for the system

For the time being, anyway, it appears that condominiums will not be built on the wooded lakeshore of 711 Park Ave. This observation follows Monday night's rejection by the Charlevoix Township Board of the developers' attempt to rewrite planned unit development zoning requirements to their needs.

Since the first plans for condos on the choice Moyer property were announced months ago, a classic confrontation has ensued. It is classic in the sense that somewhere, right now, there is another community in which the names and the faces are different but the issue and the arguments are the same. In fact, there are probably many such places.

When does growth defeat its purpose?

When does it endanger a community's future more than enhance it?

Not easy questions but ones being faced by almost every attractive small community in the country now on a regular basis.

In the case of Charlevoix, growth in the form of condominium units occupied on a limited basis by affluent people would seem, at face value, to be the ideal cog in the local economy. School taxes are paid but no children enrolled; property taxes pay for municipal services infrequently used; downstate dollars are spent on local goods and services; new projects mean construction jobs and so on.

But the rub comes when that which attracts condo dwellers is devalued by the condos themselves.

One only has to look at the has-been resort industry of some Lake Michigan coastal communities way south to realize that their attraction faded when people became more mobile and could drive farther north to enjoy "real" beauty and isolation from urban chaos.

Beauty and isolation; important factors to Charlevoix's traditional attraction to vacationers, no doubt. But how much can the attraction of the community as a whole be diminished by 14 condominium units?

This was the question that three local governmental bodies wrestled with last week. The good thing about a lively issue like this is that people who have never attended a local governmental meeting finally get exposed to how the grassroots decisions are made.

By and large, I think most people were impressed with the expediency and fairness shown at the meetings. I think most who took part in the meetings would agree that the system works, though at times a bit stubbornly.

Amid the grumbling and mumbling there was some prize rhetoric to be savored; some good old fashioned horse sense and plenty of another horse product to spread around, too.

The main thing was, when it was over, one got the impression that the people had spoken and their elected or appointed officials hd listened.

Can't quite sympathize

I AM HAVING trouble working up a full head of sympathy for Detroit's laid-off auto workers — but I keep trying.

The Detroit Free Press Sunday launched the first installment of a week-long series of articles on the unemployed.

The case histories cited are heart-rending, until you read about the unfortunate fellow who lost his job and had to limp along on $136 a week in unemployment benefits and another $180 a week in Supplemental Unemployment Benefits, otherwise known as SUB pay.

In my book, that comes to a heady $316 a week — which would be a handsome salary for anyone working full time in Northern Michigan.

But here's the clincher: That was a mere 75 percent of his regular take-home pay, which means he was drawing better than $400 a week — or $1,600 a month — while he was gainfully employed. That's a wfully close to $20,000 a year.

Of course, SUB pay doesn't go on forever. And neither do state unemployment benefits. His SUB pay stopped last fall and he began dipping into savings, which also are gone. Now the family is living on state unemployment alone and when that ends...

MY BIG QUESTION is why a fellow who drew such hefty wages over such a long period of time (this man is 42 years old) didn't have enough in the bank to give him more of a cushion in times of economic distress.

Another laid-off worker in the Free Press series — a bachelor — earned $23,000 a year and lived very nicely in a Southgate apartment with tennis courts and two swimming pools. Listen to him talk about his job with Dana Corp., a manufacturer of automobile frames:

"I'd get up in the morning and drink coffee. I'd go punch in, go back in the back, sit down and have coffee, read the paper, sit an hour, talk, drink more coffee, do a little work, play cards. A slow department. Ain't nothing to go in and see three, four guys sleeping."

The company tried to crack down when the going got tough. But it was too late. Lay-offs started. This particular fellow was let go last April. His benefits have run out and he has moved in with his brother, who is getting food stamps.

Tragic, tragic, tragic. But I keep thinking of all those mornings he went to "work" and drank coffee and played cards. The end was inevitable — and he should have seen the handwriting on the wall.

Is it any wonder the industrious little Japanese have been able to beat the pants off us when it comes to building quality automobiles?

THERE HAS TO be an answer to Michigan's unemployment dilemma but I don't think we're going to find it in limiting automobile imports and forcing Americans to buy American-made vehicles with their built-in quality and price disadvantages.

What we need is a whole new work ethic in Detroit, Flint and Lansing — one that demands a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

We also need stringent quality control standards that won't allow a vehicle out of the factory until it meets the rigid specifications of the most discriminating buyer.

Then — and only then — will the American-made automobile hit the comeback trail.

Letters: Bayshore, getting involved

Questions flights

To the Editor:

The Ohio and Michigan Air National Guard are seeking permission to fly jets at speeds of up to 500 miles per hour and possibly as low as 100 feet off the ground across Charlevoix, Horton Bay, Walloon, Ellsworth, Ironton and the vicinity of Little Traverse Bay.

There is mounting opposition from diverse sources, which is best summed up by DNR Director Howard Tanner who says, "My first line is that they have no business up there."

Our primary concern is the possibility of one of these jets crashing into the Big Rock Power Plant. Several very close calls have been documented. In July, 1979 a low level flight by the Air Force based in Bay Shore was observed and a complaint was registered by Consumers Power management. In January, 1971, a flight crashed into Little Traverse Bay approximately two miles from the plant.

Concern with simulated low level attack profile flights of the Bay Shore Air Force began in 1963, when the Air Force installed an aircraft tracking station located approximately five miles from the Consumers Power Big Rock Nuclear Plant.

Not until insurance rates were raised in 1970 and through the intervention of then Congressman Gerald Ford were these training flight patterns altered. The Air Force corridor was extended and currently Bay Shore Air Force flights pass within 12 miles of the plant during their radar bomb maneuvers.

Unfortunately, the National Guard, we've been told, does not have to abide by the same rules as the Bay Shore Air Force! And, according to a former Air Force officer, it is common for pilots to buzz the ground at heights of no more than 100 feet. Such a buzzing was observed over Charlevoix during the week of July 8, 1980.

What would happen if a B-52 crashes into Big Rock? So far, no studies have been made. There is no answer to this question!

There are other compelling reasons why people are concerned with the proposed National Guard flights over lower Northern Michigan. Environmentalists are deeply concerned as to the disasterous impact made by screaming jets on wildlife nesting and habitation.

Plus those associated with the tourist industry are also apprehensive. Vacationers come north for quiet and relaxation during summer vacations and may in the future go elsewhere, where there is no danger of acrobatic pilots screeching down from the sky to fly over fishing lakes and treetops.

There are already seven military training routes in existence over Michigan and some former military pilots suggest there is no need for additional routes. If you wish to write, please address your letter to either Gov. William Milliken, the Capitol, Lansing, 48909, or to your Senator at the U.S. Senate or to your Congressman at the U.S. house of Representatives, Washington, D.C., 20515.

Appreciates help

The following letter was sent to all the citizens of the Ironton area who recently participated in the chase and apprehension of three breaking and entering suspects in that area:

This correspondence is submitted in reference to the assistance to the Sheriff's Department by a number of Marion Township residents that resulted in the arrest of three subjects involved in criminal activities in that township. As Sheriff of Charlevoix County, I am extremely proud of the willingness of these people to get involved in helping the Sheriff's Department in the apprehension of the subjects.

I hope that other citizens in our county will take the Marion Township residents' action as a guide to becoming involved, not only in assisting local law enforcemeot but .in helping and assisting their neighbors.

I can truthfully say that without your help, we will lose the battle against the criminal element.

In appreciation for their actions, each person who assisted in the arrest will get a certificate of recognition and a letter of appreciation.

George T. Lasater
Charlevoix County Sheriff

Out of the Blue

Oh, it's off to the railroad crossing
To watch, as the whistles shrill,
The tank cars careening and tossing,
On their way to a chemical spill!

Engagements

Flower-Hoig

Shirley and Bud Flower, Rt. 1, Norwood, have announced the engagement of their daughter Lisa Ann to Richard Hoig, Petoskey, son of Barbara and John Hoig of Pellston. A July 18 wedding is planned at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The bride-to-be is a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School where she participated in in basketball and band. She is currently employed at Duffy's of Charlevoix. The groom is a graduate of Pellston High School, attended North Central Michigan College and is a certified diver; he is employed as an Emmet County deputy sheriff.

One of the skills covered at Saturday's Winter Fun Day held by the Girl Scouts at Whiting Park was weaving. Some of the girls learn the finer points, above.

Girl Scouts hold Winter Fun Day

The annual Winter Fun Day for Junior Girls Scouts was to be designed around ice and snow with skating and skiing among the main events. However, when the weatherman changed the season to spring without warning, crafts and aerobic dancing were substituted.

The response to the new program was excellent as more than 150 Junior Girl Scouts and other girls of fifth grade age leve from Antrim, Emmet and Charlevoix counties turned out at Whiting Park for what resulted in a great Fun Day for girls and leaders alike.

Jill Waahburn of Charlevoix, coordinator for the event, recruited Judy Crook to teach weaving; Dawn Fletcher, punch craft; Peggy Spang, tole painting; Hetako Regier, origami; Debbie Parlor, cross stitch; Marsha Towne of Boyne City, God's eye and Phyllis Kaven of Petoskey, lanyard.

Aerobic dancing replaced the skating and skiing as a group activity with Lynda Evasheveski of the Diana Mason Dance Studio introducing leaders and the girls to this form of dancing.

Mrs. Washburn, in behalf of herself, fellow leaders and Scouts and potential Scouts expressed her appreciation to Philo Sumner, park manager; Edward's IGA, Oleson's Food, Ben Franklin and Leisure Time, all of Charlevoix, Coca Cola, Pepsi Cola and McDonald's of Petoskey for their parts in making the Fun Day a real success.

Girls and leaders from Harbor Springs, Alanson and Petoskey in Emmet county, Elk Rapids, Rapids City, Kewadin and Central Lake in Antrim county and Boyne City, Boyne Falls and Charlevoix county attended the one-day event.

MSU to to offer education courses

The Michigan State University Lifelong Education Department will offer two graduate courses in education this sprig term in the Gaylord-Petoskey area. The program is coordinated in Northern Michigan by Dr. Milton J. Hagelberg, MSU Regional Director.

A seminar in Education: "Education for the Gifted Child" will meet at the Senior High School in Gaylord 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays, March 31-June 9. (No class April 21).

The course will include the following areas of concentration: individualizing instruction in the regular classroom, Renzulli's Triad Model, independent study options, development of higher level thinking skills, creative-divergent thinking processes, problem solving strategies, use of interest centers, and simulation. James Catton, MSU Extension Lecturer, will be the instuctor.

"The Handicapped Student in the Regular Classroom" will meet at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey 8:40-10 p.m. Thursdays, April 9-June 4. The course will deal with problems and issues involved in educating children in the least restrictive environment (mainstream) with emphasis on legal, attitudinal, and practical factors which influence teachers and students. Tom Caldwell, MSU Extension Lecturer, will be the instructor.

Registration will be held in Gaylord on Monday, March 23, 3:30-4:30 p.m. in the Senior High School Lobrary; and in Petoskey on Tuesday, March 24, Room 41 of the NCMC Administration Building. CHS band receives II rating at District

The Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band of 51 pieces received a straight II rating in the Class C Division of the District II MSBOA Band Festival at Petoskey recently, Terry Isenbarger, their director, said.

Charlevoix was amoung the five Class C bands entered in the festival none of whieb received better than a II rating Isenbarger said.

Isenbarger took over the musid department in the Charlevoix Schools Jan. 5, coming to Charlevoix from Bellaire at that time.

MSU newsletter will deal with the working woman

When a family talks about mom going to work outside the home, conversation often focuses on the income her employment will bring. As important as this economic change may be, it's only one of the changes that occurs when mom joins the labor force.

Soon to be available from Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service offices throughout Michigan is a special newsletter series aimed at supporting the working woman and her family and helping them deal with these changes. Called "Employed Mothers--Families and Change", the newsletter will provide a wealth of information to help sort the myths from the realities of family life when mom becomes an employee as well as a parent, spouse and home manager.

Topics like dealing with guilt; challenges faced by single working mothers; balancing demands of home, job and childrearing; how mom's working affects children; and how your family can help, will be covered in the newsletters.

They will be mailed monthly for six months, beginning in March. The cost of the series is only $1.00.

To subscribe to "Employed Mothers--Families and Change", call Marlene Cassatt, County Extension Home Economist, at 533-8607, ext. 31. Or write to Marlene Cassatt, Extension Home Economist, P.O. Box 427, Bellaire, Michigan 49615.

Womens Day of Renewal planned

Initial plans for the annual Women's Day of Renewal scheduled for Saturday, March 28, at the Community Church of God were made at a recent meeting held at the home of Mrs. Larry Grooters.

Lynelle Pierce of Holland, Michigan, a very talented gospel recording artist, will be the guest speaker. Her extensive travels include tours of Israel and Switzerland.

This year's program will also include mini-sessions with several local persons speaking and sharing on topics pertinent to people's lives under everyday circumstances.

All women in the area are invited to join in this time of sharing and expressing unity and praise.

Housing commission lists admission requirements for elderly housing complex

Pre-applications are now being accepted by the Charlevoix Housing Commission from those interested in living in the commission's elderly housing complex on Charlevoix's southwest side.

Commission director Edward Gregory said last week that "a couple hundred" inquiries had been received by his office but that several were from people who did not meet admission requirements.

To be eligible for admission, an applicant must meet the following requirements:

1. The applicant must qualify as a family. A "family" consists of either two people, one being 62 or older, who have a family-type relationship (related by blood, marriage, operation of law or as otherwise determined by the commission); or a single person at least 62 years old or disabled within the meaning of Section 223 of the Social Security Act or Section 102 (5) of the Developmental Disabilities Services and Construction Amendments of 1970, or handicapped within the meaning of Section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, or displaced by governmental action or disaster.

2. Adjusted income for admission shall not exceed the following amounts at the time of admission: 90 percent of current Section 8 guideline. Maximum income limits are, for one person, $9,350 per year and, for two people, $10,700 per year. These limits may change in the future. Therefore, applicants who are over-income at this time may become eligible upon issuance of new limits and will not be totally rejected. Such over-income applicants will be retained in a pending file and, upon issuance of new limits a final determination is made.

3. Assets shall not exceed $40,000 at admission unless such assets together with the income of the family are insufficient for the applicant to obtain and maintain standard housing on the private market well into the future. As used here, assets mean liquid, personal and real property.

4. the family must be able to care for itself in this housing without excessive dependence on the management or other residents.

According to Gregory, construction on the 62-unit complex being built with a Department of Housing and Urban Development grant will be completed by early August, 1981.

Those wishing to file pre-applications may visit the Housing Commission office in City Hall between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Final applications for admission to the complex will be made in May.

Linda Evashevski gave the more than 150 Girl Scouts gathered at Whiting Park Saturday for Winter Fun Day a taste of aerobic dancing.

Veterans Admin. does not pay lapsed insurance dividends

Regardless of where you get the information, the Veterans Administration does not pay dividends on lapsed insurance policies.

This is what Ronald Geer, Charlevoix County Veterans Counselor, has told 29 World War II veterans who have flooded his office with requests for information regarding this "windfall".

Banks, veterans organizations and even veterans groups are now circulating what the VA calls the "Old dividend hoax". It promises that veterans of World War II can collect a dividend based on their service "even if they haven't kept their policies in force".

In Charlevoix a World War II veteran has been distributing "applications" for the insurance dividends.

The VA has been plagued for years by an annual influx of queries and applications for the non-existant dividends. This has occurred annually since 1948.

The hoax is fueled anew very few years by the mysterious distribution of official-looking "applications" and are signed by a "Capt. Prosser" who is supposed to be with the VA Insurance Center in Philadelphia. The form states that the dividends are available for the asking even if the veteran never paid on his policy since World War II. The hoax also states that Congress has passed a law giving the dividends. No such action has been taken.

Thousands of dollars in taxpayer's money is being wasted each year responding to these applications. At St. Paul, Minn., 400,000 applications have been received in the past 10 years. At Philadelphia three times that number have been received and are now flooding the center at a rate of approximately 800 per day.

The rumor seems to begin when the annual dividends are announced for those veterans who have kept their policies in force. These payments are made automatically on the anniversary date of the policy

Oddfellows plan fundraiser

Tickets are now available for the Charlevoix Oddfellows Lodge No. 293 fund-raising raffle to be held at a Barnard Grange dance in May.

Prizes for the raffle include the choice of a wood stove or $400 in cash for first place and some hand-crafted furniture for other winners.

Tickets are available from any Lodge member and are $1 apiece or six for $5. Proceeds go to the Lodge's community projects such as support of the Bergmann Center and their college scholarship program.

A clarification

The Courier has recently described part of the new sign ordinance proposed by the City Planning Commission as limiting to ten percent all window signs. Only permanent window signs are limited to ten percent of the window area, however, according to the proposed ordinance. Temporary signs, those not displayed more than 30 days, can cover up to 25 percent of the window area.

The Case of the Mysterious Disintegrating Ring

Reusch Jewelers offers a timely warning against wearing gold jewelry while swimming in chlorinated pools or using laundry bleaches. A chemical reaction takes place between the chlorine and the alloy metals in gold jewelry and certain jewelry items actually disintegrated over time from the chlorine.

Research indicates a ring soaked in chlorine bleach will turn black and small hairline cracks develop after only a few hours. A new 14K gold ring was placed in 5 leading household chlorine bleach for 36 hours. After 36 hours in the bleach the end result was almost complete disintegration.

There is a small amount of chlorine in tap water which probably accounts for the fact that after long periods of time engagement ring prongs begin to break. The has erroneously been blamed on poor quality jewelry. In reality, it was due to the rings' long-term exposure to chlorine.

Jewelry was made to be worn and one shouldn't put it away just because it's going to come in contact with tap water. The disintegration from tap water contact could take years and years so just have us check any doubtful items periodically at any of our Reusch Jewelers locations!

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

March 2, 1981
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Deputy Mayor Wood presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Block, Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, and Muma. Absent: Mayor Supernaw.

The Minutes of the February 16, 1981 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

A Public Hearing was held regarding a proposed Sign Ordinance as recommended by the City Planning Commission. Joe Morris, a member of the Planning Commission present, stated that the City seriously needs such an Ordinance, but recommended allowing time for additional public input.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Block to return the proposed Sign Ordinance to the City Planning Commission with the recommendation that, through public input, they develop a Sign Ordinance that will suit the needs of all the people of Charlevoix.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Block, Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilwoman Roloff and supported by Councilman Block to table the request submitted by Wells Aviation to establish a fuel concession at the City Airport to allow time for further study of the request.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Block, Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

John Haggard, a member of the General Public present, asked Council to pass a Resolution stating that they are unopposed to low level flights over Lake Michigan by the Ohio National Guard in connection with the Air Force Base at Bay Shore, in an effort to keep that Base at its present location. Mr. Weiks, also a member of the General Public present, stated that the low level flights create a dangerous situation for pilots flying between the City and Beaver Island. Council generally agreed to table the matter to allow time to obtain further information on the subject.

Nora Martin, a member of the General Public present, asked why the City was represented by an out-of-town attorney at her husband's M.E.S.C. Hearing rather than by the City Attorney. The City Manager explained that legal services for the purpose are provided by the Michigan Municipal League, of which the City is a member, at no cost to the City. Mrs. Martin also advised Council that she had been denied information which she had requested from the City Manager's office. The Manager stated that the time limit specified to provide the information had not yet expired.

Moved by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilwoman Roloff to accept and file the City Planning Commission Minutes dated February 23, 1981.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Block, Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Muma.

RESOLUTION 81-3-1

WHEREAS, the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, by the adoption of Resolution No. 81-1-2 on January 19, 1981, has established a per plot fee for perpetual care on each plot sold in St. Mary's and Brookside cemeteries, and,

WHEREAS, a large portion of these City-owned cemeteries has been sold without establishing a fund for their maintenance upon reaching capacity.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that all perpetual care fees henceforth collected by the City be placed in a fund to be established by the City Treasurer and remain in said fund until all plots in St. Mary's and Brookside cemeteries have been sold, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that said funds may be used thereafter solely for the purposes of caring for those two cemeteries as they presently exist.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Block, Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Block that a Public hearing be scheduled for March 16, 1981 regarding an Ordinance to adopt the 1981-82 Fiscal Year Budget.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Block, Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Enter Mayor Supernaw.

Races cap season at Mt. McSauba

The Charlevoix Recreation Department closed out the season at Mt. McSauba ski hill Sunday with ski and bump jumper races for area youngsters.

More than 60 boys and girls responded to the invitation to enjoy the last snow of the season. Medals and ribbons, donated by the Chamber of Commerce who had originally planned to use them for the ill-fated Winter Cup races, were presented to the top three winners in each category.

Ski race winners included, in the 7 to 9 year old category: Boys, 1. Chris Seymour, 2. Andrew Harper, 3. Charles Wittboett; Girls: 1. Marcie Center, 2. Carla Hoffman, 3. Abby Uhrick.

10-12 year-old Boys: 1. Shawn Putman, 2. Karl Erber, 3. Mike Chew; Girls, 1. Noni Pace, 2. Lauren Pace.

13-15 Boys, 1. Jason Brindel, 2. Matt Lignell; Girls, 1. Linda Cluk, 2. Christie Pace.

Bump jumper results:

9-10 years: 1. Tom Merta, 2. Maria LaBlance, 3. Shawn Putman.

11-14 years: 1. Ty Wagner, 2. Sam Supernaw, 3. Shaan Bier.

15-19 years: 1. Gary Budek, 2. Gerl Russell, 3. Richard Budek.

City Recreation director expressed thanks to the Chamber of Commerce for donating the medals and ribbons and to Butch Wagner, Dale Boss, Jr. and Jim Boss who volunteered their services as timers and starters.

A last day in the snow was enjoyed Sunday by several young people from the area, above, who gathered at Mt. McSauba for ski and jump bumper races sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department. Shown are some of the winners who received medals and ribbons contributed by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Girls volleyball team gets to semis before bowing out

The Charlevoix High School girls volleyball team advanced to the semi-finals in the District Class C tournament Saturday before being eliminated by Rogers City who went on to capture the district title.

Charlevoix had defeated Grayling 6-15, 15-10, 15-9 and Rogers City had dumped Boyne City 15-5, 15-9 to advance to the semi-finals.

In the finals, Rogers City defeated Elk Rapids by decisive margins of 15-3, 15-5 to take the title. Rogers City will now advance to the Regional Class C tournament.

Elk Rapids made its way to the finals by defeating Benzie-Central 15-13, 15-0 in the opening round and Kalkaska 16-18, 15-8, 15-12 in the semi-finals. Kalkaska had won over Traverse City 15-3, 15-0 to get to the semi-finals.

Coach Mary Gengle said that Mel Kerridge was the top server and top spiker in the tournament and that Teresa Noiret the top defensive player.

Seniors on the team who played their last games were Kerridge, Noiret, Becky Witthoeft, Doretta Anderson, Brenda Buchanan and Janet Pence, all regulars on this year's team.

Charlevoix ended the year with a six win, six loss record in league play.

With Rayders out of the way, Boyne City breezes to District title

As host of the 1981 Class C District basketball tournament, the league Charlevoix could have done was stay at the party.

But the Rayders went home early, bowing out on the first night of the tourney, only to see their cross-county rivals from Boyne City easily dominate the field and win the tournament and a chance to advance to Regionals.

Charlevoix had not played Elk Rapids during the regular season but the opening contest between the two teams was billed as a mismatch mainly because teams that the Rayders had handled easily had beaten Elk Rapids without much trouble either.

Whether because of the emotional drain of the victory over Boyne City the Friday before or a tendency to look beyond the Elk Rapids game, the Rayders were far from their best form. It should also be said, though, that Elk Rapids played an extremely spirited game.

Jeff Drury, who had been stifled against Boyne City, came out hot for the Rayders scoring ten points in the first quarter to lead Charlevoix to a tenuous 14-13 lead by the end of the period.

Brother Gary Drury took over in the second quarter while Jeff was shut out, Gary dumped in eight and the Rayders took a 34-28 lead into the locker room.

It was the third quarter that caught the Rayders way off guard as they were outscored by the Elks 26-14 and fell behind 54-48. Attempts to catch up in the final stanza were futile though Elk Rapids' winning margin was but four points when the dust settled.

In the individual scoring list, the Drury brothers had 16 apiece, Mike Loper had ten and Jim Buchanan popped in eight for his best performance in an injury-shortened season. Elk Rapids' Mike Jantz led all scorers with 18 while Rich Griffis had 15 and Matt Galligan 13 for the Elks.

The Elks continued to play tightly as they went on Wednesday night to soundly thrash Kalkaska 51-39 behind 15 from Jantz and 14 from Galligan.

Meanwhile, Boyne City was gaining momentum also by beating Traverse City St. Francis 90-66 in Tuesday's game. Larry Jaremа and Brian Vroman hit 25 and 23 points respectively in that game and they didn't cool off until the tourney was over.

The Ramblers and the Elks met in Friday nights finals and the showdown proved to be a blowdown.

Boyne City, playing at its best, ripped the Elks from the opening tipoff. They led 24-16 by the end of the first quarter and had established an untouchable lead of 48-29 at the half.

The Elks never got into the game, falling behind 68-38 by the end of the third quarter. The final was 92-46.

For the Ramblers, Jaremа put on an offensive show to match his well known defensive prowess and topped all scorers with 28 points. John Tompkins had an outstanding night with 19 points while Vroman canned 16 for the District champs.

Boyne City now advances to the Gaylord Regional where they will play Roscommon Wednesday night.

Obituaries

ZELL E. BRICKER

Funeral services for Zell E. Bricker, 85, who died March 2 at his home in Banks township, were held Thursday at the Hastings Funeral Home. The Rev. Dan Miner of the East Jordan Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in Sunset Hill Cemetery at East Jordan.

Born at Kendallville, Ind., Sept. 16, 1895, Mr. Bricker came to Banks township as a child. On March 17, 1921, he was married to the former Jessie Manke at Lansing. They returned to northern Michigan to live in East Jordan until 1943 when they moved to their present home north of Ellsworth. He was a retired farmer and beekeeper. He was a veteran of World War I and a member of the Jensen-Richardson Post No. 488 American Legion.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Willard (Jeanette) Muma of Ellsworth and Mrs. Glen (Lillian) Gee of East Jordan; a son, Elwood, of Lansing; 14 grandchildren; 29 great grandchildren and a brother, Earl, of East Jordan.

The family suggests memorials to the United Methodist Church of East Jordan.

RUTHIE M. JARVIS

Funeral services for Mrs. Ruthie M. Jarvis, 71, who died Monday at the East Jordan home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Oleniacz following a long illness, will be held at the Hastings Funeral Home at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Rev. Jimmie McWatters of the Church of the Everlasting God in East Jordan will officiate. Interment will be in the St. Joseph Calvary Cemetery in East Jordan.

The former Ruthie May Laflin was born in Greenberg, Kansas on Sept. 12, 1909. She was married to Fred Jarvis in Angola, Indiana on May 6, 1939. They resided in Flint until coming to East Jordan in 1964. Mr. Jarvis preceded her in death in 1968. She moved to Ellsworth to make her home in 1969. She attended the Church of the Everlasting God in East Jordan.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. (Margo) Oleniacz of East Jordan and Mrs. William (Mary) Pfaff of Oklahoma City; six grandchildren; one great-grandchild and five sisters, Mrs. Elmer (Margaret) Wray of Remus, Mrs. Bernard Jarvis of Flint, Mrs. Ray (Isabelle) Sova of Flushing, Mrs. Irene Darby of Burton and Mrs. Harland (Wanetta) Bard of Gladwin.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Hastings Funeral Home.

CHARLES J. HEBERT

Funeral services for Charles J. Hebert, 67, of Charlevoix who died Saturday while in Dearborn, were held Tuesday at St. Mary's Church. Rev. Dale R. Magoon officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Born in Charlevoix on March 12, 1917, Mr. Hebert graduated from Charlevoix High School. He lived in Flint and Escanaba before going to Dearborn where he owned and operated several restaurants until returing and returning here to live in 1977. He was married to the former Dorothy Wright who preceded him in death on October 1, 1968. On Feb. 21, 1974, he was married to the former Dolores Harriman. He was a member of St. Mary's Church and the B.P.O.E. Lodge No. 624 of Petoskey.

He is survived by his wife; a step-son, Ward L. Harriman of Dearborn; a step-daughter, Mrs. Martin (Sharon) Stefani of Palm Beach, Fla.; a brother, Arthur D. of Charlevoix; three sisters, Mrs. Lyla West of Charlevoix and Phoenix, Rita of Charlevoix and Mrs. Arthur (Mary) Gleason of Hesperia, Cal.; five step-grandchildren and two step-great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the charity of one's choice.

RICHARD E. WILKERSON

Funeral services for a former resident, Richard E. Wilkerson, 81, of Mancelona were held Monday at the Hastings Funeral Home. Rev. David Wilhelt of the Wesleyan Church officiated. Interment was in Southern Cemetery at Central lake in Antrim County. Mr. Wilkerson died Saturday at the Osteopathic Hospital in Travers City where he had been a patient for two weeks.

Born in Baltimore, Ohio on Jan. 29, 1910, Mr. Wilkerson lived in Roseville before coming to Ellsworth in 1950. He was employed at Morwell Steel Products until he retired in 1972. He moved to Mancelona in 1970 when he married the former Mrs. Grace Sherriff on October 9, 1970 in Mancelona.

He is survived by his wife; a son, Richard K. of Ellsworth; a step-son, Thomas Dillon of Charlevoix; a step-daughter, Mrs. Alex (Patricia) Niedzialkowski of Westfield, Wis.; nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

LAWRENCE K. MONTGOMERY

Lawrence K. (Monty) Montgomery, 93, a resident of Charlevoix for the past 25 years, died March 3 at Grandvue Medical Care Facility where he had been a patient for six weeks. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery. Funeral services will be announced later.

Mr. Montgomery was born in Hope, Ark. on April 6, 1887. On June 12, 1916, he was married to the former Ruth I. Howe in Detroit. They resided in the Detroit area and Brighton until coming to Charlevoix in 1960. They made their home in Oyster Bay. He had been an automobile salesman until his retirement. Mrs. Montgomery preceded him in death on May 16, 1977. He was a veteran of World War I having served with the Polar Bear Expeditionary Forces in Russia. He was a member of Christ Episcopal Church and Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1153.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. W.R. (Jeanne) Wood of Charlevoix and Phoenix; a son, Lawrence K. of Brighton; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Several area students have been included on the North Central Michigan College dean's list for the fall semester. LESLIE SMITH and PAUL VARNUM of Boyne City High School attained perfect 4.0 grade point averages. Among those who recorded grade point averages between 3.5 and 4.0 were MARY FACULAK and GLORIA OLACH of Charlevoix High School, MICHELE HOUSER, SCOTT PAQUETTE, PAUL SKORNIA and ROBERT URMAN of Boyne City High School and LINDA FRANCIS and CLETA TRUMBLE of East Jordan High School.

SAMI MIKHAIL, of Walloon Lake, is currently a disk jockey on radio station WABM at Alma College in Alma, Michigan. The station is a student radio station in Alma and is also broadcast over a cable FM network in the city of Alma. Sami is a 1979 graduate of Hillcrest High School in Nairobi, Kenya. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.S. Mikhail, Nairobi, and is taking pre-engineering courses at Alma College.

BRENDA JEAN BOSS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Boss of Charlevoix, has been named to the Academic Citation list at Anderson College, Anderson, Indiana, for the fall, 1980 semester. To be eligible for the list, a student must obtain a grade point average between 3.0 and 3.5 on a 4.0 scale. On campus, Brenda is a sophomore majoring in education and is active in softball and on dormitory social committee.

Area schools participate in March

Three local schools are currently hosting the March of Dimes Reading Olympics reading program to help raise funds to fight birth defects. Students in the Boyne City, Boyne Falls and Charlevoix elementary schools will be reading books during the next four weeks, for which they have received pledges from family, friends and neighbors. The pledges can be 5 cents, 10 cents, 25 cents, or any amount per book read, and sponsors may want to limit the total amount they will sponsor for.

The funds raised will be used for research, patient services, and public and professional health education, in the problem of birth defects. The March of Dimes estimates that over 250,000 babies will be born with defects this year.

Anyone desiring more information on birth defects, The Reading Olympics, or the March of Dimes may call Ron Knapp, Executive Director, at 347-7732.

Looking for instruments

A number of musical instruments and other items of related equipment are missing from the band room at the Charlevoix High School and the band director, Terry Isenbarger, has initiated a search for the missing pieces.

Anyone who knows the whereabouts of any of the school-owned equipment is asked to notify the school at 547-2882.

Isen barger is asking students, former students and their parents to check homes for unaccounted for instruments or other band equipment.

Mr. Archie Potter who has owned and operated a large dairy farm in the Charlevoix area for thirty years has found a good way to keep busy in the slow winter months and also a good way to make his hobby, raising work horses profitable. This winter as in winters past Mr. Potter is skidding off his own timber land with his work horses in areas that are impossible to get to by any other means. Mr. Potter owns three work horses each weighing between 1700 and 1900 lbs. This past fall after losing a barn to fire, Mr. Potter cut and skidded all the lumber for his new barn himself with the help of his horses. Adv.

CHS teacher training for Boston Marathon

by JOY CHAPMAN

The Crimson Flash, in its continuing effort to find the amazing and interesting "real people" of Charlevoix High School, presents an interview with faculty member Glen Taylor who will be running in the Boston Marathon on April 20.

Flash: How do you train for a marathon?

Taylor: This is my fourth year of running but when I train for a marathon my running schedule is as follows: Monday, 12 miles; Tuesday, eight; Wednesday, two; Thursday, eight to ten; Friday, no running; Saturday, 17 miles and Sunday, seven. This usually varies from week to week but I average 50 to 60 miles per week.

For the Boston Marathon, I start extensive training in March about two months before the race. I usually start from my house and work out a route of my own from there.

During the school year, I always run in the evening after school. During the summer, I usually start out in the morning but occasionally in the evening also. I never run in the middle of the day.

Previously I had been running three times a week, averaging about 25 miles a week. When there was snow I was also averaging 25 miles a week of cross country skiing.

Flash: Why are you running in the Boston Marathon?

Taylor: For the sake of running as well as to try to do the best that I can. I also want to get a personal record for myself to run the race in under three hours and ten minutes.

Flash: Where is the Boston Marathon held?

Taylor: It starts out in Hopkinson, Massachusetts and ends in downtown Boston. The course is 26 miles, 385 yards long (26.2 miles) and mostly follows city property in the suburbs.

Flash: What are the requirements to run in the Marathon?

Taylor: To qualify you must run in a sanctioned race sponsored by the AAU (Amateur Athletic Union). It must be a certified (measured) race course and there are different qualifying times depending on your sex and age. I had to run it under three hours, ten minutes. My finish time was 2:50:49 so I had some to spare.

Flash: How many people usually run in this race?

Taylor: Last year there were about 7,000 qualifiers in the race.

Flash: And, finally, how do you think you'll do?

Taylor: Well, it will depend on the weather. The ideal conditions would be between 40 and 60 degrees Fahrenheit and not too windy. My personal goal is to run under three hours, five minutes. I should come in between 1,000th and 2,000th place.

Mild mannered students on way to becoming martial arts experts

by KIM RUSSELL

Behind the quiet personalities of Kris Kelly, Cathy Powalka and Pam Thorp are some surprising facts that may amaze you. The girls, all juniors at Charlevoix High School, are involved in "Tae Kwon Do", a Korean form of karate.

In their Tae Kwon Do class, the girls learn the basic concepts of getting out of a front and back choke, flipping and how to fall after being flipped among other things.

They attend class in Harbor Springs on Wednesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. Currently there are 20 to 30 people taking the class which is taught by Tom Behan.

Right now there are only four girls in the class and they would like to encourage more to attend.

Upon entering the class you receive a white belt which is for beginners. Then every ten weeks you are tested to see if you are ready to move to a higher level.

The other levels are: yellow stripe, yellow belt, green stripe, green belt and so on through the colors blue, red and black. Kris and Pam are yellow stripes and will soon be testing for a yellow belt. Cathy is a yellow belt and will be testing for a green stripe. Behan, the instructor, is a black belt.

It takes four years to receive a black belt if you pass every time you test. Testing involves how much you know. The more techniques you learn, the higher the level.

You might wonder what the class actually does for the girls.

They all agreed that they originally joined the class just for something to do but they have become increasingly interested in it. They said it gives them self confidence and makes them feel a little safer.

One example of when their Tae Kwon Do knowledge was useful happened last spring.

Cathy was alone at home. She was upstairs when she heard a loud noise. She ran downstairs to find that two guys had broken the front door lock and were stealing various things from the house.

Cathy, watching from behind a door, said she had to develop a lot of confidence before she ran out and hit one of the guys in the face. The intruders were so surprised that they ran while begging her not to call the police. Then, Cathy's father came home, called the police and the two were put in jail.

This just goes to shows that even the most quiet-natured people may have a few secrets to surprise you.

Art class marionettes reflect student personalities

by BONNIE JOHNSON

These past few weeks, the Charlevoix High School art room has been filled with busy students working on their marionettes.

The marionettes are made of sawdust and wheat paste beads and wooden bodies of various kinds. Some students carve their puppet heads, adding a touch of personality to their product.

The marionettes reflect each person's own personality, as any art project does. The students form the faces to their own personal tastes and often make their own original characters. The students then paint the faces, add facial features and sew clothes for them.

The finished product reflects the character and quality of workmanship of each artist.

The students are hoping to put on a puppet show at the elementary school but the date and time are unknown at this time.

All about local scholarships

by KATIE CLOCK

Locally there are a lot of college acholarships of which many students and parents are not aware.

Area scholarships are usually based on need, grade point average and the field of study the student wishes to pursue.

Currently there are four scholarships ranging from $150 to $800 (for four years) open to persons interested in becoming nurses. These are funded by the Charlevoix Area Hospital, the American Cancer Society, the Women's Guild and a special fund established in remembrance of Peggy Carey Northway.

Medusa Corporation and Freedman Artcraft offer scholarships to children of their employees.

Big Brothers - Big Sisters of Charlevoix County offers scholarships to seniors who are presently a little brother or sister.

The American Legion Auxiliary sponsors scholarships to students whose parent served in World War I, World War II, the Korean or Viet Nam wars.

The Kiwanis Club gives a scholarship to the senior who has maintained a good grade point average and has contributed to the needs of the community and school.

Other scholarships include onea to North Central Michigan College and an art scholarship for attendance at a summer program at Interlochen or to a college or art school.

Churches, Boy Scouts and the 4-H sometimes offer acholarships to their members.

Gayle Kacsynaki, Charlevois High School coonselor, stresses the following points to remember when the time comes to think about college and scholarships: "Don't apply for financial aid or scholarships thinking you will be rejected. Start finding out about financial aid and various scholarships before your senior year."

Kaczynski adds that applications for the scholarships mentioned above are available in the Charlevoix High School Counseling Center.

YFU exchange program offers students unique experience

by COLLEEN SMITH

A growing interest in exchange student programs has hit Charlevoix High School this year.

The exchange student organization entitled Youth for Understanding provides opportunities for teenagers to experience family life and customs in another country.

A student may apply for a summer or year-long program. Each program includes placement with a host family, pre-departure orientation services and round trip transportation.

In the summer program, the student will live with a host family in another country and become a member of a new community and culture for two months. Although the student will not attend school, he or she will participate in daily activites of a new family and meet new friends who can turn a two-month visit into a memorable experience.

For the summer program, average grades or better are recommended. As of January, 1981, the cost for the summer program in Mexico is $1,460 and for all other countries it is $1,865.

The year-long program offers the student a chance to become a member of a new community and culture for a period from August to August. The student will study in an overseas school and understand a new way of life by becoming immersed in a new environment.

The year-long program also includes counseling assistance, school enrollment, language and cultural orientation and activities that vary according to the country and program selection. The year-long program for Mexico is $3,240, Australia is $3,765 and all other countries $3,745. Due to the fluctuating foreign exchange student rates and unpredictable charter costs, the program fees are subject to change.

There are grants, funds and scholarships available for those who show the greatest need of financial aid.

Grants are awarded through the generosity of corporations, foundations, private citizens and community committees. These grants are awarded on the basis of need and merit and range from $100 to $600. Also, a number of corporate scholarships are awarded through sponsored programs.

Students who apply must send a completed application, passport photos and two years of current grade transcripts to the YFU Regional Office in Michigan. The Regional office will arrange for an interview with a YFU area representative.

The student will be asked why he or she wants to be an exchange student, what he or she hopes to discover, what strengths or abilities he or she has and what weaknesses are hoped to be strengthened. The interviewer will ask the student what his or her household responsibilities are, what parental rules he or she is accustomed to following and what activites he or she enjoys doing with friends.

A number of other questions are also asked. Upon acceptance, the student will receive brochures giving thorough travel information and personal neccessities for the trip abroad.

Students wishing to apply should be careful in picking the correct reasons for going or they and their family may suffer great disappointment.

New course to train trainers

by BONNIE JOHNSON

A few Charlevoix High School students are now involved in an athletic training program taught by Mr. Charles Bentley and Dr. Donald Trimper.

Athletic trainers help the coach take care of the players' injuries so that he can devote his time to working with the team.

The program is an after-school activity, three hours a week for ten weeks. According to Bentley, "The program deals with injury prevention, first aid and treatment of athletic injuries."

In this course a student learns such concepts as basic anatomy, evaluation of injury and treatment, weight training and rehabilitation, special medical problems and many other injury-related concepts.

Bentley hopes to start another class by March 16, 1981. He and Dr. Trimper are looking for any interested students, sophomores and juniors, males and females. The students who are presently in training are Pat Avery and Joe Smith.

Said Bentley, "It takes a special kind of student to be an athletic trainer. They have to be willing to devote a lot of time and effort and get a lot of satisfaction out of helping athletes deal with the aches and pains of athletics.

He also said, "I have given up coaching and have devoted my time to sports medicine, coordinating trainers with teams and keeping adequate medical supplies in stock."

Council says: 'No!...Well, okay' to downtown tree planting offer

by DAVE KNIGHT

In an extraordinary mid-meeting change of heart Monday night, the Charlevoix City Council finally gave its blessing to a privately funded drive to plant trees along downtown sidewalks and at other shopping areas in the city.

A motion to allow the trees to be planted, with the stipulation that no city funds be involved, failed on its first vote.

After continued discussion and more input from audience members, however, a vote to reconsider passed and council members subsequently voted unanimously to allow the trees.

Linda Mason, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce retail committee and organizer of the tree planting drive, presented the council with a list of 66 local businesses that had indicated support for the project in a survey taken last week. That comprised 70 percent of the businesses for which attempts were made to reach. Fifteen percent were unable to be reached, nine percent had no comment and six percent were opposed according to the figures compiled by Mason.

She also reported that over $7,300 in pledges had been collected among Charlevoix business people to be used to purchase and plant the trees.

"The overwhelming response in favor of this project," said Mason, "is due to an awareness on the part of the business people that the downtown needs help."

Idea dates to 1973

The original request to the council was that the city take care of cutting the holes in the sidewalks for the estimated 25 trees, be responsible for pruning them every three to five years and do a small amount of initial watering.

An estimated cost for each tree planting was set by the organizing committee at $260 based on the costs of the trees themselves, topsoil in which to plant them and a metal grate to be placed around the base of the trunk.

The committee suggested that the trees be obtained from Site Planning Development, Inc., a local planning and landscape firm. Traver Wood, of Site Planning, appeared before council members to answer questions about the variety of tree chosen and the maintenance requirements. (See accompanying story.)

Though discussions on planting trees downtown have been periodically revived since the idea was first proposed in 1973, the latest drive took root last week Wednesday at a public forum sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Attorney Richard Pajtas, chamber president, reported to council members that of the 24 individuals who took part in the forum, 22 voted in favor of planting the trees and two were opposed.

Trees could replace flowers

Concerns voiced by council members included Shirley Roloff's complaint that the a decision was being forced upon the council and that more information was neccessary before action should be taken. She suggested that the matter be tabled.

Said Roloff, "I think it is great to see people working together for this but I think we should table it until we find out how much it will actually cost the city."

It was pointed out by more than one speaker supporting the project, however, that the spring planting season is fast approaching and that the trees would have to be ordered soon for them to arrive in time.

The problem of snow removal was also brought up. Said Mason, "Many of us who are involved with downtown businesses take care of our sidewa sufficiently now. I think anyone who would contribute as much as $260 for a tree would not mind shoveling around them."

She also suggested that the hanging baskets of geraniums currently maintained and watered by the city in the summer be taken down and the effort be put instead into watering the new trees.

After lengthy discussion, council member Earl Muma made a motion to approve the request for the tree planting but that there be no expense to the city. Under Muma's proposal, city crews could be used to cut the holes in the sidewalk but their time would have to be reimbursed.

Following a second by council member Robert Timms, the motion was defeated 4-1 with Timms, Roloff, Kay Wood and James Block in opposition and Muma in favor. Council member Jeff Porter was absent.

Cite business loss

As the large audience, comprised almost entirely of tree planting backers, made a noisy exit, the council resumed its agenda.

Shortly thereafter, many audience members filed back into the council chambers and, at the point on the council agenda designated for persons to be heard from the floor, several made impassioned pleas for the council to reconsider.

Several cited Charlevoix's loss of business to other neighboring communities as an important reason to improve downtown aesthetics. It was also re-emphasized that the funding would come entirely from private sources.

Said downtown business owner Louis Mettler, "I can understand your wanting to cut municipal spending wherever possible but what we are proposing has nothing to do with tax money. I think when a local business person is willing to pay $260 out of his own pocket to improve Charlevoix, he is saying something to his elected officials. But you are not listening."

Council member Roloff eventually made a motion to reconsider the previous council vote on the trees. That motion passed unanimously and Muma repeated his original proposal.

This time, it passed unanimously.

Grant to be sought

In other action, the council:

Authorized the application, for a Coastal Management Grant which could pay 100 percent of the $16,000 master plan to be developed for the city by Ronald F. Nino & Associates. City Manager James Brinker pointed out that the plan may have to be expanded to cover more extensively coastal problems faced by the city but that such expansion could be easily incorporated to fit application requirements.

Awarded the bid for sale of the General Obligation Water Bonds to First of Michigan who submitted a proposal of 9.4329 percent average interest rate over a 14-year period and a total net interest cost of $353,262.50. There were five bidders for the sale.

City life suits this breed of locust fine

The species of tree proposed to be planted downtown is a Morraine Locust. According to landscape designer Traver Wood of Site Planning Development, it is similar to a Hopey Locust and is ideally suited to the urban environment.

Its proven success as a decorative tree in other municipal shopping areas, said Wood, is attributed to its ability to resist damage from street salt and traffic fumes.

There have been no problems with its root system buckling sidewalk cement or asphalt, he added.

The Morraine Locust is classified as a "light" shade tree. Its leaves are smaller than other popular shade trees such as elm and maple thus creating minimum blockage of visibility. The view of Round Lake from Bridge Street would not be substantially affected by planting such trees along the east side of the street, said Wood.

The trees would have a trunk diameter of about two and a half inches when planted. The Morraine Locust grows to a maximum height of about 40 feet. Proper pruning, said Wood, would create a canopy about six and a half feet above the ground.

Estimates have been that 25 trees would be needed to plant downtown plus any others requested by business people in other parts of the city. Precise placement of the trees has not been decided though it is generally agreed that they will be planted at least two feet from the curb to avoid swinging car doors and vehicles backing into parking spaces.

Budget passes despite impending cuts

by DAVE KNIGHT

Only one person appeared before the Charlevoix City Council at Monday night's public hearing for the city's fiscal 1982 budget. But what he had to say rang soundly in council members' ears.

Charlevoix Attorney Donald Berlage suggested, among other things, that the mayor and council members waive their salaries and that the city police department be abolished to cut municipal expenses.

Berlage presented to the council a comparison of city expenditures in 1967 to those of 1980. He pointed out that, even considering the rise of the Consumer Price Index of about two and a half times what it was in 1967, local governmental spending has risen at a much faster rate.

He cited the salaries of the mayor and council as an example: in 1967 they totaled $5,100 according to Berlage and by 1980 had increased to $29,000, a multiple of about 5.8 over the period.

The 5.8 average multiple turned up in several other areas of municpal spending and was the same for county spending as well, said Berlage.

"What justification is there for municipal government to grow at twice the rate of inflation?" said Berlage. "Our latest census shows only a small rise in the population so it can't be because there are more citizens."

He suggested that costs saved by waiving council and mayoral salaries and the turning over of police duties in the city to the Sheriff's Department could "cut your millage in half."

Council member Earl Muma also expressed hesitation about the proposed budget saying that if a tax cut is passed in the state legislature later this year, as expected, the budget ought not be approved until it is known how state cuts will affect the city.

The budget proposal submitted by City Manager James Brinker calls for expenditures of $3,921,755 for fiscal 1982 which starts on April 1, 1981. A tax levy of 12½ millers also part of the proposal.

Brinker explained that changes in the budget could be made at any time by the council, including cuts made neccessary by a state tax cut later this year. He described the budget document as merely a "guideline" for city spending. All expenses are eventually approved piecemeal by the council.

Upon a motion by council member Ray Wood, the budget was passed unanimously.

Millage vote for special education to be held June 8

Continuation of special education programs in the Char-Em Intermediate District will depend heavily on a June 8 millage vote set by the Char-Em board at their March 9 meeting.

The board will seek an additional .8 mill for special education programs which have been jeopardized by recent state funding cuts.

The millage increase, if passed, will pump about $525,000 into the 1981-82 Char-Em special education budget and will make up for an expected deficit of $370,000 in that budget.

Administration estimates were that as many as four programs for mentally handicapped children could be supported by the millage. Presently, a millage of .9919 is levied in the Char-Em District covering Charlevoix, Emmet and part of Antrim counties.

The .8 millage proposal was preferred by board members over other proposals of .56, .7 and .9 mills.

Heavy criticism was expressed by board members of state mandates on special education programs which have recently have not been backed up by sufficient state funding.

Char-Em administrators warned that without the additional millage, severe cuts in the 1981-82 budget would result

County board stamps approval on EDC articles of inc.

Charlevoix County will have an Economic Development Corporation as soon as the Michigan Department of Commerce approves and nine directors are chosen.

By a 12-2 vote at its regular meeting Wednesday, March 11, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners gave final approval of the articles of incorporation for the EDC. Board Chairman Clyde Cunningham said the nine-member board of directors would be named on March 25 and from that point, they will determine the breath and scope of the county EDC.

Through the EDC, incentives in the form of land acquisition, mortgage loans, direct financial aid, industrial site preparation and other methods can be utilized to attract new business and industry to Charlevoix County. Aid can also be administered through the EDC to existing business interests in the county.

County Planner John Hess, a strong backer of the EDC concept, said last week that the first and most important task facing the board of directors when they are appointed will be to set specific goals and directions for the EDC. He also said that the board should initially work to pinpoint areas of special need in the county and identify the areas with the most growth potential.

Petitioners for the EDC included Lee Moerland of Charlevoix, John Kujawski of Boyne City and Dennis Jason of East Jordan.

How do you channel the energy of 32 seventh graders? Put them in squares and start calling!

Gym classes at the Charlevoix Middle School have been taking up square dancing as a spring activity.

When the young man's fancy turns, so does he these days...to the pretty little girl on the left corner. That is, when he isn't promenading left or circling six or, yes, even getting kicked in the shins by the same pretty little girl.

Teachers Norm Probert and Toni Felter combine their efforts and enthusiasm to organize formations and encourage participation.

Norm learned square dancing and how to call when he himself was a student in high school.

Now he is bringing the skills and fun of rural Americana to the Charlevoix schools.

Garden Club seeks funding for Memorial Park

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club, which maintains a Memorial Garden in the islands of Mercer Blvd. at the east end of Dixon Ave. is seeking financial support for the project.

The garden was established by the club in 1977 in the islands owned by the city in an effort to beautify the site.

Anyone wishing to contribute any sum as a memorial to a loved one is asked to direct their contribution to the club care of Mrs. Robert Close, chairman of the project, at 201 Cherry St., Charlevoix.

The primary project of the club at the present time is the replacement of a rare weeping Red Jade tree that was destroyed by vandals last year. The tree was originally given as a memorial and the club is planning to replace it.

The names of those contributing to the fund will be made known on Memorial Day.

The site of the garden has not been designated as a city park but the city council has, by resolution, stated it is to be included in the city's park system. Modification can only come through a public hearing.

The club now plans to enlarge this memorial park.

The Memorial Park is only one of several areas in the city maintained by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. Others include the island at Petoskey and Michigan Avenues and the Pere Charlevoix mini-park on West Dison overlooking Lake Michigan.

Abundant Life Mission set for Church of God

The "Abundant Life Mission" has been scheduled for March 20, 21 and 22 at the Community Church of God at 302 W. Hurlbut in Charlevoix.

Twenty-five lay people from several different church backgrounds will share experiences with participants in the mission. The five themes to be featured include, "God Loves You Unconditionally!", "You are a unique, unrepeatable Miracle of God!", "How I see it, it is Now!", "Agape - Love for Others!" and "You are responsible for you life and what you do with it!"

Starting times are 6:30 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. Saturday (coffee groups) and 6:30 p.m. Saturday evening. Sunday will feature the lay people in the Sunday School hour at 9:45 a.m. as well as the Morning Worship hour at 11 a.m.

The public is invited to attend. Those with questions are asked to call Pastor Walt Hastings at 547-2875.

Charlevoix County—Cancer—Crusade Chairman Joanne Curtis checks some information with local captain Sally Berlage at a workshop held last week in Charlevoix to prepare for the crusade to be held next month. The workshop was one of a series held around the county for captains and volunteers. This year's county crusade goal is $12,000.

School district must repay $16,000 to state

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix School District has been directed by the state to repay approximately $16,000 it has received in categorical aid over a period of several years.

This revelation was reported to the Board of Education Monday at its regular meeting Monday night by Business Manager Vincent Olach.

While the district does not receive state aid, it does receive categorical aid for transportation, vocational education and special education. The funds the state is requesting are over-payment of this aid by the state since 1977, Olach said. In the state's search for funds, auditors are now claiming the state made overpayments.

According to Olach, the district has no recourse but to repay the amount.

After meeting in executive session, the board returned with a resolution directing Supt. Gordon VanWieren to make an administrative change at the Charlevoix Middle School and to re-negotiate the contract of Vincent Chew who has been serving in the position.

Tenure was granted to Brian Certa and Susan Grobaski of the high school faculty.

A request for leave of absence by Mrs. Grobaski was tabled for the present.

Scouts to distribute brochures

Charlevoix County Emergency Services Director Earl Muma announced this week that Boy Scout Troop 11 has agreed to help distribute a brochure recently developed by the Emergency Services Department advising local residents what to do in the case of an area disaster.

Muma said that the Scouts will be distributing the brochures door to door in the City of Charlevoix and that city residents should expect them to call within the next few days.

Muma expressed thanks to the Scout troop and said methods of distributing the brochure in the other areas of the county are still being studied.

Crooked Tree film series to feature '3 Women' next week

Robert Altman's "3 Women", starring Shelley Duvall, Sissy Spacek and Janice Rule will be shown Wednesday, March 25 in the Community Room of the Virginia McCune Arts Center, sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council at 6 p.m.

Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Dr. Robert Somer will provide program notes and will lead a discussion following the film for interested filmgoers. Dr. Somer, a pathologist from Cheboygan, has taught film courses at North Central Michigan College recently after a lifetime of interest and study of film.

Altman wrote, produced and directed "3 Women" for Twentieth Century Fox. Music is by Gerald Busby.

"Robert Altman's '3 Women' is such a stimulating achievement in cinematic art that it makes one rethink the whole aesthetic of motion pictures," says Andrew Sarris, film critic of the Village Voice.

Nancy Stewart of the Petoskey Womens Resource Center will co-hostess the film evening with Dr. Robert Somer.

This is the second of four films being shown at the McCune Arts Center. "Shoot the Piano Player" will be shown Wednesday, April 8. Irene Richardson of Charlevoix will co-hostess that film with Dr. Somer. The final film of the series will be Wednesday, April 29, "Dodes da Kaden", a Japanese film.

Knight on the Town

A welcome flip-flop

Was it a "wishy-washy" or a "flip-flop"?

That's what spectator Ivan Whitley wanted to know Monday night after his former colleagues on the City Council reversed themselves within minutes to allow the planting of trees along downtown sidewalks. Their first inclination, by a 4-1 margin, was to reject the offer by local business people to fund and carry out the whole beautification project without city money.

But after a little friendly persuasion by some persistent people, they changed their minds.

If you ask me, it was a full flip-flop, from the pike position.

To the merchants, who don't get to come to council meetings very often, it seemed an open and shut case. They would offer free trees, free planting, and free loving care in return for some holes in the sidewalk and the city's blessing.

Somewhere along the line, they even wound up accepting the responsibility of financing the sawing of holes in the sidewalk. It wasn't in the original package but if that's what it took to line Bridge St. with trees, they were willing.

Fact is, they were willing and accomodating almost to a fault.

The Charlevoix City Council is very wary of subjects bearing gifts. They have been burned before by what looked like gifts at first but what later turned into lumps of coal in their stockings. They can't be blamed for being cautious.

They can also not be blamed for failing to make the immediate connection between trees and sales. A downtown beautification project is not the type of marketing strategy by which one measures, say, customers gained per tree. Its contribution is intangible.

The merchants were chancing it asking for immediate action. If they had been more familiar with the way things work at council meetings, they would have known that everything gets tabled at least once. It's kind of a rite of passage that all local legislation must endure, no matter how pressing the issue.

When the pressure was put on to skip this rite, the council really got wary and downright ornery about the whole thing. They voted it down with a thud that resounded through the Valley and the merchants couldn't believe it.

What the council had failed to realize was that it was facing one of the rarest species since the passenger pigeon: an organized and united Chamber of Commerce.

Any issue on which 66 merchants can agree deserves special attention. Any project for which merchants collectively pledge over $7,300 deserves immediate attention.

What the council also failed to realize was that money was the farthest thing from the merchants' mind. After all, they agreed to pick up the whole tab in the end.

What the merchants really wanted from the council was a sign. A nod. Anything to let them know their local government was behind their efforts to improve things with moral support, if not monetary.

Trees along the downtown sidewalks will add a delightful touch to the shopping and browsing atmosphere. It is a great idea. They will add life to Bridge St. in more ways than one.

Flip-flop or not, I hope the council realizes that it did a good thing by reconsidering and going along with the merchants' offer.

To have wasted an opportunity to lend support to the Charlevoix business community in their time of special need would have been most unfortunate.

Now everybody's Irish

ALTHOUGH HE has been dead for 1,520 years, St. Patrick appears to be more popular than ever.

St. Pat's coattails this season, with March 17 promotions, sales and bargains of every description.

I wonder what St. Pat himself would have to say about his feast day, circa 1981, if he should suddenly make a return visit to the land of the living. I imagine he would be more amused than angry. The Irish are like that.

HAVE YOU CUT your coffee consumption since word was released last week that coffee-drinkers are more susceptible to cancer of the pancreas than non-coffee drinkers?

If you are a typical coffee lover, your answer is probably "no."

For many of us, a day without a "good cup of coffee" really isn't worth living — regardless of the risks involved.

It is hard to imagine how coffee — which is not even grown in the continental United States — should ever have become such an All-American drink. Furthermore, how did we ever survive the dark days of World War II when coffee was rationed?

ALL OF WHICH reminds me of the fellow who read so much about the various carcinogens we encounter in our daily lives — that he gave up reading.

Magazines and Sunday supplements have picked up on the Irish mania, including an excellent piece this week in Detroit magazine by Free Press staffer Neal Shine, a second-generation Irishman who has suffered throughout his life under "the burden of being Irish."

Commercial enterprises also have jumped on the Irish bandwagon. Hardly a restaurant in Northern Michigan didn't offer such Irish fare as corned-beef and cabbage on its menu over the weekend.

Pubs have joined in with St. Pat's parties, featuring "green beer." In the old days, "green beer" was an underfermented potient that was to be avoided at all costs; today, brewers simply add a green dye to the beverage which doesn't affect the taste one iota.

The Association of Irish-American Lawyers has announced plans for its annual wing-ding in Charlevoix.

And the makers of the bath soap "Irish Spring," which is supposed to keep your undersarms as fresh as the surf at Donegal Bay, has announced an "Irish Fling" sweepstakes. Two grand prizes are offered: Trips for two to Blarney Castle, including reservations at major hotels, airfare aboard Aer Lingus and $1,000 in spending money.

To get in the running, all you have to do is pick the section of Ireland where the Blarney Stone is located. From there on, winners are selected by lot.

Retail businesses also are riding on Letters: County reapportionment

Here's our chance

To the Editor:

As you know the Constitution requires reapportionment every ten years following the taking of the census.

This requires reapportionment in Charlevoix County as to the County Commissioners to satisfy, as nearly as possible, the one-man one-vote rule.

Reapportionment is done by a committee composed of the County Prosecutor, the County Treasurer, and the chairmen of the Republican and Democratic Parties and the County Clerk.

To us, it appears this offers an opportunity to correct two significant problems.

First, the present system with 15 County Commissioners is completely out of balance in respect to representation due, in large part, to the shift in population over the past ten years. For example residents of Hayes and Charlevoix Townships effectively have one-half the vote as residents of the Cities of Charlevix and Boyne City. Since the townships have one commissioner for every 2,250 residents while the cities have one commissioner for every 1,100 residents.

Secondly, the county presently has 15 commissioners, of the 83 counties in Michigan only 18 have 15 or more commissioners. Charlevoix County is the least populated of those 18. Counties approximately the size of Charlevoix County average aeven to nine commissioners. A reduction in the total number of commissioners and consequently a reduction in espenses is worthwhile of serious consideration.

The Charlevoix County Republicans will hold a meeting on this and other matters March 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Court Room at the Charlevoix County Building. All Republicans and friends are welcome. This type of meeting is an excellent example how the people can have a direct voice in their government through these political parties.

Seeking camera

To the Editor:

On January 3rd of this year an automobile accident on Rt. 131 took the lives of four young adults, one of which was my son, Keith Daniel. There were some personal items that have not been recovered from the car. One such item is a 35 mm Bell & Howell Reflex Camera, Lens Serial No. 59049 and Body Serial No. 141245. We have reason to believe the camera was stolen from the car after the accident. This is a very personal item that has personal meaning to me, his father. I would appreciate very much anyone who might know the whereabouts of this camera getting in touch with me at the following address. There will be a reward with no questions asked.

Worthwhile progrom

To the Editor:

In the March 4 edition of the Courier, Jim Mills listed some of the programs that he would like to see implemented in Charlevoix and among them was a "junior achievement program". That is a positive program but it is limited to school studeots, the projects are usually more token than substantial and the businesses are liquidated at the end of the school year.

I would prefer to see a community achievement program with the school system at the focus of the projects giving both the students and their teachers a practical dimension to their academic subjects and inviting all age groups to participate in the program from students to retired persons.

The program would also invite the participation of area industries and professionals where their expertise would help. The projects that are selected should be worthwhile, relatively inexpensive to develop and have the potential to develop into a permanently viable business.

This area has several liabilities for industries that must be taken into consideration. Any peninsula is going to be outside the main land transportation routes and increasing fuel costs are a liability in this cold climate.

On the other hand, energy related projects could take the first priority among the projects to be considered.

I can think of a number of projects that would be worth considering.

Hoedown was success

To the Editor:

On Febraary 28th, the Charlevoix Sports Booster Club presented what we hope will become an annual affair, a "Country Hoedown".

The event was a tremendous success due to the efforts of several individuals. Thanks go to Jim Withers, Tom LeBlanc and Joe Beaudoin for the delicious buffet, the V.F.W. for their special consideration, the early morning clean-up committee and especially to Jasper and the Tag-Alongs, with caller George Smith, who donated their time and talent. They were "something special".

Thanks, also, to all of you who have supported our fund raising events throughout the year.

Opposed to ELF

A letter to Casper W. Weinberger, Secretary of Defense:

Dear Mr. Weinberger:

I understand that a request has been made in the Fiscal 1982 Defense Budget of $34 million for further research and development of project ELF. I would like to espress my reservations regarding the project and to request that you seriously consider the development of an alternative system.

I have always been a consistent supporter of a stronger national defense and am a proponent of developing an effective means of communicating with our ballistic submarines. I do not believe, however, that ELF represents the best system available to accomplish this goal.

The nature of the controversy surrounding this issue can be underlined by the response of my usually pro-defense constituency; there is adamant oppostion to ELF. The history of the project traces back through two decades of changing specifications and site locations and perceived deceit. These problems, along with a thoroughly botched public relations job by the Navy has fueled the fire of opposition toward ELF.

The controversy has had the effect of subjecting the ELF system to considerable examination as well as a review of possible alternative systems. One of these systems is the blue-green laser system. I am convinced that this system represents the best system for communicating with our submarines and is available within a time frame not significantly greater than the projected IOC for ELF.

As I indicated, my opposition to ELF is not based on environmental or health concerns but rather on the capability of the system to best fulfill its mission as a communicating system. I have been and continue to be an advocate of reopening the Clam Lake, Wisconsin site as I believe it does have a useful capability — even the expanded ELF system, however, simply cannot perform as well as the blue-green laser system.

I believe it is important that you decide against further funding for the development of ELF and institute an immediate effort to bring the blue-green laser system to a deployment status. I appreciate your attention to this matter.

Weddings

Papineau-Shooks

The wedding of Barbara Annette Papineau of Charlevoix and Bryan Eugene Shooks of Central Lake took place at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 7 at the Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Hockin of Oak Harbor, Ohio and the late Mr. Hockin and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Versal Shooks of Central Lake. Presiding over the double ring ceremony was Rev. Roger C. Ames, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church.

The bride wore an ivory, floor length dress with elbow length ivory veil and carried a single, long-stemmed sonia rose. The Matron of Honor was Mrs. Marjorie Romig, sister of the bride. Best Man was Randall Ruis, brother-in-law of the groom. Ringbearer was Scott A. Papineau, son of the bride.

Music was provided by Mrs. Marina LaBlanc, organist, and Mrs. Grethie Ames, soloist. Ushers were Dr. Paul Romig and Dale Shooks. The bride was escorted down the aisle by her maternal grandfather, Mr. Stanley Lasky.

The reception was held at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix and was hosted by the bride and groom with assistance on the guest book from Miss Arranda Ames, on the cake by Mrs. Rose Nammerberg and by servers Mrs. Debbie Kujawski, Mrs. Judy Smith and Mrs. Dot Gilding. A Friday evening rehearsal dinner was hosted at Brownwood by Mr. and Mrs. Versal Shooks.

The bride is employed as a registered nurse at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and the groom is employed with Shooks Brothers & Sons' Farms. After a wedding trip to Hawaii, they will be at home Aril 1 in Charlevoix.

Little League sign-up session to be Monday

Those area youngsters who have not signed up for Little League have one more chance to do so.

There will be another sign-up session on Monday, March 23, in the high school gym lobby according to Dr. Donald Trimper, Little League president.

The program is open for all youngsters in the nine through 15 year-old age group who wish to play Little League baseball this year.

Even those who have played before must register at this time in order to be eligible for this season, said Dr. Trimper.

The sign-up hours will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Each prospective player planning to sign up must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Registrants and parents are asked to use the May St. entrance.

Charlevoix Outdoors...

It's 'Take a sea otter to lunch' week

...by Burford

Well, folks, it's National Wildlife Week this week according to the National Wildlife Federation which has been sponsoring this annual seven day observance since 1937.

The theme this time around is "We Care About Oceans" which might seem a little difficult for us Charlevoixans to relate to. We're about as far from an ocean as you can get in the U.S.

Does that mean we can sit out this dance and wait for a subject that is closer to our own backyards?

Absolutely not!

It was in the mid-1960s that a certain word started getting thrown around that not too many people hard heard before then. The word was "ecology" and it stands for a concept we now hold as one of the most important keys to our future way of life on this planet.

Ecology is the study of interrelationships; between organisms, between environments. The ecology of our world is best described as the pattern, or master plan, to use a touchy phrase around here lately, into which everything fits.

Like a symphony to the ears of a composer, each part is crucial. It doesn't sound quite the same if even the tiniest part is played differently.

It so happens that the part the oceans play in the great scheme of things is far from a tiny part; it is a very big part. And it will surely affect the harmony of life all over if its part is rewritten by careless exploitation and lack of awareness.

To look out over the endless horizon from one of our beautiful coastlines, it seems unbelievable that man could begin to pose a serious ecological threat to this massive resource. But he does. And we flatlanders should be concerned just as much as those from Nantucket, Monterey or Bar Harbor.

So if you happen to be driving down the California coast this week, take a sea otter to lunch. Order him an abelone sandwich and he'll be happy.

If you don't feel like traveling 3,000 miles for a lunch date, however, Michigan United Conservation Clubs has a more practical way for us Michiganders to observe Wildlife Week.

For the second year in a row, MUCC is sponsoring the "Plant for Wildlife" program statewide. Packages of plantable trees and shrubs are being sold for $14.98 apiece plus $2.10 tax and shipping to people interested in improving wildlife habitat by planting.

The package contains young trees, shrubs and ground cover chosen specifically for their benefits to endemic Michigan wildlife species. Included are 13 trees (six different species), 12 shrubs (four different species) and five ground cover plants (one species).

Said an MUCC spokesman, "By planting these varieties, you provide food and shelter for wildlife, aid soil conservation, establish windbreaks and create landscape beauty."

To send for the "Plant for Wildlife" packages, mail $17.08 to MUCC, Box 30235, Lansing, 48909.

Happy National Wildlife Week!

Oddfellows top Masons for repeat cribbage touring win

Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F., repeated as victors in the annual Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament according to tournament secretary Ronald Geer.

This marks the 29th time in the 31-year history of the tournament that the Oddfellows have captured the title. Their opponent, Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F.&A.M., has won in 22 years.

The ten-week tournament will be climaxed by a dinner at the Masonic Temple at 6:30 p.m. Thursday hosted by the Masons with the Oddfellows as guests.

The tournament was the closest in recent years with the lead changing often in the latter weeks of the event. The Oddfellows won by 936 points, scoring 334 points in last Thursday's action when nine and a half tables were in play.

Frank Sneathen had the high score for the Oddfellows with 967 points, one short of a perfect score. In the fifth week, he did post a perfect score. Charles M. Bergmann had 951 for the Masons.

Gerald Johnson and John LaRue were team captains for the 1981 tournament.

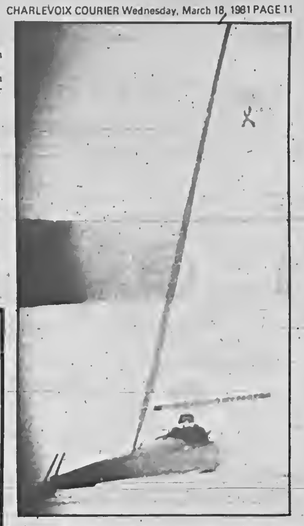
Charlevoix Elemmentary School sponsoring Book Fair all this week in library

The Charlevoix Elementary School is sponsoring a student book fair this week from March 16 to March 20. Students will be able to browse through and purchase books. The book fair will be open during the parent-teacher conferences and will be held in the library.

All profits from the book fair will be used for purchasing library materials.

The library is sponsoring this event with Mrs. Potter serving as book fair chairman. Other committee members are Pat Leadabrand and Karen Joy.

The fair will include books for all reading interests including classics, fiction, biographies, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts, mystery and reference.



Ice-boater John Gibson of Charlevoix took advantage of what may have been one of the last ice boating days on Lake Charlevoix a week ago Saturday.

F.W. Poppy Days are scheduled for May 14 through 17

Veterans of Foreign Wars Poppy Days will be May 14-17 Mrs. Clarence Goldstick announced at a recent meeting of the V.F.W. Auxiliary at her home.

Mrs. Joseph Seidel and Mrs. James Whitley will serve as co-chairpersons of the annual sale of popples made by disabled veterans. Funds derived from the sale assist veterans in their hospital programs and orphans and veterans' widows at the V.F.W. Home at Eaton Rapids.

Mrs. Goldstick also advised members that a plea for bibs for use at the Traverse City V.A. Hospital had been received. The membership voted to purchase material and to make the bibs at the next social meeting.

Delegates to a forthcoming district meeting were named. They are Mrs. Seidel, Mrs. Donald White, Mrs. Ivan Phillips, Mrs. Albert Russell, Mrs. Kenneth Staley and Mrs. Eugene Gibelyou. Alternates are Mrs. Harry Pearsall, Mrs. Louis McKenzie, Mrs. Keith Wagner and Mrs. Jack Warner.

A discussion relating to the Friday night bingo at the V.F.W. post home which has been re-organized was held.

Auxiliary membra will continue to operate the concession stand. A cookie bake-off to supply cookies for the concessioo stand is planned for the Thursday meeting of the Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary offers a cancer insurance which is included in the V.F.W. dues. The membership voted to improve the insurance coverage. The insurance is underwritten by the auxiliary and is available to persons who have been members for one year. Cancer grants are also available through the State Department Auxiliary. Cash register slips from Glen's Market are redeemed for cash to underwrite the insurance.

The local auxiliary has a 100 percent paid up membership. District 13 is in second place in the state in its membership drive.

A delegation from the Antrim Charlevoix Board of Realtors participated in the 1981 Governmental Affairs Conference held in Lansing on February 18 which was conducted by the Michigan Association of Realtors (MAR). Attending from this area were, left to right, Bob McCutcheon, State Senator Ralph Ostling, Carlton Kessler and George Laufersky. The day's activities included a visit to the Capitol Building, appointments with legislators, seminars on legislative affairs, policial affairs and the Realtors Political Action Committee. An evening reception was attended by over 105 legislators and 350 members of the Michigan Association of Realtors.

FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT GOLD

Scholars believe that man has had over sixty centuries of involvement with gold. It is amazing to learn that, due to the virtual indestructability of the metal, all the gold ever poured in sixty centuries is still in existence. Because of the way gold has been remelted and recast over the years, it is possible that the ring on your finger contains gold that was around a pharaoh's neck thousands of years BC!

Gold is the only metal which combines virtual indestructability with lustrous beauty, easy workability, and rarity. No other substance known to man has these four qualities, not even diamonds.

Today gold also has qualities that are especially advantageous to the individual investor. It cannot be inflated by a government printing more of it and it cannot be devalued by decree. Gold has been trusted for six thousand years; that's much longer than any currency. Krugerrands and Credit Suisse are available at most jewelers and contain one troy ounce of gold each. They combine the lustrous beauty of gold with the common sense value of a sound investment.

We all realize that gold is extremely rare, but do you know how much a cube containing all mankind's gold would measure? The surprising answer is only eighteen yards on each side.

Another surprising fact is that more steel is poured in one hour than all the gold that has been poured for six thousand years, since the beginning of time.

Number of commissioners now up to Apportionment Committee

by PEG OHLE

Some time soon – as soon as the Federal Census figures for Charlevoix County become official, to be exact – the County Apportionment Committee will go to work.

The job of the Apportionment Committee will be to divide the County into Districts for representation on the County Board of Commissioners. They may decide to keep the number of Districts at 15, the maximum allowed by law for a County the size of Charlevoix, or they may decide to cut it to a lower number. It could be as few as five, the minimum allowed by law.

The Apportionment Committee, as described by statute, is made up of the County Prosecutor, the County Clerk, the County Treasurer, the chairman of the Republican party, and the chairman of the Democratic party.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Scott Beatty described the procedure of apportionment at an open meeting of County Republicans last week and noted briefly the guidelines for apportionment as provided for in the statutes:

(1) "One man, one vote" – every District must be as nearly equal in population to the others as practicable. (2) Every district must be contiguous. (3) Every District must be compact and as nearly square as practicable. (4) No township or part thereof may be combined with a city or part thereof unless necessary to meet population standards. (5) Townships, villages, or cities may be divided only if necessary to meet population standards. (7) County residents in state institutions who cannot vote will not be considered for representation. (8) Districts cannot be drawn to affect political consideration.

Beatty stressed that the above guidelines were in order of importance, so that equal-population-sized Districts is the primary factor in apportionment.

The law further provides that apportionment must be completed within 60 days after publication of official census figures, according to Beatty. Thereafter, the apportionment may be challenged in the Courts by any voter, and the apportionment will not become effective until all appeals have been exhausted and the time for appeals runs out.

While the statutes do not call for any public meetings on the process of apportionment, the Apportionment Committee will meet pursuant to the Open Meetings Act, so the Committee meetings will, in effect, be public.

All members of the Apportionment Committee were on hand at last week's meeting to hear Beatty's explanation of the process.

County Clerk Jane Brannon, Treasurer Anah Potter, Republican party chairman Don Hufford, and Democratic party chairman Fritz Allard also listened to other presentations on the subject of apportionment.

Republican party member William Ohle noted that of the 83 counties in Michigan, 65 of them (or 79 percent) have fewer than 15 Districts, and therefore fewer than 15 Commissioners on their County Boards. "In fact," he said, 39 counties the size of Charlevoix or larger have from two to ten fewer Districts than Charlevoix."

Ohle suggested that with this once-in-ten-years chance of setting up new Districts, it was a good idea to consider these facts. "I'm not being critical of Charlevoix County," he told the group, "but I have the feeling that we could operate more efficiently and at less cost with a smaller County Board."

Another Republican party member, Don Smith, reported on the inequities he had found in present representation on the County Board due to population shifts during the last ten years.

The present County Board has eight

Not yet distributed, nuclear emergency pamphlet for Chx., Emmet counties prompts calls for revision

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Despite official and citizen criticism, a pamphlet on emergency planning, specifically aimed at coping with an emergency at the Big Rock nuclear power plant, is being distributed throughout Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), which has not yet approved it, is currently reviewing the pamphlet as is the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). A spokesman for the NRC who has seen the pamphlet, predicts a revised version will be required.

The pamphlet was designed by Consumers Power Company, owner-operator of the Big Rock plant, in collaboration with Emergency Services Directors Earl Muma of Charlevoix County and John Theisen of Emmet County and Sheriffs George Lasater and Richard Zink of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Pamphlets are being distributed in Charlevoix by local Boy Scout Troop 71 this week and are available at City Hall, the County Building, the Chamber of Commerce and area motels.

Muma said Monday that plans for door-to-door distribution to homes in rural areas within the five-mile evacuation radius of the Big Rock plant have not been made.

Theisen said no plans for distribution have been made for Harbor Springs, directly across Little Traverse Bay from the plant because it is beyond the five-mile zone. Cub Scouts have volunteered to deliver them in that community.

The pamphlet is part of a public education and information program requirement of the NRC which has an April 1, 1981 deadline for all nuclear power plants.

Critics argue that the pamphlet should not be distributed because it contains misleading illustrations and inadequate information on radiation hazards.

"We want the pamphlet out because there is nothing out there now on what to do in the event of an emergency," said William Axelson, NRC Emergency Preparedness Analyst for Region 3 in a telephone interview. "It's better than nothing but it is not as good as others I've seen," he added.

Specific criticism has been levelled by the Charlevoix Concerned Citizens organization that an illustration showing a family awaiting evacuation outside their home wearing light weight, short-sleeved clothing is "criminal" because the family would be directly exposed to radiation in an accident that released radioactive material into the atmosphere.

In response to this point, Axelson said, "I agree with their concerns but I do not agree that it is criminal. Most people will read rather than just look at the pictures." He continued, however, that the illustration and other contents of the pamphlet is pinpointed for change in future editions.

Axelson pointed out that the proper actions to take during a nuclear emergency were described later in the pamphlet in a section entitled "Evacuation". According to the pamphlet, evacuation may not be necessary in all cases. In some situations, people might be directed to "go indoors and remain there." In that case, according to the pamphlet, people should "close all outside doors and windows and leave them closed. This will help keep out any radioactive material and/or gasses which may be outdoors. Turn off air conditioners and other air intakes."

Further details are provided on precautions against radioactive contamination.

The CCC has criticized the explanation of radiation as Judge Fershee to step down

Judge David W. Fershee, who has headed the 90th District Court since his appointment by Governor Milliken in April, 1975, is resigning his post effective May 31.

Judge Fershee made the announcement last week and added that he will continue to live in Charlevoix. It is expected that he will join a local law firm.

Judge Fershee succeeded Judge Arthur W. Reibel, who resigned early in 1975. At that time, the District Court docket was seriously behind schedule, with some civil matters as much as three years old. Today, the docket is in "good shape", according to the judge.

The successor to Judge Fershee will be appointed by Governor Milliken. He receives recommendations from the State Bar Association, whose Judicial Qualifications Committee, screens and rates candidates for the Governor. In making an appointment, the Governor also receives and considers recommendations from the local Bar Associations, and from local state legislators, according to Judge Fershee.

"The Governor usually appoints someone local," he explained.

Judge Fershee is a graduate of Ferris State College and the Detroit College of Law. He moved to Charlevoix in mid 1973 and practiced law in Boyne City and Charlevoix before his appointment to the bench. He was re-elected to the post in 1976 and 1980.

In looking back over his years in the District Court, Judge Fershee commented on the help he had received. "I want to thank my staff," he said. "They have been tremendous with me, loyal and hardworking. I also received the utmost in cooperation from everyone – the Commissioners, County officials, everyone I worked with. It makes the job easier.

"Also, serving in District Court has been the greatest experience I've ever had. I've learned a great deal about the law and about myself," he added.

Char-Em banking on millage vote

by ANNE KELLY

Already strapped by state and federal funding cutbacks, the Char-Em Intermediate School District now faces a forthcoming millage request vote in June.

Set at .8 mils at a recent board meeting, the passage of this request will at least stabilize the situation for the time being according to Intermediate School Superintendent Jim Shepard.

It was only a year ago that the Intermediate School District felt secure that the passage of a state aid bill would assure sufficient funds for their projected 1980-81 budget. Then came June and talk of an executive order that would prompt substantial cuts.

By late summer, $50,000 was needed to balance the budget.

There was an equity fund to cushion the deficit at that time, but additional budget trimming was advised. Fall came without the state aid being passed and by late November and early December, the state added insult to injury with an order to cut an additional 20 percent across the board.

The Intermediate School District receives the majority of its funding from state aid in order to provide its services. The decreasing allocations in the past several years have put the district in a tight financial bind. This year, for example, only $18,000 was allowed for every $100,000 spent on special education compared to $25,000, $30,000, $40,000 and more in past years.

Shepard attributes the decrease in aid to "inflation as well as a national realization that there are not unlimited dollars out there."

On the other hand, the Intermediate School District must fulfill its commitment to educate special individuals up to the age of 25 according to state and federal law.

Most recent cuts have resulted in entirely eliminating the positions of some drivers and classroom aides, the transferring of other positions, cutting of some postions to half time and, most dramatically, an administration-staff decision to save the district $42,000 by accepting ten payless days in their contract instead of further staff reduction.

Now the district is looking to the June millage vote for relief.

Priority in using funds granted to the district by millages, state and federal funding are as follows.

The first priority is to low-incidence special education programs including the developmental needs classes at Pellston and East Jordan, trainables 7-14 class at Melrose, older trainables class at St. Francis, mentally impaired class at Ironton, hard of hearing class at Petoskey, severely multiple impaired class at Petosky and transportation for all the above.

The second priority group is comprised of the diagnostic services provided by social workers, psychologists, consultants for learning disabilities and the pre-school team.

The third priority is to direct services provided by speech therapists, hospital and in-home education and inservice training.

Assuming there will be no increases from state and federal sources, the Intermediate District anticipates the necessity to lay off an additional nine to 18 positions should the millage fail. These would occur in the areas of speech therapy, reduction of diagnostic staff, hospital and in-home services, inservice and research and certain administrative postions.

The burden of providing these services would then be referred to the local school districts.

Charlevoix Middle School will be represented in the annual Northern Michigan Regional Math competition by the following students, front row left to right, Becky Christensen, Karl Johnson, Rusty Coolman, Dawn Reinhart, Lara Stargardt and Jason Brindel; second row, Jill Baecke, Holly Edger, Kim Brasefske, Andrew Brumm, Masako Regier and Thomas Graf.

Middle School students to take part in math competition

Twelve Charlevoix Middle School students from the sixth, seventh and eighth grade classes representing the top four students in their respective classes are busy preparing for the Northern Michigan Regional Math Competition at Gaylord on April 11.

The students, who were selected through a qualifying examination, are researching various math books, studying exams used in past competition and learning all the math skills and tricks their instructors can provide.

At the regional competition in Gaylord, the top 25 students in each grade will receive special recognition at an awards ceremony following the competition and be invited to participate at the state level later this year.

All the students in the competition are math students in the honors program conducted by Thomas Sothard.

Fels gets county GOP nod

Barbara Fels, who has been secretary to the Charlevoix County Planning Department since the Department was started ten years ago, last week received the endorsement of the Charlevoix County Republican party for the job of County Planner.

Mrs. Fels has applied for the job left open by the resignation of John Hess.

Advertisements for a new County Planner have appeared in local newspapers as well as in professional publications. The appointment will be made by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners upon recommendation of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

Attempt to freeze county hiring fails

Charlevoix County is not yet ready to jump on the Reagan bandwagon by freezing its jobs and salaries.

An attempt was made last week by the Ways and Means Committee of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to "impose a six month moratorium on the hiring of any new employees or the upgrading of any of the existing employees" that the resolution went down to defeat, ten to four.

The resolution cited a host of financial problems affecting the county, beginning with the high unemployment rate which places a "terrible strain" on the taxpayers of the County, to the cut in Federal Revenue Sharing Funds and other state funds and reimbursement programs, to the uncertainty of Federal and State officials about future budgets.

The resolution was presented by Commissioner Casimir Toton and seconded by Commissioner John Haggard, who vigorously supported it. They, and Commissioners Oscar Ward and Lee Moerland, voted for the resolution.

The job and salary freeze would have become effective immediately if the resolution had passed.

As of last month, there were 119 employees on the County payroll, which amounted to $87,671.05 for the month. This includes the salaries and per diem payments of the 15 members of the County Board of Commissioners.

Big Rock employees win safety award

For the fourth year in a row employees of Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear power plant have earned the utility's top recognition for safety, the President's Award.

This time, however, Big Rock employees will share the award with employees from the company's Palisades and Midland nuclear plants. This is the first year the firm's nuclear operations have competed as a group. Previously, each plant competed as a single unit.

Big Rock has won the President's Award in 1977, 1978, and 1979. The facility has completed three years without a lost-time injury. The last lost-time injury was on August 3, 1977. Big Rock had a Safety Performance Index of .255 in 1980. This is te lowest of any reporting unit in the company. Nuclear Operations finished the year with a winning Safety Performance Index of 2.378 with the nearest competitor being the company's Production and Transmission Department with an index of 3.299. The lower the index, the better the performance. The index is determined under a formula which computes man-hours worked, number of medical cases and the severity of injuries and traffic accidents.

The award was developed in 1948 as part of the company's accident prevention program. Its purpose is to stimulate enthusiasm for safety on-the-job, at home and on the highways.

The award was presented at ceremonies held March 20 at the plant. John D. Selby, the company's chairman of the board, made the presentation.

Plant Superintendent, C.J. Hartman, lauded employees for their individual efforts and their enthusiastic teamwork in preventing injuries.

Knight on the Town
Signs of our times

by Dave Knight

Signs have been in the news lately thus qualifying as fair game for this hunter.

I once did a senior thesis on sign pollution in a resort community. Other than a dependence on tourists, this place had little in common with Charlevoix thus making comparisons risky. But one conclusion at which I arrived and one that local decision makers are probably finding out is that it's darn hard to legislate good taste and even harder to tell a guy he can't advertise his business the way he wants.

Some stiff regulations are definitely in order, though, before the situation gets out of hand. It's much harder to get unwanted signs taken down than it is to prevent them going up in the first place.

While on the subject, the First State Bank should be commended for its latest neighborhood improvement project: the taking down of their large drive-up window sign on State St. Perhaps an entry in the Guiness Book citing "Shortest Life Span of an Expensive Sign" is appropriate. How long was it up? A month?

If nothing else, its odd shape provided fodder for several local cynics. The best description heard by this correspondent was that of a distended liver. Word has it that management knew the day it went up that it didn't quite project the desired image and that it had to go.

Maybe somebody in Petoskey can use it.

My vote for the most ignored signs in Charlevoix goes to the flourescent "no bikes allowed" warnings stenciled on downtown sidewalks. Has anybody yet seen a kid on a bicycle screech to a halt when he comes to the warning and say, "Gosh! I better not ride on the sidewalk!" and nicely ride off onto the street? Don't hold your breath.

We sure have some silly signs around here.

On the way to Boyne Falls the other day, I noticed a large wooden sign along the highway standing in front of a large expanse of pine trees. It said "FOREST".

Now I know the downstaters get confused up here but isn't this just a little condescending?

My favorite is the sign on the beach along US 31 North that announces "LAKE MICHIGAN" to the unknowing. I suppose it was erected for the benefit of any explorers on their way to the Orient. Like Champlain. He started out across the lake 400 years ago thinking it was the Pacific.

Can you imagine the downer it must have been to anticipate sailing into Shanghai and wind up in Milwaukee?

Number of commissioners pondered representatives from the three cities and seven from the 15 townships," he noted. "That is because, in 1970, at the time of the last apportionment, the cities had 52 percent of the population and the townships 48 percent.

The 1980 preliminary census shows that the townships now have 56 percent of the population and the cities have 44 percent."

Among the areas in the County severely affected by this movement of population are Charlevoix and Hayes Townships, with a combined population of approximately 2,250, which share one Commissioner on the County Board. The City of Charlevoix, on the other hand, with a population of 3,300, has three Commissioners on the County Board.

Smith also noted that many counties in the state the size of Charlevoix have fewer Districts and presented some ideas for districting townships and cities in Charlevoix County to accomodate only seven or nine Districts.

There was much comment pro and con about the advisability of reducing the number of Districts (and the size of the Board of Commissioners) in the County, with most county employees expressing a desire to keep things as they are, and most of the others willing to try for a change.

The present 15 member County Board was elected in November, 1980 and will serve until December 31, 1982. Any changes in apportionment will not become effective until the November, 1982 election, when the new County Board will be elected.

Notes on San Diego

by Peg Ohle

It's fun to take a vacation, especially when it's to a distant part of the country.

A three-week's vacation in San Diego, Calif gave us a chance to compare life there with life in northern Michigan.

When one basks in 78-degree sunshine and reads about snowstorms around Lake Michigan, one has to admit there is a difference. Also, when one lives comfortably in a house that has not needed furnace heat for months, and when the countryside is covered with brilliant flowers.

Those are some of the differences, but really they are only one difference, created by one factor – the weather.

Going about the business of everyday living – working, shopping, eating, driving, reading the local newspaper, and almost everything else is easier than it is here because of the weather. But how much of it is alike! How alike are our problems and the way we react to them.

The weekly newspaper, the Poway News Chieftain, which is published in a small town in San Diego County, could be covering Charlevoix County by simply changing a few names in some of its news stories:

This week, there is a story about the local school board wondering what its re-imbursement from the state will be this year and considering a bus transportation fee to make up any slack. Another story announces the formation of CPR classes. The Sheriff reports the theft of $258 worth of tools from a motor vehicle. A local flaherman reports taking a five pound seven ounce trout from a nearby lake. On the real estate page, a reader asks, "What will help the availability of home financing?"

The bloodmobile is coming to town next week and blood donors are needed. A group of local women are forming a committee to collect funds for the Heart Association. North San Diego County residents are gearing up to fight a redistricting plan which would move them into a different District for County represention. The local high school is hosting an open house for parents and other area residents. Church Women United are preparing to observe the World Day of Prayer. The City Council voted to review all requests for building multiple housing in commercial zones.

It all sounds familiar, doesn't it? But what about some food ads:

Navel oranges, 10 pounds for $1; apples, five pounds for $1; carrots, five bags for $1; radishes and green onions, two bunches for 25 cents; pineapples, 19 cents a pound, lettuce, 25 cents a bunch. The prices are quite a bit higher than in Charlevoix, of course, but again the difference is the weather.

Other things aren't all that much cheaper, though. Two bedroom ranch homes are priced beginning at $118,000, and two bedroom town houses are priced from $104,000. A four-room apartment rents for $300 a month plus utilities. Gasoline costs as much as it does in northern Michigan, and the distances it is necessary to drive are probably greater. Lunches at nice restaurants start at $4.95 and coffee is 60 cents a cup. If you prefer a cheese sandwich, that will run $3.25.

Other differences are even more noticeable. The biggest one is business activity. Southern California is boom town. Hillside after hillside is being covered with new houses, 200 or 300 in a development. There are pages and pages of "Help Wanted" ads for skilled workers. The large Mexican and Oriental population keeps the unskilled jobs pretty well filled.

President Reagan's plans to increase the budgets of the military is the best news possible for the San Diego area. It means more money for the three huge Air Force bases in the vicinity, for the enormous San Diego Navy Base, and for the busy Coast Guard facility. No wonder a newspaper headline almost screams "Area leaders hail Reagan's plan."

Life seems easier in southern California, and if you don't like to fight the cold and snow and frozen windshields, of course it is. But there also seems to be a feeling of lackadaisical disinterest, especially among older people. Perhaps when one doesn't have to fight the elements, one gets that way.

We didn't like the snowstorm we ran into when we arrived home. The unfamiliar cold wind penetrated to our bones. We had to run the car's motor to warm it up before starting for work. But, somehow we're back on track again and we're not the least bit lackadaisical. We're interested in finding out what happened while we were gone and ready to start in where we left off.

So what if oranges here are 19 cents apiece and green onion are 29 cents a bunch. We'll settle for frozen orange juice and wait for onions out of our summer garden!

Out of the Blue

Do you suppose that UFOs
Come seeking a solution--
How to settle far from some home star
Left reeking with pollution?

Letters: Nurses and neighbors

Avoid a strike

A letter to President Shankland and the Board of Trustees of North Central Michigan College:

Dear President Shankland and Members of the Board of Trustees:

We, as Nursing students and members of the community, would like to voice our concern regarding the potential job action (strike) of the North Central Michigan College faculty and professional staff on April 15, 1981.

We, and our families, have invested considerable time, effort and finances in acquiring our education at this institution and believe that any interruption of this education would be a matter of irreparable damage to ourselves, our families and the community.

A delay of even one week's classes would neccessitate the postponement of writing the State Board Examinations for Licensure from July, 1981 until February, 1982 for the second year nursing class. This postponement would prevent the members of this year's class from assuming positions as Registered Nurses in our community, adding to the current nursing shortage, as well as putting a financial strain on the students who had assumed they would be employed as Registered Nurses immediately after the July State Board Examinations. With a delay, the first year students would be prohibited from attending the regular summer sessions, thus postponing their graduation as well as their writing of the State Board Examinations for at least an additional six months.

As we have paid our tuition, in good faith, for this education, and fully expected to graduate at the end of this semester, June 5, 1981, or to be continuing our education during the summer, we would like to see an increase in the number of negotiations between faculty and administration and a willingness of both parties to compromise on the remaining issues so that we all may realize our goals.

Carol Johnecheck, President
Student Nurse's Association
(Accompanied by signatures from 55 other student nurses.)

Hats off!

To the Editor:

My neighbors and I really appreciated your editorial and discussion of the local breaking and entering problems in the Feb. 4 edition of the Courier. I live only a short distance from the subject's home that was violated. I believe your outstanding coverage of this incident will help others to understand the threatening situation and the brave actions of my good neighbors hopefully will encourage others in our county to look out for each other in the future.

My neighbors and I are particularly apprehensive of this situation during the concert season and are hoping the sheriff will follow through on his promise to give us training in a neighborhood watch program.

I feel our neighbor, Byron Stockwell, deserves special recognition for his rapid response and leadership, although he was off duty and at home at the quiet. He is a genuine, old-time folk hero type who is rather unsung. When he retires in the fall he will leave a gap that will be hard to fill.

It was nice of George Lasater to make special award to my neighbors and they certainly received them with pride. George has undoubtedly the finest public relations program going in the North, even a professional like Phil Loomis pales by comparison.

And last, but not least, is Patrolman Meredith of the Charlevoix City Police who almost instantly responded and intercepted the fleeing pickup truck. This is a perfect example of the backing and cooperation of Charlevoix's finest with the Sheriff's Department. I hope Patrolman Meredith will receive his Outstanding Citizen Award soon.

I salute you all.

Clockwise
The El Salvador question

by Bob Clock

President Reagan has gotten the revitalization of the American economy off to a good start, but I hope he doesn't spoil it all by getting the United States involved in another no-win war in El Salvador.

Unfortunately, that is precisely the direction he and his chief sword-rattler, Secretary of State Alexander Haig, are heading.

The American position in El Salvador is identical to the American position in Vietnam a generation ago. And once again we are backing the wrong side, which we always seem to do if given half a chance.

Instead of casting our lot with the down-trodden peasantry of El Salvador, the United States is supporting a military-civilian junta whose chief goal is keping the power and the money in the hands of the upper crust.

Of course, we have no guarantee that the sweaty guerrillas who are trying to wrest control will be able to effect a more equitable distribution of wealth. But we do know - or we ought to know - that pressure for change is building fast. The seeds of discontent have been germinating for centuries and are ready to burst into full bloom.

Let me tell you a few things I have learned about El Salvador. It is a small country, no bigger than our state of Massachusetts. It is located on the steamy underbelly of Central America with a nice chunk of Pacific Ocean frontage. Unlike other C.A. countries, however, its territorial claims to not stretch across the isthmus to the Caribbean.

Eighty-nine percent of the population consists of "Mestizos" who have a mixture of Indian and European blood, mostly Spanish. Ten percent are Indians and only one percent are Caucasian. The official language is Spanish, although some of the Indians in the outlying regions still speak their native Nahuatl. Roman Catholicism is the state religion.

At last count, El Salvador had a population of 4.8 million persons, spread over only 8,260 square miles of land, for a population density of 527 per square mile. For comparison purposes, the population density of the United States is only about 61 per square mile.

However, much of the land is not habitable. The Pacific coastal plain is a torrid jungle and the frontiers bordering Honduras on the north and Guatemala on the west are mountainous, featuring many young volcanoes. Most of the population lives on a relatively cool plateau between the mountains and the sea.

El Salvador's major industries are cement, textiles and sugar refining. It's chief crops are coffee, cotton, rice, corn, cocoa, tobacco, and sugar. However it has only one-third of an acre of arable lan per resident.

El Salvador is an old country. Its capitol city - San Salvador - was founded in 1528 - almost a century before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock.

Head of the present military-civilian junta is Jaime Abdul Gutierrez, who was elected Oct. 15, 1979. He appoints local governors in 14 departments and presides over an army of 6,500 regulars and 3,000 militia.

From a practical standpoint, the country is governed by the "catorce grande" - an elite of 14 families, although some say more than 14 clans actually are calling the shots today. The middle class, in any event, is quite new and quite small.

"A much greater percentage of the people," reports Encyclopedia Americana, "live in crowded and inadequate housing ranging from urban slum dwellings to thatched huts."

Underscoring the present unrest, Americana continues: "If democracy proceeds to the point where a responsible opposition gains majority power and is permitted to exercise it, the status of El Salvador could change drastically."

From this vantage point it appears that the El Salvadoreans at long last have grown weary of their meatless diet of corn meal, black beans, chili peppers, chocolate and coffee and are looking for something better after 400 years of often despotic rule.

I don't think the United States - or any other nation founded by revolutionaries - should try to stand in their way.

Emergency pamphlet faces revision

"oversimplified and misleading" and have labelled the pamphlet "a p.r. job for Consumers Power."

In response, Brian K. Grimes, Director of the NRC Division of Emergency Preparedness, wrote in a letter that "We agree with your concern. The Public Education pamphlet is generally weak in providing useful information about radiation hazards. We will address this as part of our review."

Grimes also stated, "We agree with your concern (of lack of training for school officials). Proper training for school board, superintendents and teachers regarding their action during a nuclear power plant emergency is extremely important. We expect the state and local plans, together with the licensee plan, to address this training."

Big Rock public affairs director Phil Loomis explained that there are no definite guidelines for meeting the NRC's public education requirements other than the April 1 deadline. He said the pamphlet was written last summer and, though Muma and Theisen collaborated, most of the writing and illustrations originated from Consumers Power personnel.

Said Loomis, "We appreciate the criticism. We can all understand the criticisms of the illustrations, too." He added that the illustration of the family standing outside their home would be changed in future pamphlets. Other additions, according to Loomis, will be a fold out map of the evacuation area and special cards for people to place in their windows once they have evacuated.

Loomis said he did not know when a revised pamphlet would be printed but that one was required within a year.

Theisen and Muma also acknowledged the criticisms and spoke of similar changes. Sheriff Lasater said, "It was my understanding that the emergency services directors would ask for approval of the pamphlet."

Theisen said state level approval had been received but that he was unaware that NRC had not approved the pamphlet. According to Muma, future revisions will involve the general public. He also mentioned that, in case of an emergency, radio will be the prime means of notification and that people should tune to an emergency broadcast station for immediate directions.

Engagements

Swanson-Johnson

Barbara Swanson

Barbara Swanson's engagement to Robert Johnson is being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Swanson of Charlevoix.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Johnson of Holland. Both the bride-to-be and her fiance also live in Holland, where the bride is a student at Hope College.

She is a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School and will graduate from Hope College in May. Johnson is a 1978 graduate of Hamilton High School in Hamilton and a 1980 graduate of Hope College.

Both young people are active in the Youth for Christ group, for which the future bridegroom works full time.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 13, at the Maplewood Reformed Church in Holland.

Womens Club names officers

Mrs. Donald Farrell was elected president of the Charlevoix Womens Club at a recent meeting held at Brumm's Studio. She will succeed Mrs. Robert Murray in the office.

Other recently elected officers who will be installed at the annual meeting, a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. April 21 at Duffy's, will be Mrs. Gerald Muma, first vice president; Mrs. Raymond Wood, second vice president; Mrs. E.H. Leedy, third vice president; Mrs. Arthur Stoel, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Martin, recording secretary and Mrs. Clifford Biddick, treasurer.

At the same meeting Mrs. Murray will present checks to organizations the club helps support. The club is a non-profit group which derives its funds from dues and the annual summer book sale.

At the recent meeting, Mrs. Brumm conducted a tour of the studio and presented an interesting demonstration of the making of the enamel on copper bird and wildlife sculptures that the Brumms feature in their studio.

At the close of the meeting, the hostess, Mrs. Robert Muma, served refreshments.

Charelevoix Area Christian Women to sponsor Womens' Day of Renewal

by FRAN MARTIN

The annual Women's Day of Renewal will be held at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut Ave., Saturday, March 28, under the sponsorship of the Charlevoix Area Christian Women. Mrs. Vernon Mathews, Jr., general chairman of the event, has announced.

The Day of Renewal is scheduled to open at 10 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. with a break at noon for a brown bag lunch, Mrs. Mathews said.

Lynnelle Pierce of Holland, talented gospel recording artist, will be the featured speaker of the Day of Reoewal, appearing at the morning session and again in the closing session.

The afternoon program will feature mini-sessions with three guest speakers, Rev. Jack Paget, former pastor of the Assembly of God Church in Petoskey, Cheryl Simpson of Traverse City and Mrs. Mathews.

Ms. Pierce, who began her singing career at the age of eight on the Children's Bible Hour radio program, is considered one of the most sought after gospel singers today and has been heard from coast to coast.

Lynnelle Pierce

In addition to her singing across the United States, she has toured in Israel, Switzerland and has been heard in radio broadcasts across the iron Curtain.

"Lynnelle communicates the gospel of Christ in a genuine and heartwarming way. We are indeed fortunate to have her in Charlevoix for our Day of Renewal," said Mrs. Mathews.

Speakers at the mini-sessions have selected a variety of themes. Rev. Paget will speak on "Ministering to those in need". He is widely known in the area as the former pastor of the Petoskey church, a position from which he was forced to retire 5½ years ago because of a kidney condition after serving the church for 13 years. Though he has had a kidney transplant and lost both legs as the result of his illness, he organized the Chaplaincy Program at Northern Michigan Hospitals. Despite his handicap, he participated in the Campus Life Jog-Along last fall.

Mrs. Simpson, formerly with the Civil Service Personnel Department of the State of Michigan, is married and the mother of two. Her subject will be "Motherhood, a Challenging Reality." She, with her husband, has led young couples groups; has spoken to various Christian groups throughout the state and has been active in Aglow Fellowship. She is presently leading Bible Study groups in her church and managing the newsletter at the Church of the Living Christ in Traverse City.

"Coping in an Inflated Age" will be Mrs. Mathews' topic at the mini-session. The mother of three who has found time to become an accomplished potter and to author a book she calls "From the Honey and More," Mrs. Mathews is involved with Charlevoix Area Christian Women, has taught Sunday School for high age students and led various Womens' Bible Study Groups. She is presently actively involved in the Community Church of God serving on the Faith Promise Missions Committee and program chairman for the Women of the Church of God. Community-wise, she has served as one of the coordinators of the Bloodmobile here for several years.

Music will again be highlighted during the Day of Renewal with mrs. Roger Ames and Mrs. Patrick Hynes leading a time of corporate singing.

An invitation has been extended to all women in the Charlevoix area to participate in the Day of Renewal.

While in Charlevoix, Ms. Pierce will participate in the 11 a.m. worship service at the Community Church of God and in the 7 p.m. evening service at the Community Reformed Church on Sunday.

Sports

Rayder B-Ball awards given

The Charlevoix Rayder basketball team and the coaching staff met recently at Ricardi's at Eastport for a team dinner according to Coach Dave Moyer.

Following the dinner, awards were presented by Coach Moyer. The awards fell into three categories, those voted by the team members, statistical awards earned by the players during the season and special awards that were "just for fun" awards.

Dave Buday was voted the best defensive player; Buday and Jeff Greene, the hustlers; Gary Drury, the best attitude; Greene, the most improved; Gary Drury, the best offensive player; Larry Lemerand, corn, ball; Jeff and Gary Drury, captains and Jeff Drury, most valuable player.

Statistical awards went to Jeff Drury for having the best field goal percentage; Klooster, most rebounds; Mike Loper, the least turnovers and the least fouls; Gary Drury, most assists, most steals and best scoring average.

Special awards included the following: Ross Carey, "Tufskin"; Jeff Drury, "Money in the Bank"; Gary Drury, "Gym Rat"; Jeff Drury, "Floor Board"; Carey, "Mr. Energy"; Paul Hoffman, "Pre-game Man"; Pat Avery and Joe Smith, team managers, "Brother"; Greene, "Last Bet"; Loper, "Best Dribbling Act" and Klooster, "Nerves of Steel".

Jeff Drury and Paul Hoffman are the only seniors on this season's team.

CREATE YOUR OWN MINIATURE "MAIN STREET" WITH SINGER'S DOLL HOUSE CORRELATES! JUST IN TIME FOR EASTER GIVING

Dollhouse Headboard 4/6 &M+
Doll House Headboard 3/3
Pleasant dreams day and night begin in the Doll House bed of clapboard white trim in Williamsburg yellow with a charming gabled cottage roof. Open shelves hold hours of fun while sliding doors below hide favorite treasures or books to read in bed. Every small detail reflects Singer's ongoing concern for practical day-to-day use in correlated pieces that are scaled to furnish maximum function in today's smaller bedrooms.

Boarding House Chest
30x16x19
The angled roof in the Boarding House Chest is really a drop lid that exposes a laminated writing surface and a partitioned "attic" for storage. On the first two starter, Singer provides the charming illusion of a large raised front porch ... and the practicality of three storage drawers with smooth vinyl wrapped interiors.

Home Sweet Home
Single Dresser Base 40x16x30
Doll Display Mirror 40x11x44
Singer artisans captured the color and texture of wood shingles in real overlays for "Doll House". The Home Sweet Home Single Dresser Base features a roof area with dormer windows covering the entire top drawer. On the first story drawer is an impressive bay window and front door in yellow while above, the Doll Display Mirror provides sparkling displays of favorite dolls, furnishings and accessories.

Obituaries

ROSE JAMES

Funeral services for Mrs. Rose James, 79, who died March 18 at the Beverly Manor Convalescent Home in Petoskey where she had been a patient since October, were held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Rev. Austin Regier of the United Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in Greensky cemetery.

The former Rose Enos was born in Charlevoix December 23, 1902. She had resided here and in Pellston.

She is survived by a son, Thomas Edward James of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Lena Wabanimkee and Ella James of Pellston; eight grandchildren and a sister, Anna Sands, of Charlevoix.

LOUIS W. BOURISSAU

Funeral services for Louis W. Bourissau, 75, who died March 19 at his home here were held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Rev. Walter Hastings of the Community Church of God officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Bourissau was born in Charlevoix on September 15, 1905 and was graduated from Charlevoix High School. On November 27, 1932, he married the former Musa N. Richardson at Charlevoix where they lived until moving to Grand Rapids in 1951. They returned here in 1971.

He is survived by his wife.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

GERALD J. BURKE

Military funeral rites for Gerald J. Burke, 60, who died March 17 at his winter home in Jupiter, Florida, were conducted Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home by Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

B.P.O.E. Lodge No. 2469 held a service at Jupiter on Thursday evening.

Born in Lansing on November 16, 1920, Mr. Burke was married to the former Minnie Brown in Lansing on November 13, 1939. In 1946 they moved to Charlevoix and made their home in Hayes Township where he built and operated a small sawmill. He was a lumber broker until he retired because of failing health. He was a veteran of World War II having served in the U.S. Navy. He was a member of Charlevoix Post No. 1153, V.F.W. and B.P.O.E. Lodge No. 2469 in Jupiter.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Forrest G. of Charlevoix and Dale L. of Traverse City; eight grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Gladys Redman of Jupiter, Fla.; two brothers, Edmund (Don) Burke of Petoskey and Robert Redman of Indian River and three sisters, Mrs. Dorothea Burr of Ferndale, Muriel Burke of Detroit and Mrs. Phyllis VanBruggen of Sheldon, Iowa.

MAUDE SMITH

Funeral services for Mrs. Carl C. (Maude) Smith, 67, who died March 18 at the Munson Medical Center in Traverse City, were held Friday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Rev. Richard Bartlett of the Traverse City Community Church of God officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Paulding, Ohio, March 29, 1913, the former Maude Connin was married January 26, 1932, to Mr. Smith at Paulding where they made their home until moving to Hayes Township north of Charlevoix in 1960. Mr. Smith preceded her in death in 1974. She was employed at American Mold Engineering Co. until she retired in 1964. She was a member of the Petoskey Friendship Center.

She is survived by two sons, George H. of Charlevoix and James I. of Hayes Township; a daughter, Mrs. Elden (Lois A.) Christensen of Greenville; six grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; three brothers, Harry of Paulding, Ohio, and Curtis and Clarence of Fort Wayne, Indiana, and a sister, Mrs. Gretchen Parrish of Traverse City.

The family suggests contributions to the American Cancer Society or the Petoskey Friendship Center.

JOAN BICE

A former resident, Mrs. C.M. (Joan) Bice, 73, died Wednesday at Ormond Beach where she had resided since 1966.

Funeral services and burial will be in the south.

Born in Grand Rapids on Sept. 8, 1907, the former Joan Jurgens was graduated from Eastern Michigan University and the Butterworth Hospital School of Nursing. In 1933 she was married to Cleveland M. (Mike) Bice at East Jordan where she lived until his election as Charlevoix County Prosecutor in the mid-1930s. At that time they moved to Charlevoix and resided here until he retired as an attorney because of failing health. From 1960 until 1965 they divided their time between Charlevoix and Ormond Beach, Fla. Following his death in 1965 she made her home in Ormond Beach.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James (Barbara) Capolongo of Bloomfield Hills and Mrs. Garlyn Parmenter of Mt. Clemens and four grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society or the Humane Society. Mrs. Capolongo's address is 746 Sebago, Bloomfield Hills 48013.

JEWELRY FASHIONS FACTS FICTION

FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT GOLD

Colleen Titsworth
Manager

Do you know why the wedding band is worn on the third finger of the left hand? You might have guessed that wedding rings are almost always made of gold because gold symbolizes a last ing attachment. That attachment was once considered physical as well as symbolic. In olden times it was believed that an artery ran directly from the ring finger to the heart!

If you probably look for the marking 14K when you're buying gold jewelry, but do you know how the term "karat" came to be used to measure gold? Long ago the seeds of the fruit of the carob tree were used to balance scales in Oriental bazaars. Gold and precious gems were placed on one side of the scale and carob fruit seeds were on the other! The word karat is derived from the Italian "carado", the Arabic "qirat" or the Greek "keration." All these terms mean "fruit of the carob tree."

As shocking as measuring gold against carob fruit seeds seems to us now, it made sense at the time. After all, before coins were made barter was the method of trade and commodities were always measured against one another. Cattle, cocoa beans, shells, skins and gold were just a few of the commodities that were traded the way we use money.

Today our method of trade is advanced. We exchange paper money with a universal value for goods and services. But we all know that inflation has dramatically affected the value of the dollar. There is still one commodity whose value is universally acknowledged and ever increasing: gold. You can invest in gold easily by buying Krugerrands or CreditSuisse at your jeweler. Each Krugerrand or Credit Suisse contains one troy ounce of pure gold. These coins and bars are beautiful to look at, easy to store and sell, and you can depend on them no matter what inflation does to the dollar.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

March 16, 1981
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Block. Absent: Councilmember Porter.

The Minutes of the March 2, 1981 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the proposed 1981-82 fiscal year budget. Council discussed cuts in the budget previously agreed to, including eliminating the purchase of new cars for the Police Dept. and a pick up truck for the Sewage Dept. It was also generally agreed not to hire additional personnel or replace those leaving City employment. Don Bentge, a member of the General Public present, presented data showing that the cost of running the City had grown at a rate 2½ times the Consumer Price Index since 1967 and asked Council to consider a substantial budget reduction.

Council tabled appointments to the City Planning Commission until such time as they are able to find a replacement for June Cross who had indicated she would not be interested in serving an additional term if a replacement could be found.

Linda Mason, President of the Retail Merchants Association and Chairman of the Tree Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, asked Council's permission for those groups to plant 25 trees in the City sidewalks downtown. Ms. Mason stated that the program would be entirely funded by the merchants using City labor to score the side walks and remove the concrete. Ivan Whitney, a member of the General Public present, expressed concern regarding the cost of removing the concrete and the problem of snow removal when the trees are in place. Ms. Mason then presented petitions containing the signatures of 311 local residents in favor of the tree program. She also stated that the merchants would each clear their own sidewalks of snow. Councilwoman Roloff recommended that the matter be tabled to allow Council time to study the costs involved. Ms. Mason and several other members of the General Public present urged Council to act on the matter so they could order the trees and receive them in time for Spring planting.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilman Timms to approve the planting of trees in the City sidewalks downtown by the Retail Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce at no expense to the City with reimbursement to the City for any labor or other costs incurred.

Motion was denied by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmember Muma. Nays: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, and Block. Absent: Councilmember Porter.

Moved by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Timms to accept and file the City Planning Commission Minutes dated March 9, 1981 and the Parks and Recreation Commission Minutes dated March 4, 1981.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Block. Nays: None. Absent: Councilmember Porter.

Council tabled a request by Sheldon Barnes for a Fixed Base Operation at the Municipal Airport. The City Manager was directed to contact Mr. Barnes to ask that he be present at the next Commmtee of the Whole meeting for further discussion of the matter.

Several members of the General Public present asked Council to reconsider their decision regarding the planting of trees in the sidewalks downtown.

Moved by Councilwoman Roloff and supported by Councilman Wood that Council reconsidered their previous motion regarding the planting of trees in the downtown area.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, Wood, Muma, and Block. Nays: None. Absent: Councilmember Porter.

Moved by Councilman Muma and supported by Councilwoman Roloff to approve the planting of trees in the City sidewalks downtown by the Retail Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce at no expense to the City with reimbursement to the City for any labor or other costs incurred.

H&R BLOCK TAX TEST
Question No. 4
Medicare 'B' payments made by persons receiving Social Security benefits are deductible.
☐ True ☐ False
For older persons on a fixed income, H&R Block has the right answer to this and other questions regarding special tax credits and deductions for those taxpayers.
If you itemize, the answer is TRUE. Because these payments are simply withheld from benefit checks during the year, they are often overlooked at tax time.

Kappa Sigma holds election of officers for 1981-82 year

Kappa Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority held its election of officers meeting on Monday, March 16, 1981 at the home of Mrs. John Hess. New officers elected for the 1981-82 year are: Jackie Smigiel, president; Kay Beatty, vice-president; Lucille Ingram, recording secretary; Connie Phillips, treasurer; Phyllis Hess, corresponding secretary; Lilly Matye, extension officer.

The new officers will be installed on May 4.

A special program was presented by Thelma Fisher of Sweet Impressions in Petoskey. She demonstrated the art of candy making using various shaped molds and flavors of chocolates and fillings.

Among the candies she made were chocolate covered cherries, peanut butter cups, shamrock mints, Easter bunnies and painted suckers.

Ways and Means Chairwoman Janet Riley detailed plans for a raffle to be held by sorority members as a fund raising project for a local charity. The prizes will be $100, $50 and $25 certificates for goods and services from Phillips Northside Standard Station.

The tickets will be sold by sorority members from this week until the drawing on April 20. Tickets will also be available at Oleson's during the weekend of April 10 and 11.

Mary Lou Smith, Social Committee co-chairman, outlined the social activities for March and April. An informal luncheon is planned for Wednesday, March 25 at 12 noon at the Weathervane. The traditional progessive dinner will be on April 11, details of which will be announced at the next meeting. The annual Founders Day Dinner, which is hosted this year by the two Charlevoix chapters, is to be held on April 27 at Grey Gables.

Special education students receive physicals for Special Olympics

Special education children from the Petoskey Public Schools and the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District received their Special Olympic physicals this past week courtesy of Northern Michigan Hospitals staff volunteers.

Dr. William McCullough and Deanna Beyer, R.N., organized the event that drew children from throughout Charlevoix and Emmet counties. The physicals are a prerequisite to participation in Special Olympic events held through the spring and summer.

This year the track and field regionals will be held in Petoskey at the school stadium on Friday, May 8 and Saturday, May 9. The bowling regional competitions are slated for Traverse City this year. State finals competition is scheduled for June 5 at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant.

Other physicians doanting their time for physicals included: Joanne E. Mertz, M.D., Richard L. Nielsen, M.D., Lars W. Kleppe, M.D., Robert E. Shanahan, M.D., Thomas H. Gietzen, M.D., Robert G. Fawcett, M.D., Daniel J. VerBurg, M.D. and A.J. Hegener, M.D.

They were assisted by K. White, L.P.N., Naomi Harris and the following North Central Michigan College students: Sandy McNutt, Sandy Moran, Carla Lamb, Mary Rowley, Sherri Bradley, Ann Serafin, Sue Miller, Winona Gee, Jill Jordan, Jane Denay, Debbie Keyes, Jan Miller, Pam Bates, Karla Wiggleaworth, Donna Bragenzer and Jona Tobin.

Additional help came from Housekeeping, Purchasing and Laundry departments.

Thomson Understands that inflation has moved you into a tax bracket that's scary... and we want to help.
Inflation has not only eroded purchasing power, but has also pushed people into higher tax brackets. Therefore, it benefits investors to search for investment vehicles that can exempt or defer meaningful portions of earnings from confiscation by tax collectors.
Tax shelter investments can be free from current income and many also give you additional tax write-offs. The test of a good program is whether it makes good sense even without the tax benefit. That's why we rigorously screen grest numbers of tax shelters to find those programs that offer sound investment as well as tax advantages.

Boy Scouts visit Soo

Six members of Boy Scout Troop 11 and Scoutmaster Louis Edwards and Assistant Scoutmaster John Houting spent a recent weekend at the Canadian Soo where they rode the 'snow train', the Algoma Central through the Agawa Canyon.

The Scouts also visited points of interest in the American Soo.

Making the trip were Richard Wurst, Gerry Chase, Jim Smith, Jeff Novotny, Robert Norman and Rick Cosgrove.

Beatty, Varnum throw first hats into District Court judicial ring

Scott Beatty, who has been serving as Charlevoix County Prosecutor since June of 1978, is the first announced candidate for the position of 90th District Judge, from which David W. Fershee is resigning.

"A group of my friends asked me if I was interested in the job, and after discussing the matter with my wife, I decided I was," Beatty said of his candidacy.

"I like what I am doing now, but a change is always challenging," he added.

Beatty came to Charlevoix County from Berrien County, where he was an Assistant Prosecutor. He is a native of Mt. Pleasant and a graduate of Michigan State University and the Wayne State University School of Law.

The new District Judge will be appointed by Governor Milliken upon recommendation of the State and local Bar Associations and local state legislators.

The Courier has also learned that a former prosecutor is also a candidate for the position.

Harvey Varnum of Boyne City, who served as Charlevoix County Prosecutor from January, 1957 to December, 1975, has announced that he, too, will seek the job.

When asked by the Courier why he was interested in becoming District Judge, Varnum said, "I feel my experience of 32 years in civil practice qualifies me to perform the duties of District Judge with ability and to do a good job not only for the judiciary but for my profession and the community."

Varnum first came to Boyne City in 1949, left for a few years, then returned in 1955. He grew up in Highland Park and received bachelor arts and law degrees from the University of Michigan.

He is presently a partner in the law firm of Conklr, Varnum & McTaggart in Boyne City.

Freedman Artcraft sold to Grand Haven display manufacturer

Harbor Industries, Inc. of Grand Haven, designer and manufacturer of point-of-purchase displays for many of the nation's leading manufacturers, has acquired Freedman Artcraft, Inc., Charlevoix and Los Angeles, from Windsor Communications Group, Inc. of West Chester, Pennsylvania.

The joint announcement was made this week by Ted Parker, President of Harbor, and C. Charles Smith, president of Windsor Communications.

Freedman operates plants in both Charlevoix and Los Angeles. Parker said both plants will remain in operation.

The acquisition will double Harbor's sales and manufacturing-warehouse space, according to Parker. It will make Harbor one of the country's largest dispaly manufacturers with in-house design and manufacturing capabilities.

Harbor facilities in Grand Haven use more than 200,000 square feet for manufacturing and warehousing.

The Chvrlevoix plant has 155,000 square feet and the Los Angeles plant 40,000. In full production, Harbor employs 175 workers, Freedman approximately the same. Total employment of the three plants is anticipated to be 300 to 350, said Parker.

No immediate changes at the Freedman plant in Charlevoix are contemplated, said Parker, with the exception that the design and sales staffs are to be substantially increased.

He added that another reason for the acquisition was to to increase Harbge's production and distribution. The point-of-purchase display field is a growing industry, particularly in the California and Sun Belt areas.

"We have been considering a West Coast operation for some time and this acquisition enables us to accomplish our goals in a shorter time frame. Freedman is one of the country's outstanding fixture and display houses," Parker said, "and because the two companies' production capabilities are compatible, we need make few changes to use the Freedman plants for serving our customers more efficiently."

With the purchase, Harbor, which serves the greeting card, appliance, soft goods and paint industries, will assume a strong base in the record and tape marchandising industry. Freedman now enjoys the bulk of display business in that field.

Both Harbor and Freedman have been designing and building displays since 1946. Current customers include such manufacturers as General Electric, Oneida, Norcross-Rust Craft Greeting Cards, Adolph-Coors, Glidden, Texas Instruments, Coca Cola, Anheuser-Busch, Sherwin Williams, Weyerhauser, Gibson Greeting Cards and Whitman Chocolates.

Hayes tabbed by state Reagan man for U.S. attorney post in Detroit

Roy C. Hayes, 40, former Charlevoix County prosecutor and presently a practicing attorney in Charlevoix, has been named as the most probable choice to become the U.S. attorney for Eastern Michigan.

Hayes' name was submitted to the Reagan administration for approval last week by John R. Gnau, Jr., of Oakland who is one of President Reagan's laisons in the state.

A close association with the 1980 Reagan presidential campaign reportedly put Hayes in good stead with the White House. Efforts are being made by the administration to fill as many appointive posts as possible with Republicans who backed Reagan during the campaign and who are close to the president philosophically.

Hayes served Charlevoix County prosecutor from the time of his appointment in 1976 to 1979. Previously, he was an assistant prosecuting attorney in Wayne County and was instrumental in forming the Wayne County Organized Crime Task Force in 1970. Hayes was director of the Task Force for five years.

A strong Republican party supporter, Hayes represented Charlevoix County at the State Republican Convention in 1978 and was a vigorous Reagan campaigner in last fall's election. Hayes graduated from Notre Dame University and obtained his law degree from the University of Detroit Law School

Hayes has indicted that, if appointed U.S. attorney, he will move to the Detroit area for the duration of his term and most likely will return to Charlevoix upon its completion.

What DO we do in case of a nuclear emergency?

by DAVE KNIGHT

Recent controversy has arisen over an informational pamphlet being distributed in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties that explains the emergency operations plans for the two counties and addresses in particular the possibility of a nuclear accident at the Consumers Power Big Rock plant. To aid in the dissemination of accurate information to area residents, the following is a further explanation of the emergency planning that has been done in regard to a nuclear accident at Big Rock.

In its almost twenty years of operation, the Big Rock nuclear power plant has never experienced an accident that posed a danger to area residents. This fact is one that plant officials are quick to point out.

Its clean record and the relatively small amount (compared to other larger plants) of radioactive material it uses are thus cited in assessing the chances of a dangerous release of radiological material into the atmosphere.

The chances, say plant officials, are extremely remote.

For a recent test of on-site emergency procedures, Big Rock contracted a special consultant to design a practical scenario that would simulate a plant accident. Says Charles Axtell, health officer at the plant, "We have so many back-up systems, we could not devise a scenario ourselves that would realistically result in a serious accident."

Nonetheless, the consultant, with the aid of a computer, created such a scenario. Though it required a complex chain of events, comprehendable only in technical terminology, the assumption is that it could happen.

And on that assumption is based the need for a comprehensive emergency plan for the residents of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Such a plan was many months in development by the counties' offices emergency services offices, plant personnel, state and federal officials. The 1979 accident at Three Mile Island prompted the federal government to require all states to institute or update their emergency preparedness plans.

On June 24, 1980, the Charlevoix-Emmet plan was given a dry run and became one of the first of its kind in the nation to receive full endorsement by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Phone calls come first

So how does it work?

Any release of radiological material from Big Rock would be immediately evident to the operations department of the plant through extensive monitoring equipment at several points in and around the plant and the grounds.

The first individuals to note the release would then immediately notify their shift supervisor who is responsible for categorizing the incident in one of four classes. In order of severity, those classifications are, "unusual event" (least severe), "site alert", "site emergency" and "general emergency" (most severe).

In the case of a typical general emergency scenario, the supposition is that radiological material has been released and a potential danger exists to area residents.

Extensive manuals have been prepared to deal with almost every conceivable type of incident that could occur at the plant. Within them are step-by-step procedural instructions and the first procedures in the case of a major accident are a series of phone calls.

The first calls are made by the Senior Man on Site, (SS), who is the first person notified by the shift supervisor who has evaluated and classified the incident.

In the event of a general emergency, the SS has 15 minutes, as specified in the plan, to make his first series of calls. Those calls are to the sheriff's departments of both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, the State Police headquarters in Petoskey, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission regional office in Chicago and to Consumers Power corporate headquarters in Jackson.

Following those initial calls, another series of calls is designated to be made within the hour and further calls later on. At the plant itself, a siren announces a general emergency. When it sounds, all plant personnel including office workers, security force and anyone else on the site go to prespecified locations where they await further instructions.

Meanwhile, the shift technical adviser begins his advisement on how to safely shut down the reactor.

Technical personnel will also be immediately sent into the field to monitor the release. Thermo luminescent devices (TLDs) are located in several spots around the county. The TLDs are similar to the ones worn at all times by plant employees and are literally nailed to trees all around the county.

In case of evacuation

As readings from the TLDs are called in and further information is gleaned from on-site sources, the plant supervisor will consider a possible evacuation recommendation.

Nobody from the plant can order people living in the area to evacuate. That order must come from the sheriff's department in case of an extremely fast-developing situation. Most likely, it would come from state officials as they assume authority on the scene.

The chances of a mass evacuation, that is, involving residents of the cities proper of Charlevoix or Petoskey, are small. At a capacity of less than 350 megawatts, Big Rock is much smaller than most nuclear plants and the plume of a radiological release would most likely not travel far enough and in strong enough concentrations to be a life threatening dose of radiation to most of the county.

A "plume exposure emergency planning area" has been established downwind and within five miles of the plant. This pie-shaped sector fanning out southeasterly from Big Rock Point is the major focus for evacuation procedures. It includes parts of Hayes and Charlevoix Townships in Charlevoix County, part of the City of Charlevoix and parts of Resort Township in Emmet County.

EOCs established

By the time an order to evacuate would come, each county would be in the process of assembling their respective Emergency Operating Centers (EOCs) under the direction of Emergency Services Directors Earl Muma in Charlevoix County and John Theisen in Emmet County.

The EOC, for instance, in Charlevoix County would be located at the Sheriff's Department in the large room adjacent to Muma's office. There are 13 members of the EOC staff that would be summoned including such personnel as the county road commissioner, public health officer, a damage assessor, fire chief, police chief, school official, chairman of the county board of supervisors, a Consumers Power spokesman, social services representative, state laison and public information officer. Within the EOC are direct telephone lines to the plant and to state officials.

If an evacuation order is issued, the Sheriff's Department would be assisted by a volunteer force of personnel from the Coast Guard, Bayshore Air Force base, township firemen and city firemen who would notify area residents door to door. Though telephone numbers are kept up to date for the residences that would be affected, the door-to-door method will be used regardless to make sure people are notified of a potential danger.

Listen to radio or TV

Naturally, the broadcast media will be an important tool in an evacuation or lesser situation. Local stations on which information will be broadcast include radio stations WJML in Petoskey (24 hours), WVOY, WKHQ-FM in Charlevoix (24 hours) and WCLX-FM (5:30 a.m. to 11 p.m.) in Boyne City. Television stations WWTV-WWUP Cadillac, Traverse City and Sault St Marie and WPBN in Traverse City will also carry information.

At least six schools are within a five-mile radius of the plant including all those in Charlevoix. In the event of an evacuation, parents are instructed to let school officials handle the evacuation of the students. Students will be transported in school buses to the East Jordan High School where parents may then pick them up.

The elderly and physically handicapped will be evacuated by a special team to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility for temporary shelter.

Charlevoix County reception centers and shelters for those involved in an evacuation are located in the Ellsworth, Boyne City and East Jordan schools. It is expected that the schools will provide more than adequate space for temporary shelter since most evacuating residents would leave the county to stay with friends or relatives elsewhere.

The duration of the contamination could last anywhere from hours to days depending on climatic conditions and the extent of the release from the plant.

Universal Awareness series set

The Universal Center of Awareness, in Boyne City, announces a series of four to six weekly seminars beginning Monday, April 6.

The seminars will be held at the home of Pastor Kathleen Smith, 1000 Second Street, Boyne City, and will cover such subject matter as "Spiritual Health", "Mediumship", and "Comparative Religions".

A minimum donation will be requested for each seminar. Further information may be obtained from the Pastor at 582-2576.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This one-room school house was located in the lumbering community of Phelps, which will be the subject of the meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society on April 7. The above photo was taken in 1941, several years before a fire razed the building. (Photo courtesy of the Stevens family.)

Phelps to be topic at Historical Society

Members and friends of the Charlevoix Historical Society will hear a program about the old lumbering community of Phelps at their next meeting.

Charlie Stevens will relate some stories about activities during the lumbering days around this Marion Township crossroads village.

The meeting will also provide the public an opportunity to view the progress of the Harsha House Museum and to discuss plans for summer meetings.

The meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, April 7, at 8 p.m. in the Harsha House, 103 State Street.

Achievement Day will be spring highlight

4-H Notes by Program Assistant Leah Green

Question! What are many Charlevoix County 4-H youngsters looking forward to almost as much as they did Spring Break? Summer vacation? Well, yes. A birthday? Maybe. Spring Achievement Day at Whiting Park? Yes!

And why not? After devoting much time over the winter to learning new skills and refining others, the day will soon be here to display the results. On April 11, they will come to the park with cookies they have prepared and skirts they have sewn. They will bring examples of needlepoint and Christmas decorations. Some may come prepared to tell or show what they have learned by doing a demonstration on horse care or giving a short talk on feeding a steer. Young people 12 and older who are developing leadership by sharing the responsibility for their club with an adult will be interviewed about that activity.

The public is cordially invited to the park to view the projects completed by Charlevoix County 4-H members. Those planning to attend will be able to have a light meal at the park kitchen as well as viewing the program.

Even a project such as baking cookies is more beneficial than it might appear. In working on the project, the individual learns more about the science of food, what happens chemically when certain ingredients are mixed together, how specific kinds of dough or batter act and how they should be handled. The finished product, the cookies, stand for dedication by the child and leader and for the fellowship within the club. When they are brought to Achievement Day for evaluation, they represent effort and pride of accomplishment.

When a member has been checked in at Achievement Day, he will next go to an evaluator. They will spend a few minutes talking about the project. The evaluator will ask some questions and inspect the project. If it is food, the evaluator will taste it, note the texture and general quality. In the case of sewn articles, seams, hems, etc. will be inspected. If the 4-Her has chosen to speak or show how to do something, both the information and the delivery will be noted. The evaluator may offer some suggestions for improvement. Each child is judged solely on his own merits based on years spent in the 4-H project and age.

Evaluators are members of the community who volunteer their time for Achievement Day. They and their generosity are vital parts of the event and the Charlevoix County 4-H appreciates their efforts greatly.

Other things besides evaluation will happen on Achievment Day. White ribbons for participation in the event will be given, red second and blue first place ribbons will be awarded to the projects. Special gold ribbons will be awarded for best of category, entering the most projects and winning the most blue ribbons. Those showing at this event qualify for their 4-H numbered year pin.

For some 4-H members the high point of Achievment Day will come in the evening. That program will feature a style show in which the members are evaluated on modeling skills. Most will display garments or accessories they have made. During the program other projects from the afternoon's evaluation will be specially shown and several awards of money toward future 4-H events will be presented.

The Achievement Day schedule is as follows: 1 p.m., evaluation of 4-H members' winter projects; 4 p.m., displays open to the public for viewing, Sloppy Joes, dessert and beverage available; 7 p.m., evening program of style show and special awards.

FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT GOLD

We've all heard of the '49'ers, men who were drawn to the Sierra Nevada in California in search of gold. But did you know that there were 40,000 '49'ers and that some of them came from as far away as China, Australia, and Europe? In just two years, from 1848 to 1851, the '49'ers extracted two and a half million ounces of gold.

One '49'er who didn't strike gold in California was an Australian named Edward Hargreaves. But Edward Hargreaves was a man of determination. He returned to his homeland undaunted and looked for gold there. In 1851 he found it and changed the course of Australian history. Can you imagine the impact on that island when, due to Hargreaves' gold find, the population tripled in ten years? There were only 400,000 people in Australia in 1851, but by 1861 there were 1,200,000.

The call of a gold rush is powerful and attracts many more people than can strike it rich. In 1896 the dream of striking gold drew men into conditions as bad as the frozen wastelands of the Klondike in Alaska. But did you know that out of the 80,000 man who braved it in the Klondike, only 4,000 found gold?

The desire to own gold is always strong. Thousands of individuals across the country buy Krugerrands and Credit Suisse from their local jewelers. These coins and bars contain one troy ounce of gold each, are beautiful to look at or wear, as well as being a good investment.

Gold seekers today face different problems from those of the gold diggers in the 1800's. But mining this precious metal is still a high risk, high reward proposition. Not only does starting a new gold mine require one hundred to three hundred million dollars, but two and a half to three tons of ore have to be mined in order to extract just one ounce of gold!

St. James, Peaine, Norwood Townships hold annual meetings; set 1981-82 budgets

by FRAN MARTIN

St. James and Peaine Townships on Beaver Island and Norwood Township in the southwestern corner of Charlevoix County were among those townships that held their annual meetings Saturday.

In the western section of the county, Eveline Township is scheduled to meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday and Hayes Township on April 4.

The Beaver Island townships, in addition to the 1.0 mill allocated by the county, have voted millages of 4.0 mills for operational costs giving each revenue from a total of 5.0 mills plus monies from other sources with which to operate.

In addition, each levies millages earmarked for special usage including 2.0 mills for the operation of the airport, 1.0 mill each for the operation of a sanitary landfill shared by both townships and a fire department that serves both townships. Peaine Township levies 2.0 mills for roads and St. James Township 1.0 for that purpose. St. James has a .2.0 mill voted for a township hall. Each also levied .92 mill for the retirement of the airport bonds.

According to Vivian Visscher, township clerk, residents of St. James Township approved a tentative budget of $41,096 with anticipated revenue in the same amount. This does not include Federal Revenue Sharing, an anticipated $9,440, which is earmarked for development of a fire department that includes a fire hall.

In addition to underwriting the cost of operating the township, the board proposes to utilize some of the funds for the purchase of land adjacent to the proposed site of the fire station.

"We're putting every penny on hand into what you might call a sinking fund for fire protection. This means the construction of a firehall to which each of the two townsbips has pledged approximately $20,000," Mrs. Visscher said. Each township also contributes to the cost of operating the island's Medical Center in St. James proper.

Monies realized from other voted millages are already earmarked. The townships share equally in underwriting the cost of operating the airport. This includes the salary of the manager, maintenance of the facility and its operation. The cost of operating and maintaining the fire department is also equally shared as is the sanitary landfill for which they hope to hire a manager this year.

In addition to expending monies for chloride for dust control on the roads of St. James Township, plans call for improvement of the Donegal Bay Road and Front St. along the bay at St. James which comprises the business district.

In Peaine Township, a tentative budget of $41,000 was approved. It will be supported by revenues of $33,000 from allocated and voted millages and other sources plus $8,000 on hand.

The general fund will finance salaries, insurance, Medical Center ($3,000), assessor ($5,000) plus the fire department building fund, ($14,000) which is part of the township's pledge of $20,000 toward the cost of a new fire hall.

Peaine Township plans to use its anticipated $3,500 from Federal Revenue Sharing thusly: $1,000 to the fire department, $750 for zoning, $400 planning commission and the remainder in a contingency fund. The township will utilize its road millage to purchase $8,000 worth of chloride, $3,000 for road improvement, $500 to the road fund and $1,400 to the road contingency fund. The landfill millage will be combined with that from St. James to underwrite the cost of this facility. Remaining fonds will be put in a contingency fund.

The 2.0 mills St. James Township voted for its township hall will be used to renovate and maintain the former Coast Guard building, purchased for use as a township hall.

St. James Township will apply $8,700 on hand from fire protection millage for the past two years and $7,800 from this year's general fund toward the realization of a new fire station, Mrs. Visscher added.

Anticipated revenue in Norwood Township is approximately $37,000 and its budget $36,500.

Anticipated funds from Federal Revenue Sharing will be $2,100 which, combined with $990 on hand, will be used for township roads. This will include repairs, brining, ditching and culverts. Of the anticipated revenue from millage and other sources, another $20,000 is earmarked for roads. However, at this time no decision has been made about the roads that will receive attention.

Other anticipated expenditures include $5,400 for the township board: supervisor, $1,085; assessor, $1,900; clerk, $1,650; treasurer, $1,725; board of review, $285; zoning administrator, $110; township hall, $600; street lights, $380; cemetery, $200; township park, $200; zoning board, $740; insurance and bonds, $1,700.

Entries sought for first annual Virginia M. McCune art exhibtion

A call for entries has been issued for the First Annual Juried Exhibition at the Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center to be held May 1 through May 29 at the center in Petoskey.

All artists living in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet Counties are eligible to enter. Works must be original and independently executed without professional instruction.

Juror for the exhibition will be Dennis R. Bodem, director of the Jesse Besser Museum in Alpena. Sales will be handled by the Art Center for the artists. The center will charge a 20 percent commission on sold works. All works sold may be picked up by the purchaser from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 29 through June 5 upon receipt of the sale price and the purchaser's copy of the purchasing aggreement.

Awards include the Virginia M. McCune Purchase Prize for best in show; First Prize is $300, Second Prize, $200 and Third Prize, $100. Honorable Mention ribbons will be given for each category.

There is a $5 entry fee which is non-refundable if the work is accepted into the show.

Each artist may submit for jurying a maximum of three works. They are to be delivered to the Arts Center at 461 E. Mitchell in Petoskey between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., April 8 through April 22. No work will be accepted after 5 p.m. April 22.

Moerland to head EDC Commission

Lee Moerland of Charlevoix was appointed temporary chairman of the newly-formed Charlevoix County Economic Development Commission (EDC) last week.

The appointment was made by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, who also named eight other persons to the EDC:

Charles B. Sherk, East Jordan, one year; James Hater, Charlevoix, two years; Art Rouse, Boyne City, three years; Oscar W. Ward, Charlevoix, four years; Dennis Jason, East Jordan, five years; Ray Towne, Boyne City, six years, Donald Voisin, Charlevoix, six years, and Casimir Totos, Boyne City, six years.

Moerland's appointment to the EDC is also for a six-year term.

It's maple syrup time on Charlevoix's north side again as these buckets collecting sap along Meech Street show. Excellent weather conditions of cold nights and warm days have resulted in a large amount of sap collected by the Kiwanis Foundation for their annual maple syrup canning project. The Sugar Shack, located behind Carlson Ave., has been in full production, with steam billowing almost every day, for the past week.

County board members honored

Four members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners were recently awarded ten-year membership Service Awards by the Michigan Association of Counties.

The awards were given to Lee Moerland of Charlevoix, Delbert Ingalls of South Arm Township, Clyde Cunningham of Marion Township, and Ira L. Davis of Bay Township.

All four are original members of the Board of Commissioners, which replaced the old Board of Supervisors following county re-organization in 1968.

Probate, Small Claims are most accessible courts

By PEG OHLE

The average citizen usually thinks of the Courts as a place to bring criminals to justice. The truth is that they offer many services to the general public at a nominal cost.

Judge Murphy's Probate Court is one example. Anyone desiring a form for writing his will may obtain one in Probate Court, although employees of the Court do not assist people in making out wills.

"We keep these forms just for simple estates," says Probate Register Sally Taber. "Anyone with a complicated estate should not make out his own will. He should hire an attorney." The Probate Register also suggests that all wills be filed in Probate Court for safe-keeping. The fee is $5.

Other forms available in Probate Court include those for guardianship of legally incapacitated or developmentally disabled persons. Such guardianship cases can be handled directly through Probate Court offices, as can the guardianship of minors.

Any interested person may now petition in Probate Court for an independent probate of an estate. The Probate Court Register may make the appointment of an independent personal presentative of the deceased if there is no objection by the heirs, and that representative may handle the estate as if it is his own property.

"This appointment can be made in a day," Mrs. Taber points out. "Otherwise, if it is done through the Court process, it takes weeks or months." Here, again, it is emphasized that such a procedure should be followed only in simple probate cases. If the estate is complicted, it should be handled through an attorney.

Step-parent adoptions may be handled through the offices of Probate Court, but other adoptions are handled by regular adoption agencies.

All mental cases go through Probate Court, to which any interested person may petition to have a mental case committed if it is called for.

Another little known service of Probate Court "is the "Emancipation of minors", by which parents release their parental rights by written instrument or other conduct.

All of these services rendered through the Probate Court offices are for simple procedures. When procedures are complicated, they should be handled by an attorney.

Sample costs of Probate Court office procedures include step-parent adoptions, $37 per child; admitting a will to probate by a personal representative, $10 plus another $10 to determine heirs; and change of name filing fee, $23.

Over in District Court there is a service called the "Small Claims Court". If someone owes you less than $600 and you haven't been able to collect it, this may be the answer.

The procedure is simple, beginning with the plaintiff (the person suing) filling out an Affidavit of Claim form, which tells the defendent (the person being sued) the basis for the suit and the amount claimed.

The form also tells the names of the persons involved, their addresses, makes a brief statement of the claim, and provides information for both parties about the date for the court hearing.

While the Small Claims Court operates much the same as any court, there are some differences. The plaintiff must give up his right to an attorney, the right to an appeal, and the right to a jury trial.

A charge of $5 is made for filing the suit, plus a $2.20 charge for each defendent to whom a copy of the claim is mailed, and a judgement fee of $1. Fees of process servers are based on the number of miles travelled, and each garnishment, writ of execution, or attachment costs $2.

If the plaintiff wins his case, then the costs are assessed against the defendant. They may include fees for witnesses the plaintiff has subpoened. If the judge enters a judgment of "no cause of action", which would mean the plaintiff has lost the case and the defendant has won, the court usually assesses the deffendant's costs against the plaintiff.

The Court warns would-be plaintiffs that when they start a suit, they may not win, and even if they do win, they may not be able to collect anything.

The fact that costs are assessed against a losing party does not necessarily mean that the costs are going to be paid because "it is impossible to get money out of some people for any reason."

The whole procedure of using the Small Claims Court is available in step-by-step form in the offices of Judge Fershee's District Court Court Administrator Pat Conkle or any other staff member will be glad to help.

Knight on the Town

All in a day's work

by Dave Knight

"One tough bugger."

That's how DNR Regional Law Enforcement Director Ned Curtis describes Conservation Officer Michael Mol following a March 26 incident on Houghton Lake in which one man drowned and one was rescued after running their snowmobile into open water.

Mol, 26, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mol of Charlevoix, is a 1972 graduate of Charlevoix High School, a 1978 graduate in Criminal Justice from Lake Superior State College and a five-year veteran of the DNR Law Enforcement division.

A dense fog enshrouded Houghton Lake last Thursday afternoon limiting visibility to no more than 50 feet. With not a whisper of wind in the air, the fog hugged the ice creating an undisturbed panorama of milky whiteness from the shore.

That's why, when the faint sounds of someone shouting in the distance were heard by some people along the shore at about 3 p.m., they had no idea from whom or from where the shouts were coming.

What the fog had prevented them from seeing was a man bobbing in open water almost three quarters of a mile offshore. Moments earlier, he and his uncle had been ice fishing without much success. The two decided to move to a different spot and started up their snowmobile.

As they shot across the unpredictable sprung ice of Houghton Lake in the soupy fog, they could not see a patch of open water ahead of them quickly enough to stop.

Heavy clothing is a must for ice fishing but it can be a fatal curse for a thrashing victim in near freezing water. The uncle struggled for about ten minutes before disappearing.

After about 20 minutes of struggling himself, the younger victim realized that the weight of his boots were his biggest hindrance so he managed to get them off and drag himself onto the ice.

In a fit of desperation, he began running and fell through the ice again. Again he pulled himself up. He started walking more carefully toward what he thought was shore but went through again, though only to his waist.

It was obviously futile to chance walking any further so he sat down and yelled louder for help.

Mike Mol and his partner Darrel Jones heard the call to the State Police on their car radio shortly after 3:00 p.m. and arrived at the scene almost simultaneously with the State Police unit.

They could hear the yelling and surmised that someone was in the water though they could still see nothing in the fog.

At the lake access point to which Mol and the others had been directed, there was a rack of 14-foot aluminum boats stored for the winter by a local resort. Knowing the short time any man can survive after going through the ice, Mol immediately got two other men to help him lift a boat off the rack.

They started pushing it out onto the frozen lake but got only 300 yards before falling through themselves. Mol and foreman Charles Wycoff of the Nakomis Correction Camp across the lake, who had happened onto the scene, would try to drag the boat along the ice but time after time the honeycombed ice would give way and they would find themselves in water up to their shoulders hanging by the transom.

Mol said he went into the water at least seven or eight times.

They were not getting anywhere so they headed back to shore. In the meantime, a radio call had gone out for snowshoes and life jackets and a motor was brought for the boat. Exhausted and completely soaked, Mol and the others mounted the outboard and started out again toward the shouting.

It was not much help, but when the motor finally started, it did make it easier to drive the boat up onto the ice. Each time the boat made a thrust onto the ice one of the rescuers would move to the bow and the weight would break through. They progressed at the painstaking rate of three or four feet at a time.

Finally, an hour and a half after arriving at the scene, the rescuers spied the victim on the ice and made their way close enough to throw him a life jacket on a line. They dragged him across the ice, hauled him into the boat and started back.

It took another 45 minutes to make it to shore because the extra weight in the boat required them to break ice in spots they had dragged across on the way out. By the time the victim, Mol and Wycoff were helped into a waiting ambulance, daylight was waning.

Mike Mol and Charles Wycoff were warmed up, examined and released from Mercy Hospital in Grayling that evening. The victim was last reported to be in good condition with possible frostbite of the feet. His survival, according to DNR officials and those at the scene, is a direct result of the actions of Mol and the other rescuers.

Said Curtis, Mol's superior, "I'm not surprised at what Mike did at all because he is a helluva fine conservation officer and we are very proud to have him."

"They inched their way to the victim on the shear determination, courage and guts of Mike Mol," he added.

Mol's partner Jones agreed saying, "Those guys (in the boat) were in a pure state of exhaustion when they got back to shore. It was incredible. I have never seen anyone so exhausted - not even an Olympic decathalon star."

"Mike was the organizer," said Jones who coordinated efforts from the edge of the bad ice near shore, "He got things going. His effort was remarkable."

Attempts by the Courier to reach Mol the day after the incident were slightly delayed; he was back out on patrol.

Spring arrives on Clock porch

by Bob Clock

WHILE MOST Charlevoixans equate the arrival of spring with the first robin, the first crucus, the re-opening of the Dairy Queen, the first power-mower to shatter the tranquility of the neighborhood, or the first trip of the Medusa Challenger, the Clock household has a different harbinger.

Spring does not arrive officially at 207 E. Dixon until it is warm enough to clean the back porch and have lunch out there.

This happened Sunday — the earliest date on record for the arrival of spring.

Cleaning of the back porch is never planned in advance, because you never know when it will be warm enough. But Sunday morning I glanced through the kitchen window at the winter's accumulation of pop bottles, pickle jars, newspapers, magazines and assorted skis, poles and ice skates and decided porch-cleaning day had arrived.

The first chore was to remove the heavy storm door by the hinges and lug it down the basement for summer storage. Then I packed up with empty pop bottles and beer cans for the grocery store, assembled all of the loose debris in plastic garbage bags, and called the kids to pick up their gear.

Then I mopped the floor with Pine Sol — the essence of spring — while Judy washed the curtains.

When the floor was done we tackled the windows. The kids even helped, because they like to scale ladders and scramble around the shed roof like chipmunks.

By lunchtime, the little room was ready for summer occupancy.

I am not suffering under any delusions that it will be used continuously from now until October. Charlevoix weather isn't like that. We still could have a blizzard or two and lots of other inclement weather before it warms up for good.

Several years ago we "did" the back porch on Easter Sunday when the temperature jumped to 80 degrees. Then it got so cold on one ventured out there for two months.

Normally we don't even think about cleaning the porch until the middle of May. But 1981 has been a strange year by most standards. And we could have a blistering hot summer if we don't watch our step.

I READ WITH dismay in the Detroit Free Press Sunday about the mass exodus of Michiganders to the Sun Belt states in search of employment.

The big move speaks well of our resourcefulness, but it will constitute a colossal drain on our human resources if Michigan's economy ever rebounds. How will we ever meet our housing needs, for example, if all of our skilled carpenters are wearing cowboy boots and ten-gallon hats?

One of the most interesting statistics in the article had to do with newspapers. At the Little Professor Bookstore on Michigan Avenue in Dearborn, the biggest selling Sunday newspaper is not the Free Press or even the Detroit News. It is the Houston Sunday Chronicle, which is jammed with "help wanted" ads.

The store sells 825 copies of the Chronicle every Sunday, compared to 400 copies of the Free Press and 450 copies of the News.

Add to the out-of-town figure 325 copies of the Dallas Morning News and 120 copies of the San Antonio paper and you get a fresh and frightening picture of Michigan's dismal employment situation.

Out of the Blue

There are no two ways about it;
No ifs ands or buts--
If you're gonna cut the budget,
You gotta budget some cuts.

Again the mourning, again the shame

How loud is a .22 caliber pistol?

Loud enough to be fired in Washington and heard distinctly in Charlevoix and throughout the land.

In fact, the five shots fired Monday afternoon outside a Washington hotel will unfortunately be heard just as clearly overseas.

President Ronald Reagan and three courageous men lie wounded, felled by an attempted assassin. Now, as a nation, we collectively enter the confessional once more to agonize over our sins and contemplate what defect in our society permits such atrocities.

It is almost a wearisome mourning this time, similar to that felt by survivors of a long, long war. When will it end?

As in the confessional, there are no answers; only penance.

Letters: Can you help?

Dear Editor and Citizens of Charlevoix County:

This week I had the pleasure and opportunity to visit the East Jordan Senior Citizens Center to speak to the Senior Citizens about Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Charlevoix County, Inc. What a great experience and what wonderful people!

After talking to them about the functions and aims of the Big Brothers-Big Sisters organizaiion, we had a question and answer period.

These people are so interested in others yet some of their own needs are so great.

One person whose spouse is in a county home - after paying the county for the spouse's care, lives on $3,000 per year. I doubt if many people this day and age can survive on $3,000 per year totally!

Luckily there is a place to eat for 60 cents for one meal a day - like the East Jordan Senior Citizens Center and other Senior Citizens Centers in the county. Dorothy Pelton and her staff deserve a lot of credit for all the work performed each day. They have had at least $9,500 cut already from their budget. So many organizations like the Senior Citizens and Big Brothers-Big Sisters organization have had their budgets cut. Both organizations perform so many needed assistances with such a limited budget.

Have you looked around you? I know times are hard and the economy tight - but look around - can you help? Do you have an older mother, father, aunt, uncle, grandparent, friend that needs a smile, a little love, some assistance somehow? Do you have a spare hour to help a child? Help them to smile and be happy? Do you have a spare "buck" that you could have blown for an evening out?

I realize a few bucks won't replace all the thousands of dollars cut from these nonprofit organizations' budgets - but it might help a little bit - some from each of you. In person or financially. Who knows, some day you may need help, too!

USDA loans to help elec. co-ops

Several Northern Michigan counties will benefit from a U.S. Department of Agriculture loan guarantee to the Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative according to Congressman Bob Davis.

Under the Rural Electrification Administration in the Department of Agriculture,loan guarantees are made to local electric cooperatives.

This action will provide $9,034,000 in loan guarantees to the Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative to finance the purchase of power from Consumers Power Company.

The Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative serves Alpena, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Montmorency, Otsego and Presque Isle counties.

The luncheon, featuring a wide variety of homemade salads, casseroles, rolls, desserts and a choice of beverage will be served from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Tickets are $2.25.

Assisting the youth of the church will be Mrs. David Juilleret and Mrs. Howard Campbell, kitchen chairpersons and Mrs. Kenneth Boss and Mrs. Betty Inman who will be in charge of the dining room.

Funds derived from the event will be used to finance attendance at the annual youth convention.

Charlevoix Outdoors...

A smelting we will go...!

...by Barford

A good definition of patience? How about watching a drive-in movie with seven kids in the station wagon. Or waiting for the Pistons to win their division.

My definition of true patience is cleaning a few hundred skinny little fish not much longer than your hand. That takes patience. It also takes a special sense of enjoyment found only among smelt dippers.

With patience and hip waders that don't leak (the other single most important requirement in cold, spring runoff water) Michiganders will soon be heading to the many Great Lakes tributaries for the annual smelt spawning runs.

Running will start when the water temperature edges past the 40 degree mark. In the Lower Peninsula, action lasts from mid to late April while on the U.P., mid-April to early May is the traditional season.

Among the ranks of anglers, the smelt dipper is a different breed of catfish. He spurns the sophisticated, automated and increasingly expensive gear needed for other locally popular game species such as the lake trout and salmons. No boat, no trailer, no depth finder, no trolling rig; not even a tackle box needed for this bargain basement version of the American Sportsman.

Waders, dip net and plenty of buckets are all the smelt dipper needs for a successful outing. You won't find any smelt dippers pictured in the L.L. Beancatalogue.

He leads a normal life eleven months of the year but come April, the smelt dipper undergoes a subtle change. He feels within him a migratory urge of sorts that prompts him to gather with others of his kind and make the yearly trek to his favorite coastal creek.

He becomes a nocturnal creature for the duration of the trip, sleeping and playing cards through the daylight hours. It is long after the sun disappears, when the sky is black as the coffee in his Thermos and his breath billows in the crisp spring air that the smelt dipper heads for the water. When the chaotic smelt runs are heaviest, they can sometimes be harvested successfully in the daylight hours but the best time is from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m.

When the run starts, the word spreads upstream and the action starts. Shoveling fish with a dip net from water to bucket may not involve as much finesse as, say, casting a dry fly under a branch and between two stumps but, since it's pitch dark, who is watching anyway?

The object, simply put, is to fill the freezer with fish and when the smelt are really running, it doesn't take long before the buckets are overflowing with the shimmering, writhing catch.

Then comes the fun part. Cleaning smelt is akin to working on an assembly line. The routine becomes mechanical after the first hundred or so and before long, one feels much like a robot. Many experienced smelt cleaners prefer to use a sharp pair of scissors to clip off the heads and tails and make a neat ventral cut. A simple run of the finger through the cavity finishes the job. The diminutive smelt is too small and hard to handle for a knife; plus, with hundreds of fish to clean, one gets working pretty fast and, sooner or later, perhaps a little careless. That's no time to be handling a sharp knife with slippery fingers.

Although there are literally hundreds of creeks, ditches and rivers in the state into which the smelt will come to spawn, only 45 or so can be classified as real hotspots. The Automobile Club of Michigan has put together a handy map pinpointing those spots.

Most of the action is on the Lake Huron coast but two spots fairly close to Charlevoix are the mouths of the Carp Lake River in Emmet County and Mill Creek in Cheboygan County. The Carp Lake River access is at Cecil Bay Corners, five miles west of Mackinaw City along Wilderness Park Road. Dip at the highway and at the mouth but the land at the mouth is privately owned so seek permission to fish there. Mill Creek can be found four miles east of Mackinaw City along Highway 23. Dip in the creek mouth and along the shore.

Those willing to drive a little farther will find several good tributaries across the Straits in Mackinac County along Highway 2.

For prestige and a good fight, the smelt may not stack up to some other game species. After all, you won't ever see a smelt mounted on somebody's office wall.

But the bite-size smelt, deep fried in a beer and egg batter, makes as tasty a fish dinner as any of their heftier cousins.

Workshop will focus on wild turkey hunting

Michigan's newest hunting challenge, the wild turkey, will be sought by some 18,000 hunters this spring.

Since this is a relatively new sport in Michigan, there is much for both hunters and land owners to learn. To make the hunting experience more productive for everyone involved, a special Wild Turkey Workshop has been arranged.

According to Ed Rebman, Charlevoix County Extension Director, the second Northern Michigan Wild Turkey Workshop will be held Sunday, April 5 at the Roscommon High School (County Road 100, southwest of Roscommon).

The workshop begins at 1 p.m. with the time from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. available for registration and viewing of exhibits and films. A $2 registration fee will be charged for basic expenses. Door prizes will be awarded. Lunch is available. Adjournment is set for 4 p.m.

The program will feature turkey management, hunting forecast, hunting tips and techniques, calling demopstrations and workshops, use of decoys, as well as other useful information.

Sponsors for the workshop are: Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University, the Wildlife Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan Wild Turkey Association.

All area sportsmen are invited to attend.

MSU to present class on managing small businesses for profit

"How much does your business owe you?" is the question posed by a "Managing for Profit" evening class offered in Petoskey by Michigan State University in cooperation with the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Beginning Monday, April 13, the weekly three-hour sessions will be held at North Central Michigan College and are designed to help those in small and medium businesses assess and overcome profit problems.

Preparing a "break even" analysis of one's business, setting a profit goal and pricing for it, simple cost management methods and informed tax management are all on the six-week agenda.

Fee for the noncredit class, presented by Executive Programs, MSU Lifelong Education and College of Business, is $195. For more information and to register, call the MSU Regional Center in Traverse City, 946-7496 or the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce, 347-6641.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE ON FORECLOSURE BY ADVERTISEMENT

Default having been made in the condition of a certain Mortgage made by Robert H. Withers, a single man, to Charlevoix County State Bank, dated October 12, 1979, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, on December 10, 1980, in Liber 162, of Mortgages, on Page 47, on which Mortgage there is claimed to be due as of the date of this Notice, for principal and interest, the sum of $9,128.44, and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and the pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the County Building in the Township of Charlevoix, and County of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on April 27, 1981 at 2:00 o'clock eastern standard time in the afternoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortgage together with 13% interest, legal costs, attorney fees and also any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Charlevoix County State Bank, does pay on or prior to the date of such sale. The length of the redemption period as provided by law is six (6) months from the time of sale. Said premises are described in said Mortgage as follows, to wit:

Lot Eighteen (18) of the Plat of North Charlevoix, in the Township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded Plat thereof.

New game to have local flavor

CHARLEVOIX COURIER Wednesday, April 1, 1981 PAGE NINE

Instead of Park Place, Ventnor Ave. and the Short Line Railroad, names of Charlevoix stores and businesses will appear on a Monopoly-like game to be marketed by the Charlevoix Jaycees as a fundraising project.

"Wheeler Dealer" is the name of the game. The Jaycees are now in the process of selling the squares around the game board to Charlevoix businesses whose names will appear on them.

When all the squares are sold, the game will be produced by a down-state firm and an initial shipment of 100 sets will be available for sale in Charlevoix. The game is played similarly to Monopoly with drawing cards, hotels, etc.

To be included on one of the squares on the board, the price is $30 for a retail merchant, $40 for a bank and $50 for an industry.

Those wishing to include their name in a special listing on the inside of the board may do so for $2 apiece.

The games will be sold for $10.

Charlevoix Jaycee President Dan Miller said the money raised through the sale of "Wheeler Dealer" games will all be directed back into the community in the form of various civic projects. It also reminded local merchants that the game could be an effective advertising tool for them.

Anyone interested in purchasing space on the "Wheeler Dealer" game board is asked to call Miller at either 547-4041 or 547-2968.

Blood Bank specialists to meet for workshop

Blood bank specialists from small and rural Michigan hospitals will attend a clinical laboratory training workshop March 31 at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

By means of lectures and laboratory exercises, the specialists will concentrate on blood typing techniques, the selection of blood in emergencies and communication with physicians regarding the risk of transfusion when the patient has a blood problem.

The workshop will be taught by Barbara Baroes, University of Michigan; Marie Brown, American Red Cross Services in Flint; Barbara Ross, Ferris State College; Ann Stelzer, University of Michigan Hospital; and Carol Hegedus, Bronson Methodist Hospital.

Supporting workshop services will be provided by the Michigan Association of Blood Banks; the American Red Cross Regional Centers in Flint, Lansing, and Muskegon; and Michigan State University's Continuing Education Services.

Department of Pathology and School of Medical Technology.

The Petoskey workshop is one of four offered for blood banking personnel in small and rural hospitals. The first two were held at the Michigan Department of Public Health at Lansing in February and, the fourth will be held at Bay de Noc Community College, Escanaba, April 2.

The State Health Department training coordinator is Betty Schoepke. Presenting the workshops are the Michigan Association of Blood Banks and the Michigan Department of Public Health in cooperation with Michigan State University.

CMU offers course in Boyne City

A course in children's literature will be offered by Central Michigan University in Boyne City in April.

English 581 "Seminar in Children's Literature" will be offered for three semester hours of credit.

Registration and the first class meeting will be Thursday, April 9 at 6 p.m. at the Boyne City High School, Room 8.

For more information, contact the School of Continuing Education and Community Services, 125 Rowe Hall, CMU, Mt. Pleasant, 48859.

Chicago or Bust!!!

The sixth, seventh and eighth grade honor students at the Charlevoix Middle School need a lift! They are planning a field trip to Chicago and are in the process of raising funds to pay for it. To help their cause, the Charlevoix Courier has agreed to let the students keep half the money they make in selling new subscriptions to the Courier for their class trip. The sales campaign also represents a good bargain for prospective new subscribers. Starting April 1, subscription prices will be going up to $11 a year for the immediate area and $15 per year elsewhere, but those who buy a new subscription from the honor students during the month of April will receive the Courier at last year's price of $10 a year in area and $13 a year elsewhere. The students will start canvassing the area on April 6. Those not reached at their home or business by the students, but who would like to start a new subscription, help the kids get to Chicago and save money at the same time, can contact honor student advisor Tom Sothard at the Charlevoix Middle School.

MR. & MRS. ELMO B. HELMS

Funeral services were held recently for former residents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo B. Helms of Royal Oak.

Services for Mrs. Helms, 77, the former Rose Major who died March 18 at her home, were held Saturday at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City. Interment was in Boyne Valley township cemetery.

Services for Mr. Helms, 77, who died March 20 at South Macomb Hospital were held at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix March 24. Interment was also in Boyne Valley township cemetery.

Rev. John Beard of the First Baptist Church in Boyne City officiated at both services.

Mrs. Helms was born November 19, 1903 in Boyne Falls. She was married to Mr. Helms at Boyne City in 1921. They made their home in Charlevoix until going to Southern Michigan in 1942.

She had been a member of the Charlevoix Rebekah Lodge No. 293 and the Maple Grove Grange.

Mr. Helms was born in North Dakota April 30, 1903 and came to the Barnard area near Charlevoix in a covered wagon with his parents as a small child. He had been employed by the Charlevoix County Road Commission for many years before moving to the Detroit area where he was employed as a tool and die maker until he retired. He had been a member of the Charlevoix Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F. and the Maple Grove Grange while in Charlevoix. He had been a member of a small band that played at the Grange dances and elsewhere.

They are survived by two sons, Warren of Boonton, N.J. and James H. of Madison Heights; two daughters, Mrs. Eileen Adamo of Flint and Mrs. Erv (Sandra) Ciske of Royal Oak; 11 grandchildren and five great grandchildren. Mrs. Helms is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Edith Doherty and Mrs. Ethel Amesbury, both of Boyne City.

The family suggests contributions to the First Baptist Church in Boyne City.

Eveline ponders type of rezoning for Hemingway Point condos

by DAVE KNIGHT

In substance, plans for a 72-unit condominium development on Hemingway Point in Eveline Township received the blessing of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission last week.

Commission members stopped short, however, of recommending the R-1 to R-3 rezoning sought by Petoskey developer Art Seaborne and suggested that Eveline Township investigate the possibility of applying a Planned Unit Development (PUD) zoning classification to the project.

Seaborne has proposed the construction, over a five-year period, of a total of 12 two-story, 28-foot high buildings along the over 4,000 feet of lake frontage on the property. Each building would house six condominium units. Also planned is a beach house for use by all Hemingway Point condominium owners that would be located on the point itself.

In his presentation to the Planning Commission last Thursday night, Seaborne stressed that the project would utilize only ten percent of the total acreage on the parcel and that there are no plans to ever add more than the 72 units now proposed.

"Condos have been a bad word around here lately but I think we should consider every project on its own merits," said Seaborne. "This low-density plan takes into consideration the historic value of the land and it's unique beauty. We think it is a good way to preserve the 90 percent of the property that will remain in a natural state for future generations to enjoy."

How to best assure the preservation of the undeveloped areas of the parcel has become the question facing Eveline Township.

The township Planning Commission voted unanimously in March to grant Seaborne's request for an R-3 (multiple family residential) zoning with the following conditions: that the number of units be limited to 72, that public health and DNR permits for water and sewer systems be approved, that additional soil borings be done to show protection from waste disposal for nearby property owners, that a more complete development plan be submitted as work progresses, that the setbacks of all units be designed to preserve as much natural vegetation as possible and that the existing barn and cottage remain to be used for storage of maintenance equipment.

One option suggested by the township commission to preserve the undeveloped portion of the propoerty was for Seaborne to donate that portion to the Little Traverse Conservancy for use as a nature preserve.

Seaborne indicated at the meeting that he had explored that idea but was not convinced that it was a viable solution. He said, "Number one, by donating the land to Little Traverse Conservancy it is removed from the tax rolls so the township will lose that revenue and, number two, I am not crazy about the idea of giving away some land that I just paid a lot of money for."

Charlevoix County planner John Hess suggested that the best way to prevent additional development of the property in the future would be to rezone it as a PUD.

"Don't be afraid of PUD," Hess told the commission. "Under it you can develop something that is unique to each parcel of land. The planning comission, the township planners and the township board all take part in the process, know everything about the project and work together with the developer to make it what they want."

At present, Eveline Township does not have a PUD classification in its zoning ordinance.

The concern raised by Seaborne is that the process by which PUD could be added to the township ordinance would result in a costly delay to the construction of the first units which had tentatively been planned for early in the coming building season.

The rezoning question now comes before the Eveline Township Board which will take up the matter at its April 14 meeting. Endorsements of the project by the township planners and the county planning commission have no binding power over the board thus giving it a wide variety of options.

Said Eveline Township zoning administrator Douglas Hilderbrant this week, "We are considering PUD but we still have a lot of questions. All of our other zoning classifications have been tried and tested in court and we know what we can do with them. PUD, though, is new to us and it has not received the tests in court the others have."

Hess maintained at the commission meeting that the R-3 zoning is the one most likely to be in jeopardy of legal action and that PUD would definitely stand up best in court.

There are also indications that the board will be presented at its meeting with petitions signed by township residents seeking a referendum vote on the matter.

Money left over from high school addition will be returned to voters through debt retirement fund

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, voted to apply monies remaining from the construction of the high school addition to the debt retirement of the bond issue which financed the construction.

"We, as a board, felt that this was the best way to utilize the funds," said Max Novak, president of the board, following the action. "There are many areas where the money could be used, but since the money was raised for the addition, we thought that this was the best way to return it to the residents of the school district. As a result of our action tonight, the millage that will be levied in 1982 for the debt retirement on the $700,000 bond issue will be reduced by $36,882.25 plus interest. Millage has already been levied for the 1981 debt retirement."

The formal action regarding the transfer of the funds from the 1979 Construction Fund to the 1979 Debt Retirement Fund was done through a resolution that had the unanimous support of the board.

In commenting on the board's action regarding the use of the money, Tom LaBlance, chairman of the Building Committee at the time the addition was planned, said, "On behalf of the Building Committee I would like to express my gratitude to the School Board for its decision to return the unused monies committed to the new addition to the voters in the form of debt retirement. The Building Committee made a commitment to the voters in 1979 that we would try to build the addition at a cost less than the $700,000 voted for thus purpose and that we would have the unused portion of the cost returned to the voters. The board's decision tonight fulfills that commitment."

"I hope the voters of the school district will note this decision of the Charlevoix School Board when voting on some of the very important issues that will be coming up in the future, issues that will determine the quality of education in the Charlevoix Schools. I feel that the administration and the school board have been fair with the voters and I hope the voting public will now be fair with the Charlevoix School District."

In other action, the board of education adopted a resolution calling the annual school election for Monday, June 8. Monday, May 11 is the last day one can register for the June 8 election.

Two coaching positions were filled. Mrs. Cricket Uhrick was named tennis coach for the spring sport which will begin its season on April 20. Henry Wagner was named high school girls basketball coach for the 1981-82 school year. Wagner moves into the position after serving as junior varsity girls basketball coach at the high school.

Mrs. Uhrick succeeds Chuck Wright who resigned and Wagner succeeds Toni Feller who also resigned.

Mrs. Susan A. Grobaski, homemaking teacher at the high school, was granted maternity leave, as per her request with the provision that she will inform the board of her intent to return for the 1982-83 school year by April 1, 1982.

In other action, David J. Smith was appointed acting Middle School principal for the remainder of the Contract with city crew finally hammered out

by DAVE KNIGHT

Negotiations that began on February 2 came to a successful conclusion last week as a contract agreement was reached between the City of Charlevoix and the union representing its public works employees.

The new three-year contract calls for total wage increases of 8.64 percent the first year, 7.84 percent the second year and 7.83 percent the third year.

Additional fringe benefits granted the members of Local 4106 of the Communication Workers of America (CWA)) included an increase in life insurance coverage, an additonal holiday and, starting in the third year, a group dental insurance plan.

The lengthy contract negotiations became unusually difficult this year and required, at the final two sessions, a state mediator.

"They were definitely difficult," Said City Manager James Brinker, "We were a long way apart when we started." Brinker was joined on the negotiating team for the city by Attorney Michael Ward of the Kalamazoo law firm of Jacobson, Werd and City Treasurer Robert Mums.

Union Steward Norman Empey agreed that the talks were "much tougher" than in previous years. He attributed much of the difficulty to the poor state of the economy.

"Sure we would have liked a little more here and there but we had a responsibility to avoid the possibility of layoffs also," said Empey, "Both sides had to give a little but I think, overall, we came up with a very workable contract considering the general economic conditions."

A total of nine meetings over two months were held in the negotiations. The turning point came at a marathon session on March 23 that lasted from 8 a.m. until 2:30 a.m. the next day.

The union rank and file ratified the contract on March 30, though Empey said the vote was not unanimous. In a closed session April 1 the City Council agreed to the terms and at its regular Monday night meeting this week, the council gave its official approval to the contract which is retroactive to February 28 of this year when the previous contract expired.

A summary of the contract is as follows:

In the first year, employees will receive a two percent COLA adjustment, a five percent general wage increase, an increase of life insurance coverage from $5,000 to $10,000 and one additional holiday, the employee's birthday, for a total of ten paid holidays each year.

In the second year, employees will receive a similar COLA adjustment and five percent wage increase, an additional personal leave day for a total of three per year and an additional pension contribution by the city in which the employee will contribute three percent of his salary to the pension fund up to $4,200 a year as in the past but instead of the employee then paying five percent, the city will contribute the extra two percent.

In the third year, the COLA adjustment and five percent wage increase will be the same and employees will be eligible for a group dental plan for which the city's maximum liability has been set on a premium schedule based on the extent of coverage for the employee.

One new feature in the contract is a semi-annual cap on the COLA adjustments of 20 cents an hour.

This was reportedly a point of considerable disagreement in negotiation sessions. Brinker said, however, that it was important to the city's budget planning since it put a limit on actual costs to the city whereas a percentage basis guaranteed no such control.

Ballots take shape for June 8 school board election

Three candidates for four two-year terms and two for the two-year term on the Charlevoix Board of Education filed nominating petitions as the deadline passed at 4 p.m. Monday.

Candidates for the four-year term are C. Max Novak, currently board president, who is seeking re-election to his third term on the board; Doris Pearl, who was named last year to fill a vacancy which expires in June and who is now seeking election to the post and Michael J. Borello who has served as ski coach at Charlevoix High School for several seasons and is a member of the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Robert Drenth of Marion Township and Thomas G. LaBlance, who heads a local insurance company, will be candidates for the two-year term.

Michael Gibbons, a Charlevoix attorney who was appointed to fill a vacancy last fall, is not a candidate for the office.

The school election is scheduled for June 8. Other members of the board right now are Elaine T. Martin, Kenneth Boss, Steven G. Smith and Ardeth Wieland.

Freedman Artcraft sale pulls rug out from under new EDC

by PEG OHLE

It looks as if Charlevoix County's first project under its new Economic Development Corporation (EDC) has dropped by the wayside.

On March 18, the County Board of Commissioners passed a resolution authorizing the issuance of bonds not to exceed $1.5 million dollars through the EDC so that the Hamilton Fixture Company of Hamilton, Ohio could acquire the Freedman Artcraft Company of Charlevoix.

It was noted in the resolution that acquisition of Freedman by the Ohio company "would result in the creation of new jobs."

At the same meeting, John Schlegel, president of the Hamilton Fixture Company, appeared to outline a brief history of his organization, saying that the company had experienced a 36 percent growth rate over the last 10 years and a 50 percent growth rate in the last three years. He stated that if his company purchased Freedman Artcraft, it would increase employment by 25 percent, or 125 to 200 employees.

All that apparently came to an end last week with the announcement that Freedman had been sold to another company, Harbor Industries, Inc. of Grand Haven. The announcement, as made by Harbor Industries and Windsor Communications, the parent company of Freedman, indicated that no immediate changes at the Freedman plant were contemplated "with the exception that the design and sales staffs are to be substantially increased." Harbor Industries did not seek help from the County EDC.

In a letter last week to the County Board of Commissioners and the EDC, Thomas Pointner, local attorney representing Hamilton Fixture, stated that Windsor Communications were "unwilling to consumate the proposed transaction." Later he told the Courier that it would not be necessary for his client to take any action to withdraw the request for EDC participation.

The Economic Development Corporation was formed for the purpose of encouraging new businesses to locate within the county, and to assist present businesses to expand, thus creating more jobs and a greater cash flow.

Big year on tap for B.I. Boat Company

The Beaver Islander is scheduled to leave its Round Lake winter quarters for St. James harbor Monday, April 13 and begin a three-weekly schedule of trips to Beaver Island until daily trips begin on May 1.

Thus will begin a season that promises to be an exciting one for the Beaver Island Boat Company which is in the process of doubling its fleet and establishing two new operations under the control of majority stockholder and newspaper magnate John McGoff.

At a meeting Monday, the company's reorganized board of directors, under newly elected president Fred Annen, travelled to Petoskey to inspect dock facilities for a planned Petoskey-Beaver Island ferry route. As of that meeting, a boat had not been purchased for the Petoskey route. Earlier efforts to purchase a hydrafoil-type craft were unsuccessful when it was decided the hydrafoil was not well enough adapted to the potentially heavy seas of northern Lake Michigan.

Boat company representatives are planning to drive to South Haven this Friday, however, to look at another boat for the Petoskey route. The Happy Dolphin, currently used as a fishing charter vessel, would provide a capacity and speed comparable to the hydrafoil, according to boat company

Brush fires rage in area

Grass and brush fires continue to plague the Charlevoix area in recent weeks as local firemen battled several blazes including a major fire on Friday that burned 150 to 200 acres of open field and woodland in Norwood Township.

Volunteer firemen from Charlevoix and East Jordan and DNR personnel responded to the fire on Spayde Road reported at about 12:25 p.m. After a three-hour battle, the fire was brought under control without resulting in any injury or property damage other than the scorched acreage.

Early Monday evening, Charlevoix firemen responded to another grass fire on Burgess Road just off the Boyne City Road and brought it under control without much difficulty.

Enter the Jelly Bean Jumble!

How many jelly beans fit into a Mason jar? If you think you know, here's your chance to win big prizes in a new contest being sponsored by the Courier and several local merchants.

Participating businesses in Charlevoix will each have on display a jar filled with jelly beans and candy. Guess how many jelly beans and pieces of candy are in the jar and you win the jar, a valuable prize from the merchant and a chance to win two delicious Easter hams from the Courier.

See page five for where to find the jelly bean jars and how to enter the contest.

Eveline marks $100,000 for roads

The major item in the $178,952 tentative budget adopted by Eveline Township at its annual meeting Tuesday is earmarked for roads according to Township Clerk Eric Beishlag.

The amount set aside for this is approximately $100,000 which includes funds appropriated over the past two years and never used along with $24,000 previously planned for a sewer. Beishlag said that the township now plans to go to a private contractor to get road work done.

For at least two years the township had tried to engage the County Road Commission to build repair township roads but that did not work out. No determination has been made regarding the roads to receive attention, he added.

Other major expenditures will be $14,000 for fire protection in the township which has contracts with the Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix departments because of its location on Lake Charlevoix.

Another $4,500 is earmarked for ambulance service which is also shared by the three communities with East Jordan receiving the greatest number of calls. Other expenditures include $15,613 for township expenses including the township, planning and zoning boards and other minor costs; $2,850, supervisor; $5,050, clerk; $4,825, treasurer and $6,350 assessor. The appropriations include the cost of operating the respective offices. A $16,913 contingency is also planned.

Revenue to meet the budget includes $104,565 on hand; $25,237 in property taxes; $25,000 of Michigan Revenue Sharing; $9,960 tax collection fees and $6,856, Federal Revenue Sharing for a total of $178,952.

While some time was spent discussing roads, the major discussion revolved around the proposed development of Hemingway Point where developers have proposed a condominium. Beishlag said those present at the meeting opposed such a development.

Salan, Cassidy join field seeking appointment to District judgeship

Two more attorneys last week announced their candidacy for appointment to the position of judge of the 90th District Court to succeed David W. Fershee, who has resigned effective May 31.

John Salan, who has been Emmet County Prosecutor since 1974, and Patrick C. Cassidy, a Petoskey attorney, bring the number of candidates up to four.

John Salan

Patrick C. Cassidy

Salan, 39, was appointed to the Prosecutor's job in 1974 and re-elected without opposition in 1976 and 1980. He is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and Wayne State University Law School. Before coming to Emmet County, he served as an Assistant Prosecuting Attorney for Washtenaw County.

Salan told the Courier he was a candidate for the position because it "looked like a good career move." He added that "Some things need to be done in the judicial system and I would like to help with that."

Cassidy came to the area in 1975 following graduation from Ohio Northern University College of Law. He completed his graduate work at Central Michigan University. Since 1975, he has been associated with the law firm of Rogers & Cassidy in Petoskey and presently serves as president of the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association. He lives near Walloon Lake Village.

In making his announcement, Cassidy said, "The judge of this (District) Court must exhibit fairness, open-mindedness, a sense of humor, and a willingness to give people an opportunity to have their day in court. I believe I have exhibited these qualities in my personal life and would carry them into the position of District Court judge."

Other announced candidates for the judgeship to date are Charlevoix County Prosecutor Scott Beatty and Boyne City attorney Harvey Varnum.

Youth Art Exhibit set

The Youth Art Exhibit, featuring the art work of students in more than 40 classrooms in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, will be held at the Virginia McCune Community Art Center in Petoskey April 11 through 24, Dianne Dreyer of Charlevoix, co-chairman of the event with Sandy Selden of Petoskey has announced.

The exhibit, sponsored by the Crooked Tree Art Council, will feature more than 1400 pieces of art work done by children of all age levels in the two-county area.

The design entered by Shannon Weston, 13, of Petoskey, was selected for use on invitations to enter the exhibit and on a poster publicizing the event.

The exhibit will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 1 until 5 p.m. on Saturday.

A special invitation has been extended to all residents of the area to visit the exhibit at the Virginia McCune Art Center at 461 Mitchell St. in Petoskey.

When Clarence Way, a former vacuum cleaner salesman, found his newly-sodded lawn covered with pebbles from the winter's snowplowing, there was only one way to clean it up - with a vacuum cleaner, of course. He is shown above vacuuming his lawn at 1101 Beacon Street in Charlevoix on one of last week's spring-like days.

Township hall construction is major item in Hayes Township budget

Residents of Hayes Township approved a tentative budget of $114,495 at their annual meeting held Saturday evening at the new township hall located on old U.S. 31 near Burgess Road.

Cash on hand, taxes and funds from other sources will balance the budget Sandra Somerville, township clerk, said.

Major expenditures will be $30,944 toward the construction of the new township hall and $21,351 for roads.

Only the installation of the septic system, the digging of a well and the equipping of the kitchen remain to be done Mrs. Somerville said. A decision regarding the road funds has not been made at this time.

Other expenditures will include $14,000 for salaries; $18,000 for fire protection; $5,000, ambulance service; $5,000, assessor; $4,500, planning and zoning boards; $2,500, fuel, utilities, maintenance; $2,000, insurance; $2,000 legal fees; $1,500 each to publishing and printing and office equipment; $1,200 office supplies and postage; $800 board of review.

The township has $59,495 on hand plus anticipated revenue that includes $30,000 in taxes, $10,000 each from tax collection fees and state revenue sharing and $5,000 in Federal Revenue Sharing to underwrite its budget.

SID pictures, blood pressure clinic to be held

Charlevoix Senior Citizens will hold a blood pressure clinic on Tuesday, April 14 at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria immediately following the regular lunch at 1 p.m. At the same time, pictures will be taken for the Senior Identification Cards (SIDs). Participants are asked to bring their social security numbers.

Ironton ferry starts this week

The Ironton Ferry is scheduled to begin operation for the season some time this week, according to Charlevoix County Road Engineer-Director Fred Welch.

The ferry, which crosses the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at Ironton, has not been in operation since it was closed down by ice and snow last fall.

Auto passengers will again be charged $1 a crossing on the ferry, although ten-ride tickets may be purchased for $7.50.

New emergency entrance open

As of this week, all patients seeking emergency care at the Charlevoix Area Hospital are requested to use the new emergency room entrance. The new emergency entrance is to the left of the main entrance of the hospital.

School system rates a b-plus in latest phone survey

by FRAN MARTIN

How do the residents of Charlevoix School District rate their school system? What do they feel are the major problems facing the schools? If cuts have to be made because of financial problems, in what areas do you think they should be made?

To find the answers to these and other school related questions, a survey, the third in two years, has been conducted by a corps of volunteers among 400 registered residents of teh school district selected at random from poll lists furnished by the city and townships within the district.

Three hundred thirty-nine persons of the 400 resonded in the telephone survey. Of this number, 60 percent did not have children in school at this time; 18 percent had one child; 16 percent had two children, one percent has than in last year's survey; four percent had three to four children in school and the remaining two percent had more than four children in school. In the 1979-80 survey, nine percent had three to four children in school. The other categories differed from last year's figures by only one percent.

Forty percent of those with children had youngsters in the K-5 school, three percent fewer than in the last survey; 41 percent in the Middle School, down from 45 percent last year, and 54 in high school. The others differed by only one percent.

Thirty-nine percent of those participating in the survey were male.

Why the survey? "Because we find it the most effective means of finding out how people feel about their schools and how the schools can be improved," Superintendent Gordon W. VanWieren said. He went on to say that, "We are well aware that the taxpayers are our bosses and by doing the survey we have a better understanding of what is expected of us." He concluded by saying that the time given to answer the questions asked in the survey is appreciated. "The results of the survey will serve as guidelines for us in determining corriculum, discipline and policies," he added.

How do the residents of the Charlevoix School District rate their school system on a scale of A through E? Forty-seven percent gave the educational process a B which VanWieren interpeted as a high B-plus. Another 22 percent rated it a C; 13 percent an A; four percent a D and one percent an E. Thirteen percent had no opinion.

Twenty-nine percent thought thought financial support is the major problem facing the school as compared to the majority who listed discipline as the major problem in an earlier survey. The number who thought drug and alcohol abuse was a problem increased from five to 12 percent. Others listed the curriculum and poor teachers and 21 percent had no opinion.

Thirty-three percent of those questioned thought the area to be cut, if financial problems dictate, should be extra-curricular activities. Eight percent suggested art, music and physical education; four percent, teachers; three percent adminstration and two percent cooks and custodial staff. Twenty-one percent did not have an opinion.

Thirty-nine percent of those queried were not aware that there are special education programs and services available to students while 19 percent listed the learning center; 13 percent, programs for the retarded; seven percent, speech therapy; five percent, a pre-school program; four percent, a social worker and three percent, testing (psychologist).

In answer to the question "in what ways are the Charlevoix Schools particularly good?", 22 percent named teachers; 18 percent curriculum; 11 percent, education; six percent, facilities; and five percent, small school or small classes.

Thirty percent had no opinion. In an earlier survey, 18 percent listed curriculum and 14 percent teachers and education as the school's strong points.

Almost the same percentages, 72 percent this year and 73 last year, thought students should be able to pass a test on minimum requirements in order to graduate. In response to this, a group is working on such a test and will report on it, probably in May.

Concern regarding the problem of drug and alcohol abuse is shown by the fact that 88 percent of those contacted felt that alcohol and drug education are important in preventing abuse last year. 84 percent felt this was important.

The most surprising answer among those asked related to the services made available to students and teachers by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. Sixty-two percent of those contacted were not aware of any services; 22 percent mentioned programs for the handicapped; 11 percent films; nine percent testing and evaluation and a small percent, pre-school screening.

Twenty-three percent would like more information about the curriculum; 13 percent, the financial situation; 12 percent, teachers and teaching methods and nine percent, child's progress. Thirty-five percent had no opinion.

Forty percent of those questioned felt they were well informed, 31 percent somewhat informed, 23 percent, not too well informed and eight percent, no opinion. The percentages, compared with the earlier survey, varied less than one percent.

Forty-four percent said they were informed through the newspapers, 36 percent through other parents, adults and friends; 29 percent through students and the remainder through notes, memos, newsletters and other publications.

Mrs. Carol Elliott headed the committee composed of teachers and volunteers who conducted the survey.

Spring tornado

by Dave Knight

On the Great Lakes, it's the winds of November that are feared more than any other punishment Mother Nature can dish out.

Their banshee howl and icy grip can make the strongest man cringe. Oft told are the tales of those unfortunate souls resting on the bottom of the lakes who had their careers as seamen ended abruptly by fierce November gales that swept suddenly out of the north.

On the Gulf Coast it's the hurricane season that heralds that part of the country's own version of climatic terror.

Known by their names like long departed aunts and uncles, the death and disaster they have inflicted upon battered coastal communities is a constant reminder of nature's awesome power.

But on the plains of the interior states, nothing raises the hackles on the backs of necks more chillingly than the sudden spring tornado.

Such was the storm that leveled West Bend, Wisconsin last weekend.

"I have never been in an actual tornado but they came close enough to our town back in Wisconsin on a few occassions to get a good enough idea of what they are all about.

In the flat country, you can see weather systems forming a long way off. When, in the early spring, the temperature starts making wild fluctuations up and down, the conditions are right for the funneling effect. The first signs of trouble are huge cumulus clouds billowing high into the upper reaches of the atmosphere off in the distance.

Later, as the clouds move in, the sky becomes a dull gray except for one horizon which takes on a gun metal hue.

Any wind that may have been blowing dies gradually into the proverbial quiet before the storm. At this point, the sky becomes dark green and any God fearing creature had better be headed for sturdy cover.

There may be lightning. There may be hailstones. There may be torrents of rain. But the wind is the killer and as it moves across the fields, everything bows to its relentless strength. Whatever does not bend, breaks.

When it's over, quiet reigns again. But it is not a peaceful quiet. It is the fearful, resentful quiet of a child who has been punished and who would like to strike back but knows, in the end, he is helpless to protest.

Letters: Dear Mr. Davis...

A letter to Representative Robert Davis, Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Davis,

On April 24, 1980, I wrote asking you to support the Kennedy-Rodino hand gun control bill. You responded on June 3 and stated your opposition.

This morning you were shown on national television as still opposing hand gun control.

You said that the present public sentiment for hand gun control is "a complete over-simplification."

In the wake of the attempted assassination on Monday, isn't it time to consider polls showing 70 percent of the American people favoring gun control?

Isn't it time for the Congress to get out from under the control of the 1,700,000 members of the National Rifle Association?

In another new venture, the purchase has been finalized of the Bay Queen, a dining cruise vessel now located in Providence, Rhode Island. The Bay Queen, which is expected to arrive in Charlevoix by mid-May, is 114 feet long, 32 feet across the beam, has a capacity of over 400 and is equipped with dining facilities, two dance floors and two bars.

Tentative plans are to dock the Bay Queen in downtown Charlevoix and schedule regular dinner cruises on lake Charlevoix. Indications are that the dinner cruises may start about June 15.

school year. Smith has been the assistant principal at the high school. Dennis VanGuilder, a member of the faculty, was named acting assistant principal on a part-time basis at the high school for the remainder of the current school year.

William Ranger, a high school student, was granted dual enrollment as per his request. He will take two classes at North Central Michigan College while attending high school here.

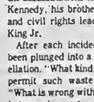
Carolyn DeMoor, elementary teacher, reported on the Teaching Learning Community that has been introduced into the K-5 school whereby grandpeople, retired people in the community, come into the school to share their talents with the students.

Mrs. DeMoor said they already had several grandpeople visit classes and share with the children their hobbies and talents.

"It is surprising how the students take to the program and how much they appreciate the contact with the grandperson who might have been a little hesitant to come but who enjoys the experience as much as the children do."

She went on to say that the program is new and that anyone who might have something he or she might want to share with the children is encouraged to call the school."

At the close of its agenda, the board went into executive session to discuss the contract with non-certified personnel. The next School Board meeting is scheduled for April 20.



Clockwise

We need not feel helpless

by Bob Clock

THE UNITED STATES has gone through many periods of national trauma in the past 20 years, including the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy, his brother Robert Kennedy and civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

After each incident, the nation has been plunged into a period of self-flagellation. "What kind of people are we to permit such waste of human life?" "What is wrong with a nation that incubates such monsters as Lee Harvey Oswald, Sirhan Sirhan and James Earl Ray?"

In a sense, we held each other responsible for the slayings of our three national leaders and our remorse cut deeply into our national pride.

However, a week has now passed since the shooting of President Reagan, press secretary James Brady, Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy and Washington D.C. patrolman Thomas Delahanty and the familiar period of self-accusation has not started yet — either because the victims are all still living, or because, as a nation, we are learning to cope with violence.

Of course, it is idiotic to say that the American people as a whole are responsible for political assassinations. Almost to a man we are thunderstruck each time it happens; we are baffled by the mental processes that would cause a man to level a weapon at another, regardless of his position in national affairs.

Furthermore, we feel dreadful every time it happens, and our sympathy is extended not only to the victim and members of his family but also to the assailant's family for the deep hurt and humiliation they have suffered.

Unfortunately, the impression lingers around the world that Americans are violent people, when in truth probably less than one-tenth of one percent of all Americans would commit a violent act if given the opportunity. It is unfair to blame ourselves for the actions of a few, and I think as a people we are beginning to realize this.

At least the absence of self-condemnation following the shooting of President Reagan and his official party would tend to point in that direction.

THIS DOES NOT mean that as a people we must stand helpless in the gun sights of every would-be assassin.

The federal government is and has been totally irresponsible in its attitude toward handguns. Congress should take steps immediately to reduce both their availability and numbers, regardless of the permissive stance both the President and his wife took on the issue before the election.

Mind you, I am suffering under no delusion that a tough handgun control law would have prevented the shooting of President Reagan. Dedicated malefactors will be able to get their hands on firearms, regardless of the law.

Even President Lincoln realized that total protection of the chief executive is well nigh impossible. He said if someone really wanted to kill him, the act couldn't be prevented. His only hope was that the culprit would be apprehended.

HOWEVER A REDUCTION in the number of handguns available in American homes certainly would save the lives of many now lost in domestic quarrels. It is all too easy to reach for a gun during the heat of an argument.

A reduction in their numbers also would cut deeply into the number of accidental shootings — usually involving children — which take place across the country every year. Hardly a week goes by that we don't come across a newsstory about a child killing another with a gun that was either "unloaded" or believed to be a toy.

I am confident the framers of the Constitution never envisioned the "right to bear arms" as a right to commit mayhem in the bedroom, the parlor or the play pen.

'Seven Last Words' to be presented here Sunday

The Lenten Passion cantata, "The Seven Last Words of Christ" by Theodore DuBois will be presented at the First Congregational Church on Palm Sunday, April 12, as a part of the observance of the Easter season.

The cantata will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Sunday under the direction of Ellen Addington, director of music at the First Congregational Church. The presentation is being sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

Three soloists, Fran Tollas of Charlevoix, soprano; Mark Puchala, tenor; Jay Thompson, baritone, both from the Traverse City area and the Charlevoix Area Community Chorus will appear in the cantata.

A resident of Charlevoix who has appeared frequently in performance in the area, Mrs. Tollas is a graduate of the University of Michigan and was a voice student of Harold Haugh. She is presently doing graduate work at Grand Valley State College.

Mark Puchala has been a soloist in Interlochen Arts Academy productions as well as being in demand as an oratorio artist. He is presently director of the Traverse City High School Choral Program.

Jay Thompson is currently co-ordinator of the Vocal Department and instructor of voice at the Interlochen Arts Academy and National Music Camp. He is also a graduate of the University of Michigan with a degree in voice and has studied with many eminent teachers. As a recipient of the National Federation of Music Clubs International Scholarship, he was awarded a year's study in London.

Miss Addington, who is the conductor, is a graduate of Western Michigan University and studied voice with Thelma Votipha and Edith Mason, both formerly with the Metropolitan Opera Company. She has served as a clinician in many choral workshops in the Michigan area and is presently vice president of the West Michigan Fellowship of Music, Worship and Other Arts.

The organist, Elizabeth Humphrey, won a five-year graduate fellowship at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. She was a voice student of Mdmes. Schoen-Rene and Queena Mario and studied composition with Vittorio Giannini. She is the organist at the First Congregational Church.

A reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church will follow the performance.

There will be no charge for admission at the presentation at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. However, a free will offering will be taken.

The congregation of the Eastport Baptist Church is very excited as they look forward to the coming of Rev. John Bell of Traverse City for a special meeting. Rev. Bell will speak in the evenings of April 5, 12, 19 at the 7:00 P.M. hour. His messages includes: The Validity of the Scriptures, The Vicarious Death of the Son of God, and The Victorious Resurrection of the Saints.

Rev. Bell is no stranger to this area having pastored the Eastport Baptist Church for five years and making many friends in this area. We would invite you to come that your minds might be challenged and your spiritual life might be enriched by sharing in the ministry of God's Word.

Weddings

Lundteigen-Murphy

Nina E. Lundteigen of Charlevoix became the bride of John T. Murphy, Sr., of Petoskey, at a ceremony solemnized at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey Saturday, March 28.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Lundteigen of Charlevoix and Probate Judge and Mrs. John T. Murphy of Petoskey.

Rev. Cronan Murphy, O.F.M., uncle of the bridegroom, and Rev. Medard Buveia, O.F.M., officiated at the double ring ceremony and E.E. Goode of Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix presented a reading. Arrangements of white mums and daisy mums graced the altar for the service and white bows and baby's breath marked the pews.

Professor August Huybrechts, at the organ, presented a program of traditional music and the processional, Prucell's "Trumpet Voluntaires" and Bach's "Joy" and accompanied Donald Krusell and his daughters, Mary and Martha, who sang "The Wedding Song" and a traditional hymn.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, selected a gown of white Qiana fashioned with a chapel length train for her wedding. The bodice, Victorian neckline and long sleeves were trimmed with Alencon lace and seedpearls. A band of Alencon lace and seedpearls secured her fingertip veil. She carried a nosegay of of red roses and baby's breath.

Deborah Smith of Calumet in the role of maid of honor wore a gown of yellow Qiana accented with ivory lace at the neckline and carried a single rose and baby's breath.

Michael Compton of Petoskey assisted the bridegroom as best man. John Conway of Petoskey and Erik Lundteigen of Charlevoix, brother of the bride, seated the guests.

Mrs. Lundteigen chose a gown of pink Qiana with a lace jacket for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Murphy, mother of the bridegroom, wore a Kelly green gown accented with ivory lace.

A dinner reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the Holiday Inn at Petoskey.

After a wedding trip to Chicago, the couple will reside at 418 Waukazoo in Petoskey.

Wedding guests were present from Illinois and several Michigan cities. Among the guests were the couple's Special Education students from Melrose and Gaylord. A rehearsal dinner at Vic's on Friday evening was hosted by Judge and Mrs. Murphy.

FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT DIAMONDS
April Birthstone is the Diamond. One legend around this stone involves Alexander the Great. According to Aristotle, no one but Alexander ever reached the place where the diamond is producad. This is a great valley in India. Sight cannot penetrate its depths and serpents are found there the like of which has never been seen, even to gaze upon them causes death. However, when the serpents die this power leaves them. Now Alexander ordered an iron mirror brought to the place of the serpents and when they looked at their own image it caused their death. Alexander then wanted the diamonds removed from the valley but no man dared to descend into the valley. So counsel of the wise men was sought, and they told him to throw a piece of flesh into the valley. This he did, the diamonds became attached to the flesh, and the birds signed the flesh and bore it up out of the valley. Then Alexander ordered his people to pursue tha birds and to pick up what fell from the flesh.

Engagements

Warner-Kronberg

Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Warner, 211 Nettleton St., Charlevoix, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret A. Warner of St. Simons Island, Georgia, to Jack S. Kronberg of Grand Rapids, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kronberg, 1212 Kalamazoo Ave., Petoskey.

A candlelight ceremony is planned for July 10, 1981 at St. Francis Church in Petoskey.

The bride-to-be is a 1975 graduate of Charlevoix High School, attended North Central Michigan College in Petoskey and graduated in 1980 from Michigan State University with honors. She is currently teaching elementary school in a rural shrimping community along the southern coast of Georgia.

The groom is a 1976 graduate of Petoskey High School, attended North Central Michigan College in Petoskey and graduated in 1980 from Aquinas College in Grand Rapids. He is currently working as an accountant for Prime Metals in Grand Rapids.

Club seeks used books

The Charlevoix Women's Club is now collecting used books for its book sale scheduled for August 7 and 8 at the Charlevoix library.

Books may be taken to the library and deposited in boxes or bags marked "Book Sale", or they will be picked up upon request. Pickup arrangements may be made by calling Margaret Duerr at 547-2603.

The Women's Club uses the proceeds from the book sale to assist area Indian children in furthering their education, and to support other worthwhile projects.

In recent years, money has been donated to the Chip Counseling Center, to the Park Band Shell Fund, to the Women's Resource Center, to the fund to purchase emergency monitoring equipment for the ambulance, to help furnish the Community Room at the library, and to the Sheriff's Department for an education program for elementary school children.

Charlevoix students tell what it's like

The Middle School years; when growing up seems oh, so complicated

by ANNE KELLY

"About the only freedoms I think I have in this school are dances and being able to chew gum. I feel that I, along with the rest of my class, are mature enough to handle the dances...I don't feel any problems with the gum either except it occasionally gets stuck to my retainer."

An anonymous Charlevoix Middle School student.

Somewhere between the ages of eleven and fourteen, unless he or she attends a private school, a student these days finds himself in "Middle School."

Middle School is the limbo of pre and early adolescence that exists between the protective womb of the elementary school experience and the more predictable mode of high school.

It is a melting pot of assorted degrees of readiness and maturity, both on a physical and emotional level. It serves as a training ground and sometimes as a battlefield for parents and their children in the area of freedom and responsibility.

Students from the Charlevoix Middle School, which includes grades six, seven and eight, were recently asked to think about the way they felt about being in Middle School; what freedoms they were enjoying and what responsibilities or problems they had to deal with as a result of those freedoms.

Over 100 students replied. Some of the replies are reprinted here. From their spontaneous, candid responses, it becomes evident that, at the ages between 11 and 14, certain traditional pleasures and freedoms are still treasured and that the problems and responsibilities that arise seem to result from having to live up to the trust implied in the freedoms granted.

How much freedom and how much responsibility each child enjoys varies from family to family. There are as many different levels of maturity reflected as there are students in the school. All the responses printed here are anonymous. Until they make the full emergence from their cocoon, many Middle School aged studeots are extremely sensitive about such things.

At first, the transition from Elementary to Middle School is an important step up the ladder. It is initially a little frightening, kind of exciting and certainly full of many new experiences.

"When the first day of school came, I was real frightened because I didn't know if I could get around the school without getting lost or wouldn't make it to class on time."

"Some of my friends and me have a lot more freedom than last year (fifth grade). When I thought about it I got scared. It was scary to go to a new school."

"I felt that since I would be getting older I would be free to do what I wanted. But I found out that it's not always easy growing up. There's lots of responsibilities that go with growing up."

Just what new freedoms do Middle Schoolers enjoy? In general, the sixth graders zeroed in on the obvious improvements that had occurred in their lives since graduating from the elementary grades. Changing classes, going downtown alone, staying up later, having to remember to relay information home to parents without the benefit of notes, being able to go to dances for the first time; these were all very important privileges to the respondents.

COURIER photo by Anne Kelly

"I'm able to go to dances and stay out to maybe 10:30 on weekends. I've become interested in girls..."

"Sometimes I wish that I didn't have to grow up..."

"One of my freedoms is knowing if I want to hop on my bike and go to the beach or downtown, all I have to leave is a note."

"I'm able to go to dances and stay out to maybe 10:30 on weekends. I've become interested in girls...I can do more things, go more places and I've made lots of new friends. I'm twelve years old."

"Now that I'm older and in the Middle School there is more responsibility. But it's a lot different. People go together and stuff like that but I don't think I'm ready for that yet."

"I am in the sixth grade and 11 years old. I have found that my parents and older friends think I have a lot more responsibility and I am treated like I am a lot older. I am only a year older than I was before but people seem to think I am three years older. I don't necessarily think that is bad but sometimes I feel like I get too much pressure put on me."

By seventh and eighth grade, the initial apprehensions apparently wane and the students become a little more introspective about their freedoms and responsibilities. Staying up and out later, dances, parties, choice of classes and sports, opportunities for making money by babysitting and other odd jobs, helping more at home and with farm chores, going hunting and on trips. Little by little, more of the adult world unfolds.

This is the stage where earning trust and accountability becomes crucial as does coping with peer pressure.

"I have the responsibility of making sure what I say is true and a problem is sometimes when you make a statement you believe in, you are called upon to defend it and sometimes it results in being an oddball."

"When I am allowed to stay out on weekend nights I feel that my parents trust me and that makes me feel trusted. I do, I feel grown up. It makes me mad, though when they think I'm going to do something I would never think of doing...When I do have a long time downtown there's nothing to do. Then some of my friends want to go drink. I don't though because my parents trust me."

"I can have my friends over when my parents aren't home. They trust me. They respect my judgement. They take pride in my school work. They respect me."

"A bad thing about making my own decisions is taking the blame if something goes wrong."

"Some of the problems I face from staying up late are feeling lousy and rundown the next day."

One eighth grader, in reviewing the pressures he felt as a result of getting good enough grades to remain in the honors program, summed up his plight with an old adage: "You see," he said, "the life of an eighth grader isn't a bowl of cherries."

Parents worry about their Middle School children and understandably so. They remember their adolescence. They remember the awkward years of being too tall, too short, too thin, too underdeveloped or too overdeveloped, too fat.

Nothing seems right at this age.

They also remember when their own parents were too strict or not strict enough and these memories color their attitude on how to raise their own offspring.

It is interesting that the students seem to be just as worried about their parents judging from some responses.

"It's nice to know my parents will always be there if I need them."

"I hope that next year (ninth grade) my parents will realize that I can take care of myself and that they don't have to keep an ever present eye on me."

"Sometimes I think that too many parents won't let their kids do certain things or keep certain things from them that should be brought out in the open."

"My mom and dad give me what I want most of the time but I still don't do anything. I think it's because they're too good to me."

"The only problem that I have encountered is that my parents let me make my own decisions and sometimes I don't want to."

The one common denominator that runs like a thread through all the responses is ambivalence; the frustration of wanting to enjoy the innocence of childhood and, at the same time, wanting to grow up.

"Sometimes I get frustrated and just want to get away from it all and be a little girl again. Other times I want to be more grown up. I think my parents are mean sometimes but they are just showing me that they love me so I really can't complain."

"So I really think growing up is tough. I mean, no one said it was going to be easy. Sometimes I wish that I didn't have to grow up."

"I like to feel older and more mature...I also like to feel more responsible and like I can take care of myself and that really feels good. I mis being a kid and I will never have that experience again."

The kids are experiencing it first hand. Parents are reliving their own struggles through their children. And the teachers deal with the metamorphosis en masse on a daily basis. It's puberty. It's growing up.

It's Middle School.

One eighth grader summed up the plights and privileges of the typical Middle Schooler with the following thoughtful conclusion:

"I guess the biggest freedom I have is the freedom to be myself and have my own opinions and thoughts. I also have the freedom to make myself into whatever kind of person I want to become. These kinds of freedoms are not given to you by parents or teachers or anyone else. They are inside of you, just waiting for you to open your eyes and mind and finally see them."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE ON FORECLOSURE BY ADVERTISEMENT

Default having been made in the condition of a certain Mortgage made by Robert H. Wilders, a single man, to Charlevoix County State Bank, dated October 12, 1979, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, on December 10, 1980, in Liber 162, of Mortgages, on Page 47, on which Mortgage there is claimed to be due as of the date of this Notice, for principal and interest, the sum of $9,128.64, and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and the pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the County Building in the Township of Charlevoix, and County of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on April 27, 1981 at 2:00 o'clock eastern standard time in the afternoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so aforesaid then due on said Mortgage together with 13% interest, legal costs, attorney fees and also any taxes and insurance that said Mortgaged, Charlevoix County State Bank, does pay on or prior to the date of such sale. The length of the redemption period as provided by law is six (6) months from the time of sale. Said premises are described in said Mortgage as follows, to wit:

Lot Eighteen (18) of the Plat of North Charlevoix, in the Township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, according to the recorded Plat thereof.

The Annual meeting of the electors of Eveline Township was held on Tuesday, March 31, 1981 at 8:00 p.m. at the township hall with all board members present.

The meeting was called to order by Supervisor, David Wilson. The minutes of the previous annual meeting were read and approved as read.

The Financial Report was given by the clerk. The Proposed Budget was read by the Supervisor. A motion by Chris Carson to approve the budget as read, supported by Reigh Richardson; motion carried.

The board will use the Federal Revenue Sharing Funds for wages again this year. There were no objections.

The regular board meetings for the coming year will be held every second Tuesday of each month at 8:00 p.m. at the township hall unless otherwise stated.

There was discussion of road work within the township. It was asked, again, if the north end of Sequenota Road could be completed, also the east end of Roberts Road.

The landfill in the township was discussed.

There was a debate on the proposed condominiums on the Hemmingway Pointe property.

Ralph Richardson made a motion to adjourn, supported by Linda Hilderbrant; motion carried. Adjournment at 10:30 p.m.

Eric Beahlag, Clerk

Grandvue Auxiliary to sponsor Spring Games Party

The Auxiliary of the Grandvue Medical Care Facility will sponsor its annual Spring Games Party at the facility at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, April 23, it was decided at the meeting of the group held Thursday.

Betty Boswell, general chairman of the event, asked that members bring guests, baked goods for the bake sale and prizes so the evnet will be a success.

Claudia Grutsch, who has succeeded Flo Chabrier as dietician at Grandvue, was awarded a $700 scholarship to continue her education so she may become certified for the position. She has served as assistant to Mrs. Chabrier for several years. The action was approved at the recent meeting.

Ronald R. Conkle, facility administrator, advised the membership that the county bus system was serving the facility well and at the present time there are no plans to purchase a bus for use by the facility.

As a project, Conkle suggested that the grounds around the facility could be fenced.

The membership voted that this be the last year the Auxiliary will offer a nursing scholarship. The memorial fund has been used for this purpose.

The advisability of having the first meeting of the Auxiliary in April rather than March because so many members were gone was discussed. The Auxiliary has not been meeting during January and February. Most of those present felt that three months without a meeting would be too long a span of time and that members would lose interest. In the event there were no meetings for three months it was felt that a planning meeting by the executive committee would be necessary.

The treasurer's report revealed $1,480.97 in the checking account; $385.22 in the memorial fund and $5,148.96 in the Silver Pass Book account.

It was also reported that a new sphygomometer has been ordered but had not been delivered at the time of the meeting.

Refreshments and social hour followed the business meeting.

H&R BLOCK TAX TEST
Question No. 9

Income averaging can save you money. But only if you make more than $30,000 a year.
☐ True ☐ False

What you don't know about income averaging could cost you money.
H&R Block knows that no matter how much you make, if your income went up substantially last year you may be able to income average. We'll take advantage of this if it's to your benefit. The answer is FALSE, since there is no minimum amount of income required to qualify.

Obituaries

JESSIE RADER

Mrs. Jessie Rader, 87, of Cincinnati, a former resident, died March 29 at a Cincinnati Nursing Home.

Funeral services and burial were held in Cincinnati on Wednesday.

Mrs. Rader had been a resident of Charlevoix for many years while residing with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rader, Sr. For the past five years she had resided in Cincinnati. While here she had been a member of the First Congregational Church and the Mary Brewster Circle.

Surviving are a son, Jack Rader, Sr. of Petoskey; a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Hoffmann of Cincinnati; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

EDNA M. STAFFORD

Funeral services for Mrs. Edna M. Stafford, 84, of Norwood who died March 30 at Harper Grace Hospital in Detroit where she had been a patient for three weeks, were held April 2 at the Winchester Funeral Home. Rev. Donald H. Merrill of the United Methodist Church in Petoskey officiated. Interment was in the Norwood Cemetery.

Born in Banks Township, Antrim County on March 5, 1897, the former Edna M. Jolliffe was married to Raymond Stafford at Ellsworth on February 20, 1924. They always resided in the Norwood area. Mr. Stafford preceded her in death on March 10, 1974. She was a member of the Norwood United Methodist Church.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Richard (Imogene) Stafford of Detroit; one grandchild; a sister, Mrs. Hazel Edson of Ellsworth and one brother, Wesley Jolliffe of Holiday, Florida.

The family suggests memorials to the Norwood United Methodist Church.

RAYMOND E. PLAMER

Raymond E. Plamer, 60, a summer resident of the Chicago Club, died April 3 in Clearwater Florida.

Mr. Plamer moved to Florida in 1971 from Grosse Ile. He was the retired owner and operator of Lincoln Park Screw Machine Products.

Mr. Plamer was an accomplished golfer and had received many honors in that game. In 1954, he was invited to pay in the Masters Golf Tournament and qualified for the U. S. Open Championship. In 1967, he won the U.S.G.A. Senior Golf Championship and was a member of the U. S. Golf Team at the 1967 Senior World Amateur Tournament. He was also voted Michigan Amateur Athlete that year. His last championship was that of the American Senior Golfers Association in 1974.

In Charlevoix, Mr. Plamer played golf at the Belvedere Country Club, of which he was a member.

Mr. Plamer is survived by his wife, Betty, of Clearwater and Charlevoix; a son, Ronald of Grosse Ile; a daughter, Janice Lick of Lansing; and six grandchildren.

The Moss Funeral Home of Clearwater was in charge of arrangements.

Names In The News

William N. ("Bill") Grimm, who has served as area officer of the U. S. Soil and Conservation Service since 1950, will retire on June 13.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Grimm did extensive post-graduate work at Michigan State University. He joined the soil service in 1950 and has spent all of his working career at the Boyne City office.

In an interview with the Courier, some time ago, Grimm described the Soil and Conservation Service as "a subdivision of state government, responsible under state law for conservation work within its boundaries just as townships and counties are responsible for roads and other services and school districts are responsible for education."

He said the purpose of the Service was "to focus attention on land, water, and related resource problems, to develop programs to solve them, and to enlist and coordinate help from all public and private sources that can contribute to accomplishing the District's goals."

Grimm has been active in community affairs, working with the Masons, American Legion, Boyne Valley Lions, and the Presbyterian Church, of which he is an Elder and former Sunday School teacher.

He and his wife, Jean, have three children, Mary, Gary, and David. The family plans to remain in the area after retirement, but Grimm says he doesn't know what he will do to keep busy.

Several area students have been named to the Ferris State College academic honors list for the recently completed winter quarter. They are DANIEL L. BOSS, ERIC A. ERBER, KEITH M. LEHMAN, CHRISTINE A. PIDEK, DEBRA S. POTTER and GREGORY J. WOJAN of Charlevoix; DENISE B. RUHLMAN of East Jordan; DOREEN M. JANACK and SUSAN M. LILLIS of Boyne City and THOMAS R. MACKIE and STEPHEN J. WHITTAKER of Walloon Lake who received a perfect 4.0 grade average. To be eligible for the honors list, a student must have compiled a 3.25 grade point average in at least 14 hours of graded work.

Two Charlevoix natives were among some 4,200 University of Michigan students honored at the University's annual Honors Convocation on March 27. STEPHEN J. MIELKE and JACQUELINE A. PAUL, both enrolled in the College of Literature, Science and the Arts, received class honors at the convocation. Class honors are bestowed upon those students who maintain an academic record equal to at least half As and half Bs for two terms.

MARIE BUDAY and SUSAN SIMMERMAN of Charlevoix are among more than 200 students in the College of Arts and Sciences and Seidman College of Business and Administration at Grand Valley State Colleges in Allendale who were recently named to the Dean's List for the fall semester. Students must maintain a 3.5 grade point or higher while earning 15 credits to be included on the list.

Conservation officer Michael Mol, above, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mol of Charlevoix, has been nominated by the Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan State Police for special commendation following a March 26 incident on Houghton Lake in which Mol coordinated the rescue of a snowmobiler who had fallen into open water and was trapped on the ice.

Air Force Staff Sgt. ROSS H. FALTING, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Falting of Charlevoix, Air Force Master Sgt. ROBERT. W. GRUNCH, son of Beatrice Grunch of Charlevoix, Air Force Tech. Sgt. NUALA R. GARDNER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Gardner of East Jordan and Air Force Airman 1st Class JOAN E. WALTER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Walter of East Jordan, have all participated in Global Shield 81, the Strategic Air Command's (SAC) response to a simulated attack on the United States. The local service members are among more than 100,000 U.S. Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and Canadian Personnel taking part in SAC's largest, no-notice, 30-day training exercise.

During one portion of Global Shield, more than 500 B-52 and FB-111 bombers and KC-135 tankers took off from 70 different locations in the United States and Guam within minutes of notification. This exercise is not related in any way to real world situations, according to a SAC spokesman. Global Shield 81 is designed to test the command's capability to carry out emergency war orders to support U.S. policy if deterrence fails. This exercise has been constructed to measure SAC's response to a set of preplanned events leading up to a simulated attack on the United States, the spokesman said.

The Board of Trustees of the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund has announced the appointment of RONALD M. BUCKNER, Rt. 3, Charlevoix, to serve as the V.F.W. representative on the Charlevoix County Veterans Trust Fund Committee for a term ending December 31, 1981.

New study rates risks, proposes modifications specific to Big Rock

by DAVE KNIGHT

At a Monday morning press conference, Consumers Power officials announced the completion of a year-long study of the chances of harmful accidents at the Big Rock nuclear plant and what modifications of the plant would best prevent such accidents.

The $1 million dollar study that has recently been filed with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission suggested seven modifications to reduce accident risk, one of which has already been installed.

Consumers Power contracted the Palo Alto, California consulting firm of Wood, Lever & Associates to compile what is termed a Probabilistic Risk Assessment (PRA) in March, 1980 to provide an evaluation tool tailor-made to the Big Rock plant.

According to Pat Donnelly, senior reactor operator at Big Rock, many regulations and directives received by the NRC are based on some industry characteristics that do not apply to Big Rock, the fifth oldest nuclear power plant in the country and a relatively small (240 MWt) producer of electricity.

The PRA, said Donnelly, addresses specifically the risk assessment at Big Rock and will allow the plant to deal with reducing that risk more effectively.

Consumers Power Vice President for Nuclear Operations Russell B. DeWitt, who appeared at Monday's press conference, is quoted in a release as saying, "The study supports what we've always known about Big Rock. The impact of an accident at Big Rock Point would be substantially less than at the average U.S. nuclear plant, although the possibility of an accident occurring here is currently calculated to be somewhat higher than the average. The modifications we have proposed would reduce that possibility so that both the likelihood of an incident and its effects will be better than the average."

DeWitt said Monday that, with the modifications proposed in the PRA, there is no reason to doubt that the Big Rock plant will not be able to remain in operation for the rest of its planned life which is about 19 more years.

Proposed modifications include:

-A better fire control system to provide an additional cooling water source for the plant's emergency condenser.

-Modified procedures for using the feedwater system so that cooling water can be recirculated more quickly.

-Installation of equipment which would lock certain safety valves in their correct positions.

-Installation of alternate equipment which could shut down the plant in case of emergency.

-Addition of independent isolation valves on the plant's primary cooling system.

-Modification of the feedwater system to increase its availability in an emergency.

-Installation of a system which would provide containment cooling by spraying cooling water in the plant's containment building in an emergency.

The spraying system in the containment building has already been installed and, according to plant

Waste water treatment plant receives prestigious EPA award

by DAVE KNIGHT

Charlevoix's waste water treatment plant was cited for its efficiency and innovation last week by the Environment Protection Agency which bestowed its second annual Award of Excellence on the plant.

In a ceremony at City Hall Thursday, EPA regional operations and maintenance specialist David H. Stoltenberg, presented Mayor Sam Supernaw with a plaque of commendation to the city and presented individual plaques to plant superintendent Lloyd Kuebler and staff members Bernie Ward, Jr., Sam Creswell and Phil Martin.

Charlevoix's plant was one of six finalists for the award chosen out of the more than 450 municipal treatment plants in the State of Michigan.

Said Stoltenberg at the presentation ceremony, "It is obvious from the appearance of your city that you people are very interested in the quality of life here. That interest is also obvious from the high professional standards you have established and maintained at your waste water treatment plant."

According to Stoltenberg, more than 20 criteria were considered in determining the award winner. Among them were consistently high efficiency of operation over the year and the introduction of innovative methods of waste treatment and disposal.

The Charlevoix plant registered very high marks in actual waste removal as it consistently removed 98 percent of the biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) and suspended solids and 85 percent of the phosphorus.

Another major factor in the award was Charlevoix's unique sludge disposal arrangement in which the sludge is hauled by truck to a large reclamation project at the quarry used by the Medusa Cement Company.

Said Bill Marks of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources environmental protection bureau, "We view Charlevoix's sludge control project as a pioneering effort in the state and hope that more communities take the fine example set here."

Dedicated in 1971, the Charlevoix plant has a 1 million gallon per day capacity. It is currently processing approximately 200,000 gallons per day and will treat up to 500,000 gallons per day at the peak of the summer season.

City Attorney Hoffman dead at 31

Frank G. Hoffman

Frank G. Hoffman, 31, Charlevoix City Attorney and Assistant Prosecutor of Charlevoix County, died unexpectedly at his home in Charlevoix Monday.

The body was transported to Gaylord Monday night for an autopsy to determine the cause of death. Funeral arrangements were not arranged as of Monday evening.

Born in Petoskey July 7, 1949, Hoffman was a graduate of St. Francis High School in Petoskey and Central Michigan University with a Bachelor of Science degree. He received his law degree from the Detroit College of Law.

He was affiliated with Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity and Delta Theta Phi law fraternity. He was later associated with Ernst and Ernst of Saginaw and Price Waterhouse of Detroit, both Certified Public Accountant firms. He came to Charlevoix in 1974 to become associated with his brother, Robert L. Hoffman, in the practice of law in the firm that bore their names, Hoffman and Hoffman.

He was appointed assistant county prosecutor in 1977 and Charlevoix city attorney in 1979.

He was a member of the American Bar Association, Michigan Bar Association, Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association in which he served as secretary and vice-president, Association of Trial Lawyers of America, American Judicare Society, St. Mary's Church and the Father Pierre Charlevoix Council No. 7172 Knights of Columbus. He was financial secretary of the latter organization.

He is survived by his wife, the former Cheri Burlingame whom he married at Mt. Pleasant in 1970, two children, Julie Lynn and Jeff Allen, at home, his mother, Mrs. Fred (Marvi) Hoffman, Sr., of Petoskey, a sister, Mrs. Burt (Jane) Chickering of Traverse City and three brothers, Fred J., Jr., and James L. of Petoskey and Robert L. of Charlevoix.

Hospital Project nears completion

The announcement that Charlevoix Area Hospital's Emergency Room has been relocated to the front of the hospital, coupled with the completion of construction on the new two-story wing along the Lake Michigan shore, marks the beginning of the homestretch in the hospital's renovation and construction project.

Surgical patients will be moving into new rooms, decorated in blues and greens, with a view of Lake Michigan on the top floor of the new wing next week. Administrative offices have already moved to the ground floor.

The new emergency room entrance faces the main parking lot. The ambulance entrance is around the corner. As well as a change of location, for patient convenience, the facilities are larger and equipped to handle more patients more efficiently. They include a main emergency room, a secondary treatment room, a cast room, waiting room, nurses station and general utility room.

During the final stages of renovation, the hospital's X-ray department will move into its new and larger quarters adjacent to the emergency room, again for added convenience and efficiency for both patients and medical staff.

These and other moves are part of the $2.7 million project to which many people of Charlevoix County and parts of Antrim and Emmet Counties gave so generously in the fund raising campaign of 1979. Over $800,000 was raised locally enabling the hospital to obtain the extremely low interest loan, at five percent interest, from the Farmers Home Administration to

Class of '56 plans 20th reunion weekend

The Class of 1956 of the Charlevoix High School will hold its 25th reunion on the weekend of June 26, 27 and 28.

The event will feature a get-together at the Douglas Reynolds home on Waller Road Friday evening, reunion dinner at a site to be determined on Saturday evening and a picnic at the Ferry Ave. beach on Sunday.

The committee planning the event is seeking the present names and addresses of four class members, Vicky McClure, Howard Steen, William Blain and Tom Gokee. Anyone knowing where these people might be or how to contact them is asked to call Joe Etienne or Michael Gibbons.

County Road Commission annual report shows increases

The Charlevoix County Road Commission operated on a budget of $1,648,568 in 1980, the Commission's annual report shows.

How was this money spent, and where did it come from? Highlights of the report give some answers:

During the year, the Commission constructed 1.45 miles of primary road consisting of base correction and bituminous asphalt paving on Ferry Road from Wurm Road east, at a cost of $104,465.

The Commission also constructed local roads in eight township, toward which the townships contributed $111,665.

General maintenance of the 178.75 miles of primary roads in the county cost $281,877 and general maintenance of the 540.81 miles of local roads cost $432,264. In addition, winter maintenance of primary roads cost $78,823 and winter maintenance of local roads cost $114,719. Maintenance of trunklines year around amounted to $185,338.

The Road Commission spent $633,250 on equipment during 1980. This included the costs of a new trandem axle dump truck, a new single axle dump truck, two 10-cubic-yard sanders, a roadside mower, two pickups, and two underbody scrapers. Rental of equipment amounted to $512,451.

Administrative expenses totaled $117,713. Included in this figure are salaries of the three members of the Road Commission ($1,200 each), administrative salaries ($56,049), travelling expenses ($3,819), legal expenses ($9,8400, and engineer's car ($5,006), among other expenses.

Road Commission funds come mostly from the State. Last year, the Commission received $1,159,984 from various Michigan Department of Transportation sources, including gasoline and diesel fuel taxes and vehicle license fees.

Federal aid amounted to $148,126, and trunkline revenues were $185,869. Local funds of $112,727 were made up of $111,665 from the townships and $1,062 in "contributions".

In presenting his report to the County Board of Commissioners last week, Road Engineer-Manager Fred Welch commented on the skyrocketing cost of equipment, fuel and labor.

He also noted that although the Michigan Department of Transportation had revenues of $738 and a half million last year, by the time other agencies had skimmed off their "shares", only $225 and a half million was available for distribution to the 83 County Road Commissions in the state.

Present members of the Charlevoix County Road Commission are Donald Graham, East Jordan, John Kujawski, Boyne City, and Robert Stowe of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix County Commissioner John Haggard recently presented copies of a resolution adopted by the Charlevoix County Board to Representatives Ralph Ostling and Steve Andrews in Lansing prior to his testimony before the House Policy Committee. The board action was taken as a result of a legislative resolution which was introduced to deny the Ohio Air National Guard access to two proposed air routes in Northern Michigan.

Charlevoix County chairman of the American Cancer Society Joanne Curtis presented Charlevoix Mayor Sam Supernaw with a proclamation last week for his signature. The proclamation, passed by the City Council as well, designates the month of April as Cancer Control Month.

Ed Rebman on the job

Rebman retirement noted by commissioners

The upcoming retirement of Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Agent Ed Rebman was noted last week by a resolution passed by the County Board of Commissioners.

The resolution commemorates Rebman's years of service in these words:

"WHEREAS, since September 1, 1945, Ed Rebman has acted as the County Coopertive Extension Agent; and

"WHEREAS, he intends to retire on April 30, 1981; and

"WHEREAS Ed has taken the word 'cooperative" to heart in all of his professional and personal life. Cooperation with the local home gardener who has blight in his tomatoes, or the strawberry blossoms that won't set. Cooperation with the farmer who has trouble with milk production, or is experiencing drought. Cooperation with the local lot owner who is having problems with a certain species of tree. The list could go on and on, but we know that Ed has taken this all in stride and considers cooperation as part of his daily job. Along with his regular duties, Ed has taken the time to work with the Agricultural Stabilization Committee, County Parks and Recreation Commission, Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District, and the County Planning Commission.

"Ed, words cannot express our appreciation of your cooperative spirit for more than 35 years. Charlevoix County is a better place to live because of you. You have left a high mark and standard for others to follow. Thanks for giving so much of yourself. We hope your next 35 years will be as fruitful as the past.

"NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that this Board goes on record as complimenting Ed for his many years of loyal service."

Building permits gain steam

Business picked up for the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection during March.

The Department issued 30 permits during the month, compared with eight in January and 13 in February.

While only eight of the March permits were for new residences, 16 of them were for residential additions and remodeling. The others were for one new commercial building, three for commercial additions and remodeling, and two for demolitions.

Two of the new residences will be built in Charlevoix Township, two in Hayes Township, two in Melrose Township, one in Boyne Valley Township, and one in Marion Township.

Three of the residential remodeling jobs will be done in the City of Charlevoix, three in Boyne City, two in Wilson Township, and one each in Charlevoix Township, Hayes Township, Norwood Township, South Arm Township, Boyne Valley Township, East Jordan, and Boyne Falls.

Construction costs of the eight new residences (exclusive of pluming, heating, and electrical work) is estimated at $281,078, or an average of $35,134 per house.

Appearing before the County Board last week were, from left, John Hodge, regional director of the extension service, new Charlevoix County extension agent Rodney B. Cortright and retiring agent Ed Rebman.

Cortright named to succeed Rebman as County Agent

Rodney B. (Rod) Cortright, 29, will succeed Ed Rebman, Charlevoix County Extension Agent, on May 1.

Rebman, who has been on the job for over 35 years, is retiring at that time.

Cortright was recommended for the position by a committee from Michigan State University's Extension Service and was approved by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week.

The new Extension Agent grew up on a farm in Calhoun County and is a graduate of Michigan State. He comes to Charlevoix County from Otsego County, where he has served with the Soil Conservation Service for three years. Previously he had spent a year in Charlevoix County with the Soil Conservation Service, and at another time he worked with the Farmers' Home Administration.

Cortright and his wife live in Elmira but they intend to make their home somewhere in Charlevoix County in the near future.

Knight on the Town
'Tis better to have tried...

by Dave Knight

Okay, so I didn't bring home any smelt last weekend.

The smelt just weren't running up at Wilderness Park. They weren't even walking.

But that's no reflection on the fishing prowess of myself or companion Dave Guzniczak. At least we made the effort.

In fact, we were about the only ones who did at the spot we chose. Most of the two hundred or so quasi-dippers on this particular creek were quite satisfied to sit by their bonfires, drink their medicine and watch Guz and I wade out to test the waters.

As we carefully drew the dip net along and raised it from the water, beams of flashlights from all over the encampment would focus briefly on our empty net and then go off. Looking back, it's probably just as well that we didn't come up with a fish one of those times. Had a single, puny smelt shown up in the beams of all those flashlights, the rush to the water would have been chaotic enough to chase all the smelt over to Escanaba.

At one point we dredged up a dead leaf with the net and one poor joker got so excited he went into the water up to his neck. That's what called wetting your pants...and shirt...and socks...and jacket... and suspenders.

At least this time was more exciting than my last smelting experience.

A few years ago I made a smelt dipping expedition to Lake Superior with Hasler, another misguided soul. The only weekend we could spring was that of Easter Sunday so Holy Saturday found us camped on the forbidden wasteland called Porcupine Mountain on the rugged shore of the Big, Big Lake.

That place was frozen solid. The smelt runs that year were still a month away and the creek mouths were jam packed with massive ice floes. Pretty hard to dip under those circumstances.

So we resorted to playing cards. One conversation led to another and all of a sudden Hasler said, "I wonder if the Easter Bunny will find us up here." As far as I was concerned, Coast Guard Air Rescue would have had a hard time where we were much less the Easter Bunny.

But Hasler persisted; "Bet you half a buck he finds us."

Sounded like an easy mark to me. I figured the cold had peoetrated Hasler's cranium but, never one to pass up a sure thing, I took the bet.

As we finally drifted off, I felt four bits richer but a little concerned for Hasler's obviously degrading mental state.

The next morning I stirred at daybreak and felt foreign objects rolling around on my pillow. Low and behold they were foil covered chocolate eggs that had been slyly smuggled into the camper the day before.

There are two morals to this story; if you go smelt dipping on Lake Superior before Easter, don't bother to bring any buckets and, unless you have a lot of change to get rid of, don't bet against the Easter Bunny.

The new Emergency Entrance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Hospital project nearly done

finance the balance of the project.

The major new construction has been the new two story wing running at a right angle to the existing building along the Lake Michigan shore. The relaocation of the administrative offices to the lower floor of the new wing permitted the renovations for the relocation of the emergency and X-ray departments.

Meanwhile, medical records was also relocated to a larger room at the back of the original hospital building to make way for the expanding X-ray department.

General admitting offices are just inside the front of the original building between the main and emergency entrances.

The rooms being vacated by surgical patients moving to the new wing will be renovated for a surgical waiting room, surgical supply room, central supply room and a new out-patient surgical recovery room. The new out-patient recovery room is for patients undergoing surgery for which overnight hospitalization is unneccessary.

With the relocation of the surgical beds in the new wing, all patient rooms, except obstetrics, Intensive and Coronary Care Units and pediatrics, which will remain in their present locations, will be conveniently located on two adjacent halls.

An enlarged nurses station has been placed in the new wing at the intersection of these two halls. A smaller nurses station will be maintained near the pediatrics end of the hall.

During this transition period, while the hospital kitchen and cafeteria are being remodeled, employees and visitors will use temporary cafeteria facilities located in a new classroom on the lower floor of the new wing.

Soon the classrooms will be used for public classes in preventive medicine, as well as inservice training for hospital staff.

By mid-summer the finishing touches should be complete. These include expanding the laboratory once the X-ray is relocated; moving the respiratory therapy out of physical therapy department into some of the ace vacated by the X-ray; and npleting work in the cafeteria, chen and pharmacy.

The goal of the project has been to enlarge out-patient facilities which have had a tremendous increase in use over the past decade. This increase has been attributed to many factors, including a growth in population, the addition of physicians to the staff and the emphasis in modern medicine to treat people on an out patient basis when appropriate to minimize costs to both patient and hospital.

Plans are now underway for a public reception once all the work is completed.

Big Rock completes PRA study

officials, engineering studies are being conducted for the other six modifications. The total cost for the proposed modifications was estimated to be from $750,000 to $1 million.

Most of the modifications have to do with accidents involving fires in the plant, which are identified in the PRA as being the most probable type of dangerous incidents that could occur at Big Rock.

"We have done a lot of work in this area since the recent accident at the Brown's Ferry nuclear plant," said Dave Blanchard, senior plant engineer.

The decision to conduct the PRA came after a wave of NRC regulations were issued to Big Rock and all other U.S. nuclear plants in the wake of the Three Mile Island accident. To comply with some regulations based on generic industry standards but unrelated to specific characteristics of Big Rock, the utility contended, would have resulted in unreasonably high costs with little or no additional safety.

DeWitt stated Monday that Big Rock is currently a cost effective operation for Consumers Power in that to produce the same amount of electricity by burning fossil fuels would cost considerably more. To produce the same amount of power, said DeWitt, the plant would have to burn 3,000 barrels of oil a day. The plant now contributes less than one percent to the total Consumers Power grid.

In compiling the PRA, the following data were used:

-A review of the plant's design including how equipment is used to respond to non-normal events, the functions of the plant's safety systems and how they interconnect and the actions prescribed for plant operators during abnormal situations.

-Use of computer models of the plant to predict a variety of possible accident sequences and conditions.

-Assessment of the chances for major accidents occurring which could lead to damage to the nuclear fuel.

-Analysis of the radioactive atoms which could be released to the atmosphere in the event of fuel damage.

-Analysis of the health consequences to the surrounding population following a release of radiation.

DeWitt also noted at the press conference that it is important to the industry to keep Big Rock operating safely saying, "There is a distinct advantage to keeping the plant running because it is a small plant and we can learn some things much easier from it than we can from a much larger plant."

Over the past year, as many as 12 individuals from the consulting firm worked at Big Rock on the PRA along with several plant employees.

Said Donnelly, "We have already implemented hundreds of procedural changes and have trained our operators extensively in the handling of degrading situations. Hundreds of hours have been spent on training on a simulator."

Donnelly also said that a byproduct of the exhaustive PRA were some findings that resulted in ways to operate the plant more efficiently.

The PRA was submitted to the NRC last month as "an alternative to generic regulation" and is hoped by Consumers Powere to be recognized by the agency as an evaluation tool. It was pointed out by the utility that the PRA will be continually updated as further data is made available.

Clockwise
Let's license marriages

by Bob Clock

The other night Judy and I were visiting some friends who had just celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary. They have raised three bright, personable youngsters and live in a comfortable, well appointed home.

"But you know," Gwendolyn commented wryly, "no marriage license should be valid for 20 years. Marvin isn't the same man I married 20 years ago; and I'm sure I have changed, too. Society has no business demanding that you pick a life-time partner when you are 18 or 20 years old, because you have no idea what that person will be like in 20 years."

Fortunately Marvin and Gwendolyn wear their years of matrimony lightly. They both have finely tuned senses of humor that complement each other. They share a number of common interests and they appear to enjoy each other's company.

But I think Gwendolyn has a point. There is no way starry-eyed bride can know that that handsome young swain eagerly awaiting her at the altar will become fat, bald, and dyspeptic in 20 years. Nor does he know what a proclivity for groceries will do to the figure and personality of that svelt young woman who has promised to share his life.

Perhaps, instead of lasting "until death do us part," the marriage license should be renewable, like a lease. If you failed to renew your license by a specified date, the marriage would be declared null and void, saving both parties a bundle in attorney's fees.

Of course, provisions would have to be made for children. If the union were blessed with progeny, the license would be automatically extended until the child is in kingergarten. Then the renewal cycle would start a fresh.

I suggest that the initial marriage license be issued for no longer than one year. This would give the couple ample opportunity to resolve individual differences that could stand in the way of a long and happy married life.

After the first year, if both partners concur, the marriage license should be renewed for, say, four years. Subsequent renewal periods would last for five years until – after 25 years – a permanent marriage license would be issued.

Renewable marriage licenses would have many advantages, not the least of which is that they would force the partners to stay on their best behavior if they intend to stay married. I can see both husbands and wives going that extra mile to please their helpmates as the time for renewal approaches. Candy, flowers and intimate little suppers at romantic hideaways would be the rule rather than the exception.

This comfortable old business of "taking each other for granted" would be a thing of the past.

You wouldn't find the lady of the house lolling about in bathrobe and hair curlers at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Nor would the gentleman of the house be inclined to spend so much of his time wrapped around a beer can in front of the television set.

Each renewal of the marriage license would be a bonafide occasion for celebration - complete with a repetition of the marriage vows, a reception for friends and relatives and if funds allow, a second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth or seventh honeymoon.

Marriage with the right partner is a wonderful institution and it is a pity we have let it become so "old hat." By the same token, it is inconsiderate of society to force incompatible couples to live together or put them through the trauma of divorce.

Renewable, self-limiting marriage licenses not only would put new life in marriage itself, but would make it easier to say goodbye.

I think our social architects should listen to Gwendolyn. After 20 years of marriage, she knows whereof she speaks.

Good Friday union service at Church of God

The traditional union services marking the observance of Good Friday will be held at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Flurlbut Ave. at 12:15 p.m.

Scenes for the Drama of Salvation will be featured with members of the sponsoring organization, the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, speaking on one of the scenes that highlight the various events of Easter Week.

Rev. Walter Hastings, pastor of the host church, will welcome the worshippers.

Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church will speak on "The Last Sopper"; Rev. James Plackner of Bethany Lutheran Church, "The Agony of Gethsemane"; Rev. Austin Regier of the United Methodist Church, "The Betrayal and the Arrest"; Rev. Larry Grooters of the Community Reformed Church, "Peter's Denial"; Rev. Roger Ames of Christ Episcopal Church, "The Trial and the Scourging"; Rev. Carl Gunn of the First Baptist Church, "The Crucifixion"; and Rev. Hastings, "The Triumph of the Cross".

Cecil Drost of the Assembly of God Church will deliver the benediction.

Steven Stargardt will lead the singing by the congregation. Mrs. John Lignell will be at the piano and Mrs. Robert Gill at the organ.

Special hymns and anthems will be sung by soloists from participating churches.

Worshippers of all denominations are invited to participate in this special service being held from 12:15 until 1:45 p.m. on Good Friday.

Places of business and offices will be closed to allow those who wish to attend the service.

Engagements

Arthur-Niswander

A May 30, 1981 date has been set for the wedding of Lorraine Arthur, 201 Meech, Charlevois and Joe Niswander, 103 E. Upright, Charlevoix. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Arthur, 15045 Fielding, Detroit, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Niswander of East Jordan. The wedding will be held at the Church of God in Charlevoix.

The prospective bride graduated from Redford High in Detroit and is employed at Jeans Etc. in Charlevoix. The groom graduated from East Jordan High School and is employed at East Jordan Plastics.

Ditlow-Cook

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ditlow of Charlevoix have announced the engagement of their daughter, Kyle Renee Ditlow, also of Charlevoix, to David Jerome Cook, of Dearborn, son of Mrs. John Cook and the late Mr. Cook of Dearborn. A June 27, 1981 wedding is planned at the East Jordan Methodist Church.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Charlevois High School and is a senior at Western Michigan University where she is majoring in special education for the visually impaired. The groom is a graduate of Fordson High School of Dearborn and a 1979 graduate of Western Michigan University with a BBA degree in industrial Marketing. He is employed as a scheduling analyst for Burroughs Corporation in Detroit.

Weddings

Ellis-Curiel

Donna Ellis became the bride of Steve Curiel on Saturday evening, April 4, at Christ Episcopal Church.

The bride is the daughter of Edward and Shirley Germain of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Raymond and Patricia Curiel of Prescott, Ariz.

Approximately 150 guests witnessed the Reverend Roger Ames performing the double-ring ceremony and the bride being given in marriage by Edward Germain.

For her wedding, the bride wore a gown fashioned with a Queen Ann neckline, full train and veil, and a scalloped front with simulated pearls and applique. Her headpiece was of yellow roses and white carnations and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and daisies.

Terrie Wilson served as maid of honor, and Vicky Thorp and Chris Towsley were bridesmaids. They wore blue gowns with lace and applique trim and simulated pearls. Matching blue shawls covered the spaghetti straps.

Ron Darden served the bridegroom as best man, Dan Stonewall and Gill Bottoms were the groomsmen, and Joe Travers and Frank Ellis served as ushers.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the Undercroft of the church.

The newlyweds are living in Charlevoix, where the bridegroom is stationed with the United States Coast Guard. (Photography by Pat Ketler)

MORE DIAMONDS FOR YOUR MONEY

If you've ever seen a fine, large diamond, you probably experienced the brief moment of breathlessness most people do. We jewelers never get over that sensation no matter how many diamonds we encounter.

Unfortunately, fine large diamonds are out of the price range of many people. There is, however, a beautiful alternative which we recommend highly -- the multiple diamond setting!

Since fine diamonds are more rare in large sizes, the per carat price is higher. An alternative to a large stone is a group of small diamonds which produces a remarkable "cumulative effect." As a matter of fact, some people prefer this unique, glittery sparkle.

Small diamonds have been used for many years to enhance the beauty of a colored stone. But more and more people are becoming aware of the way diamonds can complement each other as well.

Some popular uses of diamond groupings are clusters set into rings, earrings and pendants, paved surfaces of tiny diamonds (such as watch faces or flat bracelet surfaces) and rows of diamonds in eternity rings, chokers and bracelets.

By opting for this diamond grouping alternative, you can get more total carat weight for less money. For instance, a group of small diamonds totaling one carat would almost always cost less than a one carat single diamond of equal quality.

Come into Reusch Jewelers for a first-hand look at this phenomenon. We think you'll be pleasantly surprised.

Local Beta Sigma Phi chapters plan banquet to mark anniversary

Political officials ranging from President Ronald Reagan to governors and mayors throughout the United States and Canada have signed proclamations honoring chapters of Beta Sigma Phi of which there are two chapters in Charlevoix.

This April 30 the women's social, service and cultural organization is celebrating its 50th anniversary with Founder's Day activities ranging from small gatherings to huge banquets for thousands of members.

Locally, the Founder's Day anniversary celebration will be held on April 27 at the Grey Gables Inn in Charlevoix.

The anniversary will be observed by local chapters of Charlevoix, Petoskey, Boyne City, Gaylord and Lewiston. Mrs. Don Voisin is serving as chairman of the local Founder's Day activities.

The toastmistresses for the evening will be Mrs. Thomas Pence, president of Xi Epsilon Gamma and Mrs. John Coolman, president of Kappa Sigma.

Mrs. Voisin has also been selected for the honor of presenting a special message from the International Executive Council of Beta Sigma Phi. Awards will be presented to local members and outstanding members will be recognized for their work for the sorority and the community this year.

Some local Beta Sigma Phi projects include staffing of the Bloodmobile canteen, Sightmobile and Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament canteens, sponsoring an annual Santa Claus luncheon for area children, contributions to the Womens Resource Center, Charlevoix Hospital Expansion project, Bergmann Center, Chips Counseling Center and the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

In previous years the sorority has been involved in the Santa Claus Anonymous project, Those In Need and the development of the children's play area at the Charlevoix tennis courts.

Beta Sigma Phi is the largest Greek letter sorority and has grown in its 50-year history from one chapter of seven women to a sorority of 250,000 women active in chapters in 32 countries throughout the world.

Begun in the midst of the Depression by Walter W. Ross, Beta Sigma Phi was originally designed to provide an outlet for women who, in those hard financial times, could not attend college and were obliged to remain home and support their families. Walter Ross provided these women with a program of cultural study so they could have a chance at intellectual and social growth.

From the first chapter formed in Abilene, Kansas, Beta Sigma Phi has grown into an international sorority that devotes much time to service efforts. Hardly a charitable, health or cultural group exists today that has not been helped in some way by Beta Sigma Phi.

Internationally, the chapters have created several special funds to which they contribute: the International Loan Fund, through which members help each other; the International Endowment Fund, which has donated over a million dollars to health research groups, homes for underprivileged children and many other causes; the Esemplar Fund, which helps support Literacy Village in India; and a college scholarship fund for members or their sons or daughters.

Each year, members are provided with a different outline of study in the liberal arts, members also plan socials throughout the year, including traditional events like Founder's Day.

Tickets now available for 1981-82 Northern Michigan community concerts

The Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center has opened its facilities to Community Concert workers who are distributing sales packets to area supporters. Workers pick up their packets of tickets and then begin a month-long sales campaign designed to sell season memberships in Northern Michigan Community Concerts. Membership includes tickets to four concerts to be held again this year in the Middle School at 8 p.m.

Area residents have been entertained by Northern Michigan Community Concerts. Virginia McCune, for whom the Arts Center is named, served on the board and as president of the concert organization.

The 1981-82 season includes four concerts. The William Carter dancers will appear in October followed by the California Boys Choir in March, duo-pianists Stecher and Horowitz in November and violinist Karmit Zori in April.

Clive Barnes of the New York Times has said of the of the founder of the William Carter Dancers, "William Carter is one of the best dancers in American classic ballet. For that matter he is one of the best dancers in the world." The troupe has appeared internationally. Dance magazine has featured Carter on its cover.

The California Boys Choir was founded and directed by Douglas Neslund and is composed of 26 Choirboys ranging in age from 10 to 15 who are selected from dozens of young Californians in the Choir's Training Program. The Choir performs regularly with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, the Los Angeles Master Chorale, Glendale Symphony and Pasadena Symphony. Members of the choir have sung for the Joffrey Ballet, the American Ballet Theater and the New York City Opera in its fall season at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Music Center of Los Angeles. Their television appearances include the Mary Tyler Moore special.

Stecher and Horowitz, duo pianists, have been credited with sparking a major revival in the two-piano concert. During the past two decades they have performed a remarkable variety of new music, as well as traditional masterpieces for two pianos for audiences throughout the world. They have recorded performances of duo-piano works by Brahms, Chopin and Milhaud for Advance Records.

Karmit Zori, a native of Tel-Aviv, Israel, Leventritt violinist came to the U.S. to study at the recommendation of Alexander Schneider and Isaac Stern. Winner of the Philadelphia Orchestra Senior Students auditions, she debuted with that orchestra in December, 1978 and in April, 1979, she appeared twice as soloist with the New York Philharmonic and Zubin Mehta. She was also a participant in the Mariboro Music Festival.

Memberships are available for $38 a family, $15 per adult and $8 per student for all four concerts. New subscribers will be invited to attend the final concert of the 1980-81 season, the Aspen Soloists.

Teen Challenge is a Christian organization that deals primarily with drug addicts and alcoholics. The students will be sharing their life stories and how they experienced a total life change from drugs and alcohol by accepting Christ." Rev. McClain will be singing and presenting a special message.

Marriage and Family Life seminar to feature Rev. Ernest Woolner

A Marriage and Family Life Enrichment Seminar will be held April 24 and 25 at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix according to Rev. Walter G. hastings, pastor.

The seminar will be led by Rev. Ernest D. Woolner who is pastor of the Woodlawn Church of God in Royal Oak and an experienced marriage counselor. He has conducted many family life workshops throughout the state and is a frequent convention and conference speaker on the subject of home and family.

The seminar is designed to make good marriages even more effective through better communications and to strengthen family relationships. Conferernce topics include "Communication: Key to Your Marriage", "Why Can't We Talk About It?" "Is Anger Always a No-no?" and "How to Handle Anger Before It Handles You".

The seminar times are Friday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The $4 registration fee per person includes a lunch on Saturday. The registration deadline is April 19 after which an additional $1 will be charged for late registration. Child care will be available at the seminar for a small fee.

The seminar is open to all interested adults and high school youth in the community whether married, single or divorced. People may call the church office at 547-2875 to register.

Girls' softball team ready to face Harbor Springs

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix girls softball team coached by Mary Gengle will officially open its season at Harbor Springs Thursday.

This will mark the first time since the sport was initiated into the school three years ago that the two teams have met, said Coach Gengle.

She added that she and the team are looking forward to a good season.

"These kids have played together now for two years. We lost a few players through graduation last year. We have a good nucleus around which to build this year's squad," said Coach Gengle.

She went on to say that there was a lot of stiff competition among the teams on the schedule.

"It looks like a good season," she concluded.

Last year, the Charlevoix girls advanced to the district finals before losing to Tawas.

Coach Gengle said she had nine members returning from last season. Among them are pitchers Mel Kerridge, Melinda Klooster and Holly Taber. A fourth candidate for this position, Rhonda Buchanan, a freshman, will also be available.

Kerridge and Klooster are seniors. In addition to pitching, Kerridge will play shortstop or third base and Klooster at first base or center field. Taber, a junior, will play at first when not pitching and Buchanan at second base.

Other seniors are Teresa Noirot who will be behind the plate or at shortstop; Brenda Buchanan at third or first base and Doretta Anderson, center field.

Returning juniors are Margo Smith who will play in left field or at third base and Colleen LaBlance, at second base or in the outfield. Bridget Noirot, another returnee, is a sophomore who will catch or play in the outfield.

Newcomers who have joined the squad are sophomores, Chris Mitchell, an outfielder, and Chris Wojan, who will play in the outfield or on second base. Laura Henry, a freshman, is another newcomer who is a candidate for an outfield position.

On Saturday, the team will travel to Central Lake to play in a tournament with the host team and Kalkaska.

Central Lake and Kalkaska will open the tournament at 10 a.m. The winner of this game will take on Charlevoix at noon.

The losers of the first two games will play at 2 p.m. with the finals scheduled for 4 p.m.

Handgun instruction available

...by Burford

If we are to believe all the statistics that have been thrown around the past two weeks, there are one heck of a lot of people in the country that own handguns.

Surely this fact runs as true in the Charlevoix area as anywhere else. The difference is, it seems to me, that the majority of handgun owners in the more populated areas keep their weapons solely for security reasons while most people around here who own handguns regard them as sporting arms or collectors' items.

Either way, while a lot of people have handguns in their homes, I'd like to know what percentage of those people actually know how to use them. I'd like to know how many have even fired their weapon. And of those that have, do they consider themselves proficient?

I'd wager that the percentages in the three categories listed above are mighty small.

Frank Zednicek, a longtime Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club member and pistol instructor, is out to change that.

Zednicek has coordinated a pistol team at the Rod & Gun Club for close to 20 years. Currently he has about eight to ten individuals shooting regularly at the clubhouse's indoor range.

The team competes occasionally with other pistol teams from Petoskey, Harbor Springs and other nearby outdoor clubs. They recently even traveled to Saginaw for a competition.

Zednicek is now inviting all handgun owners in the area to participate in weekly sessions at the clubhouse at which he will be instructing handgun handling, safety, and marksmanship.

Besides holding National Rifle Association certification as a rifle, shotgun and pistol instructor, Zednicek has received Distinguished Expert credentials for his years of instructing experience.

His sessions are held each Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club which is located about one mile north of Charlevoix off U.S. 31. The indoor range at the clubhouse can accomodate .22 caliber weapons while an outdoor range is available for larger calibers such as .38s and .45s.

All that one needs to furnish to take part in the sessions are their own handgun and ammunition. There is no other cost involved except a small charge for targets used on the range.

Zednicek emphasizes that the sessions are definitely not for men only. He encourages any women in the area who would like to know more about handling and shooting a handgun to take part.

Anyone wishing more information on the handgun instruction sessions can call Frank Zednicek at 547-4453.
